ANGRY COMMUTERS CALL FOR RELIEF

Appeal Made to War Department for Regulation of New Jersey Drawbridges.

THOUSANDS DAILY DELAYED

REQUEST THAT SCOWS BE NOT ALLOWED TO OBSTRUCT RAILROADS.

Papers Already Presented—Documents Forwarded to Washington, Which Will Make a Thorough Inquiry Into the Case.

New Jersey commuters to the number of many thousands, whose duties call them to New York every week day, are anxiously looking forward to the action which the War Department may take upon petitions which have been signed by thousands of persons asking for relief for the railroad companies from the delay caused by the frequent opening of drawbridges over the Hackensack and Passaic rivers.

Not a day passes but that from fifteen to thirty thousand passengers are placed to great inconvenience and, in many cases, subjected to delays which sometimes have serious consequences, in order to accommodate a few scows loaded with brick or lumber that may be navigating up or down the two rivers, and for which seventy five or one hundred trains in all each day are compelled to wait until the lumbering old craft are given an opportunity to pass through the draws of the bridges.

The roads affected are the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western; the New York, Susquehanna and Western; the Pennsylvania, the Erie and the Central of New Jersey. The delay to which commuters and the railroads make chief objection takes place between the hours of half-past seven and half-past nine o'clock in the morning and half-past four and half-past six o'clock in the evening. These are the hours when business men and women are either on their way from their homes in New Jersey to their places of business in Greater New York or else are homeward bound after a day devoted to work and business.

About two months ago commuters on the five railroads mentioned decided to take action in the direction of ameliorating the conditions of which they have so long complained. It was realized that it would be impossible to do away with the trouble altogether, as the law provides that the drawbridges shall be opened for the movement of craft on the Passaic and Hackensack rivers without prejudice to their interests. The War Department has control of all navigable streams in the United States, that power having been delegated to it by Congress. The Board of Engineers has direct management of these waters, and it to this branch of the army that it was decided to appeal for relief. The commuters drew up these petitions:

TO THE UNITED STATES ARMY BOARD—

Your petitioners, passengers traveling over the —— Railroad, daily or frequently, respectfully show that the passenger traffic over said railroad, morning and evening, is of vastly more importance than the traffic on the Hackensack and Passaic rivers, and reasonably demand the closing of the drawbridges for two or three hours, morning and evening, and they pray that a regulation may be made closing the same accordingly.

TO THE BOARD OF ENGINEERS—

The undersigned, residents and commuters and passengers on the line of the —— Railroad respectfully pray that you will make a rule for closing the drawbridges over the Passaic and Hackensack rivers for a reasonable time, morning and evening, the importance of the passenger travel at those hours reasonably requiring such closing.

The idea took at once. Signatures, together with the residences of the commuters who were tired of being delayed, were affixed by hundreds daily. A few days ago it was decided to present the lists to the Board of Engineers, which met in Newark last week.

By that time more than thirty-five thousand signatures had been attached to the petitions. Several gentlemen, who represented the signers, appeared at the Board meeting and placed the petitions before the officers comprising the Board, of which Colonel J. W. Barlow, who is in charge of the engineering works in the district of the Hudson River, Lake Champlain and New Jersey, is the president.

The Board formally accepted the petitions, but announced that it could do no more at that time than forward them to the War Department, which it has since done. It now remains with Secretary Root to take action.

PLAYING WITH MATCHES.

Young Son of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Rogers Narrowly Escaped Being Severely Burned.

The young son of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Rogers, of Westervelt avenue, narrowly escaped being terribly burned last Tuesday evening and setting the house on fire at the same time. His parents spent the evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Huff, of Codington avenue, and the child, who is two-and-a-half years old, went to bed. Harry Bush, who is stopping at the house for a time, was down stairs.

During the evening he smelled smoke and at once made an investigation. He traced the smoke to the boy's room. There he found to his amazement that the boy had crawled out of his crib and reached a bottle of furniture polish on the mantle. He found some matches and was having lots of fun. He ignited a few matches and then brought the polish in contact with the flame. The fire made lots of smoke and a few minutes later the the bed clothing would surely have been in a blaze. Mr. Bush was very thankful that he discovered the fire in time to prevent serious damage.

The celebrants received a great many useful and handsome presents from their friends and the affair was marked by many pleasant features. At midnight supper was served. When the guests departed they wished Mr. and Mrs. Schmidt many happy returns of the day.

The showing of millinery goods this season will be larger and better than ever before.

EIGHT NEW LAWS SIGNED BY GOVERNOR

Legislature Is Finding Hard Work to Keep Busy at the Present Session.

LAW FOR TRACK RAISING

A BLACK EYE INTENDED FOR THE CORPORATIONS.

Attorney-General Says There is No Need for Further Legislation for the Abolition of Grade Crossings.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, March 1.—Business continues to drag in both branches of the Legislature. Eight weeks of the session have passed, and only a dozen measures have reached the office of the Governor, who has approved eight of them. The Senate and House adjourned yesterday afternoon for the week.

Assemblyman Wakelee's bill, providing better protection for the holders of corporation bonds, came up in the House and precipitated a lively discussion that was not made on political lines. Republicans as well as Democrats found fault with the measure, and the only man on the floor who had a good word to say for it was Leader Wakelee, the introducer.

The bill was declared vicious by the Democratic members, because it takes from stockholders in corporations the right to vote and gives the bondholders the power to control the corporations in which they are interested. The effect of the bill would be to rob stockholders in corporations of voice in their management. In other words, the man who, under the present law, is secured by a bond would be given more security if the bill became a law, at the expense of the persons who had invested their dollars in corporations in the belief that they were safe and that the return from the investment would be profitable.

It was clearly shown that there was no great love for corporations among the members of the House, and, fearing that the bill would be defeated, Mr. Wakelee asked that it be laid over until next Monday night and it went over.

Attorney General Grey submitted to the House an opinion upon the question of track elevation. The members of the House wanted to know if additional legislation is needed to compel railroad companies to elevate or depress their tracks. The Attorney General holds that there is already sufficient legislation for cities to abolish grade crossings and to adjust the cost of track elevation.

Assemblymen Loudenberger, of Hunterdon county, has introduced a bill that is apt to stir the railroad companies and start the pipe line war that was so bitterly fought a few years ago. The Loudenberger bill makes it lawful for three or more persons, one of whom shall be a resident of the State of New Jersey, to organize a corporation for the construction and operation of pipe lines for the transportation and distribution of petroleum as common carriers, and regulates the operation and business of such companies and provides for the exercise of the right of eminent domain thereby for such purposes.

Post Want Four Cannon.

Charles Stephens and William Hand, from No. 73, G. A. R., who have charge of the work of bringing to Plainfield from Governor's Island, the cannon recently given to the Post by the Government, are busily engaged in perfecting plans for the same. There was some misunderstanding at first regarding the number of cannon that the Post was to receive. Two was the number ordered sent, but the Post want four and it is likely that number will be allowed.

Co-Operative Church Work.

It will no doubt be a long time before all Christian denominations shall be merged into one; but, meanwhile, every church may contribute something to the common good; each ought to learn something of value from the others; and all should be mutually helpful. Dr. Laidlaw, of New York City, is to speak tonight in Crescent Avenue chapel upon Christian Co-operation.

Mr. Martine Made Converts.

The Democrats of Neshanic are preparing for another mass meeting to be held in the K. of P. Hall, Neshanic station, Saturday evening. James J. Bergen, of Somerville, will be the speaker. The Democrats report several conversions to their side of the argument as a result of the speech James E. Martine made there a month ago.

LADYSMITH RELIEVED.

General Buller Wires Welcome News to the British War Office.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

London, March 1.—The War Office today gave out the following despatch from Sir Redvers Buller:

Lyttleton's Headquarters, Mrrch 1.—9:05 Morning.—Gen. Dundonald, with the Natal Carbineers and a composite regiment, entered Ladysmith last night.

The country between me and Ladysmith is reported clear of the enemy. I am moving on Neithorpe. Buller.

This message from Buller announced the relief of Ladysmith and the Salvation of Gen. White's army just in the nick of time, when provisions were practically exhausted and fever had thinned the ranks of the troops. The siege had lasted just four months, for it was on October 29th that Joubert locked up the British in the aldershot of Natal.

In breaking his way through the Boer defenses Buller has lost nearly nearly 3,000 men killed and wounded, while White's losses reached 2,460 killed, wounded and captured, making a total of nearly 6,000 men for the siege.

The relief of the Ladysmith garrison caused more rejoicing than the surrender of Gen. Cronje.

It was not expected for at least two days, and the previous unfounded reports of the relief of the place caused doubt to be expressed at first as to the genuineness of the story.

Flags are flying everywhere. Marlborough House, the home of the Prince of Wales, setting the example. St. Paul's bells will ring this evening.

"OLD NELSE" CAPTURED.

TERROR OF RAILROAD MEN LOCKED UP IN JAIL.

Caught in His Hut Near the B. and O. R. R. Tracks at Cranford Junction.

"Old Nelse" Davis, the terror of Cranford Junction, who for many months has been in the habit of creeping about the yards of the B. and O. Railroad and the tracks of the Jersey Central Railroad in Cranford and shooting at the brakemen and engineers, driving them into the telegraph office, into box cars and under cars out of range of his gun, was captured yesterday by Constable Schindler and another constable.

He was found in his hut in the woods back of the railroad tracks at Cranford Junction, where he has been in hiding ever since he heard there was a warrant out for his arrest.

He was arrested by the officers after some resistance and handcuffed. They then brought him to the Union County Jail. He says he does no know why he is there.

Justice Mendel of Cranford committed him to jail on the complaint of George Smith, a B. and O. engineer, who swears that on February 14th and at other times the prisoner shot at him with intent to kill.

"Old Nelse," as he is called, is 50 years old and a Dane. He always has had a grudge against engineers, because he says they annoy him with the whistling of their engines.

For months the railroad men have been in terror of their lives, as the old hermit would sally out after nightfall and begin to shoot indiscriminately at them when they were coupling cars or switching them in the yard.

PARKS WERE EASY FOR WESTFIELD CLUB

Westfield Team Won Three Straight in Daily Press Bowling League.

ROLLED AT WESTFIELD.

POOR ROLLING MARKED FIRST TWO GAMES.

C. D. Smith Kept the Lead for Highest Spare Averages—Westfield Showed Old Form in Last Game—The Scores.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, March 1—Some extremely poor rolling marked two of the three postponed games in The Daily Press Bowling League, played on the Westfield Club alleys last evening between the Westfield Club and the Park Club, of Plainfield. Westfield won all three, but two of the victories were accountable rather to the weakness of the visitors than to the efforts of the home team. In the last game the Westfield boys rolled in old-time form.

Lack of practice was evident on both sides at the start of the first game but the Parks seemed to have a little the best of it. In the second frame, they led by 39 pins and continued to do so but by a smaller margin for the first six frames. Then Westfield braced slightly and went ahead by three. In the eighth, there was 24 pins difference in favor of Westfield. On the windup, there was victory for the home team by 36 pins.

The Parks led for two frames in the second game and collapsed on the third with four breaks and split. Condit made a triple header and Westfield stepped to the front to stay by varying majorities. Westfield won on a strong windup 26 pins.

Both sides showed a decided improvement in the third game, but the Westfield bowlers had the better of it. They led by 17 pins on the first frame. Walter S. Smith had strikes on the first four frames and was 114 in his fifth. Both teams had clean frames in the third and Westfield did the same again in the sixth. On the fifth Westfield was only 35 in the lead, but several double headers made it 90 in the next and after that the Parks never had the ghost of a show. The end showed Westfield 98 pins ahead. Dr. Thiers did the best for the visitors in that game, making 103 in his fifth and 176 on the windup.

Captain Chauncey D. Smith, of the Westfield team, retained his hold on first place in the individual contest for average spares, slightly improving his average.

The individual scores were as follows:

READ OUT OF CHURCH.

Members of Colored Churches Disciplined for Having Tripped Light Fantastic Toe.

There is great consternation among the members of the Mt. Olive Baptist and Calvary Baptist churches over a recent action which read a number of the young people out of the churches for dancing. A short time ago several were read out of the Calvary Baptist church, and a few days ago a number of young people were read out of the Mt. Olive Baptist church. The many friends of those who have been barred out of the churches are somewhat indignant over the action and think it is an injustice. Those who have been disqualified know that it is against the rules of the church, and when they joined they obligated themselves not to attend dances.

Homan, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Ulrick, Mr. and Mrs. VanWinkle, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Woodruff, Judge and Mrs. W. A. Coddington, Postmaster and Mrs. E. H. Bird. WAS MOSSMAN STRUCK?

Two Men Are Held in Rahway Suspected of Fighting the Man.

Chief of Police Wright, of Rahway, thinks that John E. Mossman, who was found dead in a chair in P. J. McCartney's saloon on Main street yesterday morning, was beaten by two colored men, Wesley Smith and Thomas Pigott, early yesterday morning. Both are under arrest.

Mossman entered McCartney's saloon about 6:30 o'clock yesterday morning and sat down near the stove. Later he was found to be dead.

Chief Wright found that Mossman had been to a ball, and thinks he was knocked down and beaten. County Physician Westcott last night issued a burial permit without consulting Chief Wright. The permit has been withheld pending an autopsy.

VALENTINE'S HOME TO BE SOLD.

Court Declares Invalid Transfer of Property to Brother.

(Special to The Daily Press).

Perth Amboy, N. J., March 1.—In a little while the residence of George M. Valentine, the defaulting cashier of the Middlesex County Bank, is to be advertised for sale by Sheriff Isaiah Barcley. George W. Coritts has foreclosed his mortgage of $8,000 against the property.

Through a court order secured by Mr. Campbell, the receiver, the transfer of Valentine's property to his brother has been declared invalid.

Any money received by the Sheriff over the amount of the mortgage will go to swell the dividends to the depositors in the wrecked bank. The property is appraised at $10,000.

A Dime Sociable.

A dime sociable was held last night at the home of Justice V. W. Nash on Prospect avenue. It was given under the auspices of Miss Dolly Bolsterle, a teacher of a Sunday-school class in the M. E. church. There were about 30 young people present and the evening was passed by playing games and with music and refreshments. The affair was one of the several pleasant social features which this denomination has the credit of frequently holding.

THE LIQUOR LICENSES GRANTED BY COUNCIL.

Appropriation of $200 Made to Aid in Establishment of Public Fountain.

EQUAL SUM TO BE RAISED.

FOUNTAIN WILL BE LOCATED OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE STATION.

Michael Watson Granted a License in His Own Name—Scheuer and Galbraith Licenses Withdrawn at Last Moment.

The questions of liquor licenses and a public drinking fountain occupied the attention of the Common Council at its adjourned meeting last evening, and after considerable discussion both came out even. By this action both the supporters of licenses and the devotees of pure water ought to feel satisfied. The Council did its best for each side and the consciences feels relieved to some extent at least.

Fifteen applications for liquor licenses were granted by the Council, all being renewals with the exception of one—Michael F. Watson. The latter has applied for a license a great many times but last night he was successful for the first time. His place on Grant avenue was conducted last year by Michael Welsh, and Mr. Watson felt encouraged to try this year and secure a license for himself. His determination was rewarded and this closes a long fight between the city and Mr. Watson, which has not been altogether advantageous for the city from a financial standpoint.

The licenses granted are as follows: John H. Staats, Henry Haurand, J. H. McVey, J. E. Beerbower, Jacob Blimm, Bernard Clark, Michael F. Watson, Henry F. Windham, Joseph A. Blatz, John Rafferty, A. D. Findlay, Daniel Galbraith, Chas. Schantz, Eastern Bottling Association and Frank Linke. The last two named are for wholesale licenses. S. Scheuer & Co., for a wholesale license, and Patrick Galbraith, for a saloon license, were withdrawn.

Councilman James Craig voted against every application presented both for the privilege of selling liquor and for running an inn and tavern. Those who voted for the licenses were Messrs. Dumont, Coriell, Clifton, Mellick, Tolles, Buckle, Smith, Gloak, Lee and vanHerwerden. The latter did not arrive until 8:30 o'clock, and therefore did not have the chance of voting for the first nine applications. He voted for the remaining six and would probably have voted for the others had he been present. The applications were presented by Mr. Gloak, chairman of the license committee, and voted upon separately. The only remonstrance received against the granting of the licenses was from the Society of Friends, and that was referred to the license committee.

The question of licenses having been settled, the next important matter was introduced by Mr. Coriell. On behalf of the Loyal Temperance Legion, he presented a communication from this organization in which an appropriation was asked for the public drinking fountain which it is proposed to erect on North avenue in front of the office of E. C. Mulford & Son. This communication was presented to last year's Council and was referred to the present body. Mr. Coriell stated that he presented it at this time at the urgent request of Mrs. Rufus Case, who had stated that if the Council would appropriate the sum of $200 the plan would be feasible, as the balance, about $300, was practically assured. On this ground Mr. Coriell offered a resolution that the Council appropriate the sum of $200 from the general fund for that purpose.

Mr. Dumont thought a good fountain could be purchased for $200 and he expressed the opinion that $500 was too much to pay. He doubted whether the Council had the right to vote the sum at all.

Mr. Buckle stated that as the Council had just granted licenses to sell liquor it should also grant a petition to furnish water. He said that the city last year received the sum of $2,100 from new licenses and he thought the Council should grant the request.

Mr. Coriell explained that the fountain is to be an extra fine one, and is to be provided with an arrangement for the use of ice in summer time so that any one can get a drink of ice water. It is to be illuminated by electricity, and the lighting and water is to be furnished free of cost. It is also to be provided with an arrangement whereby horses can drink from it. He urged the granting of the

BULLER'S ADVANCE.

Captures Pieter's Hill and Is Nearing Ladysmith.

TWELVE DAYS' CONTINUOUS FIGHTING

The Four Attempts to Relieve General White Have Cost Four Thousand Men—The Town In Desperate Straits.

LONDON, March 1.—General Buller's distinct success in storming Pieter's hill brings the rescue of Ladysmith near, but the war office intimated late last evening that an immediate announcement of relief need not be expected. The goings to and from at midnight of officials and messengers suggested that important news had been received. If this were the case, Lord Lansdowne obviously desired to sleep on it before taking the public into his confidence.

As his message reveals, General Buller's successful attack came after the hard fighting of Friday, and it was improvised and its execution begun during the armistice of Sunday. In proposing the armistice the British commander stipulated that both sides should be free to move, but that neither should do any shooting. He was, therefore, within his privilege in immediately beginning to transfer his troops.

General Buller's tidings come weighted with his long list of casualties. His losses in the four attempts to get General White out aggregate 4,000.

Ladysmith is in desperate straits. Mr. Charles Williams, the military expert, says he learns on very high authority—presumably that of Lord Wolseley—that "General White's force is almost at its last gasp."

"This is not so much," says Mr. Williams, "on account of any lack of provisions or of ammunition, neither of which is yet exhausted, as because of the poisonous waters of the Klip river."

A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Pieter's station, dated Sunday, Feb. 25, and describing the 12 days' continuous fighting of which the attack upon Railway hill by the Royal Enniskillen fusileers was one of the supreme moments, says:

"The Enniskillens joined the column with 24 officers. They have five left. That tells the tale. No map, no penned account, can give an idea of the difficulties of these hills and ridges, which succeed each other like waves in a heavy sea, one giving way only to another.

"Each can be enfiladed, and until one is taken it is impossible, even with the keenest scouting, to know what fortunes lie beyond it. The military problem changes as the column advances, each kopje refusing to give up its secret until the advancing troops have touched its crest.

"To add to the difficulty the tropical rainy season set in today. For 12 hours the uniforms clung to the men like wet seaweed. Mud caught them under foot. Mists closed down and shut out the position of the enemy.

"This discomfort is borne by all alike. General Buller and his staff are virtually living the private's life. There has not been even a tent to cover the commanding generals. They eat from their knees and with their shoulders against the rocks, and they sleep where they can. Field work is carried on under transport wagons, and as these are not built rain proof tiny streams of water pour down upon and blot the official records."

The war office has received the following dispatch from General Buller, dated headquarters, Hlandwani, Feb. 28, 5 a. m.:

"Finding that the passage of Langewacht's spruit was commanded by strong intrenchments, I reconnoitered for another passage of the Tugela. One was found for me below the cataract by Colonel Sandbach, Royal engineers, on Feb. 25. We commenced making an approach thereto, and on Feb. 26, finding that I could make the passage practicable, I crossed the guns and baggage back to the south side of the Tugela, took up the pontoon bridge on Monday night and relaid it at the new site, which is just below the point marked cataract. During all this time the troops had been scattered, crouching under hastily constructed small stone shelters, and exposed to a galling shell and rifle fire, and throughout they maintained the most excellent spirits. Tuesday General Barton with two battalions of the Sixth brigade and the Dublin fusileers crept about a mile and a half down the banks of the river and ascended an almost precipitous cliff of about 500 feet, assaulted and carried the top of Pieter's hill. This hill, to a certain extent, turned the enemy's left, and the Fourth brigade, under Colonel Norcott, and the Eleventh brigade, Colonel Kitchener commanding, the whole under command of General Warren, assailed the enemy's position, which was magnificently carried by the South Lancashire regiment about sunset. We took about 60 prisoners and scattered the enemy in all directions. There seems to be still a considerable body of them left on and under Bulwana mountain. Our losses, I hope, are not large. They certainly are much less than they would have been were it not for the admirable manner in which the artillery was served, especially the guns manned by the Royal naval force and the Natal naval volunteers."

A dispatch from Colenso, dated Feb. 26, says:

"Yesterday an armistice was agreed upon, and both sides removed their wounded and buried their dead. The Boers lost heavily in attacking, and many were killed among the trees. Severe musketry fire was resumed last evening. It was started by the accidental discharge of a rifle. It is reported that there are 400 Boers near Ennersdale."

A special dispatch from Cape Town, dated Tuesday, says:

"The Boers at Barkly West have offered to surrender on condition that the safety of the rebel Dutch is assured. The British, however, insist upon an unconditional surrender."

The rapidly growing casualty lists are being classified as quickly as possible. They show that up to yesterday morning the total number of casualties was 12,834, of which 2,319 were added during the last fortnight. Ten of the 11 Scotch regiments lost about 2,050 men and eight of the Irish regiments 2,000. Then come the Gloucesters and Northumberlands while of nearly 2,000 colonials the Royal Canadians lost 121 and the Victoria mounted contingent 26. The casualties are classified thus: Killed, 1,993; wounded, 6,838; missing, 3,173; disease, 830.

The Daily Mail says:

"The reopening of Robinson's bank in Pretoria is due to the good offices of Mr Hay, United States secretary of state; Mr. Choate and Mr. Adelbert Hay, the American consul at the Transvaal capital. When President Kruger closed the bank, he tried to commandeer the British staff, and on their refusal to comply he threatened them with expulsion. Mr. Adelbert Hay sent the protest of the manager of the bank to Lord Salisbury through Mr. Choate, with the result that President Kruger liberated the bank's staff and restored the commandeered gold."

Kimberley Still Suffers.

KIMBERLEY, March 1.—Colonel Peakman, with a mounted force and a Maxim, proceeded to Barkly West, where he was warmly welcomed. He left a strong guard and then proceeded to Longlandst, Windsorton and Klipdam. There were rumors of Boers in the neighborhood, but no demonstration occurred. The Diamond Fields Advertiser draws pointed attention to the fact that although Kimberley was relieved about two weeks ago there has been no amelioration in regard to the food supply. It is still impossible, as it was during the investment, to procure a tin of condensed milk or cocoa without a medical certificate. The inhabitants continue without many of the common articles of food, although meat rations have been increased to a half pound a day.

FOOD ADULTERATION.

Senate Committee Reports Result of Searching Investigations.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The senate committee on manufactures has submitted to the senate a report on the extensive investigation it has conducted into allegations that many important articles of food and drink are adulterated so as to be either a serious detriment to the public health or, where the adulterant is not injurious to health, a fraud on the purchaser. Accompanying the report is a great mass of testimony taken in the leading cities of the country. The report says the importance of the investigation made and the legislation proposed cannot be too strongly emphasized. It adds

"The adulteration of prepared or manufactured foods is very extensively practiced, and in many cases to the great discredit of our manufactures. It is only fair to say, however, that a large proportion of the American manufacturers who are engaged in adulterating food products do so in order to meet competition, and it is the expression of those gentlemen to say, 'We would be glad to get out of the business of adulterating. We would like to quit putting this stuff in coffee and would be willing to brand our sirups for what they are, but our competitors get a trade advantage which we cannot surrender.'

"It is the purpose of this committee to adopt this uniform rule: To prohibit the sale of deleterious and unhealthy food products, and as to those food products which are simply cheapened by adulterants to compel the marking of those goods for what they are. Deleterious food products should be prohibited and the rest thoroughly regulated."

A SHREWD MOVE.

Germany Plans For Commercial Supremacy In Asia Minor.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Just how the Germans have paved the way for commercial supremacy in Asia Minor and Mesopotamia is exhibited in a report to the state department by United States Consul Milo A. Jewett at Sivas. The consul says Germany, with preferential rates for goods on German lines, will be able to control the chief markets of Asia Minor and invade the east.

The Germans initiated their new railway system in Asia Minor by purchasing a short line from Constantinople to Ismid. This they have rapidly extended first to Smyrna and thence to Konieh, the present terminus to the east. The extension just arranged for will carry the line across country to Bagdad and Bassorah thus connecting Constantinople and Smyrna directly with the Persian gulf.

The Frick-Carnegie Suit.

PITTSBURG, March 1.—An order was made in common pleas court No. 1 yesterday afternoon on the representations of Attorneys Clarence Burleigh and Willis F. McCook giving all the defendants except three in the Frick-Carnegie suit 15 more days to answer. The order was by Judge E. H. Stowe. Henry Phipps, Jr., H. M. Curry and F. T. F. Lovejoy are the three defendants who have not asked for an extension of time. The unexpectedly long time consumed by the attorneys of the Carnegie company in examining the books to obtain figures with which to combat the Frick allegations has practically made it impossible to complete the papers within the required time.

Frozen Hydrants Favor Fire.

NEW YORK, March 1.—Frozen hydrants were responsible for the burning of an entire block of business buildings on Main street, Islip, on Long Island, yesterday afternoon. It was almost an hour after the fire started that sufficient water could be had to be effective. The fire burned eight stores, a livery stable, two barns and a newspaper office. The loss is about $60,000.

Ex-Minister Phelps Still Ill.

NEW HAVEN, March 1.—It is stated that the condition of Hon. E. J. Phelps, ex-minister to England, while not critical, is still as serious as it has been for some weeks. No new unfavorable symptoms have made their appearance the past two or three days, and his friends are still hopeful that he will recover, but he fails to gain strength as rapidly as was hoped.

Mrs. R. Wortman, living with her daughter, Mrs. S. E. Cook, of 204 Somerset street, says:—"I used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results for severe pain across my back and hips, which no doubt was caused by the kidneys being out of order. It was painful for me to stoop or bend forward, and I could not sit ten minutes in one position, but had to be constantly changing about. I used many different kinds of medicine recommended for kidney trouble, but I could not see that any of them benefitted me. Doan's Kidney Pills were procured for me at L. W. Randolph's drug store and it is the only remedy I ever used that gave me any relief. I always keep a supply of them on hand and would not think of being without them."

BRIDGE WORK

In Dentistry is the best substitute for nature's work that can be done. Sound roots may be built up and crowned and thus fill up an unsightly space. It has to be made of a material that has strength and durability and one that will not discolor. Gold is the one that stands the test. That is the secret of the expense. But the advantages of a bridge over a plate are many times more than the cost of one compared to that of the other.

BOY AND ELEPHANT.

Little Prince Nooro and His Unique Life Among the Animals of a Tropical Forest.

"The Boy and the Elephant" is the title of an interesting story in St. Nicholas. The author, Gustavus Frankenstein, tells of the kidnaping of a boy by a wild beast that treated him kindly. The opening paragraphs describe the abduction and the experiences that immediately followed it.

It was on the bank of a beautiful river, and they stood looking at each other, little Nooro and the noble elephant that had saved his life from a crocodile. The elephant gently wound its trunk around the body of the little boy, and, taking him up, went away through the thicket into the deep jungle. Nooro had seen tame elephants, and was at first not afraid; but as he was carried along through the forest he became uneasy. "I want to go to my mamma!" he cried. Of course the elephant did not know what he meant. Besides, he had his own notions of what he ought to do with the boy; and so he went on.

Over high hills and across deep valleys went the elephant with long, swinging steps.

By and by he set the child down, because he wanted to eat the leaves of some young palm trees. Nooro started to run away, but the elephant took him up and placed him high up in the fork of a tree, and then Nooro began to cry. The elephant paid no attention to his crying, and while eating would reach up to him a bit of the fodder, but Nooro only cried the louder. When he had eaten all he wanted, the elephant took him down from the tree and went onward till they came to a spring, where he took a good drink, after having again put Nooro in a tree. Then taking up the hollow husk of a large nut lying on the ground, he dipped up some water and lifted it to Nooro, and the little fellow, being very thirsty, drank heartily. This pleased the elephant very much.

Leaving the spring, it was not long before they were under some tall trees bearing fruit. Nooro knew the fruit quite well, and was fond of it. The elephant, too, liked it very much, and, reaching high up with his trunk, brought some of it down, which he ate with great relish. He did not forget the little boy, again perched aloft in the fork of a tree, and to him he gave fruit as fast as he could eat. And now more than ever was the elephant pleased—not so much because he was eating what he himself liked, but because the child ate also. Besides fruits, they also had nuts of several sorts.

NOORO IS FED BY THE ELEPHANT.

When the sun went down and the darkness came on, Nooro began once more to think of his mother, and that made him cry; but at length he fell asleep. Then the elephant spread on the ground some large palm leaves and soft, dry grass, making Nooro a kind of bed. When he awoke in the morning the little boy again thought of his mamma and cried; but as each day passed he cried less and less.

The elephant had placed him in a large pelican's nest, made of a great many sticks, and so high up in the branches of a tall tree that he could just reach it with his trunk and put Nooro into it. But when it rained very hard the elephant would take Nooro from his nest and place him under his body, closing his huge legs around him, and setting up great, broad palm leaves on each side of him, and it was a rare thing that a drop of rain fell into the snug shelter where Nooro was cozily nestling. Sometimes these heavy showers lasted for hours. While the rain came down in torrents, he would peep out to see the monkeys and the squirrels running for shelter among the trees and branches.

With these creatures he soon was on the best of terms. The monkeys grew very fond of him, and when he was up in his nest they would come to him with choice fruits and nuts, on purpose to see him eat. Besides, they brought the little baby monkeys to play with him; and nothing afforded them greater sport than to see him try to climb after the young monkeys as they bounded from limb to limb; and, out of sheer joy, the older ones themselves would scamper up and down among the branches.

Certainly this was not the best society for a child to grow up in; but if he did not learn his letters, he grew strong and active.

A Four-Legged Criminal.

A mastiff was trained to assist thieves in Paris. It was in the habit of bounding against old gentlemen and knocking them over in the street. A "lady" and "gentleman"—owners of the dog—would then step forward to assist the unfortunate gentleman to rise and while doing so would ease him of his watch and purse.

TARIFF BATTLE WON

Porto Rican Bill Passes the House.

MEMBERS LEAVE SICK BEDS TO VOTE

Six Republicans Vote Against and Four Democrats For the Measure. Yeas, 172; Nays, 161—Vote on Hawaiian Bill Postponed.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The battle royal over the Porto Rican tariff bill ended in the house yesterday in a sweeping victory for the Republicans. The bill, amended as agreed upon at the conference of Republicans on Monday night so as to reduce the tariff from 25 to 15 per cent of the American tariff and limiting its life to two years, was passed by a vote of 172 yeas to 161 nays. Six Republicans, Messrs. Crumpacker of Indiana, Fletcher of Minnesota, Heatwole of Minnesota, Littlefield of Maine, Lorimer of Illinois and McCall of Massachusetts, voted with the opposition against the bill, and four Democrats, Messrs. Davey and Myer of Louisiana, Devries of California and Sibley of Pennsylvania, voted with the Republicans for the bill.

Herculean efforts had been made to get out the full vote, and this led to some remarkable incidents. Six men were brought from beds of sickness, two of them from hospitals. Mr. Brownlow of Tennessee was brought in a carriage, accompanied by his wife and physician. He sat bundled up near the entrance until his vote was given and then withdrew. It was felt that the strain would be severe on him, but when Mr. Tawney, the Republican whip, urged that the bill might be lost by this one vote Mr. Brownlow said, "I would rather lose my life than see this bill defeated." Mr. Tawney and three assistants were out in carriages until midnight Tuesday night accounting for every vote, and Mr. Underwood, the Democratic whip, was similarly exerting every means to get out his vote. Three Democrats were brought from sick beds.

The first test yesterday was on a substitute offered by Mr. McCall on behalf of the opposition. It was the original Payne bill for free trade with Porto Rico and was defeated—160 to 174. Only five Republicans voted for the substitute. Mr. Fletcher (Rep.) of Minnesota, who subsequently voted to recommit and against the bill, voted against the substitute. A motion to recommit it which followed shared a similar fate, being lost—160 to 172. There was great excitement throughout the roll calls, which were followed with eager interest by thousands of spectators who packed the galleries to suffocation. The Republicans indulged in a demonstration of wild jubilation when the final result was announced.

Notwithstanding the agreement made by the senate to vote on the Hawaiian government bill at yesterday's session, the final vote on the measure was postponed until 4 o'clock today. Practically no progress was made on the bill, although it was under consideration nearly four hours.

Mr. Aldrich, chairman of the finance committee, at the opening of the session made an explanation of the work of the conferees on the financial measure, his statement resulting in an unexpected and spirited debate.

One of the features of the session was the speech of Mr. McLaurin (Dem.) of South Carolina on the Philippine question. He is the first Democrat in the senate to declare himself for expansion. He scouted what he termed the "bugbear of imperialism" with which some of his colleagues were trying to frighten the people, declared the question was not one of politics and maintained the acquisition of the Philippines would be of immense advantage to this country, especially the south, by opening to the United States the trade of the orient.

Governor Roosevelt In Newburg.

NEWBURG, N. Y., March 1.—Governor Roosevelt delivered an address last evening in Trinity Methodist Episcopal church on "Good Citizenship." The building was crowded to the doors. The governor arrived in the afternoon and was met by B. B. Odell, Jr., chairman of the Republican state committee. A large crowd cheered him as he stepped from the train. The governor was driven about town, taken to Washington's headquarters and other historical points. He then lunched with Mr. Odell and a party of friends. Governor Roosevelt was received enthusiastically.

ALL FOR THE FLAG.

Eight Killed In a Shooting Affray In Mexico.

OAXACA, Mexico, March 1.—Information has reached here of a shooting affray which occurred at Pilares on Washington's birthday in which three Americans and five Mexicans were killed. It seems that a friendly feeling had existed in Pilares, and in order to do honor to the United States it was arranged on Feb 22 to raise the flags of the two republics together on the flagstaff.

The Mexicans had charge of the affair and raised the American flag above the Mexican flag, to the complete satisfaction of the Americans. But when the Americans showed so much appreciation of the act the Mexicans found they had made a mistake and decided to lower and reboist the flag, with the Mexican flag on top. Then the Americans declared such a transaction would be an insult to the United States flag.

Superintendent Danforth told the Mexicans that they would have to shoot him before they could haul down the American flag. The Americans said that the flags should have been hoisted properly in the first place. The Mexicans were about to mob Danforth when Charles Hogsett, who was with the rough riders in Cuba, interposed with a six shooter in each hand. Firing from both sides immediately began. Hogsett was killed instantly. John Evans and Dick Rea, two other Americans, were wounded mortally. But the Americans held the flagpole, and both flags floated through the day. Five Mexicans were killed, and the dance, which was to have followed, was a failure, as no Mexicans attended, and there were less than half a dozen Americans in condition for dancing.

A DAY OF HORRORS.

Suicide, Murder and Accident In Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, March 1.—Yesterday was a day of suicide, murder and fatal accident. Five dead, one dying and another almost asphyxiated is the record. Mrs. Cora Pforr, who rents rooms at 439 Third avenue, rented one of her apartments to Morris Spidle, an employee of the Columbia hotel. Yesterday she went to the room to clean it and found Spidle and a woman, identified as Myrtle Thompson, lying on the bed side by side both dead. It is supposed they committed suicide by taking morphine. They were in the second room of the first floor of the house. In the front room was found Frances Kerwin, a handsome young woman, suffering from the effects of gas which she had inhaled. She was alone and almost unconscious when the door of her room was broken in. The Kerwin girl was an intimate friend of Myrtle Thompson.

William Jackson, a colored barber, shot his sweetheart, Annie Houston, also colored, and killed himself in Alderman E C. Negley's office in the east end yesterday. The woman is expected to die.

Peter Engel, a slate roofer, was killed in Bellevue by falling from the roof of a house where he was at work.

An unknown man about 45 years of age was found lying beside the Pittsburg Virginia and Charleston railroad tracks at Howard station with his skull crushed. He is thought to be Ralph Elliott, an evangelist from East Palestine, O.

Large Cargo For the Orient.

SEATTLE, Wash., March 1.—The largest oriental cargo that ever left this port went out last evening on the steamer Tosa Maru. The cargo consisted of 10,000 bales of Texas cotton, 500 tons of Washington flour, $200,000 in silver bullion from Montana for the Russian-Chinese bank at Shanghai and a large amount of American agricultural implements with other machinery. The total value of the exports is $600,000. Another cargo, similar in character, awaits the steamer Kenshui Maru, which arrived from the orient yesterday.

Children Burned to Death.

NEW YORK, March 1.—Citizens, firemen and policemen repeatedly risked their lives to rescue six families imperiled by a fire which started at midnight in the five story store and tenement at 1691 Third avenue, near Ninety-fifth street. The bodies of the three children of Edward Friedner, who lived on the top floor of the building, were discovered by firemen at 1:30 o'clock, after the fire had been extinguished. Two men were seen leaving the cellar shortly before the fire was discovered, and it is thought they started the fire.

GOOD ROADS FAVORED.

One Million Appropriation to Assist In Building.

ALBANY, March 1.—Five hundred advocates appeared before the ways and means committee yesterday afternoon in favor of the Demarest bill, which appropriates $1,000,000 to carry out the provisions of the Higbie-Armstrong good roads act.

Of this number over 100 were from Westchester county, the delegation being headed by Hon. Bradford Rhodes. Among the speakers were Frank Z. Wilcox, supervisor from Onondaga county; Supervisor Conroy of Erie county, Joseph B. See and A. R. Shattuck of New York city, president of the Automobile Club of America. There was no opposition to the bill.

The assembly committee on ways and means was in session until after 7 o'clock last night and today reported out bills aggregating in appropriations nearly $500,000, or, in exact figures, $434,500. The largest individual bill to be reported is one for $117,000 to pay awards of the state board of claims, other than those relating to canal damages, and the next largest one for $105,000 to pay awards of the same board for damages caused by the canal. Then $75,000 is appropriated for continuing the manufacture of beet sugar, the amount being cut down from $125,000 asked; $25,000 for cleaning the outlet to Chautauqua lake; $25,000 for a statue of General Slocum, $11,00 for a monument on Lookout mountain, $25,000 for monuments to prison ship martyrs, $10,000 for a proposed children's new hospital and $10,000 for the Indian lake reservoir.

NAVAL MATTERS.

Armor and New Ships Discussed by Secretary Long.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Secretary Long, Admiral Dewey, Rear Admiral Crowninshield, chief of the bureau of navigation, and Commander Cowles, assistant chief, were before the house committee on naval affairs yesterday to discuss the important topics of armor and of new ships for the navy. The hearing was private. Secretary Long made a statement on the general needs of the navy and the desirability of not building new ships in the government yards. As to new warships, he held to his recommendation at the time congress met—namely, three armored cruisers of about 13,000 tons each with the heaviest armor and most powerful ordnance, 12 gunboats of about 900 tons each, three protected cruisers of about 8,000 tons each. As to building warships in our navy yards, Mr. Long said they cost much more than those built under contract and took twice as long to build them.

Admiral Dewey suggested that the committee leave off the 12 gunboats and give three new battleships instead. He said the battleships would be more serviceable, as General Otis had just purchased 14 gunboats and had turned them over to the navy. They were in very fair condition, and the admiral said that from his experience he thought they were just the vessels needed for service in the Philippines. He also took strong ground in favor of the sheathing of warships. He said the sheathed ships could run three times as long as ships unsheathed without being docked.

THE FRANCHISE TAX.

New York Tax Commissioners Fixing Valuations Under the New Law.

ALBANY, March 1.—The state board of tax commissioners is engaged in determining the valuation of public franchises operated in the city of New York for taxation under the provisions of the franchise tax act. It is believed that it will take from two to three weeks to complete this work, which is the major part of the valuations to be made under the tax law. There are about 400 corporations in New York city which have submitted reports in compliance with the law's requirements. Of that number there are about 100 companies, however, which simply use franchises granted to other companies and are therefore not taxable.

The board is working from 9 a. m. until 10 p. m. on this work. It will have to suspend it for a few days next week in order to receive objections from companies in the western part of the state to the valuations placed on their franchises.

The Rochester companies will be heard on March 6, the Buffalo companies on March 7 and those of Jamestown, Ithaca and Gloversville on March 8.

Wild Day In Cotton.

NEW YORK, March 1.—The wildest excitement witnessed on the Cotton Exchange in recent years prevailed yesterday, transactions reaching the enormous total of about 1,000,000 bales. The shorts were nothing less than furious to cover. At times so intense was the excitement that brokers would be offering to buy cotton at 2 or 3 points above the price at which others were offering to sell it.

Connecticut Against "Sapho."

DANBURY, Conn., March 1.—Mayor Charles Kerr of this city has sent notice to the managers of the local theater that he would not issue any license for the production of "Sapho" booked for this city March 8. This is in line with the crusade against the production of the play in Connecticut which was inaugurated by Mayor Kilduff of Waterbury Monday.

LAW'S DELAY IN CUBA

Old Spanish Enactments Hinder and Defeat Justice.

CUSTOM HOUSE FRAUDS UNPUNISHED

Men Involved Belong to the First Families—Effort Is Being Made to Have the Charges Dismissed. School Furniture Awards.

HAVANA, March 1.—The readiness with which the Spanish laws lend themselves to delay in litigation has availed despite every effort on the part of the American authorities to postpone the trial of the custom house fraud cases. It is now openly asserted by friends of the accused that owing to certain provisions of the Spanish law that allow a lawyer 15 days for the examination of each paper connected with a criminal charge against his client and owing to the fact that there are seven lawyers engaged for the defense at least five months more must elapse before the prosecution can bring the charges to a head in open court.

There are other devices of delay of which the friends of the accused will try to get the full benefit. Influence is being brought to bear upon all Cuban officials in any way associated with the proceedings, and every possible ounce of pressure is being used to force if not the dismissal of the charges at least an indefinite postponement of judicial investigation. The men involved belong to the best families in Cuba, the most of them being members of the Union club, which has not gained in membership as a result of the scandal.

Senor Manduley, acting fiscal, says he intends to examine the charges carefully in order to see whether the requests for further delay are justified. General Wood declares that he also will cause a thorough investigation to be made and that if the civil power will permit forcing the cases to trial it shall be done.

The final awards have been made upon the tenders for school furniture and supplies. A brisk competition had been in progress for some time, and the local press has occasionally indulged in bitter criticism, insinuating that in all probability the whole matter had been cut and dried. General Wood and Mr. Frye, however, have done all they could to rid the popular mind of such a notion.

The total awards amount to $550,000. Awards for desks constitute the principal item. These are as follows: Sussdorff, Zaldo & Co., 30,000 desks; Cavanaugh, 25,000; Champion & Pasqual, 15,000; Standard School Furniture company, 15,000; Andrews & Co., 15,000.

Another large land deal has been consummated in the neighborhood of Nipe bay. The promoters will lay out large fruit grounds to supply the northern market. During the last four months more than $1,500,000 of American capital has been invested there.

Died In a Mexican Prison.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Information has reached the state department of the death of Edward Turner, an American engineer who had been incarcerated in jail at Orizaba, Mexico, for about ten months on a charge of criminal negligence in connection with the wreck of a train on the Interoceanic railroad. Turner's home was in Kansas, and he had remained in prison probably six months before the attention of the American authorities was called to the case, the prisoner not having made any complaint. His identity and condition became known to them through a newspaper clipping, and Embassador Clayton at once took steps to ascertain the facts and to render what assistance he could to the imprisoned man. Turner complained of the unnecessary delay in trying him and was assured the case should have prompt attention, but after waiting several months and before the time for the trial arrived he died.

The Plague Draws Nearer.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The surgeon general of the marine hospital service has received information that the bubonic plague exists and has existed probably for several weeks in the island of Cozumel, which lies off the east coast of Yucatan, Mexico. He has cabled for further information and in the meantime has notified all quarantine officers in the United States, Cuba and Porto Rico of this new center of infection and has directed that proper precautions be observed. The number of cases was not stated in the report, but the infection, the quarantine officer said, was brought from Brazil.

Porto Rico Company Bankrupt.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, March 1.—The Porto Rico company, a New Jersey corporation with headquarters at Philadelphia, has petitioned the court for a declaration of insolvency, and S. E. Simpson has been appointed receiver. It has been known for some months past that the company was in difficulties. The petition sets forth that the principal cause of the failure was the amount of property destroyed by the cyclone of last year. The sum of $175,000 in cash is said to have been sunk in Porto Rico.

Havana Customs Receipts.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The war department has made public a statement of transactions at the Havana custom house for the month of January. The collections at that port for the 26 working days of the month amounted to $1,152,513, which exceeds the collections for any single month since the date of the American occupation.

Mexico Friendly.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Powell Clayton, United States embassador to Mexico, who is on leave of absence, reports that conditions in Mexico as affecting American interests are in a thoroughly satisfactory condition and that the relations between the United States and Mexico never have been on a better footing than at present.

Grain Rates Changed.

NEW YORK, March 1.—At a conference of presidents of railroad lines belonging to the Central Freight association at the Trunk Line association rooms yesterday a new grain rate from Chicago and the Mississippi to New York was agreed upon. The new rates go into effect March 15.

Lord Pauncefote's Retirement.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—In one month the British embassador here will retire from the office he has held for so many years. Although the close of his term of office is so near at hand, the British foreign office has not as yet given any sign as to the succession.

A half dozen Democrats from New Jersey met in Philadelphia the other day and, after discussing the political situation in this State with respect to the feeling towards the candidacy of Col. Bryan and the possible selection of Congressman Sulzer as a running mate on the National ticket, decided, in regard to looking after the interests of Mr Bryan in this State, that "Mr. Daly should have full sway in North Jersey and Mr. Dulin in South Jersey, the line of demarkation being Burlington county." It also was agreed that the various local leaders present might announce to their constituents that the Jersey slate has been finally made up, and their followers must stand or fall by it, and according as the faithful responded to the call they would be rewarded in the event of the success of the ticket. By what credentials do Messers. Daly and Dulin presume to act as the dictators?

The Elizabeth Journal says that "the anti-spring election bill is not likely to be heard from in the Legislature this year. The Republican caucus is reported to have decided against it. Moreover, there is no probability of any amendment to the township law being passed this year. Therefore the towns, townships and all municipalities having spring elections may just as well prepare to hold them this coming spring, under the laws now on the statute books." When the partisan Journal gives it as an opinion that the anti spring election bill is dead, it must certainly be irrevocably inanimate. If there was any hope whatsoever, the Journal could be depended upon to do its best in the nursing line.

How to abolish the smoke nuisance at Constable Hook is a question that has leaped into National prominence by the introduction in Congress of a bill designed to suppress the noxious practices of the oil and sugar refineries located at the ragged edge of New Jersey. Congressman Muller is the father of the measure which has occasioned much jocular comment from the members who are unable to appreciate the need of legislative action along such a line. One of the funny things suggested by the bill is the advice that ventilating fans be suspended in midair by kites, and that the fans be used to blow the smoke into the meadows of New Jersey where it would be beneficial in killing moequitoes.

The attitude of Councilman Craig toward the inn and tavern licenses that were brought up before the Common Council last night savors of extreme narrow-mindedness. Mr. Craig voted against the granting of every application for such a license. The licensing of a inn and tavern has nothing to do with the liquor traffic, and no matter how strenuous a temperance advocate a man may be his sentiment in that direction would hardly justify him in the desire to see the city without hotels in which to house and feed transient visitors in the city.

The State Republican Committee Committee will meet in the Trenton House next Tuesday, for the purpose of selecting a date for the convention to name delegates to the National convention at Philadelphia. It is said that the delegates at large will be United States Senators Sewell and Kean, Governor Voorhees, and either County Clerk Gummere, of Trenton, or Supreme Court Clerk Riker, of Trenton.

According to the views of optomistic westerners, the doors of trade with the Eastern States will be closed soon, as they say "that within a year not a pound of food products west of the Mississippi will be shipped east, but will go to Asia by way of the Pacific coast."

Michael Watson, who has defied the laws of this city to a standstill in the matter of selling rum without a license, was last night granted his application for the privilege of selling liquor. The Council's action last night puts a premium upon the illegal liquor traffic.

Walter H. Savory, formerly assistant managing editor of the Newark Advertiser, has taken charge of the news department of the Trenton True American, and already that paper has taken on a brighter and more up-to-date look.

Attorney General John W. Griggs has made a complete denial to a Washington correspondent of the rumor that he is to succeed Justice Grey on the Supreme Court bench.

Judged by the barometer of public interest, the municipal election in the borough this spring promises to be a very quiet one.

The importation of 500 cats into the Philippine Islands is feline assimilation without a precedent.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest to Plainfield.

Senator Reed is on the right track for the solution of the problem of equal taxation. When every man can see what his neighbor is paying he can understand best if favoritism has been shown in the tax levy, and the biennial publication of these levies in the various municipalities is sure to equalize taxation as no other agency will. The Reed bill meets a public want and it should be made a law.—New York Press.

* * * * * *

The Society of Friends—Quakers—of Plainfield has petitioned the Legislature for the enactment of a bill substituting imprisonment for life for capital punishment, on the ground that the "infliction of the death penalty lacks two essential qualities of punishment, in that it neither protects society nor reforms the criminal. It has for its basic principle vengeance, and, on account of its severity, greatly lessens the chances of the conviction of the guilty." The Friends of Plainfield are right, but it is feared that the bills now before the Legislature will not be passed.—Elizabeth Journal.

NEWS OF THE SUBURBS.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen, March 1.—The wholesale poisoning of valuable dogs recently in this vicinity and New Market has led the residents of these places to feel alarmed for the safety of their pets It is said that ten or fifteen dogs have died suddenly during the past month. Several days ago a valuable Newfoundland dog belonging to William Smith was found dead. He has offered a reward of $25 for information which will lead to the arrest and conviction of the parties who perpetrated the dasterdly act. Another man in New Market who lost a dog offers $10 for the name of the miscreant who sent his pet to the happy hunting grounds. The fact that only valuable dogs are put to death appears as though the poisoning was done with malicious intent.

Mrs. Lina Vail, widow of Amos Vail, after an illness extending over several weeks, died at 3 o'clock yesterday morning, aged 41 years. Mrs. Vail's maiden name was Lina Sutton. She was the daughter of Aaron Sutton. Her mother and two brothers live in Plainfield. The funeral will be held from the Methodist church Saturday morning.

Bayern.

München. Im abgelaufenen Jahr gab es im Königreiche Bayern 831 Gemeinden, in denen mehr als fünf Hektar Landes mit Hopfen bebaut waren. Es vertheilte sich dies auf die einzelnen Kreise wie folgt: Oberbayern 117 Gemeinden, in welchen 3043 Hektar mit Hopfen bebaut waren; Niederbayern 155 Gemeinden, 4398 Hektar; Rheinpfalz 9 Gemeinden, 93 Hektar; Oberpfalz 75 Gemeinden, 1092 Hektar; Oberfranken 106 Gemeinden, 1936 Hektar; Mittelfranken 359 Gemeinden, 10,199 Hektar; Unterfranken 6 Gemeinden, 90 Hektar; Schwaben 4 Gemeinden, 7 Hektar.—Der mit einem Kapital von 200,000 Mark von einem bis zu seinem Ableben ungenannt sein wollenden Wohlthäter zu München errichteten, zu wohlthätigen und gemeinnützigen Zwecken aller Art bestimmten „Prinz-Regent Luitpold-Stiftung für wohlthätige und gemeinnützige Zwecke 1900" wurde die staatliche Genehmigung ertheilt.

Augsburg. Auf dem Truppenübungsplatz Lager Lechfeld wurde, nachdem der große Nutzen, den die Stenographie auch für das Heer hat, von dem Feldwebel Jakob eingehend dargelegt worden war, von 26 anwesenden Unteroffizieren ein Stenographenverein gegründet, der den Namen „Gabelsberger Militär-Stenographenverein Lechfeld" führt.

Bayreuth. Der Kohlenmangel, der durch den Ausstand der Kohlenarbeiter in den böhmischen Kohlenrevieren eingetreten, macht sich in der oberfränkischen Industrie recht empfindlich geltend. Die ganze nordbayerische Industrie ist auf den Bezug der böhmischen Kohle seit Jahren eingerichtet, so daß allein über die Station Eger täglich 500 bis 600 Waggons Kohlen nach Bayern eingeführt werden. Einzelne oberfränkische Porzellanfabriken müssen jetzt schon den Betrieb einstellen und Arbeiter entlassen. Die Handels- und Gewerbekammer für Oberfranken hat die Regierung auf die aus der Kohlennoth resultirenden Gefahren aufmerksam gemacht.

Grasheim. Im Verlaufe eines Streites hat der Kolonist Joseph Maderholz seine Gattin erschlagen und sich sodann selbst dem Gerichte gestellt.

Haslach. Der 19jährige Bauernsohn Meyer erstach seinen Vater im Streite. Der Thäter wurde verhaftet.

Klingenberg a. M. Die Bürger unserer Stadt erhalten aus den reichen Einnahmen des Thonbergwerkes jährlich bestimmte Ueberschüsse. Für das Jahr 1899, ein gutes Jahr im Stadthaushalt, kamen vor Kurzem 90,000 Mark zur Vertheilung, so daß auf jeden der 300 Bürger 300 Mark entfielen.

Nürnberg. Die städtische Armenpflege verausgabte im abgelaufenen Jahre die stattliche Summe von 561,279 Mark.

Straubing. In Niederbayern sind im abgelaufenen Jahre neun aktive Lehrer gestorben, von denen der älteste 64, der jüngste 26 Jahre zählte. Von den pensionirten gingen 24 mit Tod ab, unter diesen betrug das höchste Alter 85, das niedrigste 21 Jahre. Die aktiven Lehrer erreichten ein Durchschnittsalter von 45, die pensionirten ein solches von 59 Jahren. In den zeitweisen und dauernden Ruhestand traten 29 Lehrer und Lehrerinnen.

Würzburg. Die bayerische Bahnverwaltung, speziell das Bahnamt Würzburg, ist lebhaft bemüht, den Kohlenbedarf Bayerns zu befriedigen. Nahezu alle Güterzüge ab Gustavsburg und Frankfurt a. M. über Aschaffenburg nach Bayern erhielten Nachläufer, Ruhrkohle führende Sonderzüge.

Aus der Rheinpfalz.

Speyer. Die Motorwagengesellschaft hat im ersten Monat ihres Betriebes einen recht guten Anfang gemacht. Es wurden 7000 Personen befördert und betrugen die Einnahmen 1900 Mark.

Ludwigshafen. Der Krieg der Engländer gegen die Buren ist auch von nachtheiligem Einfluß auf unsere chemische Industrie. Die englische Regierung hat mit Rücksicht auf den Krieg ein Ausfuhrverbot für Karbolsäure erlassen. Aus Karbolsäure gewinnt man die Pikrinsäure, aus der die Füllungsstoffe für die Granaten (Melinit, Lyddit u. s. w.) hergestellt werden. Die chemische Fabrik Dr. F. Raschig hat nun eine Petition an den deutschen Reichskanzler gerichtet, man möge bei der englischen Regierung auf Aufhebung dieses Verbots hinwirken. Gleichzeitig hat die genannte Fabrik ihren Arbeitern die Eröffnung gemacht, daß bei Fortdauer des erwähnten Ausfuhrverbotes schon binnen Monatsfrist die Firma gezwungen sein werde, den Betrieb auf ein Minimum einzuschränken und die Mehrzahl ihrer Arbeiter zu entlassen.

Württemberg.

Stuttgart. Zum Rektor des hiesigen Realgymnasiums ist an Stelle des verstorbenen Oberstudienraths Dr. v. Dillmann Professor Dr. Georgii ernannt worden.—Professor Heinrich v. Rüstige, der Nestor der schwäbischen Maler und wohl der Senior der deutschen Künstler, ist kürzlich hier gestorben. Er war im Jahre 1810 zu Werl in Westfalen geboren.

The man worked in an Ohio coal mine, and this is the story he told: "For some years past I have been employed under mother earth, from one and a half to two miles from the mouth of the mine, digging coal. The great distance under the hills makes it impossible for me to get pure air, which is forced to us by the aid of great fans. During breaks in machinery the air would become bad, causing first great pains in my head, dizziness and fainting. This continued until next was pains in stomach, indigestion and dyspepsia. Working hard in the mines I naturally was a hearty eater until at last I had dyspepsia so bad I suffered terrible. The doctor prescribed for me, but I only got worse. I took several kinds of medicine. I saw Ripans Tabules advertised and going to the drug store bought some. In three days I was a new man, my head is clear, stomach well, no dyspepsia. These Ripans Tabules did it."

WANTED—A case of bad health that RIPANS will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word RIPANS on the package and accept no substitute. RIPANS, 10 for 5 cents, may be had at any drug store. Ten samples and one thousand testimonials will be mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

SPRING MILLINERY.

Pretty Hats and Bonnets For the Approaching Season.

The models for spring millinery are very attractive. First, there are straw walking hats with a curved brim and a full crown. These are of one color or two, the crown and brim being sometimes different, and are trimmed with bands and choux of silk and a quill or cluster of coq feathers. The colors are straw, gray, beige, brown, black and white. Next, there are draped toques of straw in various colors, including golden yellow, bright blue and ecru, which are more elaborate in aspect and to which flowers, lace, etc., form an appropriate decoration. Finally, there are hats and toques of shirred crepe de chine, mousseline de soie, net and tulle, trimmed with spangles, flowers, ferns and all varieties of delicate adornment.

The flowers used this season are very beautiful and closely imitate nature. Tea roses and orchids are among the most fashionable types, although the violet is, as usual, well represented. Foliage of airy kinds is also much employed.

No very small hats are seen, all millinery being large or of medium size, with the exception of the little theater bonnets, which are simply small headdresses and not bonnets at all.

The picture illustrates a morning jacket of cream liberty satin, bordered with gold embroidery. The neck and the armholes are cut away and the jacket is draped by choux at the shoulders over an underbodice of broche heliotrope silk. The straight sleeves are gathered at the wrist and have a turned back cuff of cream satin embroidered with gold. The neck frill is of lace, the cravat of cream satin. A brandebourg of gold cord ornaments the loose front. The back is tight and forms two plaits at and below the waist.

DRESSMAKING HINTS.

Details of the Manufacture of Fashionable Costumes.

Entire gowns are now made of mousseline de soie. In sewing the breadths together the tunic is liable to become puckered, and the best method of avoiding this unpleasantness is to baste a strip of paper along the line of the seam. After the stitching is done the paper is easily removed.

When a bodice is entirely or partly covered with guipure or embroidery, the latter should be cut with as few seams as possible. The design should be matched as exactly as possible, in order to give the impression that the bolero, or whatever the decoration is, is all in one piece.

The most elegant dressmakers always put one or two thicknesses of mousseline de soie between the guipure or open embroidery and the satin over which it is used.

When plaitings or ruffles of mousseline de soie are used, the hem is almost always covered by a fine ruche of the same mousseline or by a ruffled narrow ribbon.

The cut shows a pretty wrapper of soft wool plaid. It is held in at the waist by a heavy cord with balls at the ends and has a large collar of plain cloth matching the predominating color of the plaid, bordered with a band of cloth of a harmonizing shade. Woolen fringe encircles the collar and passes down the front of the wrapper. The tight sleeves have turned back cuffs of plain cloth, and the high collar matches the cuffs.

Stitching and Shirring — Advance Model of Outing Costume.

Stitching by machine has become quite an elaborate art. It was always a favorite finish for tailor made gowns, and even the simple straight lines demanded much skill if they were correctly made. Now, however, all sorts of complicated designs are formed by stitching, and the utmost regularity is requisite. They are first carefully drawn upon the goods, after the garment has been tried on, fitted and lined, if necessary, and are then stitched very carefully, a second thickness of woolen material being placed at the back that the stitching may be firmer. The silk used for the outside stitching should be heavier than that used inside and should not be so tightly drawn, as the stitches ought to appear separate.

Exactitude is necessary in all fine work. Most of the shirring and puffing now used on elegant gowns is done by hand. A thread is drawn to insure a straight line, or, if this is not practicable, the sheer material is basted flat and straight on a square piece of strong paper and the two are cut together where an even edge is wanted. In parallel lines of gathering the thread of the goods is followed carefully.

The bicycle costume illustrated is of navy blue cloth and is trimmed with straps of the same material stitched with white silk. The short skirt is laid in a double box plait at the back. The bolero has a collar and revers of navy blue velvet stitched with white. A white linen collar and shirt bosom are worn, with a black satin scarf. The alpine hat of gray felt has a band and bow of navy blue. Navy blue gaiters and black shoes accompany the costume.

NEW CLOTHS.

They Are Marvelous In Make and Finish.

Cloths were never so various nor so beautiful as now. There are many kinds, and the methods of producing them have been so improved that the possibilities of beauty seem to be unlimited. Some weaves have a smooth, kidlike finish, while others have a decided twill, but a gloss which rivals that of satin. In addition to the perfection of the goods themselves, there are very wonderful decorations, shaped to the different parts of the costume. One robe pattern, for example, of the twilled cloth mentioned is of a soft, dull rose and there is a panel decoration formed by a design which is first printed in cream upon the material itself and then embroidered in outline with cream silk, certain portions of the leaves and flowers being covered with a network of lace stitches of the embroidery silk. The same idea appears in turquoise blue. These elaborate additions, however, although very beautiful, are no more so than are the plain goods without them, as nothing can surpass the gloss and richness of the surface.

The walking gown shown is of deep blue cloth. The skirt has rows of stitching about the edge and three waved bands of blue velvet above. The bodice of blue velvet is laid in horizontal plaits, and over it is a slashed short bolero of blue cloth, trimmed with black olives and cords. The sleeves are of cloth, the plastron of finely plaited blue silk, as are the epaulets and collar, the latter having revers of blue velvet. The hat is of gray felt, trimmed with a drapery and bow of blue velvet, a jeweled buckle, two black ostrich plumes and an aigret composed of the eyes of peacocks' feathers.

IN ARCHITECTURE.

DESIGNED AND WRITTEN ESPECIALLY FOR THIS PAPER.

WHEN one wishes to keep the cost of a home down to $1,400, the first thing to be considered is what one can do without rather than what one can get.

In most cases the hope of such luxuries as a built-in range, and gas or electric lighting must be given up, and everything must be of the simplest character, requiring practically nothing that cannot be provided by local mechanics or furnished by nearby mills without special knives. This design shows such a home. It gets its effect from the veranda and the cornice of the roof line. The exterior and interior are simple and neat in construction.

The sizes of the rooms are shown on the floor plans.

There is a basement under the entire house, with a cement floor. The end of the parlor is circular in shape, and is shaded by a very large veranda extending around the three sides of the room.

The vestibule is at the side of the house, and from it one can enter the sitting-room or the parlor. The sitting-room and dining-room have fireplaces, as well as the chamber above the dining-room. These rooms also have one side built out into a bay shape, making them very pleasant.

The entrance to the second story is from the dining-room.

The height of the first and second stories is nine feet, of basement seven feet. All floors are double, having felt paper between them. The sheathing is done with four-inch siding, having building paper between the sheathing and the siding. All the glass throughout is American, double thick, free from defects of all kinds.

The entire attic floor is floored with tongued and grooved flooring.

The down spouts, gutters and flashing are of tin.

Star A Star shingles are used on the roof. All chambers have large sized closets, fitted with hooks and shelves.

All doors are five cross panel doors. The three mantels are of a very neat wood design.

Hardware is plain and neat. All the finish, such as trim, base, stairway, etc., is of Georgia pine. The cornice on main roof projects 24 inches and is supported with ornamental wood brackets two feet apart. The veranda also has small brackets beneath its cornice.

The veranda wall on three sides is built up with field stones and is capped with a plank coping chamfered off from the center.

Plastering is two-coat work. Exterior painting is three-coat work, finishing coat a color to suit the owner.

Chimney is built above the roof with yellow brick and is capped with a sandstone cap.

Studding are 2x4 inches; joist, 2x10 inches; roof rafters, 2x4 inches. The veranda is supported by double columns, and each column is capped with a neat cap. The floors are pine, except the kitchen and pantry floors, which are maple.

The veranda and rear porch floors will be painted three coats of paint, and all the tongues and grooves well leaded at the time they are laid.

Front steps are plank, excepting the first step that rests upon the ground, this being stone, to prevent decay, as it rests upon the earth. The house is to be set two feet above the grade line.

All material and labor throughout is intended to be of an honest kind; and when the house is completed it will look substantial and meet with general favor.

Bacteria Destroy Masonry.

Water engineers have been seriously troubled by the gradual disintegration of the mortar used in water supply reservoirs, and the damage has hitherto been attributed to the solvent action of carbonic acid and other substances present in the water, the cement gradually becoming a kind of mud. In a paper by Stutzer and Hartleb it is shown that on extracting this mud with sterilized water it is found to be highly charged with nitrifying organisms. These organisms produce nitrous acid and nitrites, and it is probable that in the case of water containing an appreciable proportion of oxidizable nitrogenous matter this production of nitrous acid, by the agency of microorganisms, plays an important part in the destruction of the cement.

A World's Match Trust.

French capitalists have submitted a proposition for the control for 25 years of the sale of matches in Venezuela. These capitalists are members of the syndicate that has similar monopolies in Colombia, Bolivia, Guatemala and other countries. The law provides that prices are to be fixed by the government, and are never to exceed present prices.

Abuse of Austrian Soldiers.

It is reported that in Austria the custom of boxing the ears of soldiers and recruits has been so common and so violent that thousands of them have suffered such impairment of their hearing as partly to unfit them for service. The minister of war has recently issued a prohibitory order.

Agricultural Interests in the Coming Census

Questions That Will Be Asked by the Enumerators of the Farmers Througout the Country

—Value of the Statistics

THE twelfth United States census will be taken in the month of June next. This important work is under the direction of Hon. William R. Merriam, director, assisted by Fred H. Wines, assistant director.

Though an enumeration of the population of the United States has been taken every ten years since 1790, the first attempt to secure agricultural statistics through the medium of the census was made in 1840. The data secured at that time were considered defective for various reasons. The methods of census-taking were changed and greatly improved in 1850; hence it is usually said that the beginning of agricultural statistics by the census dates from 1850. Both in 1840 and 1850 there were 37 questions asked with reference to agriculture. The questions remained about the same in number, although somewhat changed in character, from decade to decade until 1880. In 1890 the number was increased to 233 questions, and further increased this year to 310.

Although 233 different questions were asked on the general agricultural schedule in 1890, the answers to only about 100 were tabulated. If the answers obtained in 1900 are fully tabulated along the plans now projected, the agricultural report will include information concerning three times as many subjects as in any preceding census.

The most important questions asked on the census schedules are the following: Total number of acres in farms; the number of acres improved; the number of acres unimproved; the total valuation of farms, including land, fences and buildings; value of implements and machinery; the number and value of farm animals—meat cattle, horses, mules, asses, swine and sheep. These questions have been asked each decade from 1850 until the present time. By the information secured in answer to them more than by anything else can be measured the development of the national resources invested in the agricultural industry. The same information enables us to trace the general progress of the agricultural classes of the country, and to determine whether agriculture is gaining or losing relatively when compared with other industries in the nation.

Associated with the questions given above are the following: The estimated value of all farm products sold, consumed or on hand for the year 1899; the amount expended in 1899 for fertilizers; the amount expended in 1899 for farm labor, exclusive of housework, including value of board furnished. The first of these three questions corresponds to the one asked on the manufacturing schedule for the total gross product of the articles manufactured in the factories and workshops of the nation. The question relating to fertilizers furnishes the information that shows from decade to decade the progress in improved methods of farming.

Of the other important questions, attention is called to those which ask for the color or race of farm proprietors, and the tenure by which they hold their land. The latter question was asked on the schedules in 1880 and 1890, and the former in 1890. The census of 1890 did not, however, tabulate the result of the inquiry relating to color or race. It is the purpose of those in charge of the present census to tabulate the data collected relating to tenure in such a way as to throw all possible light upon the vexed social and economic questions which have been raised concerning the ownership and tenure of farm lands. This census will also tabulate the figures showing the number of acres of land, the various sizes of farms and the crops which have been raised by the white and black races, and thus exhibit as no statistics so far collected have done the real progress and attainmehts of the colored race in the United States.

For the leading farm products the census schedule calls for information showing the number of acres harvested, the quantities produced, and the value of products. The products for which these inquiries are asked are the following: Corn, wheat, oats, barley, rye, buckwheat, flaxseed, Kaffir corn, hay and forage crops, cotton, rice, tobacco, hemp, hops, broom corn, peanuts, dry beans, dry peas, potatoes, sweet potatoes and yams; also sugar cane, sugar beets and sorghum cane. In addition to this, it asks for the number of acres harrested and quantities produced of wild, salt or prairie grasses cut for hay, millet and Hungarian grasses, alfalfa or lucerne, clover, other tame and cultivated grasses, and grains cut green for hay. It also asks for the quantities and values of clover seed and grass seed raised, and the quantities and values of sugar, molasses, sirup and sorghum that were produced. Sugar and sirup will be separated into three groups of maple, cane and beet.

The agricultural schedule for 1900 calls for the number of acres harvested and the quantities produced of strawberries, raspberries and Logan berries, blackberries and dewberries, currants, gooseberries, and other small fruit; of cabbages, tomatoes, sweet corn, onions, cucumbers, watermelons, musk and other melons. It also provides a number of blank spaces in which may be reported any other vegetable grown in commercial quantities. Of orchard fruits, grape vines, nut trees, and tropical fruits, it asks for the acres, the number of trees or vines, and the quantity of fruit produced. The orchard fruits for which reports are asked are apples, peaches and nectarines, pears, plums and prunes, cherries, apricots, and other orchard fruits. The tropical fruits are figs, lemons, olives, oranges, pineapples, pomeloes, citrons, guavas, and Japanese persimmons. Other tropical fruits are to be reported under one general head, "Miscellaneous Tropical Fruits." Of nuts, statistics are asked for almonds, pecans, Persian or English walnuts, and all other nuts under the generic designation of "Miscellaneous Nuts." Instead of asking the value of the products of each one of these vegetables, fruits and nuts, as is done for such crops as corn, wheat and cotton, the questions are asked for these by their groups, as grapes, small fruits, vegetables, orchard fruits, tropical fruits and nuts.

One great change in the census of 1900 is found in the classifications under which the various farm animals are to be reported. The change is one that has been made at the request of the live stock men of the country, they desiring a classification of animals that would be of more commercial value to them, and showing not only the number of horses, but also their ages, and showing for the meat cattle not only the character but the ages of the animals. The schedule calls for the number and value of calves under one year; steers one year and under two, two years and under three, three years and over; bulls one year and over; heifers, one year and under two; cows kept for milk two years and over; cows and heifers not kept for milk, two years and over; colts under one year; horses one year and under two, and two years and over; mule colts under one year; mules two years and over; asses and burros all ages; lambs under one year; ewes one year and over; rams and wethers one year and over; swine all ages; goats all ages. It calls for the number of pure-blooded horses, cattle, Angora goats, sheep and swine, recorded or eligible to record on the farm June 1, 1900.

Of dairy products, it calls for the quantities produced, quantities sold, and amount received from the sale of milk, cream, butter and cheese on the farm. The manufacturing section of the census will collect similar data relating to butter, cheese and condensed milk made in factories. The combination of the two will show the complete dairy exhibit of the country.

It asks for the number of fleeces, total weight of all fleeces, and the total value of wool, mohair and goat hair in the country.

Under poultry and eggs the schedule calls for the number of chickens, turkeys, geese and ducks; the value of the poultry of all kinds and of all ages on hand June 1, 1900; the value of poultry raised in 1899; dozens of eggs produced in 1899, and the value of those eggs.

Under bees and honey it calls for the number of swarms and hives of bees on hand June 1, 1900; their value and the number of pounds of honey produced in 1899; the pounds of wax, and the value of the honey and wax thus produced.

For the arid and subhumid regions of the far west the census schedule asks not only the questions which have been given above, but also the number of acres of crops which have been raised by the artificial use of water.

CANARY WAS VAIN.

Wanted to Be Put in as Fine and Glittering Cage as His More Fortunate Rivals.

"Do you know," said the observant gentleman, "that, with the exception of a peacock, I believe a canary bird is the vainest of all creatures?" Both my wife and myself are very fond of pets, and we keep several of these little songsters always in the house.

"One of the cages was very old, having been in the family for years, and was used as much for tradition's as for economy's sake.

"I had frequently remarked to my wife that I believed the occupant of this cage was ashamed of his shabby dwelling place, and observed with envious eyes the fact that the other songsters were more artistically lodged.

"Eventually the old cage collapsed, and it became necessary to purchase a new one. In order to test my belief in the intelligence of my feathered friend I made it a point to get him the prettiest little brass house that I could find.

"The effect was magical. No sooner was he turned into his new house than he began to sing as he had never sung before, completely drowning out the music of the other birds, and behaving otherwise in a manner altogether becoming his sudden rise in life."—N. Y. World.

The Troubles of a Credit Man

His Berth in a Chicago Retail Store is Not a Bed of Roses

There is probably a smaller percentage of people in a town as large as Chicago who buy goods on a credit than can be found in smaller places. But while this percentage may be smaller there are still thousands of people who run credit accounts at the stores in Chicago, and there are thousands more who would do so if the merchants would but give them the opportunity.

They Would Like a Charge Account.

It would be practically impossible to give anything like accurate figures of the retail credit business done in a year in Chicago. I asked the credit man of what is probably the largest store in the city that does a credit business if he could give me some idea what the retail credit business of Chicago would amount to in a year.

"I would not even attempt to give an estimate," he replied. "I could of course tell you what our credit business amounts to each year, but that would prove nothing. It is certain, however, that the business that goes onto the books of the retail stores of Chicago that permit the running of credit accounts would run well into the millions.

"In our own case fully one-third of the business we do goes onto our books in the form of charges against our customers. There are, I imagine, other houses in the city who do a greater percentage of 'charged' business than we do, but we are carrying all the accounts that have been asked for that I consider it safe to carry. We could easily double our credit business in a year's time, but it is a question whether we could do so with safe accounts, or at least a sufficient number of safe accounts to prevent an increase in the percentage of loss, and it is that little matter of loss that the credit man must figure on if he is to prove of any value to his employer. Keep down the percentage of loss and profit will take care of itself."

Does Credit Pay?

There has always been a difference of opinion as to whether the merchant who sells for cash only can and does sell goods cheaper than the merchant who does a credit business. I do not expect to prove anything by the following, but there can be no harm in quoting what this same credit man has to say on the subject of prices in connection with credit accounts. I asked him what the percentage of loss was on the amount of business done, and he replied that it was considerably less than one per cent. Then I asked him if even so small a percentage of loss as that would not have some effect on the prices charged for goods, and if not why it was that his concern, with the two items of loss from bad accounts and book keepers' salaries to account for, could afford to sell goods for the same price as the merchant without these two items to consider.

The "On Time" Attracts Customers.

"These are days of the keenest kind of competition, when profits are cut to the very lowest point at which it is possible to do business at all," he said, "but you will find that, quality of goods considered, our prices are no higher than those of any strictly cash house in the city. The reason such a thing is possible is because of the larger volume of business that we do, which we would not do if it was not for our credit system.

"There is probably one-half of our 'charged' business that would go elsewhere were it not for the matter of accommodation which we extend in the matter of credit accounts.

Not a Bed of Roses.

The life of a credit man in a large department store is certainly an interesting one. If there is any man engaged in the mercantile business who must keep posted on all the latest tricks of the sharpers the credit man is the one. They must be able to read all classes of human nature at a glance, and would be censured as quickly for turning away a customer who deserved credit, and where credit would prove profitable, as they would for granting credit to anyone who did not pay their bills.

Spoils His Chances For Credit.

There are hundreds of these latter class who apply for credit privileges at every credit-granting store in Chicago every month, and some of them are sharper than the credit men, and then another item is charged against the loss account.

"A credit man must be seemingly conscienceless," said the gentleman whom I have quoted before. "To the persons applying for credit as a matter of accommodation, and who intend to pay the bills they contract, it is seemingly an easy matter to secure an account with us, but occasionally I run across a case where nothing but nervousness on the part of the applicant prevents our extending the credit they ask. This class of people act 'sheepish' when they apply for credit, as though they were asking for something which they did not deserve, and I often mistake these actions for criminal intentions, and so lose what might have proven a good customer.

"When a man asks for credit with seemingly good intentions I ask for references, and if employed, who he is employed by, or if in business, the name of his firm. That is all, but before I grant his request he is fully investigated. If he is employed, the amount of his salary is ascertained from his employer; if he is in business his financial standing is secured from the commercial agencies, and if they are satisfactory he is informed that he has been placed on our credit books."

Good and Bad References.

"There are three different kinds of references that I place very little reliance in under certain conditions," continued the credit man. "One would naturally suppose that reference to a bank would be the very best that could be given, but I have been taken in so often by relying on such references that I have ceased to look upon them as reliable.

His Word Does Not Count.

"It is very seldom that we get beat for a small amount by anyone giving a bank as reference when opening an account. Not so very long ago a woman requested permission to open a credit account with us and gave one of the prominent banks as reference. When I investigated I found that she had a deposit there of more than $2,000, but that her account with the bank was only of a few days' standing. I notified her that she could have a credit of not over $200 provided that her account was paid the first of each month. She bought the full $200 worth in three days, but when the first of the month came around she was not to be found and her account with the bank had been withdrawn. That woman was conducting a profitable business on a capital of $2,000 which she had never expended, but utilized to secure credit at the stores. It was certainly a profitable business for her.

"Another reference that I have learned not to place much reliance in is one from a politician, and the third is that from a minister when presented by a woman. When a man comes in with a reference from his pastor it is a different matter, as his power of persuasion is not so great as is a woman's with the ministerial profession. A politician is too easily influenced by possible votes to make his name good as a reference."

One Item of Loss.

"When opening accounts with parties unknown to us it is customary to limit the amount of the credit extended to them. In fact, it is only the well known business men of the city who may have unlimited credit on our books. In the case of salaried employes we usually limit the amount of credit extended to them to the value of one week's salary in each month. That, I believe, is the rule in force in practically every store in Chicago.

She Beat the Establishment.

"But, you know, there are exceptions to all rules, and one of these exceptions cost nearly every store in the business district of Chicago that extends credit to patrons a large sum a few weeks ago.

"About six months ago a woman came to me with a request for a credit account. She was gowned in the height of fashion, and was at the time wearing jewels that were in themselves a small fortune. She represented herself to be the wife of a well-to-do board of trade man, and said that her husband was worth at least $100,000. As she wished to make a few small purchases at the time I complied with her request at once, intending to look up the case later.

"Something or other prevented until the first of the month came around, and I found that her account was a little over $300. We sent a bill as she had directed, and almost by return mail we received a check for the full amount. That settled it, and that woman could have all the credit she wanted. The next month we got a check promptly for the amount of her account, and then we did not get another for three months. In that time her account with us had grown to a little over $1,000, which we will never get. The woman has gone to Europe with her purchases, the husband, who was only one of the small fry on the board, has failed, and we, like the rest of the stores, are the victims of a misplaced confidence."

The head pin bowling tournament at the Westfield Club closed last Thursday evening. The first prize, a gold watch, was won by Walter Smith. In the second class George Voehl, of Plainfield, and Fred P. Condit, of Westfield, were tied with a score of 209, but it is hardly likely that either of these men will be allowed to take the prize, as both are charged with being professionals. It is said that Voehl has rolled at Bound Brook for money prizes and Condit has recently raffled off a watch won by him at the Social Club tournament last year. Condit claims that a friend raffled the watch and that he had nothing to do with it. The matter has caused a great deal of talk among the members of both clubs, they being about evenly divided as to whether either of these bowlers should be allowed to roll off their tie.

GOLF

The Cranford Golf Club is patiently awaiting the arrival of spring before beginning an active campaign. The work of preparing the links of that club was rapidly pushed last fall so that nine holes are in fairly good condition at present. It is intended to complete the course this spring and have the entire eighteen holes ready for use by the time the season is well under way. The Cranford Club includes a number of the residents of Westfield and Roselle as well as Cranford and has drawn members from even further away on account of the rules of the club which allow Sunday playing.

As soon as the weather moderates and shows any signs of staying in that condition the proposed improvements at the clubhouse of the Park Golf Club will be started. The annual election of the club takes place in April, but there is little chance of any radical change in the makeup of the board of governors, and the policy formulated by the present board will undoubtedly be carried through. It is the intention to have another room added to the present building to permit the club professional and his wife to take up their residence there. Arrangements will then be made for the serving of informal lunches at the clubhouse during the coming season. Nothing elaborate will be attempted until the success of this plan is thoroughly demonstrated.

WHIST

The A. W. L. whist trophy passed from the hands of the Baltimore Whist Club to the Scranton Whist Club last Saturday night. The New Jersey Whist Club team, of Newark, are the next challengers and they will go to Scranton Saturday evening to play for the trophy. On the following Tuesday evening, the New Jersey team will come to Plainfield to play the Park Club for the State trophy. The Park Club has a challenge in for the A. W. L. trophy and will play for it during March or April.

Mr. Mellick favored a fountain, but thought that $200 was too much to give toward it. He offered a resolution substituting the sum of $100 instead of $200. This amendment was lost. Messrs. Buckle, Craig, Coriell, Gloak, Tolles and Smith voted against it, while Messrs. Clifton, Dumont, Lee, Mellick and vanHerwerden voted for it. Mr. Dumont then moved that the sum of $200 be appropriated for the fountain, provided that the Loyal Temperance Legion raises a like sum. This motion was adopted, all voting for it with the exception of Mr. Craig who voted no.

President Smith stated for the benefit of the Council that a communication was received Tuesday evening by the police board from the officials of the Potter & Campbell Printing Press Works complaining about the number of boys who are becoming a nuisance about the works. He said that the Board would attend to the matter.

Mr. Tolles offered a resolution giving the street and sewer committee authority to advertise for bids for crushed stone, culverts and crosswalks. After the Council voted to grant the usual batch of hackmen's licenses after the fees are paid, Council adjourned.

The Westfield Standard has been carrying on a voting contest to get the most popular name for the new Westfield school. The voting closed yesterday and was overwhelmingly in favor of R. R. Sinclair. Mr. Sinclair is an old resident of Westfield, and was for many years connected with Harper Brothers, of New York, at one time being editor of Harper's Weekly. He retired from active literary work a few years ago.

Dr. Andrews, of Morristown, has on exhibition is his drug store two iron cannon balls which were found buried in the earth a couple of days ago by workmen who are employed excavating for foundations for an extension to Dr. Andrews' house in South street. The cannon balls are deeply pitted and covered with iron rust. It is supposed that they originally formed a part of the ammunition of the American Revolutionary Army while it was encamped at Morristown.

Those who have witnessed the production of "Ben Hur" at the Broadway Theatre, New York, this winter, have seen many there who are by no means regular attendants at the New York theatres. The remarkable production, together with the elaborateness of the scenic effects, have drawn thousands there who seldom if ever go to the theatre. This is often evident by a glimpse of the audience. In one particular, it is very apparent. The average audience in a New York theatre today knows without instruction that the ladies' hats should be removed before the beginning of the performance. The strangers, however, often have to be told by those who come within range of the hats.

CHOCOLATE IN MANILA.

How It Is Prepared by the Dealer for Use in the Presence of the Purchaser.

In Manila they make your chocolate while you wait. Right into the house a Chinaman comes with his basket and rolls the crushed cacao bean and sugar, and then makes a supply of chocolate that is sweeter and more palatable and cheaper than the commercial brand sold in the Chicago stores.

When the Chinaman comes he lays aside his hat and shirt, and, stripped to the waist and barefooted, he begins his work. In the basket is the chocolate or cacao bean, from which the rancid oil has been extracted and which oil long ago has anointed the hair of some Filipino belle or lighted some Filipino home. The beans first come on the board bitter and brackish. With a rolling pin the Chinaman grinds them into a fine powder. This takes time. When it is done, he opens another basket and dips out the sugar for the sweetening and the final mixture. The sugar is what would probably grade coffee "C" if it were in commercial circles. Like the bean, it grows on the island. Industriously the Chinaman rubs, and gradually the chocolate forms on the bottom of the board and drips off in sticky sweetness into the basket beneath. The family gathers about to sample the product and the Chinaman stops to smoke a cigarette while judgment is being passed. Cups of the beverage are handed around and all "taste." If it is not sweet enough the manufacturer throws more sugar on his board and drops in another pinch of vanila and cinnamon for the flavoring. When it is "right" he goes to work and for several hours rubs away at his task. The deposit below the rolling-pin is a brown substance that is soft and moist, while above it is to all appearances a dry powder and sugar. The little ones gather about, and if there is an older daughter, perhaps she sits down on the floor in front of the Chinaman and watches the growing pile.

Such was the case in the house of a Spaniard the other day when I called. The young lady sat there and idly watched the manufacturer of the edible, and when a little brother came she took his head in her lap and he lay there with her, watching the brown-skinned Chinaman rub and rub the sugar into the other ingredients. It was insisted that I should sample the finished article, and I found it very good.—Chicago Record.

NATIONAL POLITICS COMING TO THE FRONT

Republican State Committee Will Meet Next Week to Fix Convention Date.

GOSSIP OF THE DELEGATES.

MAY BE A BOOM FOR GRIGGS FOR VICE-PRESIDENT.

General Sewell, Senator Kean, Chairman Murphy and Barker Gummere Likely to be the Four At-Large.

National politics will begin to assume shape in New Jersey next week. The Republican State committee has been called to meet in Trenton Tuesday, March 6th, and it is likely that a date will be set for the State convention, at which delegates to the National convention will be chosen. Of course there will be some gossip as to the personnel of the twenty men who will go to Philadelphia as the representatives of the "Garden State," which leaped into such political prominence from St. Louis four years ago.

Of course General William J. Sewell will lead the delegation as delegate-at-large, an honor he has held in four previous National conventions. The other three delegates-at-large are likely to be United States Senator John Kean, State Chairman Franklin Murphy and Barker Gummere, of Mercer county. As one of the four, however, Congressman H. C. Loudenslager's name is mentioned; and, indeed, that of Attorney-General John W. Griggs may be considered. Still it may happen that New Jersey might again seek the honor of second place on the ticket with McKinley by presenting the Attorney-General as the successor of the late Vice President, and in that event he would not be on the ticket as a delegate. The matter has not been seriously discussed in any of the party councils as yet, but next Tuesday's meeting may develop a healthy boom for Griggs for Vice-President.

There has been little or no gossip as yet as to the personnel of the sixteen district delegates, and there appears to be little desire on the part of Republicans to come to the convention.

Another matter for the State committee to dispose of is the selection of a representative in the National committee to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Vice-President Hobart. It is said to be a nearly settled conclusion that Barker Gummere, of Trenton, will be the man. One or two others have been mentioned, but Mr. Gummere is said to be strongly favored by the party leaders.

A MARRYING PARSON.

Rev. Scott Wallace Has Performed Many Marriages Recently.

Rev. Scott Wallace, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church, has become very popular among the young people in his parish who are matrimonially inclined, and of late he has been kept very busy in this direction. On February 8th he united in marriage Walter N. Daniels and Miss Martha Kee, at the residence 526 East Sixth street. Last Saturday evening Troy Gibson and Miss Maggie Bell Lewis were married by the reverend gentleman at his home, and Wednesday evening last he married Samuel M. Reasoner and Miss Della M. Bullock at the bride's residence 425 East Third street. Mr. Wallace is fully equal to such occasions and is always glad to see his friends.

Borough Primaries.

Tomorrow evening the Republicans of the borough will hold their primary in the basement of the public school on Somerset street. Next Tuesday the Board of Registry will be in session all day to attend to the registering of those whose names do not and should be on the books. The Democrats of the borough have decided to hold their primary tomorrow evening at the same hour the Republicans meet.

Archbishop to Preach.

His Grace, Travers Lewis, Archbishop of Ontario, will preach in Grace Episcopal church, Sunday morning March 4th, at 10:30 o'clock, in behalf of the Paris Homes for English and American Girls, founded by Mrs. Lewis, formerly Miss Ada M. Leigh. They are the guests of Mrs. W. L. Patton, 122 West Fifth street, who represents this work in Plainfield.

No Stop in Liquor Business.

Every one of the fifteen successful applicants for liquor licenses received their certificate early yesterday morning so that they could continue business without a break. City Clerk Mac Murray made them out after the Council meeting Wednesday evening.

FELL FROM A TRAIN.

Plainfield Young Man's Narrow Escape From Being Seriously Hurt in Elizabeth.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, March 2—A young man who belongs in Plainfield, but who refused to give his name, had a narrow escape from being killed or seriously hurt yesterday by falling from a train on the Central Railroad as it was passing over the bridge at Union street. He was standing on the rear platform and the train gave a lurch as it struck the bridge, and the young man was hurled sixteen feet to the roadway below. His leg was severely hurt and he was bruised about the body and unable to walk. He refused to go to the hospital and summoned a hack, in which he was taken to Astfalk's Hotel, East Grand street.

FAIR AND A CONCERT.

SUCCESSFUL EVENT BEING HELD AT MT. OLIVE CHURCH.

Being Conducted Under the Auspices of the Sewing Circle—Those in Charge.

A fair and concert is being held at the Mt. Olive Baptist church this week under the auspices of the Sewing Circle of the church. The affair opened Wednesday afternoon and in the evening a children's concert was given in the church. The fair is being held in the basement where there is an attractive arrangement of tables and booths. Mrs. William Dempsey is in full charge. In the basement the following are in charge: Fruit table, Mrs. Joseph Mitchell; Miss Thomas; cup table, Mrs. Perkins, Mrs. Binn; cake table, Mrs. Kinslow, Mrs. Doyle; candy table, Mrs. Green, Miss Fields; fancy table, Mrs. Littell, Mrs. Wood; apron table, Mrs. Maiden; grocer booth, Mrs. E. E. Jackson; lemonade well, Miss Cole. Mrs. Fields and Mrs. Binn are in charge of the supper department.

There was a good attendance last evening and the sales were large. In the early part of the evening an excellent entertainment was given in the main part of the church under the direction of Alfred White. This included a vocal duet by Miss Hill and Miss Manning; recitations by Miss Cora Pearson; comic quartette, "Fortune-teller," Miss Hill, Miss Manning, Mr. Toomy and Alfred White. The closing number was a medley chorus by the company, which included the Misses Douglass, Maynard, Hill, Littell, Bassfield, Robinson, Anderson, Manning, Walley, Olden, and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Dempsey, Mr. Toomey and Alfred White. Miss Lillian Williams was the accompanist.

PUBLIC OPINION.

Gov. Voorhees Shows His Fond Regard For It in Question of Saving the Palisades.

Governor Voorhees, in discussing the question of protecting the Palisades, is quoted as saying:

"The estimate of those who are pushing the movement is entirely too low, so far as the lands in New Jersey are concerned. The value of the lands under water alone in New Jersey is estimated by the Riparian Commission to be fully $1,250,000. I don't know as yet what the sentiment of the Legislature is on the matter. When the Legislators come to understand all the facts, their scope and full import, they will doubtless hesitate to adopt the proposed law. Should popular sentiment, however, strongly favor the abandonment of the assets of the State amounting to this great value for the purpose of maintaining a public park, the Legislature will no doubt respond thereto.

"Now that public attention has been directed by it to the subject, undoubtedly some expression of views on the part of the people of the State will be forthcoming. Until I am fully advised, however, of what this sentiment may be, I hesitate to express an opinion as to the probable outcome of legislative action.

"To permit the entire water front to be designated by the Commission for park purposes would also deprive the owners of abutting lands of their rights to acquire and improve lands under water, and would properly entitle them to compensation."

Testimonial to Major Collins.

They express the gratitude of the company's members for the treatment they received from Major Collins while in service during the Spanish American War as members of Company E, Third Regiment.

CHRISTIANS CO-OPERATE

FEDERATION OF CHURCHES TO UNITE ALL CHRISTENDOM.

Dr. Laidlaw Tells at the Crescent Avenue Church of the Good Already Accomplished in New York City.

A mere handful of people, including Rev. Dr. Main, Rev. J. O. McKelvey and Rev. Dr. Yerkes, were present in the lecture room of the Crescent Avenue church last evening to listen to the talk of Dr. Laidlaw, of New York city, who spoke in relation to "Christian Co-operation."

The speaker told of the work accomplished in New York in building up the Federation in the various assembly districts throughout the city. All churches of whatever denomination are represented in the Central Federation by sub-organizations. The work was begun in 1896 by a house-to-house canvass made by committees appointed for this purpose. The result of the canvass at first was a surprise, from the fact that a large number of people were found who did not attend any church. In one block north of Fifty-ninth street, between Tenth and Eleventh avenues, great numbers of Episcopalians were discovered who did not attend any church. This block was found to be the most densely populated of any in the city. As a result of the canvass an Episcopal church was established there after five months work.

In reference to the libraries, Dr. Laidlaw said that much good had resulted from their establishment in the tenement house localities. Next to the Bible he thought good books were of the most importance. Some of these libraries had been established by the Young Woman's Christian Association and the Anti-Basement Club. The establishment of the "Hartley Home" was an industrial institution which had been made possible by the work of the Federation.

The speaker outlined briefly the methods employed in making the canvass in the various wards and how 100 churches were officially interested, having nineteen branches. He said much good had also been accomplished in the way of a moral reform. In the Twenty-first Assembly district the Federation, he claimed, had been the means of preventing the granting of certain licenses. In closing Dr. Laidlaw expressed the opinion that better success would be obtained if the teaching of religion was not cut out of the curriculum of the schools. He thought the churches should show their gratitude toward the State, which had exempted their churches and schools from taxation, by doing what it could to transform every voter into a type of voter who would be useful to the State. This could the better be accomplished by exerting a higher influence through religious instruction.

MAY BE COSTLY DOG BITE.

Young Man Sues A. E. Knopf in the Union County Court.

Having been badly lacerated by a savage dog belonging to August E. Knopf, a rich New York importer, living in Linden township, Anton Walter, a young man, also of the township, yesterday brought a suit for $2,000 damages in the Union County Court.

Anton Walter was so badly bitten on the leg by the vicious brute that he was confined to his home for some weeks, and says he is still suffering from his injuries. The suit will be tried at the May term of the court.

Here are some State records held by Mr. Tunison: One mile, 2:50; two miles, 4; three miles, 7:03; five miles, 13:45. The first was made in a contest at Orange and the others at New Brunswick.

To Investigate Rahway Mystery.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Rahway, March 2—Coroner McConnelly, of Cranford, visited Rahway Wednesday and after a consultation with Chief Wright swore in a coroner's jury. They viewed the body of Mossman, and adjourned to meet at 2:30 p. m. next Tuesday. Chief Wright is at work securing evidence as to the alleged assault on Mossman by the two men in custody.

An Important Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Plainfield Board of Education will be held Monday evening. It is expected that the committee appointed to secure a site for the new High School building will report at that time. The committee on plans is also likely to be heard from.

CHILDREN TIED TO BED.

BUT THAT DID NOT PREVENT ONE OF THEM STARTING A FIRE.

Department Called Out by the Blaze—Children Rescued by a Neighbor.

When Mrs. Peter Reuter left her rooms on the second floor of 312 East Fourth street, this morning at 11 o'clock, to go to the grocers, she left her two small children tied to the bedstead, and the kitchen door shut. When she returned the kitchen was ablaze, but the children were safe out of harm's way. Mrs. William Albert, who lives near by, saw the flames and rescued the children.

Exactly how the fire originated only the children can tell and the fright they received has so far prevented any rational explanation. Mrs. Reuter was called upon to go to the grocery and left her children tied fast to the bedstead in the bedroom. She carefully shut the kitchen door. It is supposed that one of the children gained liberty and began to investigate the stove in the kitchen.

Mrs. Albert heard the children's screams and saw the flames through the window. She hurried upstairs and carried the children to a place of safety. Then she started for Joseph Blimm's grocery. On the way she met Mrs. Reuter returning and told her that her children were safe, but the house was on fire. Then she hurried to the store and Joseph Blimm sent in an alarm from box 14. It was then 11:15 o'clock.

When the firemen arrived they found that the interior of the kitchen had been on fire. The neighbors had gathered and an impromptu bucket brigade had gained the mastery over the flames. A stream from the chemical engine speedily extinguished what remained.

The house is owned by Christan Becker, who occupies the first floor. The damage to the house will possibly reach $35. It is covered by insurance. The loss to the Reuters will be nearly the same. Mrs. Reuter was unable in the excitement to tell whether or not the place was insured.

FIRE ALARM OUT OF USE.

ELECTRIC WIRE CAUSED WEST END OF CITY TO BE CUT OFF.

Gongs and Tappers in Fire Houses Were Doing All Sorts of Stunts as a Result.

An electric light wire and the wind made all sorts of trouble for the fire department last night and the trouble was not rectified until this afternoon. In some way an electric light wire became crossed with one of the fire-alarm system wires. It was a swinging cross. As a result all the gongs and tappers in the various fire department buildings began to ring with more or less regularity. There were two blasts by the fire alarm whistle.

Investigation last night failed to find the source of the trouble and it was necessary to cut out the West End circuit of the fire alarm system so that the rest of the service might be used. All the police were notified that the boxes in the West End could not be used and that alarms would have to be sent in by telephone. Luckily there was no need of the service.

This morning the linemen of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company were busy on the line trying to find the location of the swinging cross. When the alarm from box 14 did come in, there was some difficulty in telling the box as the West End circuit was connected up so that the trouble might be located.

PLAN FOR A SOCIABLE.

Park Avenue Christian Endeavor Society Met Last Night.

One of the most interesting of the monthly meetings of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church was that held at the home of Joseph Hawkins last night. Though the weather was disagreeable, the attendance was quite satisfactory. The meeting proved to be of much interest to the members of the society. The monthly reports which were submitted were of interest and showed the society to be in a flourishing condition. It was decided to hold a sociable Thursday, March 15th, the place to be selected at a future date. After the meeting the young folks passed the evening playing games and with music.

This evening the society will hold a consecration meeting at the home of Miss Emma Fish. The subject to be discussed will be "Humility."

Four to Ride the Goat.

The members from Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., who compose the membership of the orient, will meet this evening initiate four candidates. All the members are urged to attend.

FATHER SMYTH MAY GO.

MENTIONED FOR APPOINTMENT TO BIG JERSEY CITY PARISH.

Death of Father Sennes Left Important Post Vacant—Bishop Wigger Will Decide Who is to Fill It.

The rumor that Rev. Father Smyth, rector of St. Mary's R. C. church in this city, may be transferred to one of the largest parishes in Jersey City has been received with universal regret by the members of the local parish and Rev. Father Smyth's many other friends in this city. Whether such an event will come to pass it is now impossible to say.

Rev. Father Sennes, rector of St. Mary's church in Jersey City, died a few weeks ago and made it necessary that a successor should be appointed. It was but natural that Rev. Father Symth, of this city, should be mentioned as one of the leading priests of this section. The decision lays with Bishop Wigger, of Newark, who is now in Palestine, and will return next month.

Rev. Father Smyth has shown himself perfectly capable of handling a large parish and has made himself greatly beloved by his parishioners. By others outside of his denomination he has been recognized as a man of great ability and intelligence, and his broadminded views have resulted in very satisfactory relations with the other churches of the city. It may be that the bishop will decide that such a valuable man should be given a greater charge. Meanwhile nothing will be done until the bishop announces his decision in the matter.

ENTERTAINED EUCHRE CLUB.

Thursday Evening Club Members Were the Guests of Miss Lillian A. Force.

The Thursday Evening Euchre Club was entertained last evening by Miss Lillian A. Force at her home, 62 Duer street, and the members had a delightful time. The play resulted in Miss Ella Titsworth making the highest score for the ladies, and she received a picture, "Lost in the Snow." Leonard G. Smith made the highest score for the gentlemen, and he received a handsome thermometer.

During the evening the members greatly enjoyed the piano selections by Miss Maxson and the violin playing of Arthur Mosher. A feature was the genuine sociability on the part of all. Before the guests dispersed they were served with refreshments by the hostess.

His Aunt Leaves Him $40,000.

Antonia Seriance, an employe of a New Brunswick tire factory, found out last August that he had an aunt living in Marburg, Austria, where he was born. She was glad to hear from her nephew, and sent him money to pay his passage across to pay her a visit. She became fond of him, and urged him to remain with her, but after a two months' visit he returned to his wife and family in New Brunswick. He received official notification from Dr. Lorber, of Marburg, yesterday that Mrs. Schram, his aunt, had died, leaving him $40,000. Dr. Lorber is the executor.

To Occupy New Lodge Rooms.

Court Watchung, No. 3871, Independent Order of Foresters, will move into their new rooms, the G. A. R. rooms, next Thursday evening. At that time they will give a house warming by inviting the members of Court Plainfield, Court Dunellen, and their friends to a "smoker," and entertainment. Those fortunate to receive an invitation may expect a treat.

Money Needed for Schools.

The Board of Education of the borough has decided that the necessary amount of money needed for next year will be $14,100, divided as follows: Teachers' salaries and current expenses, $12,400; text books, supplies, etc., $1,700. This will be asked for at the annual meeting to be held March 20th.

Patent on Printing Press.

Louis Bagger & Co., patent attorneys, Washington, report that last Tuesday Messrs. John Brooks and W. S. Huson, residents of this city, obtained a valuable patent for improvements in printing presses, and to other residents of this State fourteen patents were issued on the same date.

A Member of Daughters of America.

Mrs. Amos Vail, of Greenbrook, who died Thursday last, was a member of Martha Washington Council, Daughters of America, and a delegation from the council will attend the funeral services at Dunellen tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 from the Methodist church.

Progressive Heart Party.

The entertainment committee of the Park Club has sent out notices to all the members of the club regarding the progressive heart party to be held at the clubhouse, Tuesday evening, March 6th. Play will begin at 8:30 o'clock.

COUNTY ROAD ENGINEER.

Board of Freeholders Made the Appointment — Union Printers' Work Indorsed.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, March 2.—The Union County Board of Freeholders, at a meeting held yesterday afternoon, appointed J. M. Bauer, of Linden, as engineer for the new county road, to be built this spring in New Providence township, which will connect Union county with roads running through Morris and Essex counties, thus making a complete road system.

The Board also, by a unanimous vote, decided that hereafter all county printing must be done by union printers, and that no bills would be paid unless they bore the seal of the union.

BAPTIST SUNDAY-SCHOOL

ANNUAL MEETING OF FIRST CHURCH SOCIETY LAST NIGHT.

Reports of Various Officers Showed Condition of School to be in Excellent Shape.

The annual meeting of the Sunday-school of the First Baptist church was held last night in the lecture room of the church. Owing to the stormy night the attendance was not large. Superintendent G. H. Batchelor presided over the meeting.

Treasurer F. W. Jones reported the school to be in a good financial condition. There is a balance of $250 in the missionary fund and $200 in the school treasury. George P. Brown, chairman of the finance committee, reported that the income now is sufficient to conduct the school in a very satisfactory manner. The report of W. O. Chapman, of the Christmas committee, presented an unusual report. It showed a surplus of $5 after all expenses had been met. Frank W. Jones, chairman of the excursion committee, reported that every bill had been paid and there is no deficit, which is also an unusual result. Generally there is always a small deficit in this department of work.

Miss Laura J. Runyon, superintendent of the home department, presented an encouraging report, showing an increase in membership and collections. Miss Ida Yerkes, chairman of the benevolent committee, reported a balance of $15 on hand. During the year $25 was expended for the poor of the church. L. H. Biglow, Jr., from the committee having in charge the work of re arranging the Sunday-school room and making some improvements, reported that the work had been done satisfactorily.

The missionary committee, of which C. W. McCutchen is the chairman, reported that $300 was expended during the year for missionary purposes, and there is a balance on hand of $250. A report was received from Charles Conover, secretary of the Mt. Olive Sunday-school, showing an increase in attendance and collections. This school is now practically self-supporting.

The excursion committee for this year informed the members present that July 7th is the date set for the excursion to Asbury Park. This date has been reserved by the railroad company for this school.

At this time the election of officers took place. George H. Batchelor was re-elected superintendent, and he appoints his two assistants, who will probably be the present incumbents, Geo. F. Brown and L. H. Biglow, Jr. W. O. Chapman was elected secretary, but afterward resigned, as he is soon to leave the city. The office was left vacant for the present. Douglass Drake was chosen assistant secretary; F. W. Jones treasurer and B. J. Shreve librarian. M. O. Dobbins was re-elected superintendent of the Mt. Olive Sunday-school, and Charles Conover was re-elected secretary of this school. The latter resigned and this office was left vacant. This concluded the business of the evening.

Getting Ready for Good Street Work.

The Councilmanic street and sewer committee is gradually getting things ready for the spring work. At the meeting Wednesday evening the committee was authorized to advertise for bids for furnishing crushed stone, culverts and crosswalks, and as soon as spring opens work on the streets will be started.

Better Heater for Schools.

At the annual school meeting in the borough March 20th, the question of providing better heating facilities for the Somerset Street School will be brought up for consideration of the citizens. This is a necessity and undoubtedly the citizens will vote to remedy the present difficulty.

Oh, Fudge!

The Young Woman's Club will hold a "fudge party" at the club rooms Monday evening, March 5th. All members invited.

FACULTY ROW AT RUTGERS COLLEGE.

Resignation of a Professor Stirs up the Alumni In a Lively Manner.

SAY IT WAS WITHOUT CAUSE.

PROFESSOR SHUMWAY NOT LIKED BY PRESIDENT SCOTT.

Jersey's Old College in a Ferment Over an Act of President Austin Scott—Fears of a Serious Clash.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, March 2.—A serious crisis has developed in the administration of affairs of Rutgers College, and part of the trustees, the alumni and the entire undergraduate body are in openly avowed hostility to Dr. Austin Scott, the president. It is alleged that the resignation of Professor Shumway as professor of Latin language and literature, handed to the trustees in January last, was demanded by President Scott without authority and without adequate cause, and the alumni of the college are making a determined effort to have Professor Shumway retained. It is a condition of affairs almost without precedent.

The facts of the case are set forth in a circular letter which has been issued to the alumni by a number of the more prominent of the graduates of the college, headed by George S. Hobart, '96, a nephew of the late Vice-President. This letter says in part:

"It appears that at one of the faculty meetings held in November last a discussion arose as to a certain resolution then pending before the faculty. In that discussion Prof. Shumway was unable to agree with the views expressed by the president and stated his position accordingly. The next day as Prof. Shumway passed the president on the campus the latter called to Prof. Shumway and took it upon himself to ask Prof. Shumway to resign. In this the president clearly exceeded his authority, as the initiative in such matters rests with the board of trustees. On several occasions since Prof. Shumway has endeavored to ascertain the reasons for this request, but has been unable to obtain any information more definite than that the president considers it 'for the welfare of the college.' Later Prof. Shumway wrote a letter explaining more fully some of the remarks that passed at the discussion referred to above. To this the president replied: 'It (the letter) relieves me from the present necessity of carrying out my purpose' (i. e., of forcing Prof. Shumway's resignation.)

"The day before the trustees' meeting Professor Shumway again wrote to the president to ascertain, if possible, the meaning of this somewhat ambiguous expression, so that, if necessary, he might begin to look for another position. No reply was received, and thereupon, 'preferring present knowledge to continued uncertainty,' Professor Shumway tendered his resignation to the trustees. It was by them referred to the committee on instruction and discipline, in whose hands it now is. We believe the above to be an impartial statement of the facts leading up to this unfortunate situation, and are prepared at the proper time to substantiate them in detail. . . . We disclaim any purpose of making an attack upon the president, either as an individual or as the executive head of the college, but we are bound to say that we think that in asking for Professor Shumway's resignation without adequate cause he has made a serious mistake."

Petitions are being sent in to the trustees and to the committee, and at the meeting of the trustees Tuesday next, when action will probably be taken on the resignation, a committee of the alumni will ask for a hearing.

Professor Shumway has been a member of the faculty for sixteen years, and is immensely popular with the under-graduates. Ever since the announcement of his resignation, at every college function the students gather at the close and cheer repeatedly for Shumway.

Duer Street Opening.

Mayor Smalley, of the borough, is meeting with good success in his efforts to raise the sum of $500 toward the opening up of Duer street into this city, and he believes that in a short time the amount will be realized. The balance of the expense has been provided for and there is every reason to believe that the project will be successful and that before the coming summer passes it will be a reality.

FILIPINOS TRAPPED.

Colonel Anderson Administers Severe Punishment.

MANY SPANISH PRISONERS RESCUED.

General Funston Reports Everything Quiet Along the East Coast. Otis Tells of Large Receipts of Hemp and Tobacco.

MANILA, March 2.—Colonel Anderson, with the Thirty-eighth infantry, employing the insurgents' own tactics, ambushed the enemy near Batangas. Through spies Colonel Anderson learned that a detachment of insurgents would pass a certain road. He posted his soldiers, concealed among the trees lining the road, and when the enemy arrived the Americans volleyed unexpectedly, killing 24 insurgents, wounding 30 and capturing several. Some arms and ammunition also were captured.

The effect of this blow has been salutary. The enemy in that locality is dismayed.

Acting on information brought here by Spanish prisoners who escaped from the insurgents, the transport Alva, with 50 marines from the cruiser Brooklyn, was sent to the gulf of Ragai, on the south coast of Luzon, and succeeded in rescuing 500 Spanish prisoners and 10 Americans.

One hundred bandits, as the rebels are now called, surprised ten men of the Third cavalry at Namacpacan, in the province of La Union, North Luzon, last Monday. They killed one of the cavalrymen and captured the horses and a supply train. Troops are now hunting a gang of 800 of these bandits in the mountains.

Wednesday 25 bandits crossed the Pasig at Maudaloyan and raided Santa Ana, which is only four miles from Manila. They were dispersed by the residents of the town.

Brigadier General Funston recently marched a force from San Isidro to Baler, the scene of Lieutenant Gillmore's capture, for the purpose of garrisoning that place. He returned to Manila by water and reports everything quiet along the east coast.

Released Prisoners at Manila.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—General Otis has cabled to the war department reporting the arrival at Manila of eight American and 140 Spanish soldiers recently released in Tayabas province. There were also two American citizens and 17 Spanish friars. In another dispatch General Otis reports that since the opening of the hemp ports 13,000 tons of hemp and 70,000 bales of tobacco have reached Manila.

To Protect the Birds.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Representative Sherman of New York, from the house committee on commerce, has presented a favorable report on Representative Lacey's bill to prohibit the interstate transportation of game killed in violation of local laws. The bill is designed to aid in the restoration of game and song birds to various parts of the country. The report points out that the prairie chicken has almost disappeared and that they would doubtless become abundant if introduced in the south. The grouse of the northwest Pacific coast would similarly adapt itself to Pennsylvania and the far south. The bill also permits the secretary of agriculture to keep out such foreign birds as the English sparrow.

The $30,000 Returned.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The $30,000 used by Mr. Whiteside in his exposure of the Clark case before the Montana legislature and which was brought to Washington when the hearing in that case was begun by the senate committee on elections and has been held by it ever since was yesterday returned to State Treasurer Collins of Montana. The money was brought to this city for the purpose of identification and for any other use to which it might be put by the committee. Concluding that the fund could be no longer used, it was turned over to Mr. Collins. The money will be held by the treasurer for five years, and if in the meantime it is not claimed by any one it will be covered into the state school fund

Freight Rates Reduced.

CHICAGO, March 2.—A reduction in freight rates on export and domestic grain from the Mississippi river and the Chicago gateways to the seaboard has been ordered by the presidents of the lines, members of the Central Freight association and the Trunk Line association. The reduction is 7 cents on export and 4.5 cents on domestic grain. The new tariff is to be effective next Monday.

Murder and Suicide.

CUBA, N. Y., March 2.—Ed Mead shot and instantly killed Bert Wixson, his partner in the wagon making business, at Bolivar, N. Y. Mead then went up stairs and shot himself in the head, dying almost immediately afterward. The two men, who were both middle aged, had quarreled over business matters.

To Build Exposition Buildings.

BUFFALO, March 2.—Bids for the construction of the machinery and transportation building for the Pan-American exposition have been opened. William Goldie, Sons & Co. of Chicago were the lowest bidders. They offer to do the entire work for $279,740. The next lowest bid was $283,135.

Naval Movements.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The Scorpion has sailed from Kingston for Guantanamo, the New York from Port au Prince for Guantanamo, the Isla de Luzon from Hongkong for Manila. The latter is one of the vessels of Montojo's fleet sunk by Dewey, raised by Capps and repaired by Hobson.

Brutal Killing of Brooks.

VICTORIA, B. C., March 2.—China advices say that Leo Brooks, whose murder has been reported, was stripped and dragged about the streets for a day and was finally hacked to pieces with swords and knives and then beheaded, his dismembered remains being thrown into a ditch.

Iron Workers Quit.

BOSTON, March 2.—Eighty iron workers quit work yesterday because their several employers refused to grant them their demand of 5 cents more an hour in wages.

Weather Probabilities.

STATE CONTROL URGED.

New York Agricultural Society Now In a Bad Way.

ALBANY, March 2.—Lieutenant Governor Woodruff appeared before the finance committee of the senate yesterday to urge the passage of the bill to place the state fair under the control of the state commissioner of agriculture. To do this he explained that it would be necessary for the state to pay the mortgage of $50,000 due next June, debts amounting to about $9,000 and the reversion interest of the citizens of Syracuse in the property, which he thought would amount to about $10,000. In addition to this he asked an appropriation of about $30,000 with which to repair the buildings and grounds.

He said the grounds comprised about 100 acres of land, worth from $70,000 to $80,000, and the buildings on the grounds had cost about $200,000. He then gave it as his opinion that unless the state assumed control there would be no more state fairs and the state agricultural society would practically go out of existence should this bill fail to pass. This was due to the fact that the fair had not been a success during the past few years, largely because of the conflicting elements in the society.

He believed that if the state were to assume control the fair would be eminently successful, as it would receive the support and co-operation of all the county agricultural societies of the state. He had devoted a great deal of time and attention to the fair, but would not continue as the president of the state society if this bill did not pass. If it did pass, he hoped to be named as one of the advisory board of nine members to be appointed by the governor and would give his time and best efforts to make the fair a success.

The committee probably will take no action until it is ascertained for what price the reversion interests of the citizens of Syracuse could be obtained.

Southern Pacific Railroad.

NEW YORK, March 2.—At a meeting of the directors of the Southern Pacific Railroad company the resignation of George Crocker as director and second vice president was received and accepted, and H. E. Huntington was elected to the office of second vice president. John W. Mackay of San Francisco was elected a member of the board of directors to succeed Mr. Crocker, and Charles H. Tweed, counsel for the road, and William E. Dodge were also elected directors of the company. The resignation of Mr. Crocker is believed to mean that the Crocker holdings of Southern Pacific stock have been transferred to the Speyers. The election of John W. Mackay bears out the statement made by Mr. Huntington recently after the election of D. O. Mills as a director that Mr. Mackay's interests would be recognized by his election to the board of directors.

Snow In Northern New York.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., March 2.—The snowstorm which commenced Wednesday night continued unabated for 30 hours. Two and one-half feet of snow have fallen. The wind is blowing from the north, piling the snow in huge drifts. Trains on the Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburg railroad are all many hours behind time. On the Ogdensburg and Lake Champlain road trains are from two to six hours behind time. On the Delaware and Hudson trains are from two to seven hours late. Snow plows are running continually. The train which left Albany at 8:40 in the morning is stalled in a cut at Westport, and a snow plow has been sent to get it out. It is the worst snowstorm in several years.

France Needs Strong Navy.

PARIS, March 2.—In the chamber of deputies yesterday, while the naval estimates were under consideration, M. Lockroy, former minister of marine, made a notable speech explaining his views regarding the proper naval policy for France to follow. He declared it necessary that France should make great monetary sacrifices for her navy, as her foreign policy depended upon her naval strength. He expressed his regret that the government had thought fit to suppress the credits proposed for eight submarine boats of the Narval type and urged that steps be taken to render Bizerta, the most northern town of Africa, in Tunis, impregnable.

More Graves at Arlington.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The bodies of 96 soldiers who died in Cuba since the end of the Spanish war were buried with military honors at Arlington cemetery yesterday. A detachment of soldiers from Fort Myer acted as an escort of honor and fired the last salute over the graves. Rev. D. J. Stafford and Rev. Father Dolan read the ritual for the dead of the Catholic church, and Rev. Mr. Patton read the Episcopal service. The majority of the soldiers were attached to the Fifth and Fifteenth infantry, Eighth cavalry and the Second and Ninth volunteer infantry.

Legs Cut Off by a Train.

AUBURN, Mass., March 2.—The body of William Fitzgerald was found on the Norwich and Worcester railroad tracks yesterday morning. He had fallen asleep on the depot platform, letting his legs hang over on the rails. A passing train cut off both legs.

BRIDGE WORK

In Dentistry is the best substitute for nature's work that can be done. Sound roots may be built up and crowned and thus fill up an unsightly space. It has to be made of a material that has strength and durability and one that will not discolor. Gold is the one that stands the test. That is the secret of the expense. A CLEVER DIPLOMAT.

Dr. Leyds, General Agent of the Transvaal in Europe.

Gifted with a Persuasive Tongue and Quite Capable of Proving a Match for the Most Experienced of Old World Statesmen.

Dr. W. J. Leyds, the general agent of the Transvaal in Europe, is one of the shrewdest—and, his enemies say, the most corrupt—of the coterie of politicians thrown to the surface in the stirring history of the South African republic. Leyds, although of Dutch descent, is not, properly speaking, a Boer. He is a lawyer of learning and of European education, and in all respects capable of conserving his own interests and those of his country in the peculiar position he now occupies.

Intrusted with the delicate mission of visiting the German emperor and securing from him recognition of the independence of the South African republic, he succeeded admirably in this work. Emperor William gave him a decoration and otherwise honored him. Whatever friendly feeling there may be at the Berlin court for President Kruger is due directly to the excellent and judicious representation of Dr. Leyds.

It is surprising and interesting to find that early in his career as a politician this astute diplomat and schemer was guilty of an error which, had it not been for Oom Paul's prevision and sagacity, might have cut short the prosperity of the future statesman.

Kruger appointed the young lawyer attorney general of the republic. While he was in office he wrote to a friend in Holland describing the personalities of the members of the executive. President Kruger he characterized as an ignorant, narrow-minded, pig-headed and irascible old Boer, whom Leyds said he could play with and twist round his fingers as he liked. Gens. Joubert and Smit were handled with even less courtesy. Leyds quarreled with his correspondent in Holland, and the latter made his letter public.

DR. W. J. LEYDS.
(General Agent of the Transvaal Government in Europe.)

The two generals were furious. They immediately demanded the instant dismissal of the "conceited young fool." President Kruger was deaf—literally and metaphorically—to their importunities. He said Leyds was a very capable young man who would learn more as he grew older. He not only retained him in office, but personally explained to him that he would be kept near the throne so long as it suited the president's convenience so to do. In the ten years that have passed since this incident Leyds has been closer to Kruger than any other man in Transvaal politics.

Dr. Leyds' position as agent extraordinary covers a multiplicity of functions. Vast sums of money are intrusted to him to carry on the work of the republic in Europe, and he is the sole responsible accounter for these funds. He is described as a man of peculiarly strong personal power, gifted with a persuasive tongue, and quite capable of proving a match for the oldest diplomats of Europe. Much of this ability has been doubtless cultivated by President Kruger, who saw in the rash young lawyer the promise of a powerful and very useful future.

Railroads Distribute Seeds.

It has been noticed that many plants, not natives of the locality, are to be found growing in the neighborhood of great railroad yards. Sometimes the seeds of these plants have been brought thousands of miles from their natural habitat. Often they flourish amid their new surroundings, and gradually spread over the surrounding country. Thus the railroads carry unsuspected emigrants, which travel to and from every point of the compass. In the Mississippi valley are to be found plants which, within a few years past, have been brought together, some from the Atlantic seaboard, some from the gulf region, and some from the other side of the Rocky mountains.

How Prunes Are "Sized."

Prunes are sold in three sizes. The largest size is called the thirty to forties. This means that thirty to forty of these prunes make a pound. The medium size is forty to fifty, and the small size fifty to sixty. The largest prunes are of course the most valuable. The average price the growers get for their prunes is 3¾ cents a pound. An orchard of 250 trees will give a grower an average profit of $400 a year. An acre will grow about 100 trees, planted with the proper distances between them. The trees bear the third year after planting, and live from ten to twenty years. French prunes pay the best.

LONG SIEGE IS ENDED

Relief Force Under Dundonald Enters Ladysmith.

IMMENSE JUBILATION IN LONDON.

The Boers Retreated Without Loss of Baggage or Guns—General Joubert Said to Be Assembling an Army at Winburg.

LONDON, March 2.—Britons feel that they are living in the presence of momentous events. Tornadoes of patriotic excitement are whirling through the country. Even the dullest soul must have been stirred by the emotions of yesterday, and London's 6,000,000 were raised to a high pitch of patriotic exaltation.

It was a wonderful sight. Old men have nothing in memory with which to compare the day. Some likened it to Lucknow, others talked of the fall of Sevastopol. It was a time of singular abandon, the usual conventions of society ceased to control, and everybody knew everybody else, all joining in smiles or bellowings, as their dispositions moved them.

The following is General Buller's dispatch, dated Lyttleton's headquarters, March 1, 9:05 a. m.:

"General Dundonald, with the Natal carbineers and a composite regiment, entered Ladysmith last night. The country between me and Ladysmith is reported clear of the enemy. I am moving on Nelthorpe."

The war office subsequently received the following dispatch from General Buller, dated Nelthorpe, March 1:

"I have just returned from Ladysmith. Except for a small rear guard north of Surprise hill the whole of the enemy that have lately been besieging Ladysmith have retired in hot haste, and to the south of the town the country is quite clear of them.

"The garrison were on half a pound of meal a day and were supplementing their meal rations with horses and mules.

"The men will want a little nursing before they are fit for the field."

The Boers seem to have gotten quite away from around Ladysmith without losing a gun or their baggage. Van Reenen's pass is only about 20 miles from Ladysmith. The enemy had artillery in action Tuesday, and they probably utilized both railroads in retreating, sending heavy pieces to Pretoria and lighter ones into the Free State.

Dr. Leyds says that General Joubert is assembling 50,000 men at Winburg, 70 miles northeast of Bloemfontein. Colonel Albrecht, according to a dispatch from Paardeberg, affirms that the Boers have 75,000 men left.

Whether Lord Roberts is at Bloemfontein now or not, he doubtless soon will be dating his dispatches there and using the town as his advanced base.

Lord Kitchener's mission is to combine the forces under General Clement and General Gatacre and to advance along the line of the railroad to Bloemfontein. The railway will simplify immensely the perplexities of transport.

The conditions at Ladysmith, some of which were explained by Mr. Charles Williams yesterday and cabled to the United States, are now better understood, as the military authorities no longer retain their special information. It appears that since the middle of January the horses have been half starved and altogether too weak either to drag guns or to carry cavalrymen. Hence the impossibility of dashing out.

Until midnight London gave itself up to the wildest expressions of joy. From the Mansion House to the West End all the leading thoroughfares were constantly paraded by cheering crowds, intermittently bursting into patriotic songs. Bands marching through the streets assisted with strains of jubilation, and the same exultant notes were to be heard at every railway station or place of public gathering throughout the metropolis.

The West End clubs, the cafes, the restaurants and the public buildings were all brilliantly illuminated, and their interiors, even to the tables, were beautifully decorated with flags, bunting and ingenious arrangements of electric lights.

An order has reached Woolwich arsenal for the construction of 224 new guns, from three pounders to 12 inch. Of these 140 are to be naval guns. Already 25,000 workmen are employed at the arsenal, and 3,000 more will be engaged.

These decisions to send out more troops and to increase the home armament meet with universal approval.

The British Criticised.

PAARDEBERG, March 2.—Commandant Albrecht describes the British strategy up to the battle of Magersfontein as "stupid and almost insane." He says there were only 4,000 men in the Magersfontein trenches and that only half of these were engaged in actual fighting. He praises the strategy of Lord Roberts, but says that the war is by no means ended, as there are still 75,000 republicans in the field. General Cronje's surrender, according to Albrecht, was "due to a blunder in locking up his men in a hole instead of occupying kopjes." Commandant Wolmarans, however, considers it hopeless for the Boers to continue fighting in the present circumstances.

Regular Trains to Kimberley.

ORANGE RIVER, Cape Colony, March 2.—The restrictions preventing newspaper correspondents from using this station, which have been enforced since Lord Roberts' advance have been removed. The news of General Cronje's surrender was received with the greatest jubilation. Trains to Kimberley are now running regularly. The station master at Fourteen Streams passed through here yesterday. He says the Boers, under Commandant Dutoit, passing north with a 100 pounder, completely destroyed the bridge and station there.

India Salutes Roberts.

CALCUTTA, March 2.—There is general rejoicing throughout India at the capture of General Cronje and the relief of Ladysmith. The statue of Lord Roberts has been decorated with flowers, and many congratulations were wired him including one from the Cawnpore Chamber of Commerce, which said, "Your birthplace salutes you."

The Boers Concentrating.

PAARDEBERG, Orange Free State March 2.—It is understood that some 7,000 Boers are concentrating on the British front. The British cavalry is in touch with them to the eastward, and skirmishing has begun.

MORE SHIPS NEEDED.

Our Dependence on Foreign Powers Is Humiliating.

DECREASE IN AMERICAN SHIPPING.

Causes For the Decline the Greater Cost of Manufacture and For Operating as Compared With Foreign Powers.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The report prepared by Senator Frye upon the shipping bill reported by the committee on commerce of the senate has been made public. The report begins by asserting the self value of a national merchant marine, explains and deplores our almost entire dependence upon foreign shipping for our ocean carrying, suggests the danger of reliance upon the merchant ships of other nations which may become involved in war, the possible complete exclusion of American exports from their regular foreign markets in such a contingency and points out that the wholesale transfer of the tonnage of a belligerent nation to a neutral flag would unquestionably involve such shipping in difficulties, seizures and detentions. The British-Boer war has materially reduced our means of transportation and embarrassed our ocean mail service. The humiliation of our reliance upon foreign vessels bought and chartered during our war with Spain is referred to, and the broad ground is taken that under those sections of the constitution which empower congress to provide for the common defense and general welfare is found the highest authority for the promotion of our merchant marine.

The decrease in American shipping since 1869 is shown. In that year the value of imports carried in American vessels was $289,956,772 and foreign vessels $506,492,012. In 1899 American vessels carried $160,644,006 and foreign vessels $1,806,876,073, the percentage in 1869 for American vessels being 33.1 and in 1899 only 8.9.

Three prime reasons are given for the decline of the American shipping in the foreign trade—namely:

First.—The greater cost of building ships in the United States than elsewhere.

Second.—The greater cost of operating American as compared with foreign ships.

Third.—Causes based on foreign legislative encouragement.

The suggestion that this situation may be overcome by the free admission of foreign built ships to American register is met by pointing out that if such admission were unconditional it would result in destroying existing American shipyards on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

The rates of wages paid in the European yards are shown to be on an average less than one-half the rates paid in the United States. The committee states "that when shipbuilding yards have been sufficiently developed and have work enough to keep them going all the time the cost of constructing ships in the United States will be reduced. The growth of shipbuilding in the United States would give employment to a vast army of men in the shipyards and in the iron, steel and other industries connected with shipbuilding."

Martinique Still Disturbed.

FORT DE FRANCE, Martinique, March 2.—There have been several fires in the canefields in the neighborhood of La Trinite and Fort de France on the Morne Pavilion and Moulin a Vent plantations, and Sunday there was a collision between some soldiers, natives and Europeans at Bassepointe. Two Europeans were wounded. The situation is still unsettled. The factory owners who have accepted the arbitration decision have reduced their personnel in consequence and now do not accept numerous workmen who are willing to work at lower wages than previously. The recent developments seem to confirm the opinion that the disturbances were provoked by electoral maneuvering and did not result from the strike.

Worst Storm In Years.

BUFFALO, March 2.—The snowstorm continues, with but slight moderation. The fall has reached a depth of 22 inches. Trains from the east were from three to ten hours late yesterday, but dispatchers report some improvement. Western mails have been 12 hours late and in some instances abandoned. Correspondents throughout western New York unite in pronouncing this the heaviest snowfall in years. Lockport reports three feet of snow, Medina two feet, Hornellsville two feet, Delevan 18 inches and Brockton one foot.

Our Exhibits Reach France.

ROUEN, France, March 2.—The United States auxiliary cruiser Prairie, which sailed from Hampton Roads Feb. 9 loaded with United States exhibits for the Paris exposition, has arrived here. A delegation from the Chamber of Commerce visited the vessel to offer greetings to Commander Mackenzie. The latter afterward called on the prefect, the commander of the Rouen army corps and various other notabilities of the city.

Died on a Train.

PHILADELPHIA, March 2.—Information was received here that Colonel John E. Mehrer of this city died on a railroad train near Suspension Bridge, N. Y., yesterday morning while returning home with his family from a western trip. Colonel Mehrer was a pioneer in the development of Atlantic City and was well known to visitors at that resort because of his ownership of the Inlet pavilion.

The Granite Cutters' Strike.

BOSTON, March 2.—The strike of the New England granite cutters, threatened three months ago and begun yesterday at the order of the National union, did not so thoroughly stop business as expected, nor did the first day's events end in anxiety. Cutters and manufacturers at many places have met half way in compromise figures, and an agreement seems probable with little delay.

To Redeem Spoiled Stamps.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The senate committee on finance has made a favorable report on the bill authorizing the commissioner of internal revenue to redeem or make allowance for revenue stamps that have been spoiled or destroyed or in any way rendered useless.

Bonner Buys Trotters.

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 2.—David Bonner of New York has purchased of H. M. Asher of the Highland stock farm nine head of high class trotters.

IT is significant that in homes of wealth where the very best is demanded, Ivory Soap is used in the nursery. At the same time, in hundreds of families where economy decides the choice, Ivory Soap is selected. Thus its purity attracts the rich; its economy attracts the poor. High quality and low cost: is there any better combination?

Chicago Conferees Report.

NEW YORK, March 2.—There was a report made to the New York Produce Exchange yesterday by the committee which attended the conference of commercial bodies in Chicago recently. The board of managers referred the matter to the grain committee. This committee will hold a meeting soon to take action on the report. It is said that the grain committee does not indorse all the findings of the conference at Chicago. It heartily approves the establishment of uniform rates of commission on transactions of one-eighth per cent with outsiders and of one-sixteenth per cent as an interchange rate between members of various exchanges. The committee is opposed to that feature approved at Chicago of limiting dealings in futures to 90 day options. The committee is in favor of stopping bucket shops and bucket shopping and also will recommend that prompt examples be made of any member found to be connected with bucket shops.

Biggest Trust of All.

WHEELING, March 2.—A combination of iron and steel industries, with $1,000,000,000 capital, will be completed within six months from April 1. It will include the American Tinplate company, the National Steel company, the American Hoop and Wire company, the National Steel Sheet company, now forming, and another which is already in existence and which is as large or larger than any of the concerns named. The name of this latter concern is withheld for economic reasons till some minor complications concerning capitalization are overcome. This information was given by a man who holds interest in all save one of these combinations and who, with W. T. Graham and Judge Moore of Chicago, planned the American Tinplate company and the National Steel company and who is to be credited with being the pioneer of the trust of trusts idea.

McGiffert Leaves the Presbyterians

NEW YORK, March 2.—It is stated on apparently sufficient authority that Professor Arthur C. McGiffert, D. D., Washburn professor of church history in Union Theological seminary, will voluntarily withdraw from the Presbyterian church, thereby relieving that denomination from a heresy trial. Dr. McGiffert, it is said, will present his withdrawal through Professor Francis Brown of the Union Theological seminary, his personal friend and warm supporter, at the next meeting of the New York presbytery on March 12. It is further said that Professor McGiffert will enter the Congregational church.

Train Wrecked In a Washout.

PLAINVILLE, Conn., March 2.—The south bound passenger train on the Northampton division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad due to leave Plainville for New Haven at 6:55, but which was nearly an hour and a half late, ran into a washout about three-quarters of a mile from the station. The train went over an embankment. There were but two fatalities, both trainmen. Nine passengers are reported more or less injured. The washout was about 20 feet long and 70 feet wide. The locomotive and baggage car went down the excavation, and the other cars piled on top of them.

Snow Blocks Business.

GOUVERNEUR, N. Y., March 2.—Early Wednesday evening a genuine northeast blizzard set in and is still raging. The storm is the worst since the blizzard of 1877, and reports from nearly all the nearby northern New York towns state all business is at a standstill. Schools were dismissed early today in some of the country districts, the pupils suffering much hardship. Through trains are either many hours late or abandoned. The snowfall is about three feet on the level, but the gale has made roads impassable with drifts, many of them being ten feet high and over.

Entombed Miners Found.

REDDING, Cal., March 2.—Although all night rescuers worked in two hour shifts to save the eight men imprisoned by Wednesday's cave in at the Iron mountain mine, so far only four men have been taken out, two dead. One has succumbed to his injuries, and the fourth will probably live. But slight hopes are held out for the safety of the other imprisoned men, as the air pump is broken. The rescuers are working furiously, however, to reach them.

HAWAIIAN BILL PASSED.

The Senate Closes a Ten Days' Discussion.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—After being under consideration for nearly ten days the bill providing a form of government for the territory of Hawaii was passed by the senate yesterday without division. Mr. Cullom has had charge of the measure. Mr. Clay of Georgia delivered a speech on the Philippines. It was a carefully prepared argument in favor of the adoption of the Bacon resolutions declaring it to be the policy of the United States to turn over the islands to the Filipinos as soon as a stable government could be established by them under the protection of this country. At the instance of Mr. Foraker the Porto Rican tariff bill was made the unfinished business and will be considered as soon as the conference report on the financial bill shall have been disposed of next Tuesday.

The Democrats scored their first victory of the session in the house on the motion to take up the contested election case of Aldrich versus Robbins from the Fourth Alabama district. On two separate votes the Democrats, with the aid of two Republicans, Mr. Mondell of Wyoming and H. C. Smith of Michigan, beat the Republicans upon the question of consideration. An agreement was made to consider the Loud bill relating to second class mail matter March 20 and notice was given that the Wise-Young contested election case would be called up next Tuesday. A bill was passed to grant an American register to the ship Windward in which Lieutenant Peary will make an attempt to reach the north pole.

Government Receipts and Expenses.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The monthly comparative statement of the receipts and expenditures of the United States shows that the total receipts for the month of February were $45,631,265 and the expenditures $37,738,472, leaving a surplus for the month of $7,892,793. The receipts from customs were $19,882,252, a gain as compared with February, 1899, of nearly $3,000,000; internal revenues, $20,767,437; increase, about $1,500,000.

Sir Frederick Carter Dead.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., March 2.—Sir Frederick Bowker Terrington Carter, former chief justice of Newfoundland, is dead in his eighty-second year. Judge Carter, who was speaker of the Newfoundland house of assembly from 1861 to 1865 and premier and attorney general from 1865 to 1870 and again from 1874 to 1878, was the first colonial statesman upon whom Queen Victoria conferred knighthood.

Freedom For Cuban Prisoners.

HAVANA, March 2.—The commission appointed to investigate the prisons in the Havana district has finished its labors. Out of 703 persons awaiting trial the committee has recommended 310 for liberation, and 136 who were under conviction have been recommended for liberation. Only 15 of the latter have obtained liberty on account of having served in the Cuban army.

Treasurer Charged With Larceny.

BOSTON, March 2.—Laurent S. Cook, treasurer of the Monarch Nail company, was in the municipal court, charged with the larceny of $5,000 from the funds of the company. Cook was held in $5,000 bonds until March 12. He is charged with using for personal ends two notes for $1,000 each from the E. C. Church company of Providence to the Monarch company.

Suicide In Prison.

AUBURN, N. Y., March 2.—Christopher Stagner, received at the prison here from Onondaga county in 1899 with a sentence of 4 years and 3 months for receiving stolen goods, committed suicide in his cell by hanging, using the strap which held up his bed for a noose.

Wreck Undiscovered.

HALIFAX, March 2.—There is still nothing to indicate what vessel if any has been lost near Yarmouth or to what ship the carcasses of cattle and other wreckage which were washed ashore Tuesday were from.

New Cuban Newspaper.

HAVANA, March 2.—La Nacional, the new paper, to be edited by Senor Enrique Collazo, has made its appearance. In announcing its policy it declares that it aims not at Cuban independence, but at Cuban sovereignty.

The Commuter Vote.

An approximate estimate of the number of commuters carried on all the railroads having a terminus at Jersey City and Hoboken is given by the Jersey City Journal. The commuters are those who pass over the roads and ferries daily between their residences in this section of New Jersey and their places of business or occupation in New York. It is found that the roads carry a total of 94,390 commuters daily, while the ferries carry 59,750 people from the towns on the shore front.

In commenting on these figures, the Newark Advertiser says:

"These commuters live mostly in Hudson, Essex, Passaic, Morris, Union, Middlesex, Somerset, Monmouth and Bergen counties. Many of them are women and minors. Probably 50,000 are men of voting age, and of these say 80 per cent. are legel voters or take the trouble to vote in National elections.

"In the last Presidential election the counties named cast a total vote of 247,181. Reckoning the commuters' vote at this end of the State at 40,000, we find it is a little over 17 per cent. of the whole.

"As a matter of course, the entire vote is not kept away from the polls in local elections. At least one-half of it is polled in all elections, so that the actual loss is about 20,000, a proportion certainly not much greater than that of the non-commuter vote that stays away from the polls in municipal elections.

"When we come to test the claims of the machine politicians who want to abolish spring elections and destroy local sentiment in municipal affairs, we find that they are based upon nothing but impudent assertion."

In face of the intense interest that was aroused by the killing of William Goebel, and the thousands of warm and passionate friends that the murdered man had had at his beck and call, it seems remarkable that no apparent effort has been made to discover the identity of the assassin for the purpose of meting out full punishment to him.

Considered by the case of Michael Watson, who was granted a liquor license by the Common Council, a man who undertakes to defy the excise laws of the city in the future need have no fear that his nefarious practices will militate against him when he appears as an applicant for a legalized privilege.

Great Britain deserves about as much credit for the surrender of Conje and the relief of Ladysmith as Jim Corbett or Tom Sharkey would if they entered the ring and whipped one of the Roesow midgets.

The relief of Ladysmith cost the British 7,000 men. Think of it! Seven thousand men! And all for a war that was started with the smallest kind of an excuse.

That politics and business do not mix well for all concerned, the wrecking of the Third Avenue Railroad emphasizes.

However fast its cars may run, it is a fact that the Third Avenue Railroad Company has had rapid transit to bankruptcy.

In the hub-bub over Miss Nethersole and "Sapho" it seems to be a case of "The World Against Her."

The "plain duty" of Mr. McKinley seems to be sort of a "before and after" condition of affairs.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Plainfield's solitary plum from the Legislature is the privilege of building a City Hall that will cost $100 000. The House has favored the project, and the Senate is expected to be equally obliging. Well, Plainfield is a pushing city, and deserves as fine a hall as the money will produce.—New York Press.

There is a current rumor that Congressman Howell does not care for a re-election to Congress at the expiration of his term. Should this prove true the candidate should come from Somerset. Monmouth had the Congressman for several years, and now Middlesex has had her turn and Somerset has given liberal support to the candidate. It is now Somerset's turn and who is the logical candidate but Senator Reed? It would cut short his term in the Senate one year, but he will have had five years of service, and will have voted for United States Senator before relinquishing his office. The Senate will doubtless have a good Republican majority next year, so that Senator Reed can be spared. It is eminently proper that Senator Reed should have this honor after having served his county in both branches of the State Legislature. If Senator Reed wants it we doubt not that he would have the warm support of the Somerset delegation for the Congressional nomination. — Somerville Unionist-Gazette.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Wall street is in the vortex of the greatest gamble that has characterized speculation since the birth of the Stock Exchange. Big operators and the bucket shop "pikers" are all guessing as to the next dividend to be declared on the $36,968 000 of common stock of the Sugar Trust. Henry O. Havemeyer is the only man who knows precisely what is going to happen at the meeting of the directors of the company March 10th, and he trusts no one. In the next ten days fortunes will be lost and won. Havemeyer can pass the dividend, and the stock will drop 20 or 30 points, or he can declare the regular quarterly dividend of 3 per cent., and the stock will jump 20 or 40 points. The dividends paid by the Trust since it was organized twelve and one-half years ago foot up $75,670,792; reserve fund (undivided profits), $11,225,000; total profits, $86,895,792.

"You mustn't kick if your new shirts look a trifle mussy the first time they are done up," said the proprietor of a local laundry the other day. "The laundering of a new shirt is no easy job. And by the way, did you ever notice that the majority of the people say laundried when they mean laundered? A new shirt takes just about twice as much time as one that has been through the process before, and calls for more expert laundry work. This is particularly true of a colored shirt. If the cuffs are attached, they must be brought out exactly in accord with the design. The two parts of the bosom are made to match perfectly, with the stud holes or eyelets of one part directly over those of the other part, and the pattern of the shirt fitted together according to the design as accurately as wall paper. After the first laundering the shirt gets sort of set, and is much easier afterward."

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about ¼ as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

Armored Glass.

A recent German invention is armored glass, or glass cast with wire gauze inclosed in their substance, so as to increase the resistance to pressure, shock and the effects of heat. Tests of the new material have been made at the Chemnitz technical institute and the Vienna technological museum which show that the armored glass is much stronger, and where the ordinary glass broke under sudden applications of pressure the strengthened material only cracked, and the cracks caused by changes of temperature did not allow either damp or flame to pass.—Chicago Chronicle.

ACCESSORIES.

Fans, Chains and Other Pretty Decorative Trifles.

The fan is the inevitable accompaniment of the ball costume. It is extremely small, but is not the less costly and elaborate for that. Directoire fans of amber, shell or ivory, delicately painted; antique fans of the Louis Quinze and Louis Seize periods, with Watteau scenes painted on parchment, and spangled fans, embroidered with metals and jewels, divide the honors of fashion. The most striking examples, however, are of black tulle, sewed with tiny rhinestones or even with real diamonds.

The love of glittering jewel effects is going to extremes. Not only are belts, collars, bonnets, evening gowns and fans thus lavishly adorned, but all flowers must have crystal dewdrops scattered over them, and even evening wraps are coming under the spell and are glittering masses of cabochons and crystal embroidery.

The vogue of long chains still continues. They are often draped over the front of an evening corsage in many loops of varying length. Strings of pearls or of beads composed of opals, amethysts or rock crystal are favorites.

The picture shows a costume of periwinkle blue bengaline. The skirt is trimmed with four bands of blue velvet, which pass around the foot and mount vertically in front. The bolero, which is pointed in front, is covered with blue velvet bands, as are the tight sleeves. The revers are of white bengaline, embroidered and spangled, the collar and plastron of white satin. The hat is covered with blue velvet and has a trimming of choux of white satin and a long white plume.

GLOVES.

Fashionable and Appropriate Coverings For the Hands.

It is a great mistake to suppose that a tight glove makes the hand appear smaller. On the contrary, it tends to give the impression that the hand is larger than it really is and is being compressed unduly to make up for it. A comparatively loose glove, which does not squeeze the hand out of shape, gives it an aspect of greater delicacy and is always in better taste.

Gloves are worn only in the street, in church and for calling, as it is now the correct thing to remove the gloves at the theater and at dinners, receptions and balls. This is doubtless the result of the excessive use of jewelry, for the fashionable hand is covered with valuable rings, and gloves are therefore a great inconvenience.

Gloves are again much wrinkled upon the arm in mousquetaire style—a style always artistic and very becoming to slender arms. Some of the new evening shades are very beautiful. There is a soft pink, delicate and yet not glaring; a subdued pale yellow and a beautiful dull, greenish blue.

The cut shows a house gown of pink poplin. It is in the princess form and has a plaited front of pink mousseline de soie falling straight. At the sides of the front are flat box plaits, over which are arranged stoles of white guipure. There is also a short guipure bolero with epaulets. The neck is cut down in a point and there is a medici collar of guipure. A fan bow of mousseline de soie is fastened to the bosom by a jeweled ornament. The tight sleeves have guipure revers and frills at the wrists.

HOW PATRIOTISM IS TAUGHT in the Public Schools of Chicago

The great primary schools which rise above the squalor of the thickly populated foreign settlements of Chicago like lighthouses out of the sea, must, of necessity, be sufficient unto themselves. Denied the wholesome lessons which come to the country boy through his intimate association with the meadows and the woodlots, the city youngster must find within the school itself material to kindle and feed the flames of his ambition. That he may find it, the wide-awake principal and teacher spend many a leisure hour in devising novel plans to turn the pupil's thought from the sordid details of a cramped existence to the contemplation of cheerful and ennobling scenes.

Show Pictures of the Outside World.

What was at first purely a labor of love has come to receive the serious thought of the school management. There are now few leaders of public education who do not appreciate the fact that dry lessons are not sufficient food for the imaginative minds of children, particularly those children who are reared amid surroundings that are painfully sordid and commonplace.

Almost every large city school has its own exercise hall, where all of the children assemble at state times to witness something novel, entertaining and instructive. One of the most successful diversions that has yet been introduced into the schools is that offered by the Projection club. The mission of the club is to bring scenes of country life, places of historic interest and objects of a patriotic significance vividly before the pupil's eye by means of lantern slide pictures projected upon a screen with the stereopticon. Nearly half a hundred of Chicago's schools are represented in the club, and each week the children of these schools are permitted a half hour's enjoyment of pictures pertaining to the outside world.

This club has been in existence for two years, and has come into possession of a collection of slide sets that is a credit to the enterprise of the promoters of the scheme. The success of the latter in primary schools as an educational aid is marked.

The Lessons Taught.

It is small wonder that those emigrants from many lands, who are unfortunate enough to find in the country of their adoption no better homes than amid the cheerless scenes of the crowded settlements of Chicago, are not particularly impressed with the glory of Americanism. The outlook within their limited horizon, to say the least, is not a bright one.

Not Impressed With American Glory.

It is that the children, which swarm from these districts in endless multitudes may imbibe the true spirit of patriotism that the weekly stereopticon exhibitions are conducted for their benefit in the great schools of this portion of the city. Some idea of the greatness of the country in which they live is impressed upon these children by well selected pictures illustrating all phases of American life from the rugged lumber camps of Maine to the fruit farms of California. For the greater part, the pictures are left to do their own talking, and the short explanation which accompanies each is made entirely supplementary to the picture itself. Whether the small listener's parents have come from the lands of the Norseman or of the easy-going Latin races, the little foreigner is sure to be thrilled by some of the many and varied scenes before him. He is delighted with the views of farm life, the woods and the prairies. He gains from a few well chosen pictures a keener insight into American history than he could learn alone from books with weeks of study. The "Landing of the Pilgrims" is a view that never fails to wring exclamations of delight from the children's lips, for they have come to have the deepest reverence for those sturdy pioneers, and their enthusiasm is well calculated to teach the onlooker a lesson in loyalty.

The "Magic Lantern" Show.

There are few things that create a greater stir of expectancy among the pupils of the large schools in the slums of Chicago than the announcement that it is "magic lantern day." Books are whisked out of sight in a twinkling, and the faces of the pupils are aglow with pleasure. Each youngster straightens up in his seat, ready to obey the commands of the teacher, and the roomful of children is converted into a company of soldiers. At a word they rise and march to the hall with military step to the strains of martial music from the fife and drum.

A Huge Phantom Hand Appears.

In the great darkened hall the little foreigners take their seats with awe-struck whisperings. Those in front turn to watch the operations of the man in charge of the sizzling lantern, and are strangely fascinated by the two shining tubes which point toward the white screen in front. When some boy thrusts his fist in the path of the light then there is a huge phantom hand upon the screen, and the entire army of children bursts into a hearty round of laughter. After this there are many suppressed giggles with an occasional outburst, until the first slide is inserted. As the picture flashes upon the white surface there are cries of "Oh! O-h!" in half audible whispers. Then there is a voluntary hush in the hall, and the children watch with rapture the changing pictures before them.

But there is a purpose in all this display which passes the mere bounds of amusement. Of the 2,500 pictures from which the school may choose there are few, indeed, which do not teach a lesson which enters vitally into the problem of the education of the children of our foreign immigrants. The short, chatty talk which follows the appearance of each picture fixes the lesson of the picture in the pupil's mind. Thus, while they are being amused and entertained, the children of the settlements are also being taught the fundamental principles of American institutions.

An Aid to Education.

American history studies in the public schools of Chicago are fitly illustrated for the pupil's benefit by no less than 50 selected lantern views belonging to the Projection club. The small foreigner who has hard work to digest the historian's report can usually grasp the situation when a picture is brought vividly before him and, with a very short explanation, can be made to see and appreciate the principle of freedom and justice which underlies all the important stands taken by the American people. The little essays which are written by the children after the latter have been allowed to attend one of the weekly lantern exhibitions possess a freshness and liveliness of detail which proves at once that the children have found in the pictures something more than dry historical data. At the same time the lesson in patriotism has been learned.

The pictures of the "Old North Church" in Boston will, in the eyes of these children, be forever linked with the words which they have learned descriptive of Paul Revere's memorable ride and of the signal lanterns which were to be hung from the belfry of the old church on the approach of the British regulars.

"One, if land, and two, if by sea."

When the picture of the Washington elm near Cambridge, Mass., was flashed upon the screen in one school in Chicoga there was an exciting commotion in one corner of the room. A boy was seen frantically snapping his fingers. When allowed to speak he blurted out: "I've seen it! 'And there's a squirrel up in it, too. But it ain't a live one, though. It's stuffed."

Of course the boy making this statement was looked upon with envy by children whose parents had never lived in Boston.

War Scenes Popular.

Some of the most valuable and interesting of the lantern slide sets used by the Chicago schools each week to illustrate lessons and to teach patriotism to the young idea belong to the loan division of the Projection club. These are the private property of its friends and are placed at the service of any school having a membership in the club. So great is the demand for these sets that a school is allowed to keep the pictures only for a single exhibition. The popularity of these loan sets among the pupils from the foreign settlements is accounted for by the fact that many of the pictures are devoted to the late war. "On the Blockade Before Havana" and "With the Army in Cuba" are sets which arouse great interest.

"Old Glory" on the Screen.

Another set which comes in for its share of attention is "Washington City." Included in this collection are pictures of the public buildings in the capital city, with interior views of the capitol building and the white house.

The most thrilling part of the programme, however, comes at the end of the exhibition. The last picture thrown upon the screen is the Stars and Stripes. As the flag appears the pupils rise in a body and burst out with: "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," with a vigor that is truly inspiring.

The payment of $25 entitles a school to membership in the Projection club and the dues thereafter do not exceed two dollars per year. The greatest expense is incurred in the purchase of a lantern and outfit, but this may be obtained for about $75. During the year two entertainments are given, for which a nominal admission fee is charged and the entire expense is usually met with ease.

MILTON B. MARKS.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For Week Beginning March 4. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—How God pays men.—Math. xix, 30; xx, 1-16.

"Many that are first shall be last, and the last shall be first" (Math. xix, 30). This truth is illustrated immediately by Christ by the parable of the laborers in the vineyard.

THE PARABLE.

The kingdom of heaven is likened unto a householder who early in the morning hired laborers for his vineyard, who agreed to labor for a penny a day. At the third, sixth, ninth and eleventh hours he hired other laborers on condition that he would pay them what was right. When the day's work was done and a settlement was made, "they received every man a penny." The first hour laborers complained that they had been unjustly treated in that they received no more than those who had labored but one hour. But the householder insisted that he had paid them the bargained price for their labor and claimed further the right to do as he pleased with his own.

THE INTERPRETATION.

This is conceded to be one of the most difficult of Christ's parables to understand and explain. It is unnatural and seems at least to be unjust until understood. The householder is God. The vineyard is the church. The steward is Christ. The laborers are God's servants in the church. The wages are God's final rewards when life's day is done. But two questions need to be answered: 1. Whom do the different laborers represent? Whoever they may represent, they cannot represent the same persons at the different periods in their lives. Therefore there can be found here no encouragement to any one to put off serving God till late in life with the hope of being as fully rewarded as if he had served God throughout his entire life. The laborers represent at least different persons called at different times in the church's history and who responded to the first call. For instance, they may represent the Jews, who were called first, and the gentiles or different periods in the life of the church since Christ's time. 2. Why were all paid alike, since some worked longer than others? The best explanation seems to be that the difference resulted from the different spirit in which the labor was performed. The first laborers made a bargain. They were to get a penny for the day's labor. They worked for wages and hence could not justly complain. The others made no bargain. They were to receive what was right. They left the matter of pay entirely to the householder. They confided and trusted in him. They represent not the labor of the hirelings, but the labor of confidence and of love, which always receives the greater reward. The hirelings received hireling wages. The confiding, trustful laborers were paid in the spirit in which they had labored. Can we wonder, therefore, that it was larger than the former?

THE APPLICATION.

How does God pay men? Not in proportion to the time or quantity of labor performed, but in accordance with the spirit in which the labor is performed. The man who labors for wages will receive his wages, and the one who, forgetful of rewards and wages, out of a heart full of gratitude and love, renders unto God a life of loving, grateful service will be rewarded in the same spirit. Can we doubt as to which will receive the greater reward?

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Have a catechetical meeting. A number of important and interesting questions can be asked upon this parable and topic. Distribute the questions at least a week before the meeting and have the leader ask them in regular order, so as to bring out the explanation and application of the parable.

Bible Readings.—Gen. xv, 1; Ps. i, 1-6; xvi, 1-11; Mal. iii, 8-18; Matth. v, 11, 12; vi, 19-21; xxv, 31-46; Acts iii, 1-10; I Cor. i, 27-31; Eph. iii, 8-10; Col. ii, 1-3; Rev. ii, 10; iii, 14-22; vii, 9-17.

Modern Self Sufficiency.

A dominant characteristic of the time is self sufficiency. One meets with it everywhere. We look down upon culture of the last generation. We are so much wiser than our fathers that it is needless to talk of what they said or did. Even over religion affectation has placed a sort of directing goddess. We must bridle our emotions. Fervid speech is no longer conventional. To say nothing prettily is a great achievement. The Bible itself needs revision. The prophets are old fashioned; even the New Testament is antiquated. So we are listening, in lieu of sermons, to lectures on Tennyson, Longfellow, Shakespeare and Count Tolstoi. Well, Isaiah and the prophets can calmly wait, but the opinion of those old fashioned preachers upon some who claim to be their modern successors would be of absorbing interest.—New York Examiner (Baptist).

Future Punishment.

I do not believe the punishment will be any greater in the next world for what we do and perhaps not so great as for that which we do not do. A poor, unfortunate being, born of depraved parents, knowing nothing but sin of the worst kind, surely is not as responsible for his condition as one born of good parents amid Christian surroundings. If we sit with our hands folded, puffed up with silly pride, afraid of the opinion of society, afraid to lend a helping hand, afraid to love them and afraid of their love, surely God is more displeased with us, with our foolish pride, than He is with them in their sin and ignorance.—Martina R. Adams Nixon.

The Birds of Sadness.

You cannot prevent the birds of sadness from flying over your head, but you may prevent them from stopping to build their nest in your hair.—Catholic Universe.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning March 4, "How God Pays Men." Text, Math. xix, 30; Ex, 1-16.

"They received every man a penny."

Some had worked only an hour. They had no expectation of receiving more than one hour's pay. They were paid a day's wage. They earned a little and were given much because of their need and their employer's generosity.

Some worked all day and received their stipulated wage. This was justice. It supplied all their need. There was no call for more except from this greed. The employer saw no occasion for exercising generosity toward them. To have given charity would have been to waste his money and encourage in them the pauper spirit. It would be a possible bid for indolence on the morrow and refusal or neglect to work more than the one hour.

Things are not distributed evenly in this world. Why should they be? Justice and generosity are both needed. Neither requires that all persons shall share alike in honors, opportunities, pleasures, privations and pains. Fraternity among men does not largely depend upon equality in social condition nor upon equal ability in acquiring wealth. Liberty to make the most of oneself and attain the most worthy character is dependent in but small degree upon accidents of birth, occupation and riches. All dreams of equality based on an equal distribution of wealth and all attempts to realize such a social condition must be doomed to failure in such a world as this, where the Lord of the Manor conducts his work on the plan shown in this parable. No one is defrauded of his right to labor and to receive proper compensation. No one has the right to complain because his fellow worker receives a gift, if his own pay is not thereby made unjustly small.

Gratitude and admiration and not envy and censure are the sentiments which the generosity of the Master should awaken in all His laborers.

Men are unlike in make up and widely differ in desires and aims as well as in equipment. No dead level of sameness can be maintained for any length of time, even if it could be established, which it cannot be.

Some can serve but one hour at the utmost; others can and should serve the whole day. Each should do his duty because the Master has hired him and not because of what his fellow workers say and feel. Every one should rejoice in the knowledge that he shall be dealt with justly and all his needs will be supplied. He has no claim on charity but his need, and it is his business to labor diligently to supply all his need so far as he can himself.

Consider how generously God has dealt with you, and it will save you from jealousy of your neighbor, from covetousness and complaining.

The Worth of Work.

Value depends largely on the position from which it is received. How much is God really indebted to you for what you have done so far in this world? Have you contributed in any way to its betterment? Is it a more valuable world to Him because you have been here? What is your work, and what are you worth to Him?

What is your position worth to you? Are you getting anything out of it worth while? Of one man at least it was true "it were better for that man if he had never been born." Some persons ruin more stock than their work is worth. Some men end worse than they began. It is bad enough to spoil work; it is far worse to ruin oneself.

Not what one gets, but what he becomes is the most valuable result of work in this world. Manhood counts for more than money. "Wisdom is above rubies." Work gives the chance to make worth of character, and this is much more than increasing value of products over cost of raw material. The hands are busy with yardstick, scales, hammer, loom and spindle. Pen and tongue are busy. Planning and inventing and persuading tax all powers, and all these bring cash. Of more permanent value and of higher worth is the development of self they afford. The man is made greater than all his work if he be a true workman. He gets capacity and skill and ability beyond all his wages. He earns more than the pay roll can ever indicate. Enlargement of purse is the first result and is needful, but stronger hands, quicker eyes and ears, warmer heart and broader soul is better, and all these lie at the end of the day's labor for him who works with God.

He Is Coming.

It may be in the evening
When the work of the day is done
And you have time to sit in the twilight
And watch the sinking sun.
Let the door be on the latch
In your home;
For it may be in the gloaming
I will come.

It may be when the midnight
Is heavy upon the land,
With the black waves lying dumbly
Along the sand.
Though you sleep, tired out, on your couch,
Still your heart must wake and watch
In the dark room;
For it may be that at midnight
I will come.

It may be at the cockcrow,
When the night is dying slowly
In the sky.
Behold, I say unto you, watch!
Let the door be on the latch
In your home.
In the chill before the dawning,
Between the night and morning,
I may come.

"Weep not," He said, "for unto you is given
To watch for the coming of His feet
Who is the glory of our blessed heaven.
The work and watching
Will be very sweet
Even in an earthly home,
And in such an hour as ye think not
He will come."

The Population of Hawaii a Badly Mixed Multitude

Thousands of the Orientals in the Islands Know Nothing of Sanitary Laws

FRACTIONS and hyphens are necessary to describe nationalities in Hawaii. For instance, here is a real case: John Symonds, an American, married Falo Taua, part Hawaiian and part Tahitian. Their daughter, Eunice Nakuolani Symonds, married Ah Wing, a Chinaman. Their daughter, Ellen Keonano, married Manuel Sylva, a Portuguese. They now have a child. What is it?

It makes the brain whirl to try to work it out, and it will take steadier ones than ours to reach the last step, and there are dozens of such cases.

People in Hawaii are characterized as haeoles (whites), hopa-haeoles (half whites), white Portuguese and black Portuguese, some being from the Madeira isles, some from Africa, where there is a mixture with the negroes; as Japs, as Pakes (Chinamen) and as South Sea islanders. That, I believe, constitutes the classification. Besides the above there are a few negroes and other strays, who do not count much in number or importance to the country.

The whites, generally speaking, are of good class and make creditable citizens; they desire and abide by laws that will be for the good of their children. The half whites adopt the customs and fashions of the whites, and form a large and intelligent part of the community. Out there we speak of the white man and the Portuguese as though the latter were not of the Caucasian race. I think there are two reasons for it; one I have spoken of, a number of African Portuguese who are much like the negroes in appearance; and the fact that all the Portuguese are manual laborers. The Hawaiians do not associate the white man with the hoe—think grubbing belongs to the colored races. The Portuguese is a good citizen, is thrifty, hard-working and comparatively peaceable. He and his family live in a picturesque cottage, surrounded by a bit of land cultivated to the last degree, every inch made to yield fruit, flower or vegetable. He and his wife and chicks are not fond of water, do not often bathe, but still, as there is among them no herding, no overcrowding, he is not a menace to the health of the country, as are the orientals.

PLAYMATES AND SCHOOLMATES.
Little Japanese and Chinese Babies Together in the Streets of Chinatown.

The Hawaiians, Japs and Chinese know nothing about sanitary laws and pay no heed when the authorities every now and then awake to conditions in Chinatown, which is made up of these three nationalities, and make an effort to teach the people there something of cleanliness. It is the handful of white folks in the islands who have the responsibility, who bear the burden, who bear the odium. The white man's burden there is no light thing, as he who has just come through the trial of plague, of black death, can tell you. To burn down 13 acres in the infested district and try to keep the flames from spreading, to assume the responsibility of housing, caring for and guarding 4,000 homeless, excited, unhappy outcasts was no light task. President Dole, Mr. Theodore Richards, the great friend of the Hawaiians, business men, old and young, brave firemen, society folk, all worked side by side, and the work was done with no violence, no loss of life. Outsiders who think the Hawaiian-American has a soft snap, an easy job, that he spends his time in counting his money and wheedling the natives, would better live in Hawaii awhile and find out.

And yet it is a certain class of white men on whom lies much of the blame for the spread of the plague that lately has worked such ruin in the beautiful city of Honolulu. The orientals rented their shacks of landlords who pocketed their gains with little heed to the welfare of their ignorant tenants, who were allowed to swarm in buildings whose living-rooms were directly over cess pools. Dr. Wood, president of the board of health in Honolulu, recently said it was localities rather than persons that were infected with the bubonic bacilli; that he would rather sleep in the bed of a plague patient than walk barefoot in the soil of Chinatown.

In the country the Chinaman lives near, or on, his damp rice fields or banana patches, and wherever there is most likelihood of malaria or miasma he builds his hut. He courts foulness, wallows in mire. In the city, wretched huts and sheds are crowded as close as possible, and as many Celestials as can infest these warrens. They live, sleep, eat and die in rooms where the atmosphere is visible, audible and odoriferous. The Chinaman is a dense utilitarian, and thinks space valuable only when it brings him returns in money. What ground there is under and about his house is piled high with years' accumulations of refuse. The wonder is not that poor John is ever visited by filth diseases, but that his quarter is ever exempt. In 1895 cholera worked havoc in these slums, which had long been a disgrace to the otherwise progressive town, and then vows were registered that in the future the district should be kept clean. But the lesson was soon forgotten, and before long the conditions were as bad as ever.

The evils of Chinatown had often been spoken of in Honolulu, the question of how to improve and purify the place had often been discussed, but as a whole it continued a breeding place for disease and misery, and the only thing that could purify it seemed to be a wholesale conflagration, a wiping out of the entire place. And at last that has come to pass.

We have been watching for weeks the progress of the dread plague in Honolulu, from the time the first case, that of a Chinaman, was discovered, up to the time when deaths numbered almost half a hundred, when the whole country was menaced and ships were allowed neither to enter nor depart from the port of Honolulu. When the danger became very grave, then it was the government decided that safety lay in the purification by fire. The torch was applied and block after block of squalid dens was swallowed up in flames. May this dream of a Honolulu editor be realized: "After the whole evil surface has been soaked with kerosene and fired, let the place receive the air and rain and sunshine for a year and then, through the extension of the fire limits and an improvement in the building laws, let them compel the recreation of a Chinatown in a way that will make it as sanitary as a section of Boston Common."

Eye Pictures.

A good deal has recently been written about "eye pictures," and lovers of novelty have been making collections of photographs each showing a single eye of some friend. But nothing is new under the sun, not even the latest of late fads. Long ago, the duke of Sussex developed a fancy for eye pictures. The camera wasn't so ubiquitous then as now, and, even if it had been, the ducal eyebrow would have been elevated in scorn at the idea of anything so common as a collection of photographs. The duke employed the most noted miniature painter of his day to paint the eyes for his collection. Each one was painted on ivory and set in a circle of pearls. A number of the miniatures now belong to Queen Victoria, and the rest are in private collections throughout England.—N. Y. [illegible]

The Daily Press Bowling League.

	Games Won.	Games Lost.	High Score.
Roselle Casino	12	3	911
Westfield Club	12	6	866
Park Club	5	10	864
Cranford Casino	4	14	863

The last series of game in The Daily Press Bowling League will be rolled some evening next week on the alleys of the Park Club, this city. The games are the three postponed ones between the Roselle Casinos and the Park Club team. If it should happen that the Parks should win all three games, then Westfield and Roselle would be tied for first place, otherwise Roselle wins the trophy this year. There is therefore very little prospect of a tie as the usual rolling of the Roselles even on strange alleys is far above the work of the Parks. Surprises of that kind are always possible but hardly probable. The Parks may get one game, possibly two, but three straight is almost out of the bounds of possibility.

ON THE DIAMOND.

There is every prospect that the Plainfield High School will be represented on the diamond this spring by a first-class baseball nine. At a recent meeting of the board of directors of the High School Athletic Association Townsend Mason was elected manager and Walter Squires captain of the team.

Squires immediately announced that he was looking for candidates for the nine and over twenty names were turned into him of those who were anxious to make the team. Among them is plenty of excellent material. The only trouble will be the battery, and it is hoped that suitable candidates can be trained for the places in time to be quite effective this spring.

A meeting of the candidates was called Wednesday and over twenty were present. A. B. Meredith, of the faculty, who coached the team so successfully last season and the year before, was present and gave the boys a few points regarding the best preliminary training they could take. As soon as spring weather comes the candidates will meet for outdoor practice.

A meeting of the board of directors of the Athletic Association will be called shortly to authorize the expenditure of such necessary additions as will have to be made to the present baseball equipment of the association.

Elizabeth, March 1.—The old Chetwood Mansion, in Broad street, was sold yesterday to Dr. Alvin R. Eaton, of Union township, for $8,000. The property was for many years the home of Major Chetwood, the father of the late Major Francis B. Chetwood. The house was built before the American Revolution.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World

"Hazel Kirke" has been presented in this city a great many times by repertoire companies, but it has never received such a careful, capable and sympathetic portrayal as it was given last night by the Macauley-Patton Company. The full acting strength of this combination of talented players was put into the piece, and as a result the audience was highly-pleased with the performance. Tonight one of the strongest and best cards of the company's repertoire will be seen. This is "In Mizzouri," the piece made famous by Nat Goodwin. Mr. Patton is said to give as fine an interpretation of the leading character as Mr. Goodwin did, and the supporting members of the company are especially well qualified to present the piece in a manner that will make it finished and clever in every respect. The second matinee of the engagement will be given tomorrow, when "A Struggle for Gold" will be given. Tomorrow night the engagement of the company will close with "A Texas Cowboy."

* * * * *

When "Ben Hur" was first produced at the Broadway Theatre in New York last November speculators adopted every conceivable device to secure tickets. During the first two months of the run, despite the protests of and every precaution taken by the management of both the attraction and the theatre, Klaw & Erlanger and Jacob Litt, these men managed to secure seats and made themselves obnoxious to the patrons of the play. Finally, prompted by these conditions and the public demand for seats, tickets were placed on sale for every performance for three months ahead, the sale being constantly extended from day to day. This move resulted in driving ticket speculators from the door of the theatre almost entirely. Two weeks ago a very curious demand for tickets began, which for some days greatly mystified the management. Orders came from towns near New York reserving large blocks of seats. One request was for sixty. Suspecting that speculators were again up to their tricks, the management quietly investigated each order and found in every instance the seats desired were for the members of "Ben Hur" clubs, formed especially for visits to New York to see the great play founded on Gen. Lew Wallace's famous novel. In each instance some prominent person had taken the initiative, formed a party and had then engaged sufficient seats for its accommodation for the first performance for which they were to be had in one block.

The Best of All.

Of the many pretty calendars for 1900, the "Little Sweethearts" art calendar is the best for the home. Its six sections of bright, pretty children's faces will cheer and gladden any household. There are six beautiful groups, in water-color designs, by Frances Brundage, the famous painter of children; each group in 12 colors and size 10x12¾ inches, on fine Whitman paper; bound together at top with silk ribbon, making the prettiest and most artistic collection of water-color reproduction ever issued. Each of the six sheets contains two months' dates, being a complete calendar of the year 1900. This calendar is sent free to all subscribers to Frank Leslie's Popular monthly for 1900, the giant of the one dollar magazines, together with the November and December numbers, 1899, or the January and February issues, 1900. A MODERN REFRIGERATOR.

Excellent Service That Smalley Brothers Now Afford in Meat Line.

Smalley Bros., the North avenue butchers, have just placed in their shop one of the finest refrigerators in the State. It occupies considerable space in a prominent position and is constantly attracting the attention of passersby and patrons. The firm is now able to furnish their many patrons with capons, roasting chickens, broilers, turkeys, squabs, sweet breads, etc. Delicacies in and out of season will be kept. This is made possible through the very perfect arrangement of the refrigerator, a place being reserved for the perfect keeping of game, etc.

This refrigerator is finished in hard wood. The front is especially attractive, being of handsome tiling and large mirrors. One can stand outside and see the choice cuts of meat, game, etc., hanging up inside, and it presents a tempting sight. The firm are pleased to have anyone call and see the refrigerator and show them the latest improvements.

DAVI ON THE SULZER BOOM.

Democratic Leader Says It's Too Early to Make Predictions.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Jersey City, March 2.—Democratic Leader Robert Davis, when asked what he thought of the conference in the Ridgway House, Philadelphia, Tuesday, and what his ideas were about the Sulzer Vice-Presidential boom, that was so carefully nourished by Congressman Daly and others at the conference, said:

"I am not prepared to say what I think of Mr. Sulzer's boom for Vice-President. There is no law to prevent a Democrat from striving for the honor. But when it comes to predicting what the New Jersey delegates will do in the matter, it is rather early to indulge in guesses. The delegates have not yet been selected. When they are chosen they will not be controlled by any man, and it is useless for people to say that the choice of the New Jersey delegates has already been determined."

"SAPHO" CANCELLED BY MANAGER EDWARDS

Agitation Provoked in New York Causes it to be Kept Out of Plainfield.

BOOKED EARLY IN SEASON.

AT THE TIME MR. EDWARDS DID NOT KNOW NATURE OF IT.

Music Hall Patrons will Have a Chance to See Other Excellent Metropolitan Attractions in a Short Time.

"Sapho" will not appear in Plainfield this season. The same production that Miss Olga Nethersole is now playing at Wallack's Theatre, New York, was booked to appear at the Stillman Music Hall Tuesday evening, but after all the agitation that has been provoked over the play, Manager Maze Edwards has cancelled the engagement. Early in the winter Wm. A. Brady, the veteran theatrical manager, notified Mr. Edwards that he had a great attraction in view and offered a date in Plainfield. It proved to be "Sapho," the Nethersole-Fitch version, Mr. Brady holding the rights to produce it in all cities where Miss Nethersole would not appear.

There were several other versions of the same play in the field, but Mr. Edwards refused to recognize them and intended to give Plainfield the best. The storm of opposition that has been raised in New York and other cities then came. It has not been the policy of Mr. Edwards to do anything to offend the best tastes of the Plainfield public. It has always been his aim to give good, clean productions and after considering the general opposition to the play, he cancelled the engagement.

After the concluding performance of the Macauley Patton Company this evening, "The Texas Cowboy," the hall will be closed for the next week. The Macauley-Patton Company, by the way, has been giving a remarkably satisfactory series of productions here this week. The acting has been first-class and the choice of plays very good.

For some time Manager Edwards has been promised "Zaza" by Mr. Frohman, but no date was set. Last week Mr. Edwards was notified that the company, an excellent one of Frohman's best actors, would appear here last Thursday. Owing to the week's engagement of the Macauley-Patton company, Mr. Edwards was compelled to cancel the date. "Zaza" will appear here later in the season, however.

The next production after the "Texas Cowboy" this evening will be Hoyt's latest play, "A Day and a Night," which will appear Monday evening, March 12th. The play is under the management of Hoyt & McKee, and will be produced with identically the same scenery and almost the same cast as appeared in the long run that "A Day and a Night" made at the Madison Square Theatre and the Garden Theatre, New York.

The mere fact that it is one of Hoyt's assures the public that the performance will be an entertaining one. It met with favor in New York and is like the others by Hoyt, an uproariously funny farce, plenty of action and without a dull moment.

The Romain Comedy Players will produce "Our Regiment" here Saturday evening, March 17. The production will be under the auspices of the A. O. H. William J. Romain, who is well known in this city, has gathered some excellent talent from New York, around him for the performance. Monday evening, March 10, Al Reeve's big vaudeville company will give a strong performance. Reeves is well known to the theatre-going public. He has some excellent talent in his company which comes very highly recommended.

MAY STAY IN JAIL FOR LIFE.

Unable to Give a Bond to Pay His Wife $3 a Week Alimony.

J. Spencer Middleton has been in the Burlington county jail at Mt. Holly a year because he could not give $200 bond to pay his wife $3 a week alimony. He may stay in jail the remainder of his life so far as his prospect for release depends on paying the stipulated sum per week.

Mrs Middleton is said to be living in fair circumstances in Camden. She refuses to withdraw her complaint Middleton is 54 and his wife is about 40. He says his wife left him several times, and does dressmaking. Mrs. Middleton says her husband did not support her and their two children, and that she has not communicated with him since he went to jail to live.

WANT TO GO OVERHEAD.

CRANFORD ASKED FOR ANOTHER PRIVILEGE BY TROLLEY.

Necessary to Construct a New Loop in Tracks to Approach B. and O. Crossing.

Colonel Edwin W. Hine, secretary of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company, visited Cranford Thursday and was before a special meeting of the Township Committee, at which time he presented a map, showing a proposed loop for an overhead crossing for the trolley line over the tracks of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at South avenue.

The map showed that the tracks of the trolley line would leave South avenue at grade crossing through private property on the south side of the avenue, making an ellipse, returning again to South avenue at grade. Where the bridge would be built a cut of 12 feet exists, and it would only be necessary to raise the trolley tracks a few feet in order to effect the crossing, which would complete the line from Plainfield to Elizabeth.

Chairman Cromwell, of the Township Committee, stated that the Committee could not grant the desired privilege until the next regular meeting. Colonel Hine requested that the Committee express themselves as satisfied with the plan in order that the contracts might be let and the work proceeded with. Chairman Cromwell contended that the company should macadamize the intervening roadway between the points of departure and return on the trolley tracks, which Colonel Hine agreed his company would do. Chairman Cromwell then asked the Committeemen present to signify their assent to the proposed plan, which was given unanimously. Colonel Hine was assured that the resolution would be granted at the next meeting.

CONGREGATIONAL COUNCIL.

Interesting Programme for the Annual Spring Council at Paterson Next Week.

An interesting programme has been arranged for the annual spring council of the Congregational churches of northern New Jersey, which meets at Paterson next Tuesday. At the morning session Rev. George L. Hanscom, pastor of the First Congregational church, Newark, will conduct the opening devotional exercises. The topic, "What Shall We Think of Christianity?" will be discussed by Rev. Thomas C. Miller, of Woodbridge, and Rev. Dr. Wm. N. Clark, of Colgate University, followed by an open discussion on the subject, conducted by Rev. Chas. A. S. Dwight, of Closter.

Rev. Frank W. Hodgdon, of the Orange Valley Congregational church, will conduct the devotional exercises at the opening of the afternoon session, followed by reports of the churches for the past year and a paper on the life of Rev. Dr. Elias Riggs, by his son, Rev. Dr. James F. Riggs, of East Orange.

A new feature of the conference this year will be a number of after-dinner talks, to follow the collation at noon between the two sessions. The speakers and their subjects will be as follows: "The Ladies in Church Fellowship," Rev. Dr. William A. Rice, of Paterson; "The Mind in Church Fellowship," Rev. Howard S. Bliss, of Passaic; "The Saints in Church Fellowship," Rev. Dr. Charles D. Shaw, of the Second Presbyterian church, Paterson.

The officers of the conference are: Moderator, Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, of Plainfield; vice-moderator, Rev. Ambrose W. Vernon, of East Orange; scribe and treasurer, Rev. C. C. Collins, of Newark.

Additional Room Secured.

The Sisters of Mercy of St. Joseph's church, in the borough, who conduct a home for girls on Manning avenue, have for sometime past been in need of additional room to successfully carry on their work, and they have just purchased from Michael Connolly his property at 35 Manning avenue, which will be remodeled and used in connection with the present home. This will give them just what they need and the work of arranging the property for their convenience will be commenced as soon as pratical. The sale of the property was made through John P. Emmons.

Verdict for Lost Leg Set Aside.
(Special to The Daily Press).

Elizabeth, March 3.—The Supreme Court has set aside a verdict for $3,315, obtained by Richard Ahearn on January 6th, 1899, in the Union County Circuit Court, against the Central Railroad of New Jersey, for the loss of a leg. Ahearn sued for $10 000. His counsel was former Prosecutor Fred C. Marsh. Another trial of the case will now have to be held.

DANCING DENOUNCED BY REV. E. E. JACKSON.

Colored Parson Does Not Mince His Words About The Subject.

A LIVELY WORD PICTURE.

HIS CHURCH WILL NOT TOLERATE MEMBERS WHO DANCE.

Declares That the Dance is Morally Damning to Not Only Colored But The White Race.

The story printed in The Daily Press Thursday about a number of members of the Mt. Olive and the Calvary Baptist church being read out of church on account of attending and participating in public dances, caused quite a sensation in colored society circles. The following letter from Rev. E. E. Jackson, pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, treats the subject in a strenuous manner:

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—I saw an article in Thursday evening's issue referring to the action of my church, and the Calvary church, for disciplining members for dancing. It is true. You also said that the friends of those dealt with were offended.

When I came to this church I was informed that it was against the rule of the church for its members to dance at public balls. No better rule could they have had, for no man or woman should join an organization who is not willing to abide by its rules. It is a shame for young women and men, who claim to be gentlemen and ladies, to dance on the ball room floor with a character that they will not speak to on the street. It is a shame for them to enter a gambling den with closed doors with characters they will not admit in their parlors. It is a shame for one who professes to be a Christian to be found standing pouring down rum at the bar. Our churches are against them, and if the friends of these parties are indignant, they might do well to organize a church where these things are allowed, and take the same Bible from which we preach, and see if they are following Jesus. This may also apply to some of our white churches up to which we, as a race, must look for moral examples.

While it is grevious to me to see this surrender of Christian integrity to the devil, and to separate from those whom I love, yet the dignity of the church must be sustained until such a rule is rescinded; and I do not think that will be done as long as a mother loves and wishes the welfare of her daughter, and the father his son.

It will assure you that there is not a Christian family in my church opposed to the action of the church in this particular. I say that the dance of today is damning, morally, our race, and no less the white race, and it is a shame for any minister of Christ, who is paid by their church to lead them into righteousness, to encourage such evil.

Look at the young girl or some one's wife borne around the ball room in the arms of a man; his arms are drawn around her waist; her swelling bosom resting against his; her bare neck reflecting the soft mellow light of the chandelier, while the passions are raging like a furnace of fire, and every diabolical idea revolving in their hearts to seduce each other. Yet the churches must encourage this evil, and these characters, who have not courage enough to offer prayer for the ungodly world in the church, nor influence enough to constrain one to the house of God. RUTGERS ROW PATCHED UP.

Prof. Shumway Likely to Withdraw His Resignation.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, March 3—It is now generally believed that the difficulty in the faculty of Rutgers College over the resignation of Prof. Shumway will be amicably adjusted, and that the crisis will be averted. It is understood that before the next meeting of the board of trustees, Tuesday, Prof. Shumway will have been persuaded to reconsider his resignation, and President Scott will have been convinced that that is the wisest course to follow. A member of the board of trustees, who would not be quoted, stated it as his opinion that this course would be followed.

County Pays $450 for Davis' Defence
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, March 3.—The Union County Board of Freeholders Thursday afternoon paid Former Senator Fred C. Marsh and Abe J. David $450 for their services in defending Philip Davis, the young negro of this city, who is now serving a sentence of twenty years in State Prison for killing George Monks, of Brooklyn.

$1,400 FOR MISSIONS.

Excellent Financial Report of Woman's Home Missionary Society of Crescent Avenue Church.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue church was held yesterday afternoon in the chapel. Mrs. I. C. Pierson, president of the society, presided. The report of the secretary, Miss Mary Ketcham, was presented and showed that a great deal of work had been accomplished during the year among the mountain whites of North Carolina, and in Utah and Alaska. Mrs. Wm. Myers, treasurer, reported the financial condition of the society to be good. During the year the sum of about $1 400 was received. Mrs. Halloway, superintendent of literature on home mission work, gave an interesting report.

The following officers were then elected: President, Mrs. I. C. Pierson; vice-president, Mrs. Oliver King; secretary, Miss Mary Ketcham; treasurer, Mrs. William Myers. After the election those present had the pleasure of listening to an address by Mrs. F. H. Pierson, of Elizabeth, who is secretary of the Presbyterial Home Mission Board of the Elizabeth Presbytery.

A feature of the meeting was the vocal selection by a trio, Mrs. Asa Collier, Miss Julia Ketcham and Miss Jessie Stewart. Following the meeting a social and tea was given.

SPRING ELECTION.

Much Interest in Union County Results on Account of Election of Freeholders.

Much interest is being evinced in the approaching spring elections in Union county, as a member of the Board of Freeholders is to be chosen in each of the eight townships of the county in addition to the other township officials. Most of the present Freeholders will be candidates for re-election, and some of them will meet, it is said, with strong opposition. The Republican supremacy in the Board, however, will not be changed by the outcome of the contests, as there are now six holdover Republicans for the next Board of eighteen members, and they are sure of electing four more on the twelfth.

CAN USE THE "T" RAIL.

Exceptional Privilege Granted the Biker Trolley Syndicate by Westfield Officials.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, March 3.—At the meeting of the Township Committee held last evening the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company was granted permission to use wooden poles and "T" rails in constructing the cross-town trolley road from Springfield to Rahway.

This was done so that the road could be built during the coming spring and be ready for business in the summer, the company finding it impossible to place an order for the girder rails and steel poles, such as are used on the Plainfield-Elizabeth line.

Death of Mrs. Ann Whitman.

Last evening occurred the death of Mrs. Ann Whitman, widow of the late William Barlow Lee, of Washington, D. C., aged 77 years. Mrs. Lee had been living for the past three years with her daughter, Mrs. Charles Addison Mann, 1308 Watchung avenue. She formerly resided in Washington, where she was well-known. Death was due to bronchial-pneumonia and was very sudden. The funeral services will be held from the residence, 1308 Watchung avenue, next Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Interment will be in Rock Creek cemetery, Washington.

New Real Estate Firm.

One of the strongest real estate firms that has ever been organized in this city has come through the partnership formed by J. Fred MacDonald and S. R. Struthers. Both members of the firm are men of well-known business capacity and responsibility, and will undoubtedly do much towards building up Plainfield. Their office is located at 153 North avenue, where Mr. Struthers is in charge. They are also agents for a number of first-class insurance companies.

Both Primaries Called for Same Time.

The Republicans and Democrats of the borough have issued a call for their primaries to be held this evening at the school building on Somerset street at 8 o'clock. As it will be impossible for both parties to hold their meeting at the same place and hour, one or the other will have to give way to the other. The probabilities are that the Republicans will allow their opponents to meet first, unless the Democrats prefer to meet afterward.

—The grand lodge of the State A. O. U W. will meet at Trenton next Thursday. Justice V. W. Nash, of this city, will attend.

WOMEN FAVOR THE NEW SCHOOL BILL.

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall Spoke Before Legislative School Committee.

GOOD POINTS BROUGHT OUT.

KINDERGARTEN AGE REDUCED FROM FIVE TO FOUR YEARS.

Compulsory Education Idea and Appointments of Medical Inspectors Thought to be Excellent Features of the Measure.

In connection with the movement to revise the school laws of this State one of the most important meetings was held at Trenton Tuesday last when Mrs. Emily G. Willisimson, president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs Florence Howe Hall, chairman of the department of education of the federation; Miss Belle Snyder, of Montclair, and Mrs. David Miller, of Elizabeth, members of the Legislative committee of the federation, were given a hearing in the Senate chamber before the Senate committee to whom the new school was referred by the special committee appointed to revise the school laws.

The committee of women before the Senate committee were unanimous in their support of the bill. Mrs. Williamson spoke strongly in favor of it, saying that she had read a number of school bills in force in other states, but she thought this new bill was the most complete she had ever seen, and had the interest of every child in the State at heart.

Mrs. Hall spoke more in detail concerning certain features of the bill. She was favorably impressed with the section which reduces the kindergarten age from five to four years, and with that section which provides for graded schools in weak districts, as this will tend to strengthen and build up the various country schools. She also spoke favorably of that part which provides compulsory education and deals equitably with the disorderly scholar. She spoke in favor of the appointment of medical inspectors as being a good thing. She cited the good accomplished in Plainfield through the medical inspections.

The women thanked the committee for their consideration in allowing women to vote at school elections and to serve as school trustees. The section providing for transportation of scholars by trolley and allowing Boards of Education to make contract with trolley companies to carry them was spoken of favorably. This provision is considered a very good one and makes educational facilities comparatively easy to those who are obliged to come a distance.

The additional power given to the State superintendent and the manner of taking school census and its effect on the division of the State school money, were spoken of in a favorable light by the women.

The women were appreciative of the courtesy extended them by the Senate committee in allowing them to appear before them and to be heard regarding the new bill. It is the opinion of the women that the bill is a most excellent one and should meet with general approval throughout the State.

TO IMPROVE A ROAD.

County Engineer Hubbard will Prepare Plans and Specifications.

County Engineer F. J. Hubbard went over the road from New Providence to the Morris county line yesterday, having been ordered by the Board of Freeholders to prepare plans and specifications for its macadamizing.

This road is an important link, as it connects this county with the Bernardsville section, once the short stretch in Morris county is likewise improved. The Freeholders are to be commended on this action.

The Daily Press was in error yesterday in stating that J. M Bauer, of Linden, had been engaged by the Board of Freeholders to do this work.

The work that Mr. Bauer will do is to prepare plans and specifications for the improvement of the extension of Summit avenue in Union county. A resolution to this effect was offered by Freeholder Robison, of Fanwood, and adopted. When this job is completed the macadamized road system of Somerset and Union counties will be joined.

Crushed His Finger.

Leslie Mathews, an employe of the Incubator Works at Lincoln and a resident of this city at 117 Liberty street, crushed his finger while at work yesterday. He went to the hospital for treatment. It cannot yet be ascertained whether he will lose the finger or not.

HEALTH BOARD ORGANIZE

DR. MURRAY CHOSEN PRESIDENT FOR THE ENSUING YEAR.

Campaign to be Made Against the Unsanitary Method of Collecting Kitchen Garbage.

The new Plainfield Board of Health has opened its campaign. Its movements will be watched with interest. Some of the acts of the old Board were, to put it mildly, not popular. When the Mayor appointed three members of the Board at the beginning of the year, he made an entire change in the personnel. Since then there has been some wonderment as to whether the new Board would conduct its campaign in behalf of the good health of the city on different lines from those of the old.

The new Board held it first meeting yesterday afternoon. The members present were Dr. W. H. Murray, Dr. B. Van D. Hedges, Herman Weber and Fred W. Dunn. Former Mayor Charles J. Fisk, the other member of the Board, is in Lakewood for his health, and so was unable to attend the meeting.

The organization of the Board was effected as follows: President Dr. William H. Murray; secretary, Dr. B. Van D. Hedges; treasurer, Fred W. Dunn; inspector, William Addis, Sr.

The principal discussion was regarding the present unsanitary methods of collecting the kitchen garbage. The Board of Health ordinance provides that all garbage collectors shall have a permit before they can collect and dispose of garbage. It also provides for proper sanitary arrangements in collecting the garbage.

Evidence was brought before the Board to show that the needful precautions were not taken by many of the present collectors and that only eight out of the score who are now collecting the garbage have secured permits. One man was particularly recommended to the Board as having complied with all the rules on the subject and having well-equipped wagons.

Since the departure of the Plainfield Sanitary Company, there have been many collectors who have sprung up and are now doing more or less business. Some have wagons equipped with covered cans while others merely use an ordinary wagon and cover up the garbage with burlaps. It is the latter who will receive the attention of the Board.

DIAMOND ROBBER OUT OF JAIL.

Joshua Hines, Alias Robert Hart, Released in Somerville.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, March 3.—Joshua Hines, alias Robert Hart, who was arrested here Sept. 12th, 1898, for committing a diamond robbery, and who afterward jumped his bail and escaped to New York city, where he was imprisoned later on the charge of murdering a pal, and still later discharged in Justic Fursman's court for want of evidence, was released from the Somerset county jail Thursday afternoon, where he has been awaiting trial for the alleged robbery of a diamond from John Brinkherhoff, a retired merchant of Jersey City. Hines left for New York city Thursday night.

Edward J. Byrnes Resigns.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, March 3.—Former Assemblyman Edward J. Byrnes, of this city, the oldest clerk in point of service in the employ of the Central Railroad Company at its Elizabeth shops, has resigned his position. Mr. Byrnes has been thirty-five years working for the Central Company, and for seventeen years was chief clerk for the late William Woodcock, who was superintendent of shops when he died. He served two terms in the Legislature, is fifty-six years old and a bachelor.

Cosgrove Going Home Monday.

William Cosgrove, accompanied by Walter Long, of Park avenue, will start Monday evening by the Lehigh Valley Railroad from South Plainfield, for Oakland, California, the home of Cosgrove. It is expected that the trip will take five days and that Cosgrove will reach his home by Saturday night next. He will go through from South Plainfield to Chicago without change. At the latter place another road will be taken to the Pacific.

A High Bred Family

Pedestrians passing the Hotel Waldorf on East Front street were attracted today to an entire family occupying one of the show windows. There, in plain sight of the public, was a father, mother and their five offspring enjoying life in their own quite way. Many gazed in astonishment at the scene. The family was of the fox-terrier breed and are said to belong to the best families of his dogship's empire, being highly bred and of sagacious intelligence.

MAYOR ANXIOUS TO SEE STREET WIDENED

Mr. Smalley Brings Up the Matter in the Borough Council Meeting Last Night.

A FEW OBJECTORS STILL.

COLLECTOR BROWN WANTS SURETY BOND PAID FOR.

President of the Council Swackhamer Shows Little Interest in Borough Affairs—Pay for Work of Expert Accountant.

Mayor Smalley and Councilmen Coddington, Clark, Burtis and Valiant were present at the regular meeting of the Borough Council held last evening. Councilmen Swackhamer and Rogers were absent. However, there was not a great amount of important business to transact, although the session continued until nearly 10 o'clock.

Clerk Rowley read a petition from the trustees of the Crescent Avenue church, asking for a crosswalk at the corner of Warren and Chatham streets. A communication was received from Collector Brown, in which he stated that as he had a great deal of work to do in the double-entry system of bookkeeping, and that the borough was being saved at least $150 a year in not having any rent to pay for him, he wanted to know if it would not be fair for the borough to pay for his surety bond each year. The communication was referred to the finance committee.

The report of the collector and treasurer is as follows: Taxes and interest collected during February, $83 34; Board of Health, $7 75; special school, $415 38; Watchung avenue, $229.25; total $1,576 43; bills payable by note, $2,000; fines received, $5; rent property sold for taxes, $26; balance February, $4,228 04; total receipts, $7,835.47; disbursements, $6 099 52; cash on hand, $1,735 95; borough fund, $1,220.01; Watchung avenue, $515 94.

T. J. McCann presented a bill for $10 for service rendered by himself and horses during a recent severe snow storm when his horses stood on the fire-house floor for twenty-four hours. This bill was laid over and will be looked into by the fire, water and lamps committee.

Chairman Clark, of the street committee, reported the disbursements during February to be $66 39. Chairman Burtis, of the marshal committee, reported that no arrests had been made during the past month.

It was stated by the Mayor that Mr. Swackhamer, as chairman of the committee on laws, ordinances and election, had not presented his report, and had not even attended the meetings. He thought that a person representing the Democrats of the borough, and holding the position of president of the Council, should be more prompt in his attendance.

Mr. Valiant presented a bill from Harvey B Thorn, as expert accountant, for $82 50, representing 110 hours work at 75 cents per hour. He explained that he felt as though it was a wise expenditure, and would like to see the work done every year. He paid a compliment to E. L. Suffern, who, together with Mr. Thorn, had examined the borough books and accounts. Mr. Suffern's service were gratuitous. Messrs. Clark, Burtis, Codington, as well as the Mayor, all agreed that the expenditure was a wise one, and they concurred heartily with the remarks made by Mr. Valiant. It will be remembered that the Council voted early in the year to expend a sum not to exceed $100 for this work.

Mr. Valiant offered a resolution which provided for the erasure of several names from the tax list, where the tax is not collectable. In some cases the persons have moved away. In others the tax is for dogs, poll and personal which cannot be collected. The matter was referred to the laws, ordinance and election committee.

Another resolution by Mr. Valiant provided that a sum not to exceed $20 be appropriated for repairing the house at 61 Watchung avenue, and charged against the property. This is one of the properties bought in by the borough. Still another resolution by the same member provided for the borrowing of $1,000 for six months with which to pay bills.

Mayor Smalley introduced the Somerset street widening question and he asked the street committee to do a little extra work during the next thirty days and see if all of the property-owners interested cannot be induced to sign the map dedicating the necessary amount of property for the widening. He said that during the past few days he had received

ROUT WAS COMPLETE

Not a Trace of the Boers About Ladysmith.

ABANDON AMMUNITION AND SUPPLIES

Lord Roberts Reports Favorably of the Situation In Kimberley—British Camp Moved to Osfontein. Rhodes Sends Champagne.

LONDON, March 3.—The war office has received the following dispatch from General Buller, dated Ladysmith, March 2, 6:30 p. m.:

"I find the defeat of the Boers more complete than I had dared to anticipate. This whole district is completely clear of them, and except at the top of Van Reenen's pass, where several wagons are visible, I can find no trace of them.

"Their last train left Modder Spruit station about 1 o'clock yesterday, and they then blew up the bridge. They packed their wagons six days ago, moving them to the north of Ladysmith, so that we had no chance of intercepting them, but they have left vast quantities of ammunition of all sorts, herds, grass, camp and individual necessaries. They have got away with all their guns except two."

Lord Roberts wires to the war office from Osfontein, under date of March 2, 4:15 p. m., as follows:

"I have just returned from paying Kimberley a hurried visit. I was much gratified at finding the enthusiasm among the Kimberley people regarding the care of the sick and wounded. All the public buildings had been converted into hospitals, and all the men had been made most comfortable.

"I was struck with the friendly manner in which the wounded Boers and our men chatted together upon the experiences of the campaign.

"It delighted me to see our soldiers sharing their rations and biscuits with the Boer prisoners before they commenced their march for Modder River. Some of the poor fellows were very hungry, after having been half starved in the laager."

A dispatch from Osfontein, dated March 2, says:

"The British camp has been moved here. A heavy rain is falling, the veldt is improving, supplies are rapidly arriving, and the men are in good health, despite the fact that they have been on half rations for a fortnight.

"Mr. Cecil Rhodes has sent a quantity of champagne from Kimberley to be drunk to the health of Lord Roberts.

"Lord Roberts has published an order thanking the troops for their courage and for the zeal and endurance they have displayed amid the hardships of a forced march. He says that their fortitude and general conduct have been worthy the queen's soldiers.

"A slight skirmish occurred six miles southeast, in which Colonel Remington had a horse shot under him.

"The Boer forces on our front are believed to be under the joint command of Botha, Delarey and Dewet. They are expecting re-enforcements from Natal.

"The guns that were captured at Paardeberg have been brought here. The rifles captured have, in many cases, scriptural texts engraved upon them, for example, 'Lord, strengthen this arm.'

"It is said that just prior to General Cronje's surrender there was almost a mutiny in the camp."

Lord Roberts at Osfontein, six or eight miles east of Paardeberg, faces the reformed Boer army, from 5,000 to 6,000 strong. This may be merely a corps of observation, ready to retire on prepared positions. Doubtless it is receiving accretions from the late besiegers of Ladysmith and from other points.

Whatever the force may be Lord Roberts has ample troops to cope with it.

As a heavy rain is falling on the veldt and the grass is improving this will be a good thing temporarily for the Boers.

Lord Roberts has surprised observers by the excellence of his transport during the first advance, and he is likely to do so again, although military men here think he must wait for some days before going much farther.

The Boers presumably will use this delay for all it is worth, pulling their resources together. Dr. Leyds gives out the opinion that the British entry of Bloemfontein is daily expected, as Commandants Dewet and Delarey had been instructed to retard the advance of Lord Roberts only until the concentration under General Joubert had been accomplished.

No adequate explanation is yet made of the 50,000 re-enforcements that are preparing for Lord Roberts. Such explanations as are advanced tentatively suggest either that the Cape Dutch have become more restive or that the imperial government has a hint of foreign suggestions as to the future status of the allied republics.

The admiralty board has telegraphed to the Cape commander an expression of admiration and thanks on the part of the lords of the admiralty to the marines and bluejackets engaged in the war for the "splendid manner in which they have upheld the traditions of the service and have added to its reputation for resourcefulness, courage and devotion."

Colonel Rhodes, the brother of Cecil Rhodes, describing the entry into Ladysmith of Lord Dundonald and 300 men of the Imperial Light horse and Natal carbineers, Feb. 28, says:

"It is impossible to depict the enthusiasm of the beleaguered garrison. Cheer upon cheer ran from post to post, and staff officers, civilians and soldiers flocked to greet them. At the ford of the Klip river women, with children in their arms tearfully pressed forward to grasp the hands of the gallant band. Sisters and brothers, friends and relatives met again. It was the most moving scene I have ever witnessed. The contrast between the robust troopers of a dozen battles and the pale, emaciated defenders of Ladysmith was great. The hour for which we had so patiently waited had come at last.

"General White and his staff met the troops in the center of the town. He was cheered with heartfelt enthusiasm. He addressed the civilians and thanked them and the garrison for their magnificent support through trials which we alone can realize.

"We could possibly have hung on for six weeks longer, but the privations would have been great, and sickness and the paucity of our ammunition would have limited the number of assaults we would have been able to resist.

"We originally started the siege with 12,000 troops, 2,000 civilians and 4,000 natives. Between casualties and sickness 8,000 soldiers passed through the hospital. It is impossible to overemphasize the privations of the sick. Since the middle of January a man once down was practically lost. The reduced rations of the soldiers just sufficed for their subsistence. Daily, 30 old horses and mules were slaughtered and converted into soup and sausages. From Jan. 15 to now there have been over 200 deaths from disease alone. The last fortnight saw the majority of the field batteries unhorsed and the guns permanently posted in our defenses. The cavalry and drivers were converted into infantry and sent to the trenches. A line of defenses had been constructed with the view of a possible final contingency if the outer works should be carried by the investment.

"The total casualties were: Killed or died of wounds, 24 officers and 235 men, died of disease, 6 officers and 340 men, wounded, 70 officers and 520 men, exclusive of white civilians and natives."

A large crowd forced the doors of Exeter hall, London, where a "stop the war" meeting was being held last evening. The invaders were resisted by the audience. A free fight ensued, and the disturbers were expelled. Undeterred, they broke through the rear entrance, fighting with walking sticks and umbrellas. The police were summoned, and the crowd finally quieted down, marching off toward the war office and singing "God Save the Queen."

Buller at Ladysmith.

LADYSMITH, March 3.—General Buller, accompanied by his staff, arrived here at 11:40 a. m. Thursday. He entered the town unnoticed, as more cavalry was coming in during the morning. The news of his arrival soon spread, however, and General White and his staff at once went to receive him. The two generals met amid scenes of tremendous enthusiasm, and General Buller had an immense reception. It is understood that the Boers are in full flight toward the Free State, and a flying column of Ladysmith troops is pursuing them. The Boers left many wagons and guns and quantities of provisions and ammunition behind them.

The Boers Located.

OSFONTEIN, March 3.—The Boers have now been definitely located four miles from the British front, their left resting on a high kopje and their right on the river. The burgher force is estimated to number between 5,000 and 6,000.

M'KINLEY IN NEW YORK.

To Attend the Ohio Society Banquet Tonight.

NEW YORK, March 3.—President McKinley, who is to attend the banquet of the Ohio society at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel tonight, arrived here yesterday from Washington. He was accompanied by Mrs. McKinley and members of his official household. The party left Washington at 11 o'clock yesterday morning and reached the Pennsylvania railroad station in Jersey City at 20 minutes to 5 o'clock in the afternoon. They traveled in the private car Oceanic, which was attached to a regular train. The trip from the national capital to Jersey City was without incident. Abner McKinley, the chief executive's brother, and his daughter, Miss Mabel McKinley, were at the station to meet the president.

Special preparations had been made at the Hotel Manhattan in honor of the distinguished patrons. The president's flag hung from one of the windows of the state apartments. Over the entrance to the parlor was an American flag artistically draped. The apartments to which Mr. and Mrs. McKinley were escorted are on the first floor above the hotel lobby. The apartments were artistically decorated with La France roses, azaleas and lilies. Mrs. McKinley's favorite flowers. Other members of the presidential party were assigned six rooms on the upper floors of the hotel.

During the evening Mrs. McKinley went to the Empire theater and witnessed a production of "Brother Officers." Mr. and Mrs. Parsons, General Corbin's daughter and son-in-law, later joined Mrs. McKinley's party at the theater.

During the evening President I. Southard of the Ohio society, General Henry L. Burnett and ex-Mayor William L. Strong of the banquet committee called on the president and conferred with him for nearly an hour to apprise him of the dinner plans for tonight. Among the other callers was Appraiser Wilbur F. Wakeman. They remained with the president until 9:30 p. m. They agreed to call for the president in the evening and escort him to the Waldorf-Astoria, where he will hold a reception until the dinner hour.

Secretary Cortelyou announced that the president had made no plans for today other than to attend the Ohio society dinner. He thought the president and Mrs. McKinley would take a drive in the park today and attend church Sunday.

Storm Severe on Atlantic Coast.

BOSTON, March 3.—The tidewater front of New England felt the force of a run of high tides yesterday, which under the influence of easterly gales left wreck and ruin at places where the waves dashed against wharf property. The Maine coast bore the brunt of the burden, and reports indicate that the storm was felt more severely and over a greater area than the famous November, 1898, disturbance of the elements. Coming on the very heels of a heavy fall of rain in southern New England and of two to three feet of snow in the north, with rivers swollen beyond their banks by recent rains, the tides were exceedingly high and did great damage.

A Mileage Ticket Case.

ALBANY, March 3.—Albert H. Beardsley of Chemung county, who brought suit against the New York, Lake Erie and Western Railroad company because the company refused to sell him a mileage ticket, has lost his case in the court of appeals after being successful in the trial court and the appellate division. Beardsley endeavored to purchase a ticket on July 8, 1895, good for 1,000 miles, for $20. When it was refused him, he immediately brought suit to recover $50 by advice of his counsel, David C. Robinson of Elmira.

Noted Horse Breeder Dead.

NEW YORK, March 3.—Charles E. Bates died at his home in this city yesterday of pneumonia. Mr. Bates was best known because of the prizes which he had taken at the horse show and as a breeder of fine horses. He owned a large stock farm in Ohio, where most of the horses that he dealt in were bred. From this stock farm they were brought to New York city and sold to the Four Hundred.

Transport Thomas Sails.

In Dentistry is the best substitute for nature's work that can be done. Sound roots may be built up and crowned and thus fill up an unsightly space. And Japanese figures on gilded ground
And fantistic Beardsley lines are found

NEW NOTES ON DRESS.

The Latest in Fabrics for Gowns and Wraps—Plaited Effect the Rage.

In the renewed rage for kilted and plaited effects, fine accordion-plaiting has also returned to favor. This mode of manipulating fabrics of nearly every description, both thin and heavy, extends to entire costumes, belted princess dresses, wraps, tea jackets, waists, collarettes, fichus, hats, parasols, etc. And in Paris much of the silk batiste and sheer muslin underwear is kilted or accordion plaited. Some of the fresh beautiful summer dress models so arranged are certainly very lovely to look at, but that the folds of many of the fabrics so plaited are very easily marred is a great disadvantage. This year the objection is considerably obviated, however, by sash draperies and long scarf ends falling at the back above the plaitings—and also, and better still, by the lengthy overdress, which will continue much in evidence among forthcoming styles.

In accepting the sack-coat as one of the prevailing modes of the season, one has to acknowledge that there are remarkable differences in the cut, adjustment and donning of this loose shape. Some wearers of it look balky, undignified, and absurd, but a few graceful women appear smart and distinguished. Even though we cannot admire them, yet they are so fashioned and occasionally so worn as to compel this admission at least, and much depends on the carriage, figure and height of the wearer. These garments will appear among the light-weight cloth models for the spring, and in shorter lengths among tailor-made linen, pique and duck costumes for summer. A certain arching of the shoulders and under-arm seams renders a few of the models for next season rather attractive, but, in any or indeed the best of its guises, the fashion is quite unlikely to last, nor can one conscientiously hope that it will.

On some of the advance Parisian styles for next season the dress-sleeve, when it appears at all on evening toilets, as well as the plainer models on day gowns, is made to fit as tightly as it can possibly be worn. No one can dispute the fact that this is very becoming to women who have long, thin arms, even when tucks, like frills, and other decorations are resorted to to conceal the defects. Sleeves gauged from the wrist to some inches above the elbow, then slightly draped with a full lace fichu or spreading collarette, partly covering the shoulders, give the effect of roundness as well as any style popular among coming fashions—not excepting the gimp effects which broaden into a matching cap-piece on the top of the sleeve.—N. Y. Post.

ALL WERE SELF-CONVICTED.

Georgia Lawyers Handed Over Their Guns to the Judge with Singular Unanimity.

Georgia has a stringent law forbidding its citizens to carry pistols on pain of forfeiting the weapons and paying a fine of $50 or being imprisoned for 30 days. Shortly after the passage of this enactment Judge Lester was holding court in a little town, when suddenly he suspended the trial of a case by ordering the sheriff to lock the doors of the courthouse.

"Gentlemen," said the judge when the doors were closed, "I have just seen a pistol on a man in this room and I cannot reconcile it to my sense of duty to let such a violation of this law pass unnoticed. I ought perhaps to go before the grand jury and indict him, but if that man will walk up to this stand and lay his pistol and a fine of one dollar down here I will let him off this time."

The judge paused, and a lawyer sitting just before him got up, slipped his hand into a hip pocket, drew out a neat ivory-handled six-shooter and laid it with a dollar down upon the stand.

"This is all right," said the judge, "but you are not the man I saw with the pistol."

Upon this another lawyer arose and laid down a Colt's revolver and a dollar bill before the judge, who repeated his former observation. The process went on until 19 pistols of all kinds and sizes and shapes lay upon the stand, together with 19 dollars by their side. The judge laughed as he complimented the 19 delinquents upon being men of business, but added that the man whom he had seen with the pistol had not come up and, glancing at the far side of the court, he continued:

"I will give him one minute to accept my proposition, and if he fails I will hand him over to the sheriff."

Immediately two men from the back of the court rose and began to move toward the judge's stand. Once they stopped to look at each other and then, coming slowly forward, laid down their pistols and their dollars. As they turned their backs the judge said:

"This man with the black whiskers is the one that I originally saw."—N. Y. Press.

Best Way to Furnish a House.

When about to furnish a house, one of the first things to be considered is the amount of money that shall be devoted to the purpose. After deciding this, make a list of the essentials, and then a list of the desirable accessories. Naturally, the essentials are the things that should be purchased first. It is best to stop there until one has lived in the house for at least a short time. It will then be possible to study the possibilities and necessities of each room, and as time, opportunity and money permit, one can add such things as are necessary. In this way the purchase of undesirable and inharmonious articles will be avoided.—Ladies' Home Journal.

PORTO RICAN RELIEF

President's Recommendation Quickly Acted Upon.

ALL RECEIPTS FOR THE ISLAND'S AID

The House Passes a Bill Placing All Revenues Heretofore Received In the President's Hands to Use at His Discretion.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Within two hours after a special message from the president, recommending the immediate passage of a bill to place in his hands all the moneys collected upon Porto Rican goods since the Spanish evacuation of the island to be used for the relief of the Porto Ricans, had been read to the house yesterday the house had passed and sent to the senate a bill to carry out the recommendation.

The message came like a bolt out of a clear sky to the minority. They were at first inclined to hail it with delight as a reproof of the majority for the passage of the Porto Rican tariff bill on Wednesday. The Republican leaders, however, had a bill ready to carry the president's recommendations into effect. Mr. Cannon asked immediate consideration for the bill, and this was given. It was only when the debate opened, it having been agreed that 20 minutes should be allowed on a side, that, under the lead of Mr. Bailey of Texas, the Democrats began lining up against the bill because it placed no limitation upon the president's discretion in the use of the money. The bill was passed by a vote of 162 to 107, 13 Democrats, two Populists and two Silver Republicans voting with the Republicans in the affirmative.

The text of the president's message is as follows:

"Since the evacuation of Porto Rico by the Spanish forces on the 18th day of October, 1898, the United States has collected on products coming from that island to the ports of the United States the duties fixed by the Dingley act and amounting to $2,095,455.88 and will continue to collect under said law until congress shall otherwise direct. Although I had the power and, having in mind the best interests of the people of the island used it to modify duties on goods and products entering into Porto Rico, I did not have the power to remit or modify duties on Porto Rican products coming into the ports of the United States. In view of the pressing necessity for immediate revenue in Porto Rico for conducting the government there and for the extension of public education, and in view also of the provisional legislation just inaugurated by the house of representatives and for the purpose of making the principle embodied in that legislation applicable to the immediate past as well as the immediate future, I recommend that the above sum so collected and the sums hereafter collected under existing law shall, without waiting for the enactment of the general legislation now pending, be appropriated for the use and benefit of the island."

Interest in the Porto Rican tariff measure has now been transferred from the house to the senate. Consideration of the bill embodying substantially the provisions of the house bill and in addition providing for a temporary form of civil government for the island of Porto Rico was begun in the senate, Mr. Foraker (Rep.) of Ohio, chairman of the committee on Pacific islands and Porto Rico, being in charge of the measure.

Scarcely had the reading of the bill been concluded when Mr. Teller of Colorado proposed an amendment providing in brief that the purpose of the pending bill is simply to establish a temporary government in Porto Rico for the purpose of enabling the people of the island later to establish a permanent republican government, in which there shall be accorded the people the right of self government, the adoption of a constitution and the establishment of a permanent form of government not interfering with the sovereignty of the United States over the island or its inhabitants.

This amendment was followed by another by Mr. Stewart of Nevada striking out the provision levying a duty on Porto Rican goods and providing that they should be admitted free into the United States.

A spirited debate was participated in by Mr. Foraker, Mr. Teller, Mr. Stewart and others. Mr. Foraker contended that the duties levied on Porto Rican products were necessary because the island was in need of revenues. Every dollar levied as duties would be turned into the treasury of the island, and the committee held that this was the only practicable means of securing the needed funds.

Mr. Stewart strongly upheld the policy of the president as announced in his last annual message of giving free trade to the Porto Ricans.

An hour and a half of the session was devoted to consideration of the Quay case. Mr. Hoar of Massachusetts presenting an able constitutional argument in favor of the seating of Mr. Quay on the ground mainly that it was the intention of the framers of the constitution that the senate at all times should have its full quota of members.

Cavalry to Return.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Steps have been taken by the war department for the return to the United States of the entire Fifth regiment of cavalry now distributed at different posts in Porto Rico. The movement will be made gradually, and so far as possible the vacated posts will be occupied by native troops recruited in Porto Rico. Orders have been issued for four troops of this regiment to be brought to the United States within the next few weeks and stationed at Jefferson barracks, St. Louis.

Bishop Found Guilty.

BELMONT, N. Y., March 3.—Gabriel Bishop of Cuba, Allegany county, N. Y., has been convicted of manslaughter in causing the death of Everett Austin of this place on July 8 last by exploding dynamite under a cottage on Lake Cuba in which Austin was asleep. The jury returned a verdict of guilty as charged in the indictment after several hours' deliberation. Accompanying the verdict was a recommendation to mercy.

A MONTH'S FAILURES.

Many Reported, but a Low Liability Average.

NEW YORK, March 3.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Besides the 881 commercial failures for $9,931,048 which we report today, there were in February six banking failures for $620,121, and receivers were appointed for the United States Flour Milling company, with $25,000,000 of stock and $15,000,000 of bonds authorized at its organization last April, and for the Third Avenue Railroad company after liens for several millions had been placed upon the property. Unless separated from such events commercial failures could not be compared with benefit. The manufacturing failures for $4,257,638 were larger than in February of 1898 or 1895, but more than half the amount was in two classes, four large lumber and four large clothing failures, making 38 per cent of the whole. The trading failures were larger than in February of last year only, but 20 per cent of these defaults were made by five failures.

In most branches the comparison with previous years is encouraging, and analysis brings out in strong light the remarkably low average of liabilities in the smaller failures, which constitute the great majority, indicating sound business conditions and unusually satisfactory collections. But neither in number nor in amount do the failures compare well with those of other recent months.

The rise of cotton to 9.44 cents, the highest point since February, 1893, has done much to stimulate business.

The small rise in wheat last week, although the price is quite low, sufficed to call from the farms such receipts—4,105,661 bushels against 3,195,437 last year—as to indicate that supplies are not nearly exhausted. Exports from Atlantic ports continue small, for the week, flour included, only 1,812,306 bushels against 4,069,984 last year, and in four weeks from both coasts exports have been 11,639,260 against 14,823,373 bushels.

The iron and steel industry continues the greatest weekly output ever known, even while men speak of it as waiting for more definite assurance about the future. Prices of pig yield a little, some sales of bessemer having been made at Pittsburg for $24, and anthracite No. 1 is quoted here at $23.50. Billets have been sold at $33 at Pittsburg. For most finished products prices are stronger than a week ago, or as strong, bars and sheets being strengthened by large business.

COSTLY INVESTIGATION.

Clark Case Testimony All In—A Two Months' Trial.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Just before the adjournment of the senate committee on elections yesterday both the prosecution and the defense in the investigation of the election of Senator Clark of Montana announced that they had concluded the presentation of testimony in the case. There are some papers yet to be examined, and the argument is still to be heard. The committee also reserves the right to call witnesses in its own behalf. All witnesses called by either side have been excused, and many of them have left for their homes.

The investigation began on Jan. 5, and up to date 100 witnesses have been examined. Their testimony will fill between 2,400 and 2,500 pages.

The expense to the government has so far been about $27,000. A number of witnesses were examined yesterday, but the only one who gave important testimony was James W. Kemper of Butte, whose statement bore upon the purchase of State Representative Woods' ranch.

Wreck of the Golden Sheaf.

PHILADELPHIA, March 3.—With the arrival here of four shipwrecked sailors came the first news of the foundering of the schooner Golden Sheaf, which sailed from this city Feb. 15 for Christianstad, St. Croix, with a cargo of coal. The mate and one seaman of the unfortunate vessel are known to have been drowned, and it is feared that the captain was also lost, though the rescued sailors think he may have been saved by an unknown bark which lay to for the purpose of rendering assistance. The shipwrecked men were brought to this port by the British steamer Mokta, the crew of which bravely battled for two hours with wind and waves, risking their own lives to save those of the imperiled crew.

Fresh Meats In the Philippines.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Acting Commissary General Weston is in receipt of reports from Manila speaking in the highest terms of the present arrangements in use to supply the army with fresh meats. It is said that the meats which are brought out from the United States or Australia by the naval supply ship Glacier or taken from Australian merchant steamers have been kept as long as seven months in perfect condition. The reports declare that after witnessing the native methods of slaughtering animals and the stock there can be no doubt as to the great superiority of the frozen meats brought by the naval vessels for the army in the Philippines.

Rochester Snow Bound.

ROCHESTER, March 3.—The present unprecedented storm, which commenced in this city and vicinity at 6 a. m. Wednesday morning, continued unabated yesterday. At 8 o'clock last night the instruments at the local weather bureau showed a total snowfall of 40 inches during the past 62 hours. All mails are still very late, and passenger trains are far behind schedule time. But one line of the city street car service was open yesterday.

Snow Shoveler Killed.

MONTREAL, March 3.—The fast Halifax express on the Canadian Pacific while driving through the storm dashed into a gang of snow shovelers who were working on the track at La Cadia, near Farnham. L. PAPER PRICES EXPLAINED.

Superintendent Riley Tells Why the News Stock Is High.

LIVERMORE FALLS, Me., March 3.—The increase in the cost of white paper, more commonly called in the trade news stock, which at the recent session of the American Newspaper Publishers' association in New York was commented upon to the extent that a charge was made that the so called paper trust was responsible for the present scale of prices, has brought an explanation from Superintendent Edwin Riley of the mills of the International Paper company at this place.

At the outset Mr. Riley intimates that the members of the association are not familiar with the condition under which at present the paper makers are laboring. He says:

"They unjustly criticise the International Paper company in their slight advance in news stock. When taken into consideration the stimulating effect of the increased demand in all the lines of manufacture into which sulphite pulp enters, it would not be more than natural to expect an increase in the price of this item. The extraordinary drought has tremendously affected the manufacture of news stock the past six months, and the surplus supply is all exhausted, leaving nothing for the summer output.

"What has made the price of paper so low of late years comes from the fact that owing to the boom of paper in the fall of 1880 it stimulated the building of new mills to such an extent that it was but a short time before the production was far ahead of the demand. This compelled the sale of stock at times at less than the cost of manufacture.

"The drought has not only played its part in exhausting the supply on hand and compelled great effort to comply with the demand, but there have been events of unusual interest, such as the Spanish-American war, the Dreyfus affair, the South African war and the development of our colonial possessions. Moreover, matters abroad have contributed to increase the demand, to cause an upward tendency in prices and to find good markets for our paper.

"Our export trade the past year amounted to over $5,000,000. Not only have those facts had their influence in the advance of price of paper, but have increased the cost of almost every article which enters into the cost of its manufacture, such as pulp wood, coal, iron, stock and chemicals. Last week the wages of the employees in several branches of the business were advanced 10 per cent."

In conclusion Superintendent Riley says that "it would be policy for some people to acquaint themselves with certain facts before making a too hasty condemnation of an enterprise that has been lenient in methods of business."

THE MEXICAN EARTHQUAKES.

Huge Tidal Waves on the Pacific Coast.

GUADALAJARA, Mexico, March 3.—The recent earthquake shocks which were felt throughout southern Mexico caused great destruction of property and considerable loss of life in the remote coast and mountain towns.

The severe shocks caused the sea to roll inland and cover country for a distance of more than one mile from the beach. The tidal inundation occurred three times in rapid succession, and every movable thing in its path was swept away. A number of small coast villages were destroyed, and there was considerable loss of life. The tidal inundation was largest on the Pacific coast, where it extended from Acapulco to Manzanillo.

A number of the mountain towns in the state of Michoacan suffered severely. The earthquake shocks destroyed a number of houses in the towns of Ostula, Coalcoman, Coahuaxara, Agililla and Pomaro. Five persons were caught under the falling walls of Pomaro and killed.

Chicago Machinists Strike.

CHICAGO, March 3.—War is now on between the International Association of Machinists and the Chicago Association of Machinery Manufacturers. As a result of the failure to reach an agreement between representatives of the two bodies to discuss the question in dispute the executive committee of the machinists' association decided to call a general strike of machinists in Chicago, and within 24 hours it is expected that practically every union and many nonunion machinists in this city will have laid down their tools, the only exceptions being at the shops which have already signed the agreement.

Sheldon's Daily In Great Demand.

TOPEKA, March 3.—Postmaster Guthrie has appealed to the department at Washington to allow him an additional force to handle the Sheldon edition of The Daily Capital, which is to be edited during the week of March 13 by Rev. C. M. Sheldon, author of "In His Steps." The force has already been augmented, but as hundreds of orders for the paper continue to be received the local postoffice bids fair to become completely swamped. Every state and territory in the Union and most of the countries of the globe are represented on the mailing list, many single orders calling for thousands of copies.

DONATION FOR GOMEZ

Various Plans to Reward the Dominican Soldier.

SECRETARY ROOT'S CUBAN VISIT.

Insular Press Offers Many Suggestions as to What Course He Should Pursue—Wood Trusted Implicitly.

HAVANA, March 3.—At a meeting of the municipality of Havana a proposal was made to give General Maximo Gomez $100 a month, not as a reward, but as a donation. It was argued that other municipalities would follow suit and that in this way a respectable sum would be raised.

Senor Mora proposed that the municipality should inaugurate a subscription with a lump sum, thus opening the way for subscriptions in other parts of the island. After some discussion the matter was postponed to the next session.

General Gomez says he is going to Santo Domingo on March 10 in reference to family matters and that while there he will arrange other matters in connection with the Dominican republic.

The Lucha, referring to the expected visit of Secretary Root, says: "Mr. Root should consult with the elements of the country to which Cuba owed her former wealth, the merchants, planters and workers generally. He should not consult officeholders or officeseekers. These people are mere parasites and will naturally uphold the status quo. His visit will be an important event."

The Discusion says: "We do not know why Secretary Root is coming, but it behooves the Cubans to ask him clearly and plainly when the promise of the joint resolution will be fulfilled. If he evades the question, then the Cubans should force the American people to interfere by resisting the American administration."

The Patria says: "We neither know nor care to know the reason for the coming of Secretary Root. President McKinley can find out all he wants to know through General Wood, whom the Cubans trust implicitly."

Sbarreti Not Wanted.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—General Jose Lacret Molot and Felipe Perez, Cuban leaders, called at the war department yesterday and had an interview with Acting Secretary Meiklejohn relative to the appearance in Cuba of Bishop Sbarreti. They objected very strongly to his presence there. The callers had an indistinct idea of the limitations imposed upon the general government, and it was with some difficulty that Mr. Meiklejohn made them understand that by the terms of the United States constitution the executive had no power to interfere in such matters, there being no association of church and state, as was the case in Cuba under the Spanish regime.

Pennsylvania Floods.

PHILADELPHIA, March 3.—The flood situation in central Pennsylvania and in the anthracite coal region, which sections suffered greatly from swollen rivers and creeks caused by heavy rains and melting ice and snow, is considerably improved. Reports received from the various flooded districts show that the waters are rapidly receding and that all danger of further inundation is over. There is danger, however, that the Susquehanna river might go out of its banks in the lower counties. At Harrisburg the water has reached an alarming point, and state officials there have taken precautions against a possible flood. There is also much fear at the various points from breaking ice jams. At Selins Grove the river is rising at the rate of two inches an hour.

Oil Pipe Bursts.

WELLSBORO, Pa., March 3.—The main oil pipe of the United States Pipe Line company has burst at a point where the line crosses Mitchell creek, close to the New York state line. The break was not discovered until yesterday morning, when the flow of oil was stopped by the Westfield pumping station ceasing operations. The loss to the lines will reach many thousand dollars. The oil flowed down the Tioga river for 45 miles. In the Cowanesque, Tioga and Canestee valleys the undergrowth is yellow with petroleum, and its pungent odor fills the air for 60 miles. There is some fear that the wasted oil might in some manner become ignited and cause considerable damage by fire.

Germany and the Philippines.

BERLIN, March 3.—The foreign office when questioned regarding the cabled report that certain islands in the Philippine archipelago are the subject of controversy between Washington and Madrid, but were likely to become American, replied that Count von Bulow had accidentally learned of a difference of opinion between Spain and the United States as to whether the islands in question were included in the treaty of Paris and that negotiations with respect to these were in progress. The official said it was understood that the negotiations were being conducted in a friendly spirit, and he pronounced entirely false the report that Germany wants the islands.

Brisk Trade In Coal Lands.

PITTSBURG, March 3.—Interest in the coal industry is still increasing in Indiana county. Last week 38 deeds for coal land were filed in the register and recorder's office by Bigler & Co. of Clearfield. These deeds represent 2,000 acres in Pine township. About $85,000 was paid for the tracts. Weaver & Co. of Philadelphia closed their negotiations for what is commonly known as the Smidinger coal and timber tract and filed the deed for it, which calls for 348 acres at $96 per acre. A mining town will be built by this company in the spring.

Harbor Ice Blocked.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., March 3.—Icefloes now blockade this port, easterly winds having carried the ice along and closed the entire northeast coast. If the present winds continue, no shipping will be able to enter or to leave the port.

Church Class For Military Training.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., March 3.—Rev. David Evans of Grace Episcopal church, who a year ago established a monthly smoker for the men of his parish, has formed a large class of young men for military training.

Russia to Lease a Persian Harbor.

BERLIN, March 3.—A special dispatch from St. Petersburg says it is certain that the Russian government will lease a Persian harbor on terms similar to those of the lease of Port Arthur.

Collecting Taxes.

The collector of Harrison township, Gloucester county, has collected all but $18 of the tax-s due on his books, and he doesn't believe anything short of a financial panic can prevent the payment of that amount before town meeting day. Wherefore several North Jersey tax collectors are thinking of borrowing the rabbit's foot of the Gloucester county man.—New York Tribune.

Here is a paragraph that forms a good topic for discussion in many municipalities of the State. It would be interesting to know just what process this Gloucester county official used in making his collections so nearly equal the amount standing against the taxable property in the municipality he serves. Such knowledge might, perhaps, be applied to Plainfield with good results.

We presume, however, that one of the essential features of this South Jersey official's good record is that he did considerable personal hustling among those who seemed probable to become delinquent with the claims which the municipality held against their property. Doubtless in the performance of his official duties he brought into play the same amount of energy and interest that he would in his own private business. This is what every tax collector should do, but, sad to say, they do not. The average tax collector receives a liberal salary for the duties the law imposes upon him, but they usually regard their work completed when they have received the taxes of those who have voluntarily paid the bill formally rendered to them.

This is not entirely as it should be. A tax collector should not only receive taxes, but whenever possible—and occasion presents itself frequently—he should be a collector in the sense of going among the delinquents and using his persuasive powers to prevail upon those who are slow-pay to "walk up to the captain's office" and settle. At certain seasons of the year this is possible, and it is then that the average collector should strive to avoid becoming a "chair warmer."

There are few towns in New Jersey but what have large sums of delinquent taxes outstanding, but if the men who fill the office of collector performed the functions of their positions for the municipality with the same amount of activity that a private business would require and demand, the condition of the public exchequer would be found to be much better at the end of each year.

Road Improvement.

For several years it has been a matter of pardonable pride on the part of New Jersey to consider the great strides that have been made in road improvement, and no part of the State more than our own, for here in Union county one of the earliest and most successful efforts in the expenditure of a large sum of money for such a purpose was made. It is gratifying to read in the annual report of Commissioner of Public Roads Henry I. Budd that there is a steadily increasing desire on the part of Jerseymen to improve their highways. This sentiment is in no danger of dying out, and within a few years the whole State will be gridironed with permanent macadam roads.

According to the report of Supervisor Budd, through State aid there have been built about 450 miles of hard roads already. Counties, boroughs, townships and other municipalities have constructed as many more. Each year since 1895, when the State began to aid in this matter, the miles of road improved have increased.

In 1895 the construction was 46 miles, in 1896 50 miles, in 1897 70, in 1898 85, and in 1899 about 116, while the total additional mileage petitioned for is 505. For the year ended in October last the cost per mile was somewhat larger than in the previous year, because of the higher price of labor and stone, and delays in transportation due to the shortage in cars. The increase in the State appropriation from $100,000 to $150,000 enabled some of the more enterprising of the counties to build as many miles as the limit of law—one-fourth of one per cent. tax on their ratables—would allow; and this in many cases has brought construction to the point where continuous hard roads over comparatively long distances are available. Among the recommendations made by the Commissioner, an important one is for legislation to regulate the width of tires. It passes his comprehension that the State, after expending at least $4,000,000 in improved roads, should not guard them against destruction by indifferent owners of freight-vehicles. Assembly bill No. 215 at Trenton proposes a rebate in taxes to users of wide tires.

The manner in which the annual reports of the borough officials, which have just been distributed, were printed, was a subject for considerable criticism on the part of the Borough Council at the meeting last night. The printed reports show many glaring errors, one of the most prominent being the figures that show that the street committee exceeded its appropriation by $24. As a matter of fact, the committee has a balance of $342 left out of the appropriation made for the year. The typographical make-up of the report is a veritable botch, the arrangement of the items and pages being such that the average citizen is unable to understand it. The contract for printing the reports was awarded to the News office, but Proprietor Runyon sublet the job to an out-of-town printer. Unless too much political pressure is brought to bear, it is probable that a demand will be made for a reduction in the price which it was agreed to pay for the printing.

What with the corruption of the Montana Legislature in the Senatorial contest and the terrors of the "bull pens" of Idaho in relation to the treatment of striking miners, it would seem that these two western States were in a bad way, politically and morally.

Chancellor McGill is again talking of resigning. The retirement of Mr. McGill from this office would remove from the judiciary system of New Jersey one of the brightest and most astute legal minds that the State has ever been blessed with.

One year from tomorrow the next President of the United States will be inaugurated. In the meantime there will be plenty of arguments and plenty of talk that isn't argument. It will take a careful man to discriminate between the two.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

A bill has passed the House of Assembly authorizing Plainfield to spend $100,000 in the erection of a new City Hall. That town possesses some live men, and it is forging rapidly ahead. New Brunswick should take a long and studious look at Plainfield and then prepare to profit by what it would learn.—New Brunswick Fredonian.

The bill introduced by Senator Johnson, of Bergen, in the Legislature which gives Boards of Freeholders the privilege of asking the county courts to appoint three persons to equalize assessments is attracting considerable attention. In fact it appears to be growing popular and may take the place of Senator Reed's bill, which requires the publication of assessments in newspapers. Mr. Johnson's bill defines the powers and duties of the court's appointees intelligently, and names a compensation of at least $100 and not more than $500, and substitutes the appointees for the Board of Assessors.—New York Tribune.

ROYAL

The Absolutely Pure

BAKING POWDER

Made from pure, grape cream of tartar.

Cream of tartar is refined and powdered acid of grapes, the most healthful and pleasant of all fruit acids.

Professor Prescott, University of Michigan, says:

"I believe that the acid salts of fruits are the most wholesome and important constituents of the food of man. Not all natural substances are wholesome articles of food, but cream of tartar has a high rank as such."

This expensive fruit acid is employed in making Royal Baking Powder because of its absolute wholesomeness, and because of its value as a food substance. Alum would cost but one-tenth as much.

Alum, however, is a poison, which cannot be used in food without endangering life. All cheap baking powders contain it. Think of feeding it daily, as the makers of the cheap, alum powders would, to delicate women and children!

—The regular March meeting of the Board of Education will be held Monday evening, when the committee on site for the new school will probably report.

—Next week Friday evening the annual meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church will be held and officers will be elected for the ensuing term.

—On account of the Sons of Veterans going to Somerville next Tuesday evening to attend a camp fire to be given by Col. Hugh B. Reed Camp, S. of V., of that place, the regular meeting of the camp will be omitted.

—The Volunteer League or Missionary Study Class of the Y. M. C. A. will meet Monday evening. Rev. Daniel Rapalje will answer questions about China, and Stephen Cahoone will conduct the Bible study. All men are invited.

—"Aunt Hetty" Allison has been taken "over the hills to the poorhouse." She is about ninety years old and lived alone in a rickety old house near St. John's cemetery, at Lambertville. Many believed that the old woman had a large amount of money secreted somewhere, although she has lived in poverty for many years.

Opening Sale of WASH FABRICS.

On Monday morning we put place on sale the results of our season's Wash Goods buying. We take more or less pride in this exhibition feeling that it is a showing worthy of the store in every way. The assortment is most extensive and embraces a selection of all that was best from every maker, while the early placing of our immense orders for the four big stores has enabled us to name opening prices that should prove very interesting. Quality considered, no store can sell you lower, few as low In no previous season have wash fabrics been shown in more charming patterns. America has fairly outdone even the cleverest French artisians in beauty of design and quality of cloth. Many of these pieces first shown on Monday are exclusive with us and those coming first will be enabled to select the more choice patterns. We cordially invite you to visit this exhibition whether you wish to purchase or not, in either event it will be worth your time. The price story follows:

Er hat das Fenstergitter seiner zwei Treppen hoch belegenen Zelle durchsägt und ist, nur mit Hemd und Pantoffeln bekleidet, und trotzdem im Gefängnißhofe ein Militärposten patrouillirte, entkommen. Genske ist schon mehrfach aus dem Gefängniß ausgebrochen und wurde deshalb besonders streng bewacht.

Bechelu. Der Krieg zwischen den Buren und Engländern hat zu ganz merkwürdigen Folgen in unserem Orte geführt. An der Eisenbahn arbeitende Italiener unterhielten sich in einem Wirthshause mit hiesigen Burschen über den Burenkrieg. Die Italiener ergriffen im Laufe des Gesprächs die Partei der Engländer, während die Bechelner Burschen für die heldenmüthig kämpfenden Stammesgenossen eintraten. Es kam zum Streit und schließlich zu einer blutigen Schlägerei, wobei Messer, Aexte, Mistgabeln u. s. w. als Waffen dienten. Der Kampf war so heftig, daß die Ortseinwohner durch die Sturmglocke zusammen gerufen werden mußten. Die Burenpartei erwies sich als die stärkere. Die Italiener wurden schwer verletzt, während die Bechelner mit leichten Verletzungen davonkamen.

Die Mannschaft hatte nur noch Zeit, mit geringen Habseligkeiten sich auf das Eis zu retten; sie wurde von dem Eisbrecher „Berlin" nach hier gebracht.

CONDUCTOR: I don't know how I would get along if it wasn't for Ripans Tabules. We men here on the road are always in such a "hustle," and get so little time to eat and have to swallow our food so quickly, no wonder we have dyspepsia. I know I suffered with it for nearly two years before I got "onto" the Tabules, and I was in misery all the time. I constantly had pains in my stomach and chest, and a dizzy feeling about my head. My bowels didn't work regularly, and I felt "mean" all the time. I saw Ripans Tabules advertised so much I bought some, and after taking them for a month felt like a new man. I have a boy who was troubled with indigestion, and gave some to him. They proved to be just what he needed.

EVENING GOWNS.

The Princess Form Preferred—Styles of Decolletage.

The princess form of gown is that which is considered the most elegant for reception, dinner, evening and wedding gowns. It is certainly more becoming to the figure than any other, and the rich materials at present employed for the wardrobe—cloths of exquisite quality, velvet, silk and satin—are peculiarly suited to this type of costume.

The extreme of decolletage is never elegant. The moment the cut of a bodice reaches a point where it attracts undue notice the limit of good taste has been passed. A low cut bodice is the accepted rule for evening functions of any prominence, and it has become a thing past question, but is never carried to excess by well dressed and well bred women. The simpler the material of the gown is the slighter is the decolletage. A fully low cut corsage must be of very rich goods in order to seem harmonious.

Link bracelets, especially those made of connected medallions or square tablets set with jewels, are used as epaulets for evening bodices and are also used to hold up the slight drapery which often forms the sleeve.

The evening gown illustrated has a skirt of dull green taffeta, with numerous small ruffles; over this is a pointed tunic of heavy ecru Irish guipure. The bodice of green taffeta is laid in horizontal plaits across the top of the decolletage, the remainder being covered with guipure which is a little loose at the waist in front. A puffing of green taffeta passes over the right shoulder and a garland of red roses with foliage across the left. The wrinkled belt closes in front with a bow and jeweled clasp.

VARIOUS NOTES.

Accessories and Trimmings of the Fashionable Costume.

A recent novelty is a tight, high collar to be worn with a low cut evening bodice. It harmonizes with the color of the gown or with its trimmings and may be of shirred mousseline de soie or velvet enriched with cabochons or motifs in jewels or metals.

Diagonal flower garlands are again in vogue for decorating evening bodices. The garland is carried from the right shoulder to the waist and is usually of immense roses spangled with dewdrops. Another idea in floral decoration is a large bouquet of orchids, placed at the foot of the skirt at the left of the tablier, a bow of ribbons seeming to fasten it in place. A similar bouquet, much smaller, is arranged at the waist and another in the hair. These flower trimmings appear to greatest advantage on a simple gown. Violets are greatly employed for such ornamentation.

The illustration given today shows a bridal gown of white satin. The skirt has a long train, which consists of two box plaits expanding toward the foot. The rest of the skirt is laid in large side plaits, which are stitched down to within about a foot of the hem. The tight bodice is fastened at the side under a drapery of mousseline de soie, which also encircles the yoke of point de venise and is carried around the waist to form a soft belt. A cluster of orange blossoms is placed at the side of the bosom and another at the waist. Long, fringed scarf ends of the mousseline fall at the left side of the skirt. The plain, tight sleeves flare at the wrists. The collar is of plaited satin, the veil of illusion.

MANY GOWNS FOR MANY OCCASIONS

And Some Women Who Make a Few Costumes Answer for all the Varied Purposes

NEW YORK society women, that is those whose purses will permit —and what really swell society woman is there who has not the necessary long purse—have a gown or several of them, for every conceivable occasion and for every purpose. Does she desire to go walking, she must wear her walking gown; does she go a-driving, she must wear her driving gown; does she go calling, she must of necessity be gowned in a suitable calling gown; if a reception is to be attended, it would never do to appear in anything which could not be classed as a reception gown, and on Sundays all these are laid aside and she attends church in her church gown.

It is quite possible that to the lay mind all of these gowns might look very much alike. There is a slight difference in cut and trimming, but the variety offered in each is so great that nothing but the name can determine to which class the various gowns belong.

The chic tailor-made for walking might well answer for the trifle more elaborate calling costume did not fashion and custom decree otherwise. Either of these might answer well the purpose of a church gown, but again fashion interferes quite as much as though one was to appear at the sanctuary gowned in the decollete toilette of the ballroom. But all this may be as it should be, for it affords a way in which the money of the rich may be kept in circulation and bring comfort to the working classes.

But there is another class of fashionable women to whom this variety of gowns is quite impossible. They may not belong to the very swell set in New York society, but they occupy a niche in the social world that is an important one, nevertheless. They must of necessity make one gown answer several purposes. She must wear it when she goes calling, when she takes her daily constitutional on the avenue, when she attends receptions, and it must even answer for her when she makes her devotions on the Sabbath day. In fact it must be a sort of general utility gown, appropriate to all occasions, and combining many of the features of the several gowns of her more fortunate sister in the swell set.

OF LIGHT TAN HENRIETTA CLOTH.

This same class of gowns is to be found in every city and town in the land where women pay the least attention to the fashions of the day, and description of a few of those I have recently seen cannot be out of place.

With these gowns, as in fact with all gowns of the present, the skirts are the features par excellence on which everything is lavished. The day of the bodice is over for the present at least, and the appliques and other trimmings that are piled upon the plaited skirts are a marvel to even the dressmakers themselves. Especially is this true of the new street and reception gowns on which appliques are used without limit, and as these utility gowns must necessarily pattern after these more or less they are equally rich in this form of trimming. Where appliques are not used silk must take its place, and this dainty trimming may be found on many of the new skirts laid over the plaits in such a way as to reveal the contrasting silk.

One of these utility gowns which I saw on the street a few days ago and stopped to admire was made of a castor satin-faced cloth, and was made a princess with box plaits all around from a yoke trimmed with guipure lace. Each box plait, just above the hem of the skirt, had an applique of green velvet; this same applique was on the top of the sleeves, and pointed revers of a short bolero jacket.

Another that I saw at church last Sunday, and studied when I probably should have been giving my attention to the rector, was of light henrietta cloth. This had four side plaits with a box plait at the back. Each side plait was held down with an embroidered design until within a foot of the bottom where they were flying loosely. The box plait at the back had the embroidered applique on in the same manner.

Another seen on the same Sunday, but after the services were concluded, was a unique affair of light gray cloth trimmed with royal blue velvet. The skirt of this gown was very elaborate, wth a wide band of royal blue velvet in a deep tunic effect. This was finished at each side with a strapping of the gray cloth and narrow strappings of royal blue velvet running in and out through the strappings around the skirt and extending to the bottom of the skirt. The bodice of this gown was tight fitting and of blue velvet shot with gray silk. Four strappings of blue velvet, with pipngs of the gray cloth from the waist line to just above the bust forming a square yoke. The sleeves were of the gray cloth finished at the wrist in deep Vs.

A black gown that I saw recently was of satin and made with side plaits on the skirt. Each plait had a design of sequins and beadwork to within a foot of the bottom of the skirt where the plaits fell loose. A short bolero with the sequins and beadwork to almost cover the front of the bodice, and the upper part of the sleeves, and finished with a high rolling collar.

A pretty and more elaborate gown was made of blue foulard silk. The skirt was in small side plaits, and a double box plait at the back. On each plait was lovely black insertion running up and down to hold the plaits in place until within the customary foot or so of the bottom, where they fell loose. There was a deep flounce of black lace that extended around the skirt, being caught at the sides under each plait. This had a heading of jet applique. The bodice had a tucked front of the foulard silk with a bolero of wide black lace caught in a rounded effect. A deep girdle of blue velvet and a high stock of the same.

England as a Market for American Products

More Than One Half of All Our Agricultural Exports Are Sold to the United Kingdom

WHERE do we sell our agricultural products that we ship abroad? The question might be well answered by saying: "To the United Kingdom."

While we glory in the extension of markets for American products, and point with pride to every shipload that is shipped to new fields, yet England continues to be our staple market, and pays to us more money for agricultural products bought than all the rest of the world together. Nor is this statement the result of an exceptional year, but a statement that can be proven by any year since 1894. During the years from 1894 to 1898 the United Kingdom purchased 54.62 per cent. of all our agricultural exports, while Germany, which comes second in the percentage list, purchased but 13.01 per cent. of our exports in these lines, and France, in third place, took but 6.63 per cent. of our agricultural exports.

In 1898 the total value of American agricultural exports amounted to $858,507,942, and of this the United Kingdom purchased $483,595,105, Germany, $119,425,720; France, $75,327,096; the Netherlands, $41,800,324; Belgium, $36,656,555; Canada, $32,303,892; Italy, $14,632,524, and so on down through a long list of smaller figures.

In the total value of agricultural exports during the years 1894 to 1898 an advance in value from $636,633,747 in 1894 to $858,507,942 in 1898, a gain of $221,874,195, is shown by recent reports of the agricultural department.

The countries of destination that contributed most to this increase were the United Kingdom, Germany, France, Belgium, Canada, the Netherlands, Japan, Italy, Denmark and British Africa.

Our exports of farm produce to the United Kingdom increased $82,588,854 during the five years, advancing from $356,006,251 in 1894 to $438,595,105 in 1898. This was decidedly the largest gain recorded, although the shipments both to Germany and France showed an important growth. In the case of Germany there was an advance from $72,984,382 to $119,425,720, and in the case of France from $41,911,888 to $75,327,096. The gain for the former country was $46,441,338, and that for the latter, $33,415,208.

After these three leading nations, Belgium was credited with the largest increase. Our shipments to Belgian ports rose from $21,801,091 in 1894 to $36,656,555 in 1898, a gain of $14,855,464. The next largest growth, amounting to $11,236,823, occurred in our exports to Canada, which advanced from $21,067,060 to $32,303,892. The Netherlands followed with a gain of $8,943,449, our shipments to that country amounting to $41,800,324 in 1898, as compared with only $32,856,875 four years before. Our agricultural exports to Japan, although much smaller than those to the Netherlands, grew so rapidly that the total gains made were nearly as great. From only $855,251 in 1894 the shipments to Japan rose to $8,969,816 in 1898, showing an increase of $8,114,565. In the case of Italy there was a gain of $6,805,629, our consignments to that country advancing from $10,826,895 to $17,632,524. An exceptionally rapid growth was recorded in the exports to Denmark, which rose from $4,215,159 to $10,276,915, the increase being $6,061,756. There was also an important gain, amounting to $4,786,023, in the case of British Africa, the shipments to that destination increasing from $1,501,834 to $6,287,857.

Among the countries to which American farm products were sent in diminished amounts during the last few years, Spain was the most noticeable. Our agricultural exports to Spain, which were valued at $11,780,487 in 1894, fell to less than $10,000,000 in the years 1895, 1896 and 1897, and in 1898 amounted to only $8,667,186, a decline of $3,113,301 for the five years. During the last two months of the fiscal year 1898 the trade was interrupted by the war.

Our shipments of agricultural products to Cuba also suffered a marked falling off, more particularly during 1895 and 1896. In 1894 they were valued at $9,513,304, but in 1895 they declined to $5,568,738, and in 1896 fell as low as $3,974,875. The following year they rose to $4,678,492, and in 1898 to $6,763,712. The exports for 1898, however, were less by $2,749,592 than those for 1894.

Exports of farm produce from the United States to European Russia showed a steady decline from 1894 to 1898, the value amounting to only $3,302,933 in the latter year as compared with $5,604,806 in the former. This was a falling off of $2,301,873.

There was also a considerable decline in our shipments to Portugal, the record for 1898, which was only $2,640,107, being $1,904,736 less than that for 1894, which amounted to $4,544,842.

The only other instance of a falling off in excess of $1,000,000 was furnished by Hayti. Our agricultural exports to that island during the five years showed a decrease of $1,275,359, dropping from $2,829,214 in 1894 to $1,553,855 in 1898.

THE CORN WE SELL AND WHERE WE SELL IT.

Not only does England buy more than one-half of the total of our agricultural products, but she leads in almost every line. The few exceptions are in the products of minor importance or in lines which forbid of ocean transportation. As, for instance, Mexico buys more live hogs than does England, Cuba buys more fresh eggs, mules and fowls, Germany buys more beeswax and crude feathers, Canada buys more hides and skins, the British West Indies buys more oleomargarine and the Netherlands more oleo-oil. Germany buys more sausage skins, Canada buys more raw wool, the British West Indies buys more bread and biscuits, Germany buys more mill feed, the Netherlands buy more buckwheat, Germany buys more rye and the British West Indies more rye flour and Canada buys more broom corn. But in the other, and more important lines, England maintains so great a lead that a comparison with any one nation would be of but little value.

Of American cattle the United Kingdom took in 1898 378,956, while Cuba, her nearest competitor, took but 40,196; of horses the United Kingdom took 22,129, and Canada, her nearest competitor, took but 9,413; of sheep the United Kingdom took 142,178, while Canada, her nearest competitor again, took but 48,325; of canned beef the United Kingdom took 20,763,131 pounds—the smallest amount in the four years—while Germany, her nearest competitor, took but 5,069,003 pounds; of fresh beef the United Kingdom took 274,183,636 pounds, while Bermuda, her nearest competitor, took but 437,646 pounds; of bacon the United Kingdom took 473,201,692 pounds, while Belgium, her nearest competitor, took but 47,386,442 pounds; of wheat the United Kingdom took 80,163,805 bushels, while France, her nearest competitor, took but 30,041,289 bushels. These items but serve to illustrate the extent of our agricultural exports to the United Kingdom in comparison with our exports to other nations of the world, and prove that England offers the greatest market for our rapidly increasing surplus of agricultural products.

Chicago Is Growing Better

A Striking Comparison of the Old and the New Alderman—Other Stories

Were Boon Companions of Satan.

According to the Chicago Tribune the world and Chicago aldermen are growing better, and it presents figures to prove this; at least to prove that Chicago is growing better, and to the lake city Chicago means the world.

This comparison of the men who compose the Chicago city council of to-day with the men who held the seats in the council 12, ten, and even four and five years ago is quite interesting, even if it proves nothing.

When one looks back upon the municipal legislation of the past it is easy to imagine the class of men who composed the city council in those days. Many of the ordinances still on the statute books of the city were a product of the fertile brain of the men of the council during the days from 1892 to 1897. Schemes of all kinds were proposed by the men who desired to benefit at the expense of the city. Franchises were granted with a free hand to parties unknown to the people, and who had no intention of using them excepting as a means for personal benefit. Gambling of every kind was legalized so far as the city council could do so, and oftentimes in direct violation of state laws.

The aldermanic body in those days did not represent the respectable portion of the city's population. The majority of the men sitting in the city council were of the lowest class of dive keepers and toughs, and their one interest was boodle.

During the years when the gang element was supreme legislation of any kind could be secured if the necessary price was forthcoming. Votes were the stock in trade in the council-room at the city hall, and they sold readily and at good prices.

According to the Tribune the majority of the Chicago aldermen of those days were the boon companions of Satan.

The Alderman of To-Day.

But what a change a few years has wrought. To-day Satan has tucked his tail between his legs and fled from the aldermanic saint who is legislating for the city of Chicago. The imp of darkness no longer finds pleasant company around the city hall; his boon companions of years gone by are waxing fat on the fruits of their labors of former years, it is true, but Chicago has been rescued from their terrible grasp, and is basking in the sunlight of an honest council.

A Model for All the World.

The alderman of to-day in the Lake city poses as a model for all the world. The large checks and dazzling jewels of the past have given way, and in their place come the alderman of the present, garbed in black broadcloth and silk hat, while round his head floats the halo of honesty and truth. He is a superior specimen of the aldermanic species, whose equal is not to be found throughout the length and breadth of the land, even in Gotham.

While prosperity stalks abroad in the land, there is a look of poverty about the Chicago city hall. The "good things" of the past are no more, and while there are still a few of the old reign hanging onto the ragged edge of past history, and hold their seats in the council by the efforts of a machine which has not yet been broken, they are so far in the minority that their votes are a worthless commodity in the franchise market. For doing what little they can to block honest legislation the people of the city pay them a salary of $1,500 a year for a secretary which they do not need and never employ.

For this change Chicago is indebted to the Municipal Voters' league and the Civic Federation.

Unfaithful Policemen.

But while honesty and truth, in the garb of a reformed alderman, guards the treasury vaults of the city in the municipal building, thieves break in and steal of the citizens of the town.

The "Cop" Looks the Other Way.

Chicago is having an unprecedented number of burglaries and hold-ups that are taking place in every portion of the city. The papers are filled with accounts of these, and it is but seldom that the offenders against law and order are brought to the bar of justice.

A few days ago I was conversing with a "plain clothes" man of the city's detective force, and asked him if he could assign any cause for this reign of lawlessness, and who was to blame for it.

"Blame the patrolmen," he replied. "I do not say that every policeman in the city is in league with these thieves, but I do say that on seven out of every ten beats along business streets of the city I could ransack any store I pleased, unless it is protected by a special watchman, and not be molested."

We were standing, at the time, in a store on one of the principal business streets of the South side of the city.

"Do you mean to say," I asked, "that you could enter this store at night without danger of being molested by the policeman?"

"That is just what I mean," he replied, "and this is not an exceptional case, in the least. All that is necessary to do is to look up the patrolman and say to him that you want him to keep away from such and such a place at such a time, and that you will divide the plunder, and in seven cases out of ten he will keep away. Policemen, like other men, have their price, and theirs is not a very big one."

Was Not Popular.

In Chicago local, and even national, affairs are forgotten as topics of conversation, and everyone turns to the English-Boer war.

He Was Not Properly Appreciated.

It seems to be human nature to favor the under dog so long as the under dog has a chance to win, and so it was that when Gen. Buller was getting his daily thrashing while trying to force an entrance into beleaguered Ladysmith, everybody was hurrahing for the fellow who was wielding the lash. But friends slipped away from the Boer cause as the Boers slipped away from Ladysmith when once Gen. Roberts had entered Boer territory.

This, however, is not intended as a dissertation on the merits of the war, but is a little story of one man who wishes he was in it.

A few nights ago I met a man, residing here in Chicago, who wears on his breast the Victoria cross, and who was at one time a captain in the English army. To-day he is metaphorically kicking himself because he is not now fighting under the union jack in South Africa, and I asked him why he had left the military service of England to engage in civil pursuits in this country.

"I did the trick in 1880," he said, "after having served the queen faithfully for a number of years in different places. At that time I was on duty in England, and was one of the officers of the troops that were sent to Ireland to quell the anti-rent riots. The bloody Irish did not appreciate us in the least, and one day after I had assisted the civil officers in evicting an Irishman and his family from his home, the blooming idiot up and hit me in the head with a brick. I was so disgusted with a service that was not better appreciated that I resigned my commission within a week."

The Strikes and Weddings.

It is not often that Chicago girls are interested in the labor troubles in the city, unless it be that portion of the girls whose fathers are members of the labor unions, and to whom a strike brings up the vital question of bread and butter.

The Bridegroom Waiteth for His Clothes.

But at the present time the society girls who rarely read of any of the doings in the labor world, are taking the keenest interest in the lock-out of the tailors by their employers. And this same lock-out brings home to these girls a vital question, for if it continues it will result either in a postponement of several weddings or the special wedding garments of the grooms will have to be renounced as a thing impossible.

What society young woman is there who would care to be wedded to a man garbed in his work-a-day clothes; in the short-tailed sack suit of the business office, instead of the elegant evening dress so long a feature of society functions. Or what society young woman would want to be married to a man garbed in anything that was not made expressly for so important an occasion.

And now it is up to the young men who have brides awaiting their coming to settle the strike of the tailors or lose their brides. Just how they are to do this is a question the girls have not decided, but that they must do it has been settled upon, and it is said the to-be brides are organizing to enforce their decrees.

Cards are out for any number of weddings that may have to be postponed unless this difficulty is soon settled and work on the wedding garments pushed to a speedy completion.

While the fight goes on the public waits to hear of a new union of disappointed to-be brides, and are wondering what effect it will have on the labor world.

MOYOR ANXIOUS TO SEE STREET WIDENED

letters from people telling him that they would sign for the improvement. Among these were Mr. O'Reilly, who owns the property corner of Jackson avenue and Somerset street, the executors for the Peter Wooden estate, and P. M. French.

The Mayor stated further that there were less than a half dozen properties to secure, and if these owners will only sign the work will be much easier and less expensive. He said that those who are practically holding up the improvement are Alex. Thorn, A. B. Thorn, J. P. Homan and Chas. Bock.

He felt sure that the obstacles would be overcome and that the improvement would soon be a reality. On this ground he urged the street committee to put forth a little extra effort.

The Mayor also spoke about the Duer street opening and urged that the necessary amount of $500 be subscribed. The scheme would then be assured. He thought that it is a chance that should not be lost to secure a grand improvement, and he felt as though all directly interested should raise the $500 in a very short time, and he spoke hopefully of the scheme being a success. This brought to an end the actual business of the evening.

Settled Out of Court.

The contract case of Duffy against Krausse, in Justice Mattison's court, was settled this morning out of court. The plaintiff was represented by Francis J. Blatz, of the legal partnership of Murphy & Blatz, and the defendant by S. S. Swackhamer, of Codington & Swackhamer.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

A brakeman employed on the Lackawanna Railroad attempted to joke on the small-pox subject as his train drew into Morristown station yesterday afternoon. The brakeman stuck his head through the door and shouted: "Morristown; sixteen cases of small-pox; don't get off!" The Secretary of the State Board of Health was on the train on his way to Morristown, and the brakeman's remark was reported to the local Board of Health. Supt. DuPuy was asked to make an investigation. The result was that the facetious brakeman was discharged.

The New York Evening World has been conducting a prize contest for the best letters, not exceeding fifty words, setting forth how best to succeed in life. Yesterday it was announced that the winner was S T. Varian, of East Orange. Mr. Varian was a former resident of Plainfield, where he lived for many years. He was once a member of the Common Council, and quite a temperance advocate. The prize winning letter which he wrote was as follows:

Educate yourse f; follow one business; master its details and watch opportunities.
Be neat, punctual, economical, kind, cheerful, courteous, prudent, energetic, ambitious and honest.
Be frank when politic and reticent when essential.
Make friends and keep them.
A good character is the best capital.
A wise wife is a good counsellor.

Last Thursday there was trouble in the office of Tax Collector George F. Brown, on Somerset street, and for a time it was thought that a few pounds of dynamite would have to be purchased to blow open the safe that is used by Mr. Brown to keep his books from being stolen. The trouble was that some of the bolts in the lock had become very much worn in service and they refused to work. However, Mr. Brown felt confident that he could get the safe open and he was persistent in his efforts. Finally, failing to accomplish his purpose, he sent for several persons, in the hope that they might know something about the safe. Among these was Cashier Wm. F. Arnold, of the City National Bank. But after much study and effort he gave up the task as a hopeless one. This convinced Mr. Brown that nothing short of an expert could open the safe, and after reporting the matter to Mayor Smalley, the collector telephoned to New York, and inside of an hour an expert arrived at his office. He worked about fifteen minutes and the safe was opened. He then found that the bolts were worn to such an extent that they refused to work properly. The mechanical part of the safe was taken back to New York, and new parts were brought to Plainfield today to take the place of the old ones.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

Maze Edwards, manager of Music Hall, is still confined to his rooms in the Jackson building with illness. In his absence his assistant, Michael Muldowney, has general supervision of the house while Irving Neighbor looks after the box office. Mr. Muldowney is showing a remarkable aptitude for the work, and is receiving much commendation for the excellent manner in which he is looking after the interests of Manager Edwards and his patrons. It will be a week or more before Mr. Edwards will be well enough to return to his duties.

A large audience was attracted to Music Hall last night in anticipation of witnessing an excellent performance of Nat Goodwin's great success, "In Mizzoura," by the Macauley-Patton company. The audience was not disappointed. The presentation of this piece, which won great favor with metropolitan theatre-goers, by the company headed by Mr. Patton, was all that could be desired. There are many scenes in it which demand strong dramatic ability, but the members of the company were assigned to the cast of characters in such a way that each seemed to be especially fitted for the parts they portrayed. The scenic effects were in keeping with the splendid acting talent, so that a finished performance was witnessed. The company will close its engagement tonight by appearing in one of Mr. Patton's own pieces, "A Texas Cowboy." The company will depart from this city with the reputation of being the best repertoire combination that has ever appeared here. Should they return next season, as it is probable that they will, they will undoubtedly play to big business throughout the engagement.

BEAUTIFUL ROCKS MUST BE SAVED.

Federation of Women Will Lend Their Valuable Aid Toward This End.

A PUBLIC PARK PROPOSED.

MEMBERS OF NEW YORK AND NEW JERSEY LEGISLATURE

Will be Appealed to and Asked to Co-operate With the Women—If the States Will Not Jointly Acquire the Land the Women Will Buy.

With a view of preserving the Palisades on the Hudson, the Woman's Federations now purpose taking a hand. Although a bill has been introduced in both the Legislatures of New York and New Jersey for the purpose of acquiring, by purchase or condemnation, the land upon which the Palisades are located, for the purpose of constructing a public park there, the women do not intend to leave this important question entirely to the slow grind of the law-makers at Albany or Trenton.

The women composing these federations are already active in the matter. The efforts of these women must not be lightly considered, either. It must not be forgotten with what degree of success the women fought the seating of Congressman Brigham Roberts, the polygamist. If the women set their minds upon assisting in saving to the public the beautiful Palisades, they will come mighty near accomplishing their object.

Already the women have set the ball rolling. The various clubs forming the federations of New York and New Jersey are wide awake. They are determined that the members of the Legislature shall not forget them nor rest until they have listened to their appeals. Both Senators and Assemblymen are constantly in receipt of letters and circulars setting forth the request of the clubs. If the women of these States do not prevail upon these representatives in the Legislature to take action this year, they do not abandon hope. Members of future Legislatures will also be seen and the pursuasive eloquence of the fair sex will be brought to bear upon the member from their particular Assembly district.

If the women are not successful in enlisting the interest and sentiment of the members of the Legislatures, it is understood that the women are considering the advisability of raising by various ways the necessary cash to purchase the much coveted Palisades. But, my! what a prodigious undertaking. While the intentions of the good women are of the bett, can it be possible that they seriously comprehend what such an undertaking involves?

When it is known that the value of the lands under water in New Jersey alone has been estimated by the Riparian Commission at more than two millions of dollars, and that the land is held at about $20,000 an acre from Fort Lee to a point about fourteen miles up the Hudson, some idea can be gained of the enormous amount of money it will take to accomplish their desire. Besides, the efforts of the women, though highly laudable, would take years to produce satisfactory results. In the meantime the destruction of the Palisades would continue and before the land could be purchased their beauty would have become so marred as to make them worthless.

The preservation of the Palisades is a matter that interests every resident of New York State as well as New Jersey. With the destruction of the Palisades the beauty and grandeur of the Hudson river, the Rhine of America, will fade into history. This magnificent water-way would simply be known as a highway for traffic and its picturesque features sink to oblivion.

A Convenience to Ocean Travelers.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad has made it a custom for some years of having passenger representatives at New York meet incoming passenger steamers from European ports, and also passengers arriving by its trains, who are going abroad; and, in fact, attend to all business in connection with the arranging for hotel accommodations, sleeping or parlor car tickets and the checking of baggage, etc. Chas. A. Foucart, who is the steamship passenger agent representing the Lehigh Valley Railroad, is always on hand to meet incoming steamers, and will also meet parties on arrival of Lehigh Valley trains, to see to their comfortable transfer to the steamship.

ARCHBISHOP'S APPEAL.

IN BEHALF OF UNFORTUNATE BRITISH AND AMERICAN WOMEN IN PARIS.

Rev. Dr. Travis Lewis Tells of the Efforts to Establish and Maintain a Home in the French Capital.

The Rev. Dr. Travers Lewis, Archbishop of the Province of Ontario, gave at Grace Episcopal church yesterday morning a brief outline, or skeleton as he expressed it, of the great work that has been accomplished in Paris, France, for the welfare of English-speaking British and American girls.

The Archbishop said the work of establishing homes had been founded about fifteen years by Miss Ada Lee, (now his wife). The young women who had gone to Paris from England and America were many of them, he said, daughters of respectable parents, who, through adversity by death of parents or otherwise, had been compelled to earn their living and they preferred to do so where they were not known. Some of them had been lured to the French capital by means of advertisements in the English or American papers which offered them positions with flattering possibilities of success. These in many instances had turned out to be myths or a fraud. In consequence, the unfortunate girl was thrown upon her own resources in a strange country, and became in time stranded.

Bishop Lewis then told how Miss Lee, while in Paris, conceived the idea of establishing a home for these unfortunates. It was brought about in a measure through the suicide of a girl, whose body had been found in the Seine. Miss Lee then began an investigation, and from a shop girl learned that many of the girls did not attend church, as they did not know where to go. She determined to see if something could not be done to better their physical and spiritual condition. From many of the girls she learned the story of their life. At first she assisted them to procure suitable rooms. Her efforts, however, became so successful that when she returned home to England she had her plans formed to establish a home for English speaking British and American young women. A suitable house was purchased in Paris at a cost of $50,000, the money to pay for the same being raised by drawing room entertainments. This home has now more than 11,000 deserving young women. From this home others have sprung up until there are several, and the first efforts of Miss Lee have been crowned with success.

While establishing and getting in working order the home, Miss Lee made the discovery that there was another Christian work that also deserved her attention and that of the charitably inclined—that of establishing an orphanage.

Bishop Lewis briefly referred to the laws of France with reference to marriage. Many English and American girls married to Frenchmen had been deserted and their offspring left destitute in consequence of the laws of France not recognizing marriages outside of that country. It was for the purpose of caring for these orphans that Miss Lee decided to establish a home for them. He said the largest contributors to this home had been a Roman Catholic, the editor of a Parisian newspaper, and a Jew, Baron Rothschild. The last home to be established in Paris was known as the Washington Home, named in honor of the "Father of His Country," because an American was the first to donate a large sum of money toward building it. The home, the corner stone of which had been laid by the Prince of Wales, was in debt to an amount of about $35,000. In this connection Bishop Lewis took occasion to say that one of the peculiarities of the institution was that there were no fancy salaries paid the managers. Many women worked without any pay and in some cases others paid for the privilege of assisting about the institution. Besides having temperance societies and kindergarden features in the home there is also a prison work attached to it and much good had been accomplished.

In closing his address Bishop Lewis made an appeal to the women of Grace parish to interest themselves in the work of helping the home financially by holding drawing room entertainments, etc. He invited all who might visit Paris this summer to avail themselves of the opportunity of inspecting the Home and see for themselves how much good is being accomplished.

In response to an urgent appeal from Dr. Rodman, the rector of the parish, the offertory was liberal and quite satisfactory to the Arch-Bishop.

BRIGHT WOMAN IS DEAD

MISS LENA TOMLINSON, A TEACHER IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Was an Instructor in the Whittier School—Wrote an Interesting and Popular Story a Year Ago.

The many friends, especially the teachers in the Plainfield public schools, will be pained to learn of the death of one of their number, Miss Lena Tomlinson, aged 37 years, who passed away Saturday afternoon at her home, 121 West Fifth street, after a long patient struggle with physical pain caused by a cancer. Until November last she was a teacher in the Whittier School, having come to Plainfield at the request of Miss Bulkley, formerly principal of the public schools. Her home was in Westerly, R. I. She was the daughter of Rev George Tomlinson, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church at that place. He died there a few years ago.

Miss Tomlinson was a person of high educational attainment, but physically she was not strong. She was what is termed an original teacher, and while actively engaged in her school work found time last May to write a story for girls, called "The Triangle," which has since become very popular. Her ambition and individuality were strong characteristics of her short life.

She was a member of the Seventh-Day Baptist church and for sometime past sang in the choir at that church. She was a sister of Rev. Everitt Tomlinson, a Baptist clergyman, formerly of Elizabeth. She leaves a bereaved mother, a sister and three brothers, one of whom, Harold Tomlinson, resides in the borough.

Funeral services will be held from the house tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Interment at Westerly, R. I.

Civil Engineer Dunham Has a Big Job at Wellsville, N. Y.

Civil Engineer F. A. Dunham is in Wellsville, N. Y., where he has charge of improving the main business street of the city, the same being 2,600 feet in length. Bids were received from ten contracting firms February 26th, and the bids ranged from $23,500 to $35,000. The street is to be paved with vitrified brick on a concrete foundation, and will be begun about May 1st, or as soon as the weather is suitable. Mr. Dunham says that the sentiment throughout the country is for vitrified brick in small cities instead of sheet asphalt.

Going Home at Last.

William Cosgrove, the youthful patient at the Muhlenberg Hospital who is suffering from paralysis, left this afternoon for his home in California accompanied by Walter L. Long, son of Dr. M. B. His spine was injured and the lower part of his body was completely paralyzed. It was also found necessary to amputate one leg.

WOMAN FRIGHTENED BY VEILED HUGGER.

Mysterious Man Steps Out From Behind Trees Without Warning.

BRAWNY HUSBANDS MAD.

THEY ARE LOOKING FOR ONE WHO IS SPREADING TERROR.

The Modus Operandi of the Stranger Seems to be to Step Up Suddenly and Give the Lone Woman a Hug.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, March 5—Among the women of this town a reign of terror exists. Prowling in the streets there is a veiled man, who persists in hugging them. Who he is or where he comes from is not known. But baffled policemen and angry husbands, fathers and brothers are looking diligently for him, and he will suffer severely if caught.

Until the early part of last week the streets of the town were considered safe for women at any hour of the day or night. Now a woman must be hard pressed indeed if she goes out after nightfall without an able bodied and valorous escort. Even then apprehensive glances are cast at every tree, for the hugger almost invariably steps from behind a tree or from its branches to bestow his unwelcome attentions on passers-by.

On Friday night Mrs. John Kline was returning home from the store. Her mind was running on household affairs and she had no idea that there was a ruffian near who wanted to hug her. When opposite the home of Frank Vreeland, the chief of police in South Bound Brook, she was seized from behind, tightly hugged and thrown to the ground.

On the same evening Nellie Burke, a pretty girl, on her way home, was passing near Bonney's Woods, when the same man dropped out of a tree in front of her and grabbed her around the waist. Miss Burke screamed and the fellow ran away.

Saturday night a similar attack was made on Jennie Hogan while she was on her way home. All the women give the same description of the hugger. He is a tall man, wearing a long black coat and slouch hat, with his face covered with a dark veil.

None of them got a look at his face, nor did he speak a word.

After Miss Hogan's experience Saturday night James Slattery, a yardman in the employ of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, on his way home met the hugger. He stopped Slattery and peeped into his face, but when an attempt was made to question him he ran away.

Saturday night several men attired themselves in women's clothes and went about in the sections of the town most frequented by the hugger. They are hoping that he will hug some of them, for they have a surprise in store for him.

CONTESTS AT Y. M. C. A.

ATHLETIC AND GYMNASTIC COMPETITIONS ARE PLANNED.

First of the Series Will Be Held Saturday Evening—Others to Follow on Successive Saturdays.

After a lengthy period of inactivity as far as the public is concerned, there will be much happening during the next month in the way of athletic and gymnastic work at the Y. M. C. A. A recent conference between Physical Director C. E. A. Heywood and the members of the physical work committee of the association resulted in the arrangement of a schedule of contests that will occupy the Saturday evenings for five weeks next to come.

The first will be a novice athletic contest, which will continue two evenings. The first night to be devoted to the contest will be next Saturday evening. The contest will close the Saturday evening following. There will be six events that will be included. The contest will be open to those who have not won any medals at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium.

Then will come a novice gymnastic contest on the third Saturday evening which, as the other, will be open only to those who have won no medals.

The next two Saturday evenings will be devoted to an open athletic contest and an open gymnastic contest. They will be open to all members of the association and are likely to bring out some lively fights in the various events.

The physical work committee also authorized Mr. Heywood to make quite extensive plans for the formal closing of the gymnasium for the summer. The event will practically end active class work in the gymnasium. It is planned to have the various classes show something of what they are doing and also to provide an entertainment to be followed by a little supper for the members participating in the gymnastic work.

Last evening the Mt. Olive Baptist church was crowded to its upmost capacity. The pastor, Rev. E. E. Jackson, preached a short sermon on the good old way. The Lord's Supper was observed by two hundred communicants, and the hand of fellowship was given to eighteen new members. Four persons were baptized, making in all eighteen adults as a result of the recent religious awakening. WORK FOR THE WOMEN

SILK PETTICOATS TO BE MANUFACTURED IN THIS CITY.

Crescent Rink Building Rented to New York Firm, Which Will Employ 150 Hands.

Last Saturday afternoon Charles H. Hand, owner of the Crescent Rink building, leased that building to Herzig, Kipp & Co., of 565 Broadway, New York, manufacturers of fine silk petticoats. The members of the firm were in Plainfield last week conferring with Mr. Hand regarding the building. They finally decided to take it and on March 15th will take possession. The firm will employ about one hundred and fifty people, mostly women, and they intend to increase the number of help as soon as possible.

Some changes will be necessary in the building to meet the requirements of the business and these will be made at once. This will bring to a close the dances that have heretofore been held in the rink, and other places will have to be used for these social events. The new firm is a hustling one and their establishment will be first-class in every respect.

INSTITUTED NEW TRIBE.

Great Sachem Newcorn Performed His First Official Duties Thursday Evening.

The first institution of a new tribe of Red Men in the term of Great Sachem William Newcorn took place at Waldick, near Paterson, Thursday evening, when the Hohokus Tribe was formed. The charter list included sixty-five names. The initiatory work was done by teams from the Paterson tribes. An entertainment and banquet was held at the Town Hall that lasted until 5 o'clock next morning. The guests were expecting to leave on a western train at midnight, but the train was five hours late and they had to adjust their plans to fit the circumstances.

GIFTS TO LIBRARY.

Fifty Volumes, Consisting of Books for Children, Presented by Mrs. Wheeler.

A new periodical has been added to the list taken at the Plainfield Public Library. This is "The Automobile Magazine," an illustrated monthly, the best periodical upon the subject now published. It is presented by its publisher, Mr. Hyatt, of Ninth street.

Another addition to the library is the recent gift of over fifty volumes, chiefly children's books, presented by Mrs. Wheeler, of LaGrand avenue. Such gifts are very acceptable to the library, as duplicate copies of popular books are always desirable, and their presentation saves the expending for renewals of money that could otherwise go for new books.

Death of William Leigh.

Somerville, March 4.—Wm. Leigh, an old and respected citizen of this place, died Saturday at his residence on Cliff street, from paralysis, with which he was stricken a week ago. Mr. Lee formerly lived in Brooklyn, and was engaged in the china business in New York. He was an expert china decorator himself, but his right arm became paralyzed about fifteen years ago and he was compelled to relinquish business. He first retired to his summer home near Liberty Corner, but soon took up his residence in Somerville, where he has lived quietly ever since. The funeral will be held at 4:30 p. m. today from the house. Interment Tuesday morning at Liberty Corner.

REPUBLICANS SERENE; DEMOCRATS CONTRARY

Political Primaries for Nomination of Candidates for Borough Offices.

G. O. P. SLATE WAS FIXED.

DEMOCRATS DENOUNCE REPORTS OF BOROUGH OFFICERS.

Full Ticket Named by Republicans — Contest for Office of Constable in the Ranks of the Democrats.

It required about ten minutes for the Republicans of the borough to complete the business at their primary held in the basement of the Somerset street public school Saturday evening. The Republicans and Democrats had arranged to meet at the same hour and place, but the latter gave way to the Republicans who met first. Mayor Smalley called the meeting to order and Former Mayor Charles Place was made chairman. Borough Clerk Frank Rowley was chosen secretary.

The attendance of Republicans was not large; in fact they were not needed, as everything was "fixed." After the call was read the nominations were made. Councilman Harrison Coddington was renominated for Council, and Charles A. Lee was nominated for the position in the Council left vacant by Murray Burtis, whose term has expired.

Joseph Lunger was nominated for Justice of the Peace for the full term, five years, which position has been held by Justice Mattison. Someone nominated the latter to succed himself, but it was soon learned that Mr. Mattison is a Democrat and his name was dropped. Charles W. Taynor was nominated to fill the unexpired term of Justice Crosley, who has forfeited his office by removal from the borough. Alex. Thorn was renominated for Commissioner of Appeal.

N. B. Smalley, Thomas Doud and Andrew Lutkins were appointed a committee to fill vacancies, if there are any. This concluded the business and the primary adjourned.

In the meantime the Democrats began to gather, and by 8:30 o'clock a goodly number were present. Andrew E. Kenney called this primary to order and was made chairman. David J. Carney was made secretary, and Levi Kline and John Bremmer were selected as tellers. Before the business was taken up the chairman requested the Republicans to withdraw, which they did very gracefully.

Frank Krewson and Charles Dresselt were nominated for Councilmen without any opposition. When the nominations for Justice of the Peace was taken up there was trouble. Wm. N. Pangborn and Justice Mattison were nominated, but there was doubt as to who should be nominated for the full term. To settle the question a ballot was taken and each nominee received twelve votes. This required another ballot and Justice Mattison received fourteen votes, while his opponent received ten. Mr. Pangborn refused to accept the nomination for the unexpired term, saying that he would not play second fiddle for anyone. This nomination was left open, as was also the nomination for commissioner of appeal. A. J. Winckler was nominated, but he refused to serve.

While the primary was being held Theodore Ruttan attempted to vote, but Levi Kline objected on the ground that he is a Republican. Some of Mr. Ruttan's friends took offense and insisted on his voting, but the officers would not allow him to. Finally, the chairman asked him if he was a Republican. Mr. Ruttan replied that he was. He did not vote.

The following resolution was introduced:

Whereas, During the entire history of the borough government of North Plainfield law and precedent permitted taxpayers to see for themselves for what purposes the public moneys were expended and to whom paid in annual itemized published statements. The action of the present authorities in suppressing the itemized statement for the past year is unwarranted and creates a fear of uncertainty and distrust in the public mind;

Resolved, That we, the Democratic voters of the borough of North Plainfield, in convention assembled, hereby denounce the present borough authorities for their neglect to perform this simple lawful duty to the taxpayers as unjust, illegal and inexcusable, and one that has a tendency to do irreparable harm.

Resolved, That we demand, as a right, a reform in the system of official patronage and insist that salaried

QUEEN WILL REMAIN

Victoria Decides to Give Up Her Spring Outing.

BOERS RETREATING IN CAPE TOWN

Ladysmith's Critical Condition Revealed—Only Four Days' Full Rations—General Cronje Grateful For Kind Treatment.

LONDON, March 5.—Her majesty has abandoned her intended visit to the Italian Riviera and has decided to remain at home. Her decision to give up her customary spring holiday is accounted another proof of her deep interest in and devotion to the welfare of her people. On Thursday she will come to London for a brief visit, remaining until Saturday, and she will undoubtedly receive a splendid ovation. Her heartfelt, homely dispatches to the generals in the field and her visit to Netley hospital have greatly endeared her to her people.

Beyond the signs of a general retreat of the Boers throughout Cape Colony there is little news from the front. Lord Roberts in his dispatches to the war office thus far published says little, but he is undoubtedly active in some direction.

The Ons Land, the organ of the Afrikander bund, says:

"The Boers will now confine themselves to the defensive, abandoning an offensive policy."

Abraham's kraal, as shown in the war office maps, is a group of three kopjes situated at the junction of Kaal spruit with the Modder river. It is a natural point of concentration, which the Boers could make exceedingly strong, but after the proofs of the mobility of the army of Lord Roberts it may be doubted whether they will make a really serious attempt to bar his advance there.

It is now seen how near Ladysmith was to starvation and the exhaustion of ammunition. The town could hardly have withstood another Boer assault or have held out much longer. The Daily News has a dispatch from Ladysmith which says that the supplies on hand were only enough to provide full rations for four days. The town might have held out another week, but scarcely beyond that.

The war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Roberts, dated Osfontein, Sunday, March 4:

"General Cronje, on behalf of his party, and Commandant Wolmarans, on behalf of 4,000 other prisoners, who have all now left Modder River, asked the British officers to thank me for the consideration and kindness with which they have been treated.

"General Clements reports that his advanced troops hold Achtertang and that railway communication would be opened to Joubert's siding today. The enemy is still in force at Norval's Pont bridge.

"General Gatacre telegraphs that the number of Boers at Stormberg is daily diminishing.

"Colonel Baden-Powell reports that all was well at Mafeking on Feb. 15 and that the enemy's activity was being met everywhere by equal activity on the part of the defenders.

"The position is unchanged at Osfontein, except that frequent heavy showers have materially improved grazing, to the benefit of the horses and transport animals."

The Morning Post has the following dispatch from Osfontein, dated March 3:

"General French made a reconnoissance today and encountered the enemy in force. They were occupying a table shaped kopje. Shots were exchanged, a Boer gun replying."

A dispatch from Cape Town, dated March 4, says:

"The Canadian artillery has just started for the front. The loyalists gave them an ovation.

"At Graaf Reynet, about 200 miles north of Port Elizabeth, some 70 Dutchmen, incited by bondites, attacked with sticks and stones a body of loyalists who were celebrating the relief of Ladysmith. Many persons were injured. The loyalists demand military protection. A similar riot occurred at Stellenbosch, about 25 miles east of Cape Town.

"The rebels of Griqualand, re-enforced by 600 Dutch farmers from the Prieska district, occupied, Kenhardt, 100 miles west of Prieska, after a sharp conflict with the Kaffirs and are now marching southeastward on Van Wyk's Vlei, where there are grain stores."

The Standard says:

"We believe that negotiations for England's acquisition of a port in Portuguese East Africa, giving easy access to Rhodesia, are on foot and are likely to succeed, in view of the turn the war has taken."

A Boer Position Captured.

DORDRECHT, Cape Colony, March 5.—General Brabant's colonial division, after a midnight march, attacked the Boers in a strong position at La Buschagne's nek, on the road from Dordrecht to Jamestown, yesterday morning. The engagement proceeded with vigor, and the Boers gradually retired before the British shell fire from three positions.

A heavy rifle fire was being exchanged where the British engaged the Boers on the right flank.

General Brabant's advance yesterday was most satisfactory. After marching and bivouacking overnight the force reached the strong, intrenched positions which they occupied and now hold, the Boers being on the opposite hill.

The British losses are 6 killed and 18 wounded.

Boers Hear of Cronje's Defeat.

BLOEMFONTEIN, March 5.—The federals have resolved to abandon the territory around Rensburg, and the retreat has been effected under the protection of mounted burghers. It is officially announced that on Feb. 27 General Cronje, with from 2,000 to 3,000 men, surrendered owing to scarcity of food and ammunition. The president is issuing a stirring address to the burghers in Natal who are falling back. The president will return to Pretoria Sunday.

Reconnoissance at Colesberg.

COLESBERG, Cape Colony, March 5.—A reconnoissance with two troops of Australians and two guns found the wagon bridge over the Orange river intact. Fifty Boers on the other side were taken by surprise, and the British galloped to their laager, some miles on the Free State side. Price's command has moved seven miles north of Colesberg. The Boers during their occupation denied themselves rather than see the British wounded suffer.

Prisoners Try to Escape.

CAPE TOWN, March 5.—It is reported that the Boer prisoners while on the way from Paardeberg unsuccessfully attempted to escape from the train. Eleven hundred of Cronje's men have been placed temporarily on board the British steamers Mongolian and Manila, in Table bay. Mr. Cecil Rhodes is here and expects to sail for England Wednesday.

RELIEF NOT EXPECTED.

The Ladysmith Garrison Surprised by Dundonald's Appearance.

DURBAN, March 5.—Correspondents who have returned here from Ladysmith say that the relief came quite unexpectedly. At noon on Tuesday the firing of General Buller's army seemed to recede instead of to approach, and the garrison was consequently depressed. Everybody was startled to hear the garrison's 4.7 gun firing. It had not been used much of late owing to the diminishing ammunition.

On hurrying out it was found that the Boers were trying to remove the big gun on Bulwana by the erection of a derrick. This proved that something extraordinary was happening. The other garrison guns then directed their fire on Bulwana, with the result that the Boers were compelled to abandon the attempt with the derrick. Later on they placed the gun on a wagon, which capsized in a donga.

During the afternoon, whenever the Boers were seen approaching, the British resumed the shelling of Bulwana. About 4 o'clock a terrific thunderstorm broke over the town just after a message had been heliographed from Wagon hill that the Boers were in full retreat.

Other officers said they believed they could descry British cavalry, but most people supposed that the wish was father to the thought.

As soon as the storm ceased the British guns reopened on Bulwana, gradually concentrating the fire on the left and driving the Boers before them, with the object of preventing the enemy from hampering any British approach.

An hour later a party of British horsemen could be seen crossing the flat below Bulwana at a distance of some miles. It is impossible to describe the excitement and enthusiasm among the troops that followed. Most of the townspeople had been driven into the houses by the storm and did not learn the good news until later.

PREHISTORIC RUINS.

May Save Relics Unearthed in Early Mexican City.

CITY OF MEXICO, March 5.—President Marshall Saville, representing the American Museum of Natural History of New York, has left for home, carrying many unique objects discovered by him at ruins near the prehistoric city of Mitla, in the state of Oaxaca. The principal work of the professor was the uncovering of many ancient mounds which were almost inaccessible, as they were overgrown with forests, and a road had to be constructed to them.

Duke de Loubat, himself interested in archæological research, describes the work of Professor Saville as most important. Half of the objects discovered go to the Mexican government under the agreement made previously.

Chinese Reformer a Fugitive.

VICTORIA, B. C., March 5.—Leong Kay Ting, one of the foremost Chinese reformers connected with the movement of Kang Yu Wei for the overthrow of the empress of China and the establishment of a new Celestial empire, is here. He is a brothr of Leong Kay Chew, now at Honolulu looking after the interests of the revolutionary party, who is expected to come northward soon. Like his brother, the young reformer has been a fugitive from China since the notorious coup d'etat of the empress dowager, when Yang Yui fled to Japan. He says that although a posse of 26 has been sent by the empress to kill Kang Yu Wei he has no fear, for, he says, he is well guarded. Kang Yu Wei went to Siam at the invitation of the king of that country to visit that monarch. The British government has furnished him a bodyguard.

An Old Offender.

ELMIRA, N. Y., March 5.—Le Roy Channing Shear, who was arrested Saturday in New York, killed two guards of the army prison camp in this city during the civil war by placing poison in their whisky. He escaped, recaptured, twice sentenced to be hanged and was finally pardoned by the president. In 1892 he returned to Elmira and passed forged checks on the dry goods firm of Dey Bros., then engaged in business here. He was convicted of this crime and sentenced to two years in Auburn prison.

Mr. Bryan In Texas.

GALVESTON, March 5.—Hon. W. J. Bryan spoke Saturday night at Harmony hall to 1,000 people, all the hall would hold. The greatest manifestation of enthusiasm occurred when he expressed the hope that England would be compelled to send many more thousands of men to South Africa. Mr. and Mrs. Bryan and their son left for Austin today, and two weeks later he will leave for Lincoln to be present at the Nebraska state convention, March 19.

New Alaska Goldfields.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 5.—Charles D. Lane, the millionaire mine operator, has just received word from Alaska that a rich gold discovery has been made on Jack Wade creek, near Eagle City, in American territory. Near the richest strikes were found old rusty mining implements, showing that many years ago the Russians who explored the country emptied the rich pockets on the creek, but ignored the scattered fields.

Lord Pauncefote Should Remain.

LONDON, March 5.—The Daily Chronicle, referring to the contradictory reports regarding Lord Pauncefote, says: "We hope it is true that Lord Pauncefote is to remain in Washington another year. We fear there is hard work before the diplomacy of both countries if we are not to relapse into our former unfriendly attitude."

Millions of Famine Sufferers.

LONDON, March 5.—Lord Curzon, viceroy of India, cables regarding the famine in that country that there is no change of any importance in the situation. Relief work is commencing in Madras. It is reported that the outlook is very gloomy. Lord Curzon gives a total of 4,374,000 persons on the relief lists.

Assaulted by a Burglar.

NORFOLK, March 5.—George W. T. Miller, a baker who works at Newport News, and his wife were assaulted by a burglar while asleep at their home in Brambleton, a suburb of this city, and so seriously injured that it is feared one or both of them will die.

BRIDGE WORK

in Dentistry is the best substitute for nature's work that can be done. Sound roots may be built up and crowned and thus fill up an unsightly space. It has to be made of a material that has strength and durability and one that will not discolor. Gold is the one that stands the test. That is the secret of the expense. But the advantages of a bridge over a plate are many times more than the cost of one compared to that of the other.

SOFT COAL AUTOMOBILE.

Motive Power Is Steam Generated by the Combustion of the Cheapest of All Fuels.

An oddity in the motor carriage line is shown in the accompanying illustration of an automobile, the motive power of which is steam generated by the combustion of soft coal. The vehicle is the combined work of George and Peter Harris, of Manchester, N. H., and has already shown its paces on the road.

Two of the strong points of the new vehicle are the steam condenser and the smoke consumer and when in operation under full speed not a suspicion of steam or smoke is seen to escape. In the rear end is a small upright boiler. In order to consume the smoke a cap is placed at the top of the boiler and the smoke, passing into this cap, comes out into a duct, which conveys it directly back underneath the boiler, thus completing the circuit. An ordinary condenser is used. The water tank is the dashboard, while the space beneath the seat is designed for fuel storage, of which a bushel and a half (sufficient to propel the carriage 100 miles) can be carried at one time. It requires 20 minutes to get up steam, but once under way, say the Harrises, there is no danger of a lack of power. The machine complete weighs a trifle over 400 pounds and, with the exception of the tires and balls in the bearings, all its parts were made in the inventors' shop in Manchester.—Chicago Daily News.

ODD MOTOR CARRIAGE.

WORDS OF CAUTION.

How to Manage Handlebars and Pedals When Riding Over Wet and Muddy Streets.

In the moist and muggy days, says an exchange, when a slimy coating of grease too frequently appears on the city streets and renders traffic riding—dangerous at all times—still more risky, a few hints drawn from years of daily street riding experience may not be amiss. And first we urge the man or woman who cycles at this season to pump hard; more so than for summer riding. The reason is obvious. The hard-pumped tire, provided it be reasonably small in size, more readily penetrates the grease and reaches a solid foundation, thus reducing to a minimum the risk of sideslip, whereas the soft and big tire floats, as it were, on the slimy surface, and thereby invites disaster. The rider should make sure that his position a-wheel is right, and pedal evenly at a moderate pace, and steer as straight as possible, avoiding sharp turns. When riding at the side of the street, where there is often a sharp depression, it is advisable to put an extra amount of pressure on the pedal nearest the gutter; this helps to counteract the tendency to sideslip which is there apparent, and to preserve an even keel. Obviously, caution should more than ever be kept in mind, and in a tight place, where no outlet amid the traffic is apparent, the prudent rider will invariably make an immediate dismount.

MOTORCYCLE RACING.

An Exciting Sport Which Promises to Have a Large Following in the United States.

The racing of motorcycles may still be described as one of the sports of the future. The great success of these races in America last season is proof positive that the new sport will have a large following among those people who delight in athletic competition and speed trials, especially when great danger is apparent.

The terrific speed at which these machines whirl around the banked bicycle tracks; the quick, nervous puffing of the motors and the skill and nerve exhibited by the riders who steer and operate them, all seem fascinating and inspiring to the spectator. Capable of railroad speed when pitted against one another, motorcycles are sure to find favor with the excitement-loving public of this country, particularly those who are interested in motor vehicles. The machines, whether tandems or otherwise, are all of the automobile order, and naturally interest the people who proclaim any style of self-propelled machine wheels the vehicle of the future.—Automobile Magazine.

Automobiles in Agriculture.

The automobile, like the bicycle, has come to stay. Its practical usefulness has been recognized much quicker than the wheel, and we do not hear such carping criticism as the bicycle encountered. The latest emanation from the inventor's brain is an automobile plow, which is expected to supersede the mold board implement now in general use, thanks to the greater facility and rapidity of work as well as the considerable saving it will insure. The machine will be so built that it can be operated by one man, and do the work of eight men and 12 horses with a plow. In addition to this it can be used for driving a thresher, shelling corn or hauling purposes. The propelling power will be either gasoline or oil.

Greatest Match Strikers.

More matches are used in England than in any other country in the world. It has been estimated that English people use an average of eight matches each person per day, and annually over 1,700,000,000,000 are burned.

NO CUBAN UPRISING.

General Wilson Sees No Signs of Unrest.

ISLAND'S PROSPECTS VERY BRIGHT.

United States Aid In the Improvement and Care of Farm Lands Is What Is Most Needed.

MATANZAS, Cuba, March 5.—General James H. Wilson, military governor of the department of Matanzas-Santa Clara, in the course of an interview regarding Cuban affairs, said:

"Trouble is absolutely out of the question. The future depends largely upon agricultural prosperity, and where work is plentiful, wages are good and a country is prosperous no sensible man wishes to alter conditions.

"Any person who publishes reports representing the Cubans as preparing a rising does so with a malicious intent to misrepresent them or because he has been led to believe this by those who know better. The prospects of Cuba are very bright. If sugar goes to the United States free or nearly so, there will be such an influx of capital and of immigrants as would render Cuba ere long one of the richest and most prosperous places in the world.

"The cattle industry yields enormous profits, particularly as respects working cattle, which can never be replaced by mules because the peculiar conditions are better adapted to cattle. Coffee, timber and fruit also offer great inducements to capitalists, and tobacco planting yields almost immediate returns.

"I do not consider that the immediate future of Cuba depends chiefly upon schools, roadmaking, improved sanitation or judiciary reform, although, of course, these things are of great importance. The best the United States can do for Cuba and the Cubans is to give every opportunity for improving the value of the land by putting it to the best uses. In this way capital could do an immense amount of good here as well as get large returns. I suggest supplying cattle for working purposes on a time basis, accepting regular rates of interest, which should be about 1 per cent a month. Cattle can be landed here at a cost of $70 a yoke, which, once here, would bring more than $150.

"Large numbers of working cattle are required by reliable and hard working men who are anxious to obtain them. Were I a man of 25, with energy and some capital, I should certainly look up on Cuba as one of the best places to accumulate wealth."

General Wilson says he has investigated the reports that Mr. Drake of Chicago has been endeavoring to foment trouble and has found these untrue. So far as he is able to judge Mr. Drake is an honorable man who is in Cuba for a pleasure trip.

Uprising Predicted.

NASHVILLE, March 5.—Colonel F. M. Gardenhire, a prominent citizen of Chattanooga, well known over the state, has just returned from a trip to Havana. Gardenhire in an interview predicts an uprising on the day of the Havana municipal election, this month. He says, "In my opinion there will be serious trouble in Havana on the day of election. I have several personal friends in Havana, and this seems to be the impression among them. According to a late regulation promulgated by General Wood and other authorities 60 per cent of the voters will be disfranchised. Under the recent order the qualifications of a voter are that he must be able to read and write and own $250 worth of property. This rule was advocated by the Spaniards and the more intelligent classes in Havana. The regulation almost shuts out the average run of natives, and many of them declare that if they are not permitted to vote in the election there will be some throat cutting on election day."

A Nine Hour Day Demanded.

PHILADELPHIA, March 5.—Twenty-five delegates representing the machinists' union in this city and all towns within a radius of 30 miles of Philadelphia have met and decided to make a general demand on June 1 for a nine hour work day. They also decided to demand the abolition if possible of piece work in all shops. It is possible the manufacturers may lock out the men before they formally make the demands. This is part of the movement started in Chicago and may mean a fight between the national association of machine manufacturers and the international association of machinists.

Boom For Sheldon's Daily.

TOPEKA, March 5.—At the close of business in The Capital counting room Saturday night the subscriptions for the Sheldon edition, beginning with the issue of March 13, passed the one hundred thousandth mark, with a bushel basketful of letters unopened. Yesterday an express wagon hauled to The Capital office a load of letters which will require the services of a dozen extra clerks to open and put on the mailing list. It is thought the rush has only commenced.

A Hot Water Railway.

TOLEDO, March 5.—A company of Toledo and Detroit capitalists, backed by Dr. W. Seward Webb of New York, has organized the Toledo and Detroit Rapid Transit company, capitalized at $1,000,000. The company will use superheated water for power and expects to run cars from Toledo to Detroit in an hour. The company has secured almost the entire right of way, and its Toledo terminal will be in the heart of the city. The road is to be completed by Aug. 1.

Newfoundland Cabinet Troubles.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., March 5.—The cabinet of Sir James Winter will probably resign within the next 48 hours. The premier has thus far been unable to make any combination that would enable him to carry on the government for the purposes of the pending session of the legislature. It is believed also that Mr. Bond will be unable to form a ministry from the opposition ranks. A general election is, therefore, almost inevitable in May.

Skating Record Broken.

PRESTON, Ont., March 5.—The world's skating record was broken here in the first heat of the race between Norval Baptie of North Dakota and James Woolner of Collingwood, Ont. The rink is 14 laps to the mile, and Baptie won by 17 yards in 2 minutes 55 1-5 seconds. Woolner won the second heat in 3 minutes 33 seconds and Baptie third and race in 3 minutes 10 2-5 seconds.

FIGHT ON AT ALBANY

Two Houses of the Legislature In Conflict.

MAY BLOCK ALL FUTURE BUSINESS.

Senate Snubs the Assembly, and Retaliation Is Decided Upon—May Affect the Final Adjournment.

ALBANY, March 5.—The conflict between the two houses of the legislature promises the most interesting developments of this week. This conflict was instituted on Friday when Assemblyman J. L. Burnett objected to the consideration of every senate measure and succeeded in having them laid aside. Since the adjournment on Friday an organized combination of Republican assemblymen has been formed which, under the leadership of Mr. Burnett, will prevent if possible the passage of any measure of whatever character emanating from the senate. This is due to a feeling upon the part of the assemblymen that bills originating in the lower house are not given proper consideration in the senate, but are laid aside to give way to senate measures.

One particular instance is cited in the case of the Barren island bill for the abolition of the garbage reduction plant, which was introduced simultaneously by Senator Wagner and Assemblyman Doughty. It is claimed that an understanding existed between the two that whichever bill passed first was to be sent over to the other house and there substituted for the bill of the introducer in that branch. The bill of Assemblyman Doughty passed the assembly with little opposition more than three weeks ago and was sent over to the senate, where it was referred to the cities committee. There it has since remained and still is. On Thursday of last week the cities committee of the senate reported to the house the bill of Senator Wagner identical in every particular with that of Assemblyman Doughty which had passed the lower house three weeks ago. The result is that Mr. Doughty's bill is dead and buried in the senate committee, and should any bill for the relief sought by residents of the vicinity of Barren island pass it will bear Senator Wagner's name, and he will assume all the credit attaching to it.

This is the proceeding to which the assemblymen object and which has led to the revolt which threatens to tie up all legislation until some compromise can be effected, as no bill can become a law until it has passed both houses.

This may affect the final adjournment of the legislature, but the Republican leaders in both houses are still confident that the end will be reached early in April.

Meanwhile some of the most important measures of the session are still slumbering in committee. No important tax legislation has yet been effected, despite the recommendations of the special committee named by Governor Roosevelt and the innumerable propositions submitted by members of both houses.

Archbishop Hennessy Dead.

DUBUQUE, Ia., March 5.—Archbishop John Hennessy died at 2:25 p. m. Sunday. He was recognized as one of the greatest orators and most profound theologians in the Catholic hierarchy and because of his zeal in educational matters was called "the apostle of the American Catholic educational schools." His latest work in the cause of education was the founding of a seminary here designed to be one of the largest in the country. Since he first came to Dubuque Archbishop Hennessy had seen the Catholic church in Iowa increase from a membership of a few hundred to a quarter of a million. Archbishop Hennessy was born in County Limerick, Ireland, Aug. 20, 1825. In 1847 he came to America, going to Carondelet seminary, near St. Louis, where he commenced the study of theology and was ordained priest Nov. 1, 1850.

England's Downfall Predicted.

CHICAGO, March 5.—President David Starr Jordan of Leland Stanford university of California lectured at All Souls' church here yesterday, speaking to a large audience on "The Blood of a Nation." He said that the present century would witness the downfall of Great Britain. He declared that ultimately the people of South Africa would have their freedom. The speaker in emphatic terms asserted that the present inhabitants of Great Britain were a mere shadow of their forefathers in point of brains and health. Mr. Jordan thinks that a nation that founds its destiny on war must reach a speedy decay. He said a great war saps the vitality of the best blood of the nation.

Smallpox at Yale.

NEW HAVEN, March 5.—G. W. Perkins of Grand Rapids, a student in the freshman class of the Sheffield scientific school at Yale university, is ill with smallpox at his room, 409 Temple street. It is thought that he contracted the disease during a visit to New York last month. Ever since last Wednesday, when the first symptoms of illness appeared, the patient has been confined to his room. As a result very few of his fellow students have been exposed to contagion. A complete list has been made of all who have been in the house, and these have not only been vaccinated, but given leave of absence and instructed to isolate themselves.

Santos Free From Plague.

NEW YORK, March 5.—Health Officer Doty has notified the agents and owners of vessels arriving at this port from Santos that on and after today the former stringent regulations imposed on vessels from that port would be removed. Hereafter all vessels from the port of Santos will be permitted to proceed to their wharfs after the usual inspection and disinfection. Health Officer Doty has received advices from Santos that there has been no case of plague reported there during the past 30 days.

Prisoners Revolt.

CAIRO, March 5.—A serious revolt of 70 convicts at Tourah, the great prison near Cairo, nearly involved 500 other prisoners. Blank cartridge having failed to overawe the malcontents, a volley was fired from a window opposite through the window of the room occupied by them. Five of the mutineers were shot and two, it is believed, fatally. All then surrendered and were confined in cells.

Weather Probabilities.

Cold wave, with probably snow; winds becoming fresh to brisk northerly.

TUB TRUTHS.

A DROP of ink will color a whole glass of water. It is an inch of yeast which makes a pan of bread rise, and a single cake of soap containing unabsorbed alkali can ruin a hundred times its cost in laces and fine embroidery. After all, is it wise to take such risks with common soap? Of course you can get along without Ivory Soap. So can a wagon without axle grease—but it goes hard.

COPYRIGHT 1899 BY THE PROCTER & GAMBLE CO. CINCINNATI

M'KINLEY IN NEW YORK.

Plain, Earnest Words at the Ohio Society's Dinner.

NEW YORK, March 5.—In a few powerful, earnest words President McKinley, at the dinner of the Ohio society in the Waldorf-Astoria, laid the ghost of "foreign entanglements."

"We are neither in alliance nor antagonism nor entanglements with any foreign power, but on terms of amity and cordiality with all," he said impressively.

When the president arose, he was greeted with tumultuous applause. It was several moments before he could proceed. He held in his hand a manuscript—a most unusual proceeding for him—indicating that he had prepared his utterances with especial care and that he regarded its accurate delivery as of national importance.

The president said in part as follows:

"Out of these recent events have come to the United States grave trials and responsibilities. As it was the nation's war so are its results the nation's problem. Its solution rests upon us all. It is too serious to stifle. It is too earnest for repose. No phrase or catchword can cancel the sacred obligation it involves. No use of epithets, no aspersion of motives by those who differ, will contribute to that sober judgment so essential to right conclusions. No political outcry can abrogate our treaty of peace with Spain or absolve us from its solemn engagements.

"There can be no imperialism. Those who fear it are against it. Those who have faith in the republic are against it. So that there is universal abhorrence for it and unanimous opposition to it. Our only difference is that those who do not agree with us have no confidence in the virtue or capacity or high purpose or good faith of this free people as a civilizing agency, while we believe that the century of free government which the American people have enjoyed has not rendered them irresolute and faithless, but has fitted them for the great task of lifting up and assisting to better conditions and larger liberty those distant peoples who have through the issue of battle become our wards.

"Let us fear not. There is no occasion for faint hearts, no excuse for regrets. Nations do not grow in strength and the cause of liberty and law is not advanced by the doing of easy things. The harder the task the greater will be the result, the benefit and the honor. To doubt our power to accomplish it is to lose faith in the soundness and strength of our popular institutions.

"The liberators will never become the oppressors. A self governed people will never permit despotism in any government which they foster and defend."

A Tripartite Agreement.

TOPEKA, March 5.—The state central committees of the Democrats, Populists and Silver Republicans have been in secret session here in an endeavor to agree on terms under which a complete union of the three parties may be formed for the state and national campaign. The differences were mainly as to a division of offices. It was finally agreed that the Populists are to have governor, lieutenant governor, auditor, attorney general, state superintendent, congressman at large and one judge of the court of visitation. The Democrats are to have associate justice, secretary of state, treasurer, solicitor and one judge of the court of visitation. The Silver Republicans are to have insurance superintendent and one judge of the court of visitation. The electoral ticket is to be divided between the Democrats and Populists equally.

Destructive Pennsylvania Fires.

CORRY, Pa., March 5.—The tannery known as the Western Union tannery at Spartansburg, with contents, was destroyed by fire yesterday. With no means to fight the fire the citizens had to stand helplessly by watching the only industry of the town being destroyed. The loss is $80,000, fully covered by insurance. A hot journal in the drying room is supposed to have caused the fire. The Corry Opera House, with its entire contents, was also destroyed by fire. The National hotel and the Corry Steam laundry buildings were badly damaged. The loss on the Opera House is $40,000, with small insurance; other losses, $5,000; insured.

Sibley Gives Away His Salary.

FRANKLN, Pa., March 5.—Shortly after the election Hon. Joseph Sibley, as congressman from the Twenty-seventh district, announced that he would divide his salary for his two years' term between the five hospitals in his district. In fulfillment of this promise, the officials of the projected hospital in this city have received a check for $1,000 from Congressman Sibley and a check for the same amount was received by each of the hospitals at Oil City, Warren, Bradford and Kane. At the end of his term each hospital will have received $2,000.

A Quantity of Boer Sympathy.

NEW YORK, March 5.—The Clan-na-Gael of Jersey City held a meeting in that city commemorating the one hundred and twenty-first anniversary of the birth of Robert Emmet. The meeting also expressed sympathy with the Boers and disapproval of any alliance between the United States and Great Britain. Resolutions were adopted expressing the hope that the Boers would succeed in their fight against England and that Great Britain would be driven out of South Africa. Congressman William D. Daly presided.

A Six Weeks' Trance.

NEW HAVEN, March 5.—The medical profession in this city is puzzled over the case of Pauline Fitzgerald, a domestic, aged 19 years, who has been in a trance at the General hospital here for six weeks. When the girl first came to the notice of the hospital physicians, she appeared to be in a sound sleep. Liquid nourishment was forced into her stomach. During her protracted sleep in the institution her condition remained the same.

Better Pay For Tobacco Feeders.

ST. LOUIS, March 5.—The Liggett & Myers branch of the Continental Tobacco company has granted 100 feeders an increase in wages amounting to 31 per cent or $2.50 per week each. It was also announced that the same increase of wages will be given to the feeders employed by the Brown Bros. branch here and other branches of the Continental Tobacco company throughout the country.

Netherlands Minister Arrives.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Baron Geyers, the new minister from the Netherlands, arrived here last night. The post of minister from that country has been vacant for some time, the business of the legation being transacted through the consul general's office at New York.

OUR MEAT IN GERMANY.

Indications Point to a Change In the Present Meat Bill.

BERLIN, March 5.—Regarding the report cabled from Washington that Secretary Hay has received assurances from the German government that the meat bill would be changed, United States Embassador White said that he had no information to confirm it, but that he expected such assurances would be given.

The executive committee of the German commercial convention has adopted unanimously a resolution against the committee's report on the meat bill, declaring that such a prohibition of meat imports would considerably injure meat consumption on the part of a large section of the nation, particularly the industrial masses. The protest concludes as follows:

"We protest on behalf of the industry, commerce and shipping of the German fatherland."

The influential Weser Zeitung points out forcibly that the meat imports at a conservative estimate amount to only 50,000,000 marks, whereas the exports to the United States reach 386,000,000 marks, all of which would be threatened by the prohibition of the bill. It says:

"A tariff would make the British and the Belgians the successors to the German trade with the United States. Moreover, the Americans would develop those industries which Germany now supplies."

New Hampshire Editor Dead.

CONCORD, N. H., March 5.—Hon. John Clay Hill, the oldest editor and publisher in New Hampshire, is dead here after an illness of several months. He was a son of Governor Isaac Hill and was born in Concord Nov. 5, 1821. In 1841, in connection with his brother, William P. Hill, he started the first daily newspaper in Concord, called Hill's Daily Patriot. He continued actively engaged in newspaper work until 1873. At the time of his death he was vice president of the New Hampshire Press association. He was a long time leader in the councils of the Democratic party in this state, and in 1884 was the candidate of that party for governor, being defeated by a small majority by Moody Currier.

COMING EVENTS.

The Newark News is ambitious that the Jersey metropolis should hold an exposition at which may be exhibited the achievements of local industry and enterprise during the past three decades. Newark is one of the great beehives of industry in the United States—her manufactories being the most diversified of any American city—and there is no reason why such an exposition could not be made a grand success. It would encourage Newarkers to greater skill in the manufacturing line, and prove a world-wide advertisement for her products. Such an event would reflect credit not only to the city which would promote and carry it out, but it would be a distinct gain and benefit to the whole of New Jersey. The idea of the News should be taken up and pushed to a successful issue.

The ninth week of the Legislative session will commence tonight. There is now a total of 358 bills before the Legislature—221 in the House and 137 in the Senate. So far only eight bills have become laws, and none are of any general importance. The school salary bill seems to be the only real live subject before the lawmakers. It is stated that a lobby of about two hundred teachers will be in Trenton next week to lobby in its interest. It is not believed that any important laws will be passed at this session, and that the track elevation bills and other such things will fall by the wayside.

Whether it is feasible to acquire the entire Palisades for a State park and deprive owners of abutting lands of their rights under water is a serious question and deserves careful consideration. But to preserve these majestic monuments of nature's handiwork in all their sublime grandeur should awaken the interest of every citizen of both New Jersey and New York. It is a matter that concerns the representatives of both commonwealths and should have the hearty co-operation of a joint commission from the Legislatures of New York and New Jersey. The Palisades must be saved.

The annual report of the State Bureau of Statistics has just been issued. It gives more complete statistics of manufacture in New Jersey for the year just closed than ever before collected. The capital invested in all the establishments reporting is $196,798 843; persons employed, 151,749; the value of materials used, $131,480,197, and the selling price of goods made, $264,274 214. Of all establishments reporting in the United States census of 1890 for New Jersey, the total capital invested was $250,805,700, and hands employed, 134 292.

But little interest was manifested in the political primaries held in North Plainfield Saturday night for the nomination of candidates to fill the borough offices that will soon be vacant. The campaign itself, which will last but a week, promises to be very quiet. However, if the Democrats should succeed in electing both of their Councilmanic candidates, it would make the Council stand divided, politically; but with the Mayor in the chair the G. O. P. policy would be safe-guarded.

No less than 213,000 soldiers have been sent out to the South African war from England and her colonies, and recruited in Natal. During this month an additional 38,800 men will be sent, and in April 17,800 more. This will make a total force of over 270,000 men, the largest body of fighters ever sent to the front by a civilized Nation entering upon an unholy war, against a weaker Nation.

The silence of our esteemed local contemporary about the wide-openness of the town for the last few days would seem to indicate the semi-official spasm of virtue had entirely satisfied the strict idea of municipal morals entertained by its editor. Was there ever such a mountain made out of a mole-hill?

A Trenton concern has received an order for $60,000 worth of school desks for use in the newly-established schools in Cuba. Thus will New Jersey industry and enterprise assist in rejuvenating the Cubans and help to make the rising generation fit for self-government.

It is a trite old maxim that there is "just as good fish in the sea as was ever caught," and it is equally true that the Boers have just as good Generals at liberty as ever surrendered. So look out, ye defenders of the Queen.

The paper trust probably thinks it is in the eternal fitness of things that their sky-scraping prices should cause a rise of thirty per cent. in the cost of Episcopal prayer books.

If New Jersey abolishes capital punishment the sheriffs will have an easy time of it. Now it is frequently necessary for the sheriff to get the hang of things at once.

In relation to the printing of the borough report in such a botch-like manner, the News proprietor doubtless regards a poor excuse better than none at all.

More than $8,000 worth of Kansas mules have been shipped from Grenola to South Africa. No wonder that we hear no more kicks coming from Kansas.

The city of Easton last week by a vote of 3,777 for and 545 against decided that municipal ownership of its water works was not desirable.

In reply to a correspondent The Daily Press would state that the City of Plainfield was incorporated on the second day of April, 1869.

Bridgeton Republicans have nominated a policeman for Mayor. Doubtless he is intended to club the Democrats into submission.

Charity is all very well in its place, but the kind that it is proposed to dole out to Porto Rico is not the right kind.

Col. Bryan celebrated his fortieth birthday Saturday.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Senator Reed's purposed amendment to House bill No. 60 will come up tonight and should be adopted. He seeks to prevent the catching of pike after November 30 and from thence until May 1. The object is to put a stop to winter fishing in Lake Hopatcong, which was stocked for summer fishing. Unless the amendment is adopted visitors to the lake need not encumber themselves hereafter with tackle. There will be no fish in the lake to catch.—New York Press.

GIVES $25,000 TO SEMINARY.

Governor Voorhees' Uncle Helps the Reformed Church's Institution.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, March 5.—The treasurer of the Theological Seminary of the Dutch Reformed church in America has received from Ralph Voorhees, of Clinton, an uncle of Governor Voorhees, a gift of $25,000 for the general endowment of the seminary. Public acknowledgment of the generous gift will be made in a few days.

For some years past a shrinkage in the investments of the seminary has seriously crippled the institution, and it has been reduced to such grievous straits that a general appeal was made to the Reformed churches in the United States for financial aid, Mr. Voorhees' gift is made in answer to that appeal, and is the largest that has yet been received, although the offerings from various individuals and congregations have materially aided the seminary.

—A literary entertainment will be given in Marconnier chapel tomorrow evening, and a free stage will leave from in front of Warren chapel at 7 o'clock.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Scotch Plains, March 5—The Republican primary, to be held Thursday evening in Excelsior Hall, gives promise of being the warmest contest in the history of the Republican party in the township. There have been primaries before in which factions have met and settled their little differences, but this one promises to put the past in the shade. The party differences hang on only one question. Who shall be Freeholder? Ex Sheriff Kyte, of Fanwood, or John Robison, of Scotch Plains? The office of Freeholder covers both township and borough, so the fight is being waged in the borough as well as the village, and there is hardly a Republican in either place that has not been buttonholed and pledged for either one or the other of the candidates.

Both are in the fight to win and with two such leaders of the party working against each other with but one prize—the nominaton—it is needless to say no stone is being left unturned to get the vote out at the primary. Mr. Kyte says he was put into the field by a number of the Republican voters and the candidacy on his part was not solicited, but a demand. He acceded and entered the race. Freeholder Robison and his friends feel as though he is entitled to a renomination, and are working heart and soul to land the prize. Both are very popular with their party and have each secured the highest honors of the party.

Those who are interested in the party have made a number of attempts to have the question settled before the primary, but their efforts have been in vain and the question no doubt will be carried to a vote.

The Democratic voters are standing by smiling at the struggle between the two factions of "the enemy," and are thinking the struggle will be carried by some to the polls and in this way the usual Republican majority of 35 to 40 will be cut down and possibly mean the election of the Democratic nominee, who has not been named as yet.

But the leaders of both factions say the Democrats will be disappointed in their hopes, as both sides of the question have pledged themselves to let the primary settle the matter.

The rest of the ticket, three Committeemen, an assessor, and collector, is to a certain extent open. William Terry, the present Republican representative in the Committee, will seek a renomination. The younger element of the party are pushing W. R. Buckley for one of the nominations for Committeeman. With these two exceptions the interest is all centered on the Robison-Kyte fight for the Freeholder nomination. All interested are anxiously awaiting the verdict of the primary Thursday night.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World

Messrs. Wm. A. Brady and Jos. R Grismer have in "Aunt Hannah" a musical farce-comedy that bids fair to pack the Bijou Theatre, New York, to its utmost capacity until the warm weather sets in. The new coon melody, "Ma Tiger Lily," has captured the town. It had to be sung no fewer than ten times Friday night, and the members of the company were finally compelled to stop through sheer exhaustion. There is a swing and a dash to this song that are bound to make it popular. In addition, it is sung on the stage with novel electric light effects. At times the singers appear like one huge tiger; then the entire stage is one beautiful tiger lily, with every petal and mark of the flower portrayed. These adjuncts help the song materially and are responsible for much of its popularity, but the melody is so sweet and tuneful that it would have been a success without any of the beautiful stage settings. There are many other songs in "Aunt Hannah" that are destined to become the rage, and not a few of the sayings of the comedians in this sprightly comedy are already by-words. Caro Gorden-Leigh, the new prima donna, who made her debut in comic opera in this production, is rapturously applauded after each rendition of the song, "The Old, Old Story." She has a wonderfully sympathetic voice and never fails to elicit several encores. Miss Gordon Leigh also sings a veree of the coon song, "Ma Tiger Lily." Bobby Gaylor, the well-known Irish comedian, has made the hit of his life in "Aunt Hannah."

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

President Kruger has conferred a decoration upon Geo. H. VanSicklen, counsel for the South African Republic in this country, in appreciation of his zeal in furnishing the interests of the Consolidated Republics, which is the official name of the league in which the South African Republic and the Orange Free State are united. Mr. VanSicklen, it will be remembered, is the gentlemen who spoke in Saengerbund Hall in the interest of the Boers. The accounts of that meeting were forwarded to President Kruger through Mr. VanSicklen.

It must be admitted by all fair-minded people that Mayor Smalley, of the borough, is of the tenacious sort, and that when he attempts to make an improvement something is going to happen. His honor is determined that Somerset street shall be widened, and while he does not talk much about it he keeps up a great deal of thinking. He is quietly, but surely, getting signers to the map, and at present there is only a mere handful of people who have not signed. Mayor Smalley would like to have all sign and thus a great expense would be saved to the borough in the way of paying for the work by commissioners.

One hundred Jersey City school ma'ams are about to descend on the New Jersey Legislature to test the influence of their eloquence and beauty in promoting favorable action on the Murphy bill to increase teachers' salaries. It will be a stony-hearted Senator or Assemblyman who can steel himself against this onslaught of pedagogical loveliness—for it may be taken for granted that the delegation will be composed of the prettiest teachers that Jersey City affords. There is but one safe course open for either the married or unmarried members who are conscientiously opposed to the measure. The married ones' safety lies in having their wives accompany them to Trenton upon the night that the delegation is expected. For the unmarried there is nothing but flight. This course may seem cowardly, but the man who can maintain a bold front against corporation lobbyists need feel no shame in fleeing from the attack of one hundred women school teachers.

Opening Sale of WASH FABRICS.

On Monday morning we put on sale the results of our season's Wash Goods buying. We take more or less pride in this exhibition feeling that it is a showing worthy of the store in every way. The assortment is most extensive and embraces a selection of all that was best from every maker while the early placing of our immense orders for the four big stores has enabled us to name opening prices that should prove very interesting. Quality considered, no store can sell you lower, few as low. In no previous season have wash fabrics been shown in more charming patterns. America has fairly outdone even the cleverest French artisians in beauty of design and quality of cloth. Many of these pieces first shown on Monday are exclusive with us and those coming first will be enabled to select the more choice patterns. We cordially invite you to visit this exhibition whether you wish to purchase or not, in either event it will be worth your time. The price story follows:

NEW SCOTCH DIMITIES. Very beautiful patterns and rich value at 15c the yd.

NEW DOTTED MULLS. Crisp and crinkly with all the worthiness of the French weaver at an American price, 13c the yd.

FOULARDINES. A clever weave in exact imitation of the rich Foulard Silk patterns. It's mercerized cotton, sure to be very popular, new this season, 15c the yd.

CABLE CORDS. The favorite Shirt Waist material, new designs for this season. The happy thought of the strong cord lends strength to the dainty, filmy fabric, 15c the yd.

SILK STRIPE CREPON. A beautiful goods of almost lace like daintiness with colored silk stripes of varying width running lengthwise. We predict much popularity for this worthy weave, 25c the yd.

GINGHAMS. "Going to be a gingham year" says every fashion authority. Looks strongly like it, too, from the way they are selling. Exclusive patterns in Zephyrs, 10c yd.

NEW CAMBRICS for waists. A value such as only this store can show at 12½c yd.

PIQUE. We could not get enough last year and the demand is sure to be as strong this season. Plain. Hemstitched, same as the plain with a row of dainty hemstitching running lengthwise between every three or four wales. Mercerized, has a dainty stripe running lengthwise that looks like soft silk, but is mercerized. All designs, 40c the yd.

NEW DOTTED DIMITY. These have all the charm of last season's goods with more strength because the weaver has learned how to make better, 25c the yd.

WHITE INDIA LAWN. Various prices, but everyone represents a rich value of 25 per cent more than today's quotations, 8c, 10c, 12c, 15c, 18c, 20c, 25c, 35c yd.

You know that our minister used to be a practicing physician. He was a graduate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York, and he says of Ripans Tabules that the formula has long been in favor with medical men, but the method of preparation in the present form is modern and a very great convenience. He lately spoke of them to me in these very words: "I always keep a vial of the Tabules upon my dressing-table and use them with confidence whenever occasion arises. For a disturbed condition of the digestive organs I know of nothing so good, and for an 'all round' family remedy I do not believe there is anything better to be had."

WOMEN AS COLONISTS.

Some of the Opportunities Open to Them In Our New Possessions.

BY GERTRUDE HALL FORBES.

Much that has been accomplished in colonization during recent years has been the result of woman's exertion. Women have not hesitated to go into new fields and take up the burdens of husband or brother and in some instances they have even competed with men in agriculture and other industrial enterprises.

Since women have become a recognized factor in the struggle for existence money making has become as great an ambition with them as with men, and new countries have offered to them opportunities which they have not neglected.

With the opening up of new territory in Cuba and the Philippines women have found fresh fields for colonization. It is generally conceded that in whatever line of occupation they may be especially qualified their work will have good influence with the natives and will be an incentive to more useful lives.

The American woman, although the last to fall into the line of colonists, will probably make a better colonist than any of her foreign sisters who have entered the field before her. She is better adapted physically, she is used to traveling and to change of place, and is at home in any corner of the earth. She is dauntless and unrestricted by continental traditions and conventionalities. She has adaptability and inventive genius and will bring them to bear upon the difficult problems of life under new conditions and strange environment.

Some ambitious women who are going to South Africa will establish poultry farms. The native Kaffirs make good servants and are very faithful if treated with kindness. With the thousand acres of land, to be had at small purchase price, farms will prove fruitful and profitable investments.

It is to be hoped that our American women will show themselves strong and noble and prove a real prop to the colonists. The Boers admire women who are independent and able to care for themselves, so very much so that they are able to hold their own among them without any difficulty. The field of the female doctor has not yet been invaded. The South African has an inborn horror for the man of pills and doses, and it would seem as though this field would be a profitable one for the gentler sex, inasmuch as she could win her way by means of her natural gentleness of manner and the favor with which she is received.

Banking could be undertaken there with no mean result. At present in the Transvaal the Boer places his gold in an iron bound box and shoves it under his bed. Many millions lie idle which could be turned to profitable interest if only the proper women with the proper amount of progressiveness would undertake the problem.

In colonization executive ability is more essentially requisite than actual experience in manual labor. Women have succeeded both in trades and in commerce and have made comfortable livings easily and honorably.

Of the women who have ventured to Porto Rico many have contributed largely to the prosperity of the country. The cultivation of spices is one of the productive fields which have been largely developed by a woman. A sugar plantation has been a great success under her management; also a cattle ranch. The pasture lands in the northern and eastern parts are very superior.

A great advantage that women have enjoyed in the Philippines is the rapidity with which land can be made profitable. Rice grows very quickly, and by planting a portion of her ground with this staple article she has been able to give the remainder proper time for developing other products. Plantations given over to the cultivation of fruits and vegetables introduced from more temperate regions grow well and are a profitable production. A fruit canning establishment started on a small basis would prove the nucleus of a large factory. Cattle and poultry raising is another way in which parts of a plantation can be utilized. Women whose husbands occupy themselves in the commercial world might direct agricultural and industrial enterprises.

For other women who seek employment that might be considered more suitable for her sex the field of millinery and dressmaking is open. Both in our new possessions and in South Africa comparatively little attention has heretofore been paid to bodily adornment. It is to be supposed that coming in closer contact with European nations will necessitate new customs and manners among these peoples. The most radical changes will probably be noticed in their costuming. Clever women who are endowed with energy and taste should be able to carve out brilliant futures for themselves and their posterity in any of our new colonies.

At the tea given recently by Mrs. David Hill, wife of the first assistant secretary of state, nearly 200 guests from the cabinet, diplomatic corps and congressional contingent attended.

Mme. de Girante, wife of the secretary of the Spanish commission of evacuation, is one of Virginia's fair daughters. As Miss Eleanor Duval she was well known and very popular in Washington and Baltimore society.

IS A WOMAN'S CHURCH.

First Baptist Sanctuary at Columbus, O., Is as Comfortable as Any Playhouse.

The people of Columbus cannot complain that they have no church as comfortable as the theater. It has for years been a stock complaint among the males of any family that church seats were uncomfortable, and for that reason they did not care to attend Sunday services. They have also said that the air was bad and they were not allowed the same liberty as in a theater if they were uncomfortable they could not get up and go out a few minutes, for there was no place to go except into the street.

Women have also complained of this matter and for years the theaters of the different cities have been a standing reproach to the churches. The comfortable lounging rooms, the convenient dressing rooms, the easy chairs, and the resting spots have all been conspicuous by their absence.

But a church has just been finished in Columbus which is a triumph to those who designed it; they are said to be the women of the church. It is the First Baptist church, and it is unique in its arrangements for the comforts of both the men and women of the congregation, though it must be admitted that the plans are more for the women than for the men.

Looking in the church you would be reminded a little of a theater, for there is a lobby and there are "boxes," fire escapes and a check-room for wraps. There is also that which no theater has—a kitchen and a dining-room; besides these there is a bicycle parlor.

The temple stands on Broad street, three-quarters of a mile from the state capitol. It is placed 60 feet back from the street drive and has a 12-foot driveway on the west and 32 feet of lawn on the east.

The temple is built of a light bluish sandstone and has a red tile roof.

All the social rooms are very completely furnished. The halls and corridors also are finished in colored marbles and valuable hard wood.

PLANNED BY WOMEN.
(Interior of Sitting-Room in New Columbus Baptist Church.)

Looking through the arched openings by which the foyer is connected with the auditorium, one sees first circular rows of quarter-sawed oak pews, divided by aisles, in which a new and striking curve has been introduced, and then the minister's platform, immediately back of which the great organ and the space occupied by the choir of 40 voices, which leads in the singing that is so much a feature in the temple services.

The platform, which is bare of everything resembling the old-fashioned pulpit, its furniture being a comfortable tete-a-tete, a small ebony table and an onyx stand of flowers, is surmounted by an unmistakable proscenium arch and has boxes at the right and left.

These are really retiring rooms, furnished to correspond with the foyer, but the heavy plush curtains that hang in the arched openings permit the spaces to be utilized for seating purposes whenever necessary. The floor of the auditorium has a decided slope to it, as has also the spacious gallery that circles around it, and the further ends of which gracefully swell to correspond with the box effect below.—Chicago Democrat.

The Onion as a Medicine.

Onions are a kind of all-round good medicine. A whole onion eaten at bedtime will, by the next morning, break the severest cold. Onions make a good plaster to remove inflammation and hoarseness. If an onion is mashed so as to secure all the juice in it it will make a most remarkable smelling substance that will quiet the most nervous person. The strength of it inhaled for a few moments will dull the sense of smell and weaken the nerves until sleep is produced from sheer exhaustion. It all comes from one property possessed by the onion, and that is a form of opium.

Excellent Cough Mixture.

Take two ounces of honey, four ounces of treacle, seven ounces of best vinegar, mix them in an enameled saucepan and simmer over the fire for a quarter of an hour. When cool add two drachms of ipecacuanha wine. Take one tablespoonful every four hours. This mixture is particularly good for children.

Chinese Women Are Barred.

Maiwatchin, on the borders of Russia, is the only town in the world exclusively inhabited by men. The Chinese women are not allowed to live in this territory, and are even forbidden to pass the great wall of Kalkan, and to enter Mongolia. All the Chinese of this border town are traders.

Elephants Used as Nurses.

Siamese women entrust their children to the care of elephants, who are careful never to hurt the little creatures; and if danger threatens, the sagacious animal will curl the child gently up in his trunk, and swing it up and out of harm's way upon its own broad back.

THE COUNTESS OF AVA.

An American Girl Caught Up by Marriage Into the Loftiest of the British Peerage.

The countess of Ava, who in all human probability will be the next marchioness of Dufferin, is another American girl who has been caught up by marriage into the loftiest of the British peerage. "Pretty Flora Davis" she was called a few years ago when she presided over her father's house in Washington square, New York. Her mother, the wife of John H. Davis, the New York banker, died when the future countess was a child, and early in life the duties of hostess fell upon the beautiful girl, who may now be called upon to preside over the home of the great Dufferins.

Miss Davis and young Lord Blackwood met in Paris several years ago, when he was attache to his father's embassy and when she was spending a year or two abroad. The marriage was solemnized in Paris in 1893, and Lord and Lady Blackwood removed to London, where they lived for a short time in a quaint house in Cadogan square. They have two little daughters, but no son.

When Miss Davis married the second son of Lord Dufferin there seemed small hope that her husband would ever succeed to the title which his distinguished father had honored so highly and so long. On the contrary all the appearances were strongly against that prospect. Lord Dufferin's eldest son, the late earl of Ava and heir to the title, was young, and in the nature of things it was to be expected that he would marry and displace his brother in the position of heir presumptive, with a son of his own. But the earl did not marry. Whether he was a misogamist or had been severely disappointed in his early affections in such manner as to leave him with an incurable wound, who can say? At all events he passed the age of 37 wifeless. Romance or no romance, he went to the wars in South Africa, and there he found a soldier's grave.

The second son, Lord Blackwood, at once succeeded to the place of direct heir. Up to the death of his brother he had been heir presumptive, and he now assumed the title of earl of Ava. This title, by the way, does not appertain to the heir, but belongs to the marquis of Dufferin himself. It was added to his principal title by the queen on the occasion of the annexation of Burmah to the Indian empire, when Lord Dufferin was viceroy. Ava is the name of the former capital of Burmah, and the city is now partly in ruins. By courtesy the heir apparent uses the secondary title of his father—a custom that is common in the peerage.

Two other sons of Lord Dufferin are now in South Africa. One, Lord Frederick Temple, is in active service with his regiment in Gen. Methuen's march to the relief of Kimberley. The other, Lord Basil, is at the front in the interests of a London magazine. The present earl of Ava has been in the diplomatic service of his country for a long time. He and his wife are now at the Stockholm embassy, and the future marquis will probably continue to work on as a diplomat, in which capacity he has given evidences of that rare ability which has made his father the foremost diplomat of the age.

WINTER-MADE JELLIES.

Excellent Way of Utilizing the Juice Left Over from Canned and Preserved Fruits.

There is always some fruit juice left from canned or preserved fruits. This sirup makes a delicious fruit jelly thickened with gelatine. Heat a pint to the boiling point and pour it over a third of a box of gelatine which has been soaking in a third of a cupful of cold water for two hours. Strain the mixture after stirring it well to melt the gelatine, and put it into the mold. Serve it with a little whipped cream or with preserved fruit and whipped cream. It is an improvement to this jelly if it is made of preserved sirup to add the juice of half a lemon to every pint. Candied cherries, peaches, apricots or other candied fruit may be used as a garnish to molds of this jelly. Bavarian creams are molded in combination with such jellies and make a delicious dessert. A combination of different kinds of fruit chopped may also be incorporated in such a jelly, which is then served for dessert with whipped cream.—N. Y. Tribune.

Best Way to Toast Cheese.

Cut two ounces of cheese into thin slices, put it into a saucepan, set it on the fire, and add one gill of fresh milk; simmer it till the cheese is quite dissolved, then take it from the fire and pour it into a shallow dish; when cooled a little add the yolk of an egg well beaten. Then place it before the fire and brown it nicely.

THE BRIDE'S PICTURE.

A Charming Custom Inaugurated by a Young Woman of a Truly Artistic Turn of Mind.

It is not unusual for the bride who is going away for an extended trip, or who expects to make her home in a distant city, to give photographs to the most intimate of her friends before leaving them.

One such bride, who is given to doing things unique and original, determined to frame the pictures thus given, and to do so in an appropriate manner.

They were to be mounted under glass in the manner familiar to all, and known as passepartout, but instead of the usual mat of linen or cardboard, she used a material which was especially appropriate and one which made frame as well as picture worthy of being preserved among the family heirlooms.

The picture which she gave her mother had a mat of the white satin which had been used for her wedding dress, and across one corner was a bit of lace with which the dress was trimmed.

To a sister she gave a picture also mounted in the white satin, but with a design of orange blossoms embroidered upon it; while the mount for the one given her maid of honor was of the white satin embroidered with a graceful spray of bride roses.

Friends less near received pictures mounted with the goods which had gone to make up the different gowns of her trousseau. The mount made from the material of her "going-away gown" had forget-me-nots embroidered in small scattered sprays, while some of the silks and figured goods were made up plain, being sufficiently decorative in themselves.

In each case the mounted picture was bound to the glass with a narrow strip of soft leather in a shade to correspond with the color of the mount. Upon the back of each was plainly written the name and date of the wedding.

It is needless to state that the gifts were prized as the pictures alone never could have been, and it is safe to predict that other brides will follow the graceful fashion. — St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

CRIME AND PAUPERISM.

American Women Make an Excellent Showing in the Statistical Returns Just Completed.

Four persons out of every 3,000 men, women and children in the United States are either in jail, or out on bail, or are fugitives from justice. Their total number is 90,000, out of a population estimated at 70,000,000.

American women make an excellent showing—or rather, lack of showing—in crime statistics. Only six per cent. of all those who have fallen foul of the law are women.

The sex, says the New York World, is most prominent in what are known as crimes against society, including bigamy. To this class of offenders it contributes 25 per cent. of the total.

The total number of crimes committed against the person, running the whole gamut from assault to murder, are 20 per cent. of the total of crimes committed in the country.

Against society are 25 per cent. of all the crimes punished in the United States, while ten per cent. are miscellaneous ones which it is impossible to classify.

The proportion of the natives to the foreign classes and to the colored class among the prisoners in the United States is interesting. It is surprising to find that less than five per cent. of all the prisoners are colored. Foreigners are much more numerous in the criminal courts, 30 per cent., perhaps, while 65 per cent. are natives.

PAUPERS BY NATIVITIES.

It is recorded that of the total insane in the United States seven per cent. are colored, 28 per cent. are foreigners and 65 per cent. natives. This, of course, does not mean that the number of insane natives is greater in proportion to the population. Judged on this basis the percentage of native insane is smaller than among the foreigners or colored people. In sex there is almost no difference, the women outnumbering the men so slightly that the difference is scarcely appreciable.

In the pauper wards the relation of classes is very different. But 50 per cent. of the total number of paupers are natives, while 41 per cent. are foreigners and nine per cent. are colored. The women are outnumbered by the men in the asylums throughout the country by a ratio of 44 to 56.

The insane come in large proportions from country regions, in spite of the quiet, monotonous life.

Japanese Women Divers.

Over a hundred Japanese women following the profession of divers are found along the coast of Japan. They are from 17 to 30 years of age. Their earnings are not uniform, as they are paid according to the amount of their work, which consists of diving for agar seaweed, sea ear and cucumber.

HARD ON CRIMINALS.

National Bureau of Identification Keeps Track of Them.

Photography and the Improved Bertillon System Have Driven Robbers and Thieves from the Cities to the Country.

[Special Chicago Letter.]

THE superintendent held in his hand a telegram from the chief of police of St. Louis. It contained a description of a man arrested there for working the "short change" game. The St. Louis police did not know him and so they sent to all the branches of the national bureau of identification to see if he had a criminal record.

Superintendent Porteous, of the Chicago office, read off these items to his assistant:

"Height, 5 feet 10½ inches; outstretched arm, 80.01 m.; trunk, 93.01

m.," and so on through the entire measurements.

The assistant went directly to a certain cabinet. He took out a cardboard, on the front of which was a full-face view and the profile of a modest, sober-looking man. Then turning to his chief the assistant said:

"Why, that's Pat Crowe."

Pat Crowe is to-day locked up behind strong bars on the charge of being the principal participant in the $100,000 robbery of the fast mail on the Northwestern road at tower W, 47 miles west of Chicago. His arrest was brought about by this clever system of identification that is now used by the police of nearly all the large cities. It was the same system that identified Frank Spencer, the "hold-up" man killed in a Chicago saloon the other night, as a murderer for whom the Pennsylvania detectives have been looking for 15 years. And so many another criminal has been brought to book by the unerring measurements so carefully filed away in the slides of the cabinets.

With 80,000 criminals in the penitentiaries in the United States, and 25,000 of them being discharged each year, to say nothing of the thousands on the outside of whom no statistics can be obtained, it keeps the officers of the law very busy in their efforts to protect society.

The thief catcher of to-day is not only a good police officer, but he is also a close and careful student of criminology. While, as a general rule, he has little sympathy with the reform idea, steadfastly holding to the old tenet:

PHOTOGRAPHING A FEMALE THIEF.

"Once a thief, always a thief," he is a firm believer in all preventive systems. He would prevent the perpetration of crime in much the same way that the officers of the health department provide against the spread of epidemics. He knows that in cities where the vagrant laws are the most stringent the tramps are fewer than in the places where the law is lax. So he also knows that if the detective force of a city is able and alert, and well officered, the chances of success of the criminal classes are lessened.

Detective work to-day and detective work of some years ago are carried on on entirely different plans. In the old days it was a very easy matter for a criminal, who, for instance, had committed a crime in Chicago, to lose his identity in New York. And it would frequently happen that he would be sentenced for some fresh crime committed in the eastern city without the officers there knowing that he was wanted in the west for another and sometimes graver offense. Then frequently some man or woman would be arrested on suspicion. It would be impossible to communicate with the chiefs of police of every large city in the United States, and oftentimes the person would be released when he might be badly wanted in another place. The old way of offering a reward for the apprehension of a criminal was to send his picture and a description of him to all the large cities. This, of course, involved a great amount of work, and was never entirely satisfactory.

For the purpose, therefore, of facilitating the work of capturing criminals and preventing crime the national bureau of identification was formed. There are nearly 50 cities in the United States in the association. In Chicago, George M. Porteous is the superintendent. The offices are on the top floor of the city hall, where a most perfect system of filing has been arranged. When a criminal has been classed as "professional," which he is as soon as he has committed and been arrested for a penal offense, his picture is taken for the rogues' gallery. This is a far different gallery from the miscellaneous collection of photographs formerly known by that name, which was placed in any odd corner in the police stations. The Chicago bureau has on file 30,000 photographs of active criminals, and its files are simply duplicates of the files of the other cities that belong to the association. Two photographs are taken of each criminal—a full-face view and a profile. These two pictures are pasted side by side across the center of a cardboard about six inches square. Above and below the space of the pictures and on the reverse side are printed instructions with blank spaces for the measurements. Each prisoner when arrested is carefully measured according to the Bertillon system.

The efficacy of this identification system has reduced the capturing and the control of criminals to a science, and it makes it an exceedingly difficult matter for an outlaw to conceal himself in the large cities. The result of all this is that the tactics of the criminals have changed. In former years the criminal in his hours of ease, just after some successful raid or when he was working up some new job, might be seen dressed out in the loudest style, frequenting the city flash saloons and gambling houses. Now he knows he will be instantly spotted, and avoids the cities. The detectives have long been cognizant of the fact that the great criminal classes are turning their attention to the country and the smaller towns much more frequently than formerly. The recent record of bank robberies in small places shows that.

It is not long ago that a little town not far from Chicago was visited by safe robbers, and only a few weeks have elapsed since Charlie Prince, one of the kings of the highway robbers, was shot dead at Quincy, Ill. Every paper contains some account of a train robbery or the robebry of a country bank. The expert criminals are avoiding the cities more and more for their big jobs. They are posing as hoboes on the country crossroads and planning mischief where the chances of detection and capture are not so great.

The result of this will be that the smaller cities will for self-protection find it necessary to join the national bureau of identification. With every city and town in the United States—that is, every town that boasts a police force at all—in the association, the criminal would find his lot a very hard one. This is the ultimate dream of the promoters of the league. It can never be realized in full, but enough cities may join it as to make escape from the strong arm of the law almost impossible.

The measurements and the photographs for this system are nearly all taken at the Harrison street station by experts employed for that purpose. Men and women are photographed and measured alike. In the early days of the system an effort would sometimes be made to distort the countenances so as to destroy the effects of the pictures, but the "professional" criminal never does this now. Long experience has taught him the futility of opposing the law when he is once within its grip. So the system has grown until it has become a most wonderful method of identification. It has enabled every member of the association in distant parts of the country to become familiar at a moment's notice with the most dangerous criminals in the world.

WORLD OF SCIENCE.

New System of Harbor Protection Invented in France.

Automobile Gun Carriages for Use in South Africa—Some Notable Triumphs in the Field of Surgery.

[Special New York Letter.]

A METHOD of protecting harbors recently introduced in France is so complete and effective that it must appeal to those who have the preservation of the coast cities of the United States in charge. It is particularly suitable for use in New York harbor, which has several narrow entrances. It would be impossible for a hostile ship to pass after this system has been put in operation. It may be repeated indefinitely, but three or four sets of torpedoes judiciously arranged would protect the largest seaport. Four blocks of stone are set in the harbor bottom, upon which are mounted four wheels. An endless chain is stretched around these wheels, forming a large square. Along this chain, at regular intervals, about 16 cables are attached, which at their other end are joined to large fish torpedoes. These float below the surface at just the height required for striking an enemy's vessel, but are so arranged as to be harmless and leave the harbor open when the chain is not in motion. But when protection is desired machinery on shore moves the chain continuously and the apparatus is ready for its deadly work. If a ship escape one torpedo in the field of a chain, the progressive movement brings another immediately into its place.

ENDLESS CHAIN OF TORPEDOES.

The Boer war has stimulated the brains of inventors of war machinery to unwonted exertion. Machine guns behind almost any kind of fortification have been found effectual for mowing down the largest attacking forces both of cavalry and infantry, and a great need has developed of some means of protecting gunners within range of the fire of an enemy whom they wish to dislodge.

The armored trains used by the British have given very satisfactory results but, running along a narrow track, are at best only useful for defense. Experts have long been giving their attention towards perfecting an automobile which would serve the same purpose on land that a warship does upon the sea, and which could be easily transported over rough roads or up steep grades. The first to succeed, however, seems to be Frederick R. Simms, of London, England, and he is said to have already secured patents in this country. His engine has two revolving turrets, protected with strong steel plates, as are those on shipboard. A man sits inside each turret and operates a Gatling gun. Below are the men who keep him supplied with ammunition. The car is shaped much like a cigar. No bullet could penetrate its thick sides, which for better protection are rounded so as to deflect all striking missiles. A solid shot from a cannon, if not turned aside, might penetrate the armor. The only real danger to the gunners, however, is from the shock of a shell bursting above or below which might disable or overturn the car.

Science seems not to be very consistent. While some of its devotees are giving all their efforts towards destroying as many as possible of their fellow-beings, others are laboring as assiduously to prolong the lives of individuals. A recent death in Russia furnished opportunity for a post-mortem, a sequel to an operation performed five years ago which was of especial interest. It was done by Dr. Kramtsky, one of the greatest of surgeons. A wealthy reindeer farmer named Poitinkosh, living north of St. Petersburg, was thrown violently from his sleigh. His right thigh, striking a snag, received a jagged wound about four inches long, in line with the femoral artery, which supplies the leg with blood. This artery was exposed and badly bruised. In a short time a bluish tint became visible at the end of the great toe, a forerunner of gangrene. The injured man was at once removed to an operating room. Dr. Kramtsky had been watching the case closely and was prepared with an appliance for a novel experiment.

After an anesthetic had been administered the wound was cleansed and the tissue dissected away from the bruised portion of the artery, which was almost in a condition of disintegration. A clamp was placed upon it about an inch above where sound tisuue began and the healthy portion severed from the diseased part. Dr. Kramtsky then took a small, elastic, colorless tube about five inches long, and of his own manufacture, from an antiseptic case and slipped the end of the severed artery into it to the distance of an inch, keeping the hollow tube collapsed to prevent air from entering. The same process was repeated at the lower end of the artery and the lower clamp removed. The clamp above was now taken away, allowing the blood to stream through. The tube was laid in the hollow, whence the injured part of the artery had been removed, and the pressure of the muscles and tissues held it in position and kept the walls from pouching from the pressure of the blood. The wound was closed, and in 36 hours the toe had regained its usual color. In two months the patient was around as usual, showing no inconvenience from the wound. After his death from pneumonia, examination showed that the composition tube had been absorbed by the blood after being encysted with sound tissue, the latter forming walls for the artery equal in every respect to those which had been cut away five years before.

Another surgical triumph, this time by a dentist, has attracted quite an amount of attention, both because the operation has always been considered impossible, and from the local prominence of the patient, Rev. A. B. Livermore, rector of the leading Episcopal church at Delhi, N. Y., and a graduate of Princeton, '77. About 18 months ago a swelling, accompanied by severe pain, appeared on the right side of the clergyman's face. It forced him to resign his charge. He was advised to go to the Massachusetts homeopathic hospital, where a small piece of the jawbone was taken out for bacteriological examination. He was informed by the surgeons that he was suffering from that rare disease, endothelioma, which attacks the bones of the head in a manner resembling cancer. It causes the bones to decay and disintegrate until the brain is attacked, when death supervenes. It has always been considered fatal. In the case of Mr. Livermore it was believed that he might live six months. He was told, however, that he had one chance for recovery in one hundred if the whole right side of his lower jaw were removed. It was thickened to about four times its normal size. If he survived the operation, he would not be able to articulate plainly or masticate solid food, as there had not been any means found for successfully applying a substitute for a lower jaw. The operation was successful in stopping the progress of the disease, but Mr. Livermore was unable to speak and compelled to live upon liquids as the remaining portion of his jaw sagged. His health suffered and his mental condition was terrible. The surgeon who had removed his jaw consulted a young dentist, Dr. Frederick Freeman, of Boston, in regard to the case. He had already executed some most excellent work in dental surgery.

ARTIFICIAL JAW.
(The Part Inserted Is Represented by Shaded Portion.)

After examining the patient, the dentist made the necessary plaster casts of the parts of the mouth remaining and worked day and night for over a month, trying to make an artificial lower jaw that would perform the work of a natural one. A horizontal rotary movement was demanded as well as the up and down motion. All of the patient's teeth were filed to uniform regularity and those in the lower jaw crowned. Those in the new gutta percha jaw were placed in such a manner as to obtain the best results by contact with the natural ones. The vertical motion was given by a ball and socket joint riveted at the rear of the artificial jaw and the rotary movement by a small bar sliding in a tube attached to this. In November the work was complete, and after a little practice Mr. Livermore was able to speak freely and to masticate the hardest of foods. It had taken four models and a large part of two months spent in a dental chair, unrelieved by any anesthetic, to accomplish this result. Within a week after the new jaw was finally in place the clergyman preached a sermon of thanksgiving in St. John's Episcopal church in Boston. He is now master of a preparatory school for boys in Nashotah, Wis.

The Daily Press Bowling League.

	Games Won.	Games Lost.	High Score
Roselle Casino	13	3	911
Westfield Club	12	6	866
Park Club	5	10	864
Cranford Casino	4	14	863

The last series of games in The Daily Press Bowling League will be rolled on the alleys of the Park Club, this city, Thursday evening. The visiting team will be from the Roselle Casino. Three straight victories for the Parks would result in a tie between Roselle and Westfield, but such a thing is hardly possible, and Roselle practically has the championship at present. The Parks are third whether they win or lose this series.

WHIST

The New Jersey Whist Club team, Messrs. Otis, Aymar, Cameron and Eagles, Saturday won the American Whist Club Challenge Trophy, which represents the whist championship of the United States, from the Scranton team, by the score of 33 tricks to 15. The Chicago Whist Club is the next on the list of challengers, and the match will be played Saturday afternoon and evening.

The whist team of the Park Club will have to put up its strongest game this evening in defence of the State trophy to be successful. The team from the New Jersey Whist Club, of Newark, which is composed of some of the best whist players in this part of the country, will come to the Park Club house this evening as challengers for the State trophy. If the Parks are successful this evening, they will have an excellent show of retaining the trophy against the less powerful teams that follow until the State whist congress is held in April. The winner of the congress will count two regular victories toward the cup.

BASKET BALL.

While the basket ball season does not end for sometime yet, it is now practically over in Plainfield as far as the local Y. M. C. A. is concerned. No more games have been scheduled and there is no likelihood that any will be. There may be several matches arranged for special occasions between teams picked from the local association but even those are not contemplated at present.

NEW TRIAL FOR MRS. MEYER

Prosecutor Erred in Admitting as Evidence Deathbed Statement of Midwife's Victim

Sophia Meyer, a Newark midwife, who is at present in the New Jersey State Prison, having been sentenced in May, 1899, to twelve years' imprisonment for malpractice, will now have a new trial, through a mistake on the part of Prosecutor English, who allowed the deathbed statement of her victim, Mrs. Annie Krause, of Elizabeth, to be admitted as evidence.

Mrs. Meyer's counsel, J. E. Kiernan, carried the matter to the Supreme Court, and on this point won his contention. He says he is confident Mrs. Meyer can never be again convicted so long as the dying declaration of Mrs. Krause is barred.

Since Mrs. Meyer's conviction her male accomplice, who was an important witness, has disappeared from Newark, and the authorities believe he has gone to Germany.

SPECIAL LENTEN SERVICE.

Musical Service Was Exceptionally Fine —Sermon by Father Miller.

The first of the Sunday evening Lenten services were held in St. Joseph's church last night, a large congregation being present. The musical part of the service consisted of Millard's vespers in D flat, with Magnificat by Est. Father Miller preached an eloquent sermon on the history of the Catholic church viewed from a human standpoint, which was listened to with close attention. After the sermon "Pro peccatis," from Rossini's Stabat Mater was sung. This was followed by the Benediction, the congregation uniting in singing the hymns. These services will be held every Sunday evening during the Lenten season.

CAMDEN-TRENTON TROLLEY.

Work of Building the Line Begun at Burlington.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Burlington, March 5.—A force of three hundred men began work on the Camden and Trenton trolley line Friday. The work will be pushed forward as rapidly as possible, and, it is said, the road will be in operation by fall, providing no litigation arises.

The proposed route of the road necessitates the crossing of the Pennsylvania railroad tracks three times, and when these crossings are reached, no doubt an attempt will be made to prevent the trolley from going over the railroad tracks.

YOUTHFUL THIEVES.

Three Children Not Yet in Their Teens Broke Into the Store of Henry Pugh.

Henry Pugh and his family, of West Fourth street, went out for a drive yesterday afternoon about 2 o'clock and did not return until 4 o'clock. In the meantime someone broke into the cellar at their home and entered Mr. Pugh's store, where a quantity of toys, candy, penknives, cigars and cigarettes was stolen. When the family returned home they discovered that burglars had been about. Their suspicion was aroused as to whom had entered their home. When they left early in the afternoon two or three children were loitering about the store, and Mr. Pugh was convinced that they knew something about the robbery.

The matter was reported to Captain Grant, and this morning he went to the Irving School nearby and saw the children. Through them the Captain learned that Gertrude Tabbett and Lizzie Tabbett, aged eight and ten years, respectively, and George Van Nest, aged nine years, were the guilty ones. They admitted having effected an entrance into the cellar through a window and to having taken the articles from the store. Most of the articles were recovered and turned over to Mr. Pugh. Captain Grant has not yet ascertained just what can be done with the youthful burglars, but some action will be taken to teach them a lesson. The girls live on Eighth street above Grant avenue, and the boy lives on Monroe avenue.

TAKEN SICK ON THE STREET.

M. Selbert, the Somerset street jeweler, went to New York on business Friday of last week, and also for the purpose of having a slight operation performed at a hospital. His wife expected him to return home the same evening. He failed to appear and Mrs. Selbert became worried. Before he went away he told his wife that he intended to stop off at Elizabeth and call on Louis Callman, and her first thought was to telephone the latter to learn whether he had been there. She was informed that he did stop at Elizabeth, but had gone to New York. On Saturday no word had been received from Mr. Selbert and a search was made for him.

Roundsman Flynn telephoned to New York to police headquarters. He learned that Selbert while walking along a street in the city he had a hemorrhage and was taken to a drug store for treatment. He left there apparently all right and after walking a short distance he had another spell. This time he was taken to the Hudson Street Hospital, where he was detained.

Saturday afternoon Mrs. Selbert went into New York and brought her husband home. He is now much better except that he feels very weak from loss of blood. Mrs. Seibert's cause for alarm was over the fact that her husband had a large amount of money in his pocket and she feared that he had been waylaid and robbed.

ROSELLE TO GET DOUBLE HONORS.

Mulford Sure of the Highest Average Score in Daily Press League.

TOWNLEY'S CHANCES GONE.

FELL DOWN TO FOURTH AFTER LAST WEEK'S GAMES.

Chauncey D. Smith, of Westfield, Leads in Contest for Highest Average Spares—Captain Smith, of Roselle, is Second.

With only three more games to be rolled in The Daily Press Bowling League, the result is assured. Roselle will win the trophy this year while there is not the slightest doubt but that the prize for the best individual average score will go to Roselle's crack young bowler, Mulford. Three games were rolled in the league last week. W. M. Townley, of Westfield, who was Mulford's closest rival, fell way down and even the poorest kind of rolling on Mulford's part in the remaining games cannot prevent the latter from winning now.

In the individual contest for the best average score, Mulford stands way in the lead with a remarkable average of 189.4 in fifteen games. Townley was next until last week when his very poor showing gave him a tumble from second place to fourth. Sharp, Cranford's veteran roller, is second with 171.7, while Charles A. Smith, captain of the Roselle team, is a close third with 171.2. If Smith makes some high scores when Roselle rolls on the Park Club alleys Thursday evening, Smith is likely to overcome that small advantage and step into second place.

Another result of last week's games was the advancement of Chauncey D Smith, captain of the Westfield team, from sixth to fifth place. He bettered his average by an even point, passing Bates.

Hibbard has heretofore been leading the Park Club delegation but he was way off form last week and fell back from seventh to ninth place while Dr. Thiers by good bowling advanced from ninth to eighth place and now leads the local van. Dr. Thiers raised his average two points. F. O. Ball dropped while Johnson showed an improvement.

According to the rules, it will be necessary to roll fourteen out of the eighteen games to qualify for the individual prizes. Cranford and Westfield have completed their schedules while the Parks and Roselle meet Thursday night to end theirs. The following list includes only those eligible in the individual contest:

	Games Rolled.	Average.
Mulford, Roselle	15	189.4
Sharp, Cranford	15	171.7
C. A. Smith, Roselle	15	171.2
W. M. Townley, Westfield	18	166.8
C. D. Smith, Westfield	18	164.6
Bates, Cranford	15	164.4
Condit, Westfield	17	162.7
Thiers, Park Club	15	162.5
Patterson, Roselle	15	161.8
Forster, Westfield	18	158.8
Hibbard, Park Club	15	157.0
F. O. Ball, Park Club	15	156.5
W. S. Smith, Westfield	17	156.2
Johnson, Park Club	12	153.2
Dumont, Cranford	18	152.3
Shangle, Roselle	15	152.0
Barry, Cranford	15	147.6

In the individual contest for the highest average number of spares per game, Captain Chauncey D. Smith still stands well on top and can hardly be beaten now. He bettered his hold on first place by his rolling last week and now has an average of 5.11 spares per game. Charles A. Smith, captain of Roselle, is second with 4.80. Forster, of Westfield, took a stronger grip on third place, while Patterson and Mulford, both of Roselle, follow in the order named.

Dr. Thiers, as a result of last week's bowling, made a sensational jump from fourteenth place to sixth and now leads the Park Club contingent. Hibbard, who was thirteenth and the best of the Parkites, has fallen back one place while Johnson, of this city, advanced from the tail of the list to thirteenth. W. M. Townley, who was eleventh, dropped back to next to last.

The standing in this competition with the scores is as follows:

	Games Rolled.	Average Spares.
C. D. Smith, Westfield	18	5.11
C. A. Smith, Roselle	15	4.80
Forster, Westfield	18	4.61
Patterson, Roselle	15	4.53
Mulford, Roselle	15	4.46
Thiers, Park Club	15	4.40
W. S. Smith, Westfield	17	4.35
Condit, Westfield	17	4.29
Barry, Cranford	15	4.26
Sharp, Cranford	15	4.20
Dumont, Cranford	18	4.11
Shangle, Roselle	15	4.06
Johnson, Park Club	12	3.91
Hibbard, Park Club	15	3.86
F. O. Ball, Park Club	15	3.73
W. M. Townley, Westfield	18	3.66
Bates, Cranford	15	3.66

WILL G. O. P. HAVE ONE OR TWO CONVENTIONS?

Question As To Whether Delegates and Electors Should be Named at Once.

STATE COMMITTEE DECIDES.

IT IS HOLDING MEETING IN TRENTON TODAY.

Large Expense for Holding Two State Conventions Within a Short Time of Each Other May be Avoided.

In addition to fixing the date for holding the next State convention the Republican State committee, which will meet at the Trenton House, in Trenton, today, will have an important matter before it. The question whether the State Convention to choose the delegates to the National convention shall also at the same time select the electors for the Presidential ticket will be brought up and will probably evoke extended discussion. Hitherto State conventions have been held for the choice of both electors and delegates.

Speaking of the matter yesterday, Franklin Murphy, chairman of the Republican State committee, said in substance that the question was one on which there was a distinct divergence of opinion. Some of the most influential men in the party say that the old method of holding two conventions is the preferable one. They maintain that State conventions are good things, and that not enough of them are now held to please the voters. Their idea is that it is wise for the party to get together as frequently as is convenient for the discussion of ideas and the making of suggestions as to party policy, and that such an interchange of opinions is productive of good results. They think that it would be a mistake to choose the electoral ticket at the same time that the delegates to the National convention are chosen. Other Republicans quite as distinguished and quite as much interested in the success of the party think it would be wise to choose the electors at the regular State convention, so as to do the work which now requires two conventions in one. They argue that it is a burden of large expense to hold two conventions, and point to the fact that the cost of holding the primaries for one convention in Essex county alone is $1,200, to say nothing of the expense of attendance.

This condition of expense prevails in Camden, Hudson, Mercer and Union more largely than elsewhere, but in the smaller counties is as burdensome in the ratio of population. Hence, it is plain that prominent members of the party do not agree upon this matter. Speaking for himself, Mr. Murphy thought there was something to say on both sides of the question, and that it would probably be said at Trenton today. He was not clear in his own mind as yet as to which course would be the better one, but if he should reach a personal opinion he was willing to let the majority determine the matter as it should think best, as he supposed everybody else was. That was the rule in the Republican party, and that it was a good rule all were agreed.

MAY BOYCOTT COMMENCEMENTS.

That is the Talk Among Under-Graduates in Rutgers College.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, March 6—The difficulty between President Austin Scott and Professor Edgar S. Shumway, of Rutgers College, which resulted in the latter tendering his resignation and the alumni taking up the matter in behalf of the professor, assumed a new phase yesterday, and it is said that unless the board of trustees decides to retain the professor the under graduates will boycott the commencements.

The board of trustees will meet today and their action will depend largely upon the report made by a committee.

Stephenson, caterer, of North avenue, and was at the time of his death president of the Home Bank, of New York. For many years he was State Emigrant Commissioner, being appointed to that position by Governor Dix in 1873. He was born in New York December 14th, 1825, and in his boyhood days was a messenger in the Bulls Head Bank, in that city. In politics he was a Republican, always taking an active part in National, State as well as local campaigns.

Gus Force, of East Front street, spent Sunday in Newark.

NOTHING NEW ABOUT THE HIGH SCHOOL.

Committees of Board of Education Have Done Nothing mportant as Yet.

EASTER VACATION ALLOWED

MEDICAL INSPECTOR EXAMINED 54 PUPILS DURING FEBRUARY.

Board Was in Session Only Eighteen Minutes After the Executive Meeting—Bills Were Audited.

Previous to last night's meeting of the Board of Education those members who were in attendance—Messrs. Lovell, Richards and Lounsbury—held a conference behind closed doors and the reporters were excluded. At 8:30 o'clock the reporters were requested by Clerk Clark to come in and represent the public at the routine business that was transacted. The business before the Board in open session lasted exactly eighteen minutes. It consisted of the reading, auditing and ordering paid a large batch of bills and the announcement that the medical inspector had examined 54 pupils during February. Also that $1 002 04 had been received from taxes for February.

The only interesting subject discussed was a petition from the High School pupils praying for a vacation at Easter. Mr. Richards favored granting a vacation to all schools at Easter, as did also Mr. Lovell and Supt. Maxson. Mr. Lounsbury said he was opposed to the vacation and did not think the school schedule as arranged by the Board should be changed. Upon motion of Mr. Richards it was decided to close the schools from April 13th to April 23d. Mr. Lounsbury voted against the motion.

Mr. Abbott, chairman of the committee on purchasing a site for the new High School building, not being present, no report was made. Mr Lounsbury, a member of that committee, said there was nothing to report.

Mr. Lovell, from the committee on architects, said that his committee had not yet held a meeting and therefore had nothing to report.

No further business being before the Board a motion to adjourn was being entertained by chairman Lovell when President Probasco entered the room and took his seat. Mr. Probasco said he had nothing to offer. The Board then adjourned, the reporters returning and leaving the members seated around the long table.

BLORE DECIDED AGAINST.

Court of Errors and Appeals Decides That Former Jail Warden is Not Entitled to Salary Claims.

The case of Warden Blore against the Freeholders of Union county for salary during the time Mr. Blore held on to the county jail before Warden Dodd succeeded in ousting him from office, was decided on appeal yesterday in the Court of Errors and Appeals Mr. Blore had won in the Union Circuit Court, and the Freeholders took the case up. The appeal was won by the Freeholders. The decision reverses the judgment below and gives judgment against Mr. Blore with costs. The successful counsel in this case were W. R. Codington and Craig A. Marsh. Mr. Blore was represented by Lindabury, Dupue and Faulks.

Completing Macadamizing Now.

C. M. Meeker, who had the contract to macadamize West Third and Fourth streets, who was obliged to stop the work last fall on account of the severe cold weather, is now completing the work. He had a gang of men working on West Third street yesterday filling in the ruts along the street. He proposes to keep at the work until it is completed and a first class job is done.

Bought a Valuable Lot.

A very important sale of property was recorded yesterday when Richard Henry Depew, of Ninth street, purchased a strip of land in Woodland Park, 150x250 through the S. D. Drake Realty Company. This is one of the most valuable strips in that park and Mr. Depew intends to erect thereon a handsome dwelling. The price stipulated in the deed is $4 500.

This evening a musical and literary entertainment will be given at Marconnier chapel, Oak Tree Plainfield talent will entertain. A free stage will leave from 26 Chatham street at 7 o'clock, and the corner of Front street and Park avenue at 7:10 o'clock sharp. CYCLE THIEVES AROUND.

TWO WHEELS BOLDLY STOLEN YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

One Taken From a Porch—The Other Stolen From in Rear of West Eighth street House.

A bicycle quietly disappeared from the piazza of the home of Miss Ada Marsh, Franklin place, yesterday afternoon, and the police have so far been unable to find any trace of it. The bicycle was the property of the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E H. Booth, 930 Central avenue. She went to Miss Marsh's home yesterday afternoon to take a music lesson and left the wheel on the piazza. The thief evidently walked of with the bicycle in broad daylight, but no one saw him and no trace has yet been found. The matter was reported to the police. A reward is offered for the return of the wheel.

Another bicycle mysteriously disappeared from the rear of the residence of John F. Harman, West Eighth street, during the afternoon. It was probably the work of the same thief. The young son of Mr. and Mrs. Townsend Rushmore, West Eighth street, received a new wheel as a gift from his father only a week ago. He went down to see Mr. Harman's sons and left his new wheel with theirs in the rear of the premises. When he came to look for it later, the new wheel was gone while the other two remained. It was a LeRoy wheel, enameled in green and equipped with cyclometer and electric bell. The theft was reported to the police who are on the lookout for the thief.

PUSHING TROLLEY WORK

WORK ON ARLINGTON AVENUE TO COMMENCE IN A MONTH.

Civil Engineer VanEmburgh Establishing the Grade Lines—Rahway Extension Work.

H. C. VanEmburgh, surveyor for the Plainfield Street Railway Company, is now busily engaged in looking after the preliminary work on the Arlington avenue route in establishing the grade lines. The work of fixing the grade is slight on this line, and it will be completed in a few days. The company believe that they will be able to commence work on Arlington avenue within a month's time. It will then be pushed rapidly toward completion. The company has assurances that they can have the necessary material by that time.

Regarding the line to Rahway it is expected that the work will be commenced within a few weeks. The preliminary work of establishing grades between Westfield and Rahway is now being done, and this will require a few weeks. The line will run along Central avenue to Bloodgood's Mills, and from there will take an almost straight line to Rahway. It is possible that this line will be extended to Perth Amboy and so along the Jersey coast. As soon as the work is started it will be vigorously pushed toward completion. The company is anxious to get to work on both of these extensions and finish them as soon as possible. It will not require a great deal of time to complete the Arlington avenue line and before midsummer is reached Plainfielders should be riding over that route.

Court Watchung House Warming.

Court Watchung, No. 3871, Independent Order of Foresters, will have a house-warming Thursday evening in their new rooms, G. A. R. Hall. A smoker and entertainment has been arranged for the members and their friends and the members of Court Plainfield and Dunellen. A feature of the affair will be the singing by William Holmes, baritone. The dignitaries who will be present include the High Chief Ranger, and Past Chief Ranger George W. Childs, of Elizabeth, and Charles McBride, editor of the Elizabeth Journal.

A Laughable Entertainment.

One of the most laughable entertainments of the season will take place Thursday evening next at the Y. M. C. A. Hall. It will be called an "Old Maids Convention," and it will be presented by a number of well-known Plainfield women. All who attend the affair will never regret it and by so doing they will assist a worthy charity. The price of admission is nominal thus giving all an opportunity of enjoying a fine entertainment.

Industrial Plant for Rahway.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Rahway, March 6—Several manufacturers visited this city yesterday and practically decided to locate their factory near the Perth Amboy junction of the Pennsylvania Railroad. They are said to represent a western hollow woodenware firm, and that 500 hands are to be employed in this new eastern branch.

It is Alleged That He Has Not Cared for His Family as He Could and Should Have for Sometime Past.

Husband gone and wife and three little children left to starve. That is the present situation in the household of Peter Reuter, in the rear of the upper floor of 312 East Fourth street. Mrs. Reuter and her children are still there, but Mr. Reuter left the house Sunday morning and has not returned since. From his previous actions the wife believes that he has deserted her.

The domestic relations have not, according to the story of his wife, been of a happy character. While husband and wife have not violently quarrelled, it is alleged that Reuter was cruel and ugly to his family and only allowed them the barest allowance for their support. It is alleged that they were even compelled at times to do without the very necessities of life.

There were three children, Robert, six years old; Marie, two years old, and Dorotha, one year old. They came into public notice last week when one of their number set fire to the room in the absence of the mother and threatened the house with destruction.

Reuter was a carpet weaver and had employment at the VanDeventer Carpet Company's factory. He was making fair wages, but spent much of the money himself, while Mrs. Louis Wilson, of 438 West Fourth street, mother of Mrs. Reuter, did much to keep his family from actual want.

Saturday afternoon Reuter drew $22 at the factory for his last two weeks work. That night he purchased just enough groceries to give the family their breakfast next day. He started off early Sunday morning. A friend saw him at Bound Brook later that day when he boarded a Philadelphia train. That was the last seen of him.

Unless Reuter returns shortly, Mrs. Reuter will probably start an action for desertion against her husband and have him arrested if he ever appears in this neighborhood again.

NEW BANK FOR RAHWAY.

Old Bank Pays Dividend and Rahway National Resumes.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Rahway, March 6.—The Union County Bank yesterday began to pay its second dividend of 20 per cent., which makes 40 per cent. in two months.

The Rahway National Bank will resume business Thursday.

Since last January 5th, when the Union County Bank suspended, Rahway has been without a bank, and great inconvenience resulted.

E. H. Sherwood, cashier of the Union County Bank, has been working in connection with the trustees of that institution to start a State bank, with a capital of $50,000. So much stock has been subscribed for that notices will be sent out calling the stockholders together this week to organize. Under the name of the People's Bank, the new bank is to be carried on in the Union County Bank building, with E. H. Sherwood as cashier.

Death of an Old Westfielder.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, March 6.—Frederick Heinzer, one of Westfield's oldest citizens, died at his home on Central avenue, Sunday afternoon, after an illness of one day. He came to this country from Germany about fifty years ago, and has lived in Westfield in the house in which he died for forty years. He was seventy three years of age. He is survived by two sons, Casper Heinzer, of Cleveland, Tenn., and Louis Heinzer, of Wilmington, Del., and by a wife and two daughters, Mrs. Harry N Hill, and Mrs. Joseph Singer, of Westfield. The funeral services will be conducted by Rev. N. W. Cadwell, of the Presbyterian church, at his late residence tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

DR. ENDICOTT WINS FAMOUS DIVORCE CASE

Court of Errors and Appeals Approves of the Decision of Court of Chancery.

THE DECISION IS FINAL.

LEGAL BATTLE LASTED FOR THREE AND A-HALF YEARS.

Craig A. Marsh the Winning Lawyer—Testimony Very Voluminous and a Small Fortune Spent by Plaintiff and Defendant.

The Court of Errors and Appeals yesterday decided in favor of Dr. Geo. W. Endicott, the suit for divorce brought against him by his wife, Lillie C. Endicott. The doctor's vindication, won first in the Court of Chancery, and again in the highest court in the State, is now final and complete. There is no further appeal to any other court.

The suit, which was begun three and one-half years ago, has been prosecuted all these years with relentless purpose by the complainant and her counsel, and apparently without regard to expense. The country was scoured for witnesses and some were brought from remote States, and one from Ireland, and kept here throughout the long trial. Detectives were employed, some to find witnesses for the complainant and others to watch the witnesses of the defendant. Relays of stenographers were employed to supply counsel with type-written reports of the testimony a few hours after it was produced in court. Fifteen entire days were consumed in court in the examination and cross-examination of witnesses, and the greater part of the nights during the trial were devoted by the parties and their lawyers to the work of preparation. Counsel were given a day and a-half on each side to argue the case, and the Vice-Chancellor took months to review the evidence and the argument.

Mrs. Endicott's counsel were McCarter, Williamson & McCarter, of Newark, and Doctor Endicott's counsel was Craig A. Marsh, of this city. The same counsel tried the case in both courts.

Because of the high character and the social prominence of the women whose names were brought into the case, society people in this community, and indeed in several other cities, watched the trial with interest and excitement and the court room at Newark was kept crowded to the doors. Full reports of the evidence and arguments of counsel were given from day to day in many of the daily newspapers of Newark, New York, Philadelphia and other cities.

The trial was replete with sensational incidents. For example, Mr. Marsh in cross-examining Agnes McDonald, a witness produced against the defendant, caught the witness in several deliberate falsehoods, and the effect was such that the other side abandoned the particular charge which she was called to prove, and the Vice-Chancellor declared in his opinion that the witness had manifestly perjured herself.

The evidence made a book nearly as large as Webster's unabridged dictionary.

The manner in which Doctor Endicott held his large practice in the face of such serious charges furnishes convincing evidence of the confidence and esteem in which he was held by the best families of Plainfield. Few physicians, however innocent, could have breasted such a storm all these years while awaiting the decision of the Court of last resort. Doctor Endicott knew that he was entitled to a favorable decision, and stuck to his work and his patients stuck to him.

Time and again it has been observed that no man who was not conscious of innocence could have borne up throughout this long struggle as he has done. He is receiving and is entitled to the warmest congratulations.

Found a Nest of Snakes.

Charles Sutterlein, who is employed by Contractor C. M. Meeker, was loading stone at Wilson's quarry a few days ago and in digging about among the rocks he came across a bunch of snakes. They consisted of three black racers, one copper-head and one adder. He brought them to Plainfield and placed them in a bottle of alcohol. The snakes were five feet under ground.

NO FISHING THROUGH ICE BY REED LAW.

Senate Indulged in Lively Debate Over Somerset Senator's Measure.

IT WAS FINALLY ADOPTED.

MR. REED PROPOSES TO INCREASE SALARY OF ROAD COMMISSIONER.

Assemblyman Foote, of Plainfield, Came to the Front With Three New Measures Last Night.

(Special to The Daily Press).

Trenton, March 6—The time of the Senate was taken up last night with a lively discussion of the bill introduced by Senator Reed, which proposes to amend the pike fishing bill laid over from last week. The amendment changes the closing date from February 20th to November 30th, so as to prevent fishing through the ice.

Mr. Reed said the practice of ice-fishing was carried on to the great detriment of summer sport, and that he had been asked to suggest a change.

Mr. Pitney replied that winter fishing was followed by a large and worthy class of the population of Morris county, and that the practice did not interfere with summer fishing at Budd's Lake, Lake Hopatcong or other resorts.

Mr. Reed said his information was different from Mr. Pitney. He understood this fishing did interfere with regular fishing; that it was not followed by any large number, but by a few persons, and that tons of fish were taken; and that as a result property surrounding Lake Hopatcong was depreciated in value, fishing being so much less an attraction.

Mr. Pitney thought his information was more apt to be accurate on this subject than the information of Mr. Reed. He poked some fun at the gilt-edged sportsmen with fancy tackle who fish in the summer, and made a plea for those who had to fish for a living.

Mr. Martin said that an impression is growing that our game laws are all in the interest of the sportsmen. He thought it was time some action was given to the rights of ordinary citizens.

The amendment prevailed, 11 to 6, and the bill passed second reading.

At last night's session Senator Reed introduced a bill which proposes to increase the salary of the State road commissioner from $1,500 to $2,500 and allows him the sum of $1,500 per year for clerk hire, attorney and consulting engineers fees, stationery and actual traveling expenses. Provides for the appointment by the State road commissioners of a supervisor to assist him in supervising construction and performing such other duties as necessity may require, at a salary of $1,000 per year. (Boroughs and Townships.)

In the Assembly last night Mr. Foote, of Plainfield, came to the front with three proposed laws. On the calendar they appear as follows:

H. No. 227, Mr. Foote. Provides that if a jury in a capital case shall return a verdict of guilty with "modified punishment," the penalty shall be imprisoned for life at hard labor. (Judiciary).

H. No. 227, Mr. Foote. Provides that no corporation shall be allowed to plead or interpose the defense of usury. (Judiciary.)

H. No. 229, Mr. Foote. Provides for cumulative voting in corporations issuing shares of capital stock. (Judiciary).

100TH BIRTHDAY CELEBRATED.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Flemington, March 6.—There was a celebration of the 100th birthday of Miss Sarah Pettit here yesterday. She is the daughter of Jesse and Annie Pettit, both of whom lived to be old. She was born about two miles west of this place, and has lived almost all her life in this village.

The celebration was quiet in its nature, but her many friends and neighbors called to offer their congratulations.

MAFEKING'S RELIEF.

British Force Sets Out to Raise Siege.

SILENCE IS FAVORABLY CONSTRUED.

Roberts' Army Said to Occupy an Advantageous Position—Relief of Ladysmith Cost Loss of One-fifth of Buller's Army.

LONDON, March 6.—Mafeking is to be relieved as soon as the British force already on the way to Kimberley can raise the siege. This force is described vaguely as "strong." The Kimberley light horse is mentioned as a component. In view of the fact that the Kimberley light horse is under the control of the De Beers company Lord Roberts' visit to Kimberley probably had to do with an arrangement with Mr. Cecil Rhodes to use this company of troops.

Fresh intelligence as to what Lord Roberts is doing has ceased again. This silence is taken to mean that something has happened or is about to happen.

Boer raiders are uncommonly active in the northwestern section of Cape Colony, where they are stirring up the Dutch. Martial law has consequently been declared.

Mr. Chamberlain's request for 2,500 additional Australian bushmen is understood to be explained by the fact that the war office requires this force for the pursuit of irreconcilable Boers who have, according to the intelligence department, been quietly collecting great quantities of ammunition and stores in the mountain fastnesses of the Zoutpansberg district, in the north of the Transvaal, where they are preparing to carry on guerrilla warfare.

A dispatch to The Standard from Osfontein, dated Sunday, March 4, says:

"Lord Roberts' army now occupies a most advantageous position. The Sixth division, under General Kelly-Kenny, is posted on the right and holds all the kopjes for a distance of five miles south of the Modder. The Seventh division, under General Tucker, is in the center, immediately south of the river, and General Colville, with the Ninth division, is on the north bank. The cavalry brigade, under General French, is posted on the left front, and the mounted infantry, under Colonel Ridley Martyr, on the right front.

"A body of the enemy has taken up a position on one of the latter, a flat top hill to the north of the river, five miles beyond General French, who today took out horse artillery and shelled them.

"Another force 4,000 strong holds an isolated group of kopjes south of the Modder and in front of the British mounted infantry. Their position is surrounded on all sides by level plains, over which the Boers must make their way in order to reach the river. As a consequence their situation appears precarious in the extreme.

"The veldt is now in beautiful condition. Water is plentiful, supplies being obtainable not only from the river, but also from numerous clear springs. The health and spirits of the troops are excellent. The British cavalry and mounted infantry have been reconnoitering the enemy's positions. There has been little fighting."

Mr. Winston Churchill, describing the relief of Ladysmith in a dispatch published by The Morning Post, says:

"It has been effected at a cost of 5,000 officers and men in an army only 25,000 strong."

He goes on to pay a high tribute to Sir Redvers Buller, emphasizing the confidence his men had in him, "without which the enterprise could hardly have succeeded." Of General Buller's attack on Feb. 27 Mr. Churchill says, "Considered in itself, it was a masterpiece, soundly conceived, boldly launched and skillfully executed." He adds that "much also was due to the great improved intelligence department."

Mr. Churchill points out that the Boers now hold Van Reenan's pass, but that a majority of the Free Staters have accompanied the Transvaalers northward.

Lady Sarah Wilson wires The Daily Mail from Mafeking under date of Feb. 19 as follows:

"The shelling of the town is less severe, but bullets are more plentiful. Women and children are deliberately aimed at. For this reason Colonel Baden-Powell is having a network of trenches dug all over the town for pedestrians. There are now miles of these trenches, but in wet weather they are impassable, and so risks must be run by everybody.

"The food question is becoming difficult. A soup kitchen has been organized, and horses, stray dogs and heads and feet of oxen are utilized. The town is on strict rations."

General Buller's revised list of casualties from Feb. 14 to Feb. 27 gives 93 men killed, 684 wounded and 25 missing.

The house of commons has adopted the government's budget proposals.

Mr. Spenser Wilkinson in The Morning Post says:

"From the silence of Lord Roberts we may infer that his army, is again busily engaged in the continuance of his operations. It is hardly likely, after previous experiences in forcing rivers at the wrong places, that the relief force left at Kimberley for Mafeking will try to cross at Fourteen Streams, seeing that it can as easily cross at Barkly or some other point, and it is impossible that any Boer force in the neighborhood is large enough to guard the whole stretch of the river between Fourteen Streams and Barkly."

The Times publishes the following dispatch from Ladysmith, dated March 2:

"Until I had crossed the Tugela I did not realize the nature of the ground and the system of the Boer rifle intrenchments. How these final positions were ever forced by 15,000 men seems marvelous. It convinces me that the British infantry is unequaled and that the relief column accomplished an almost superhuman task."

The Standard has the following from Ladysmith, dated March 3:

"The Boers conducted their retreat in most masterly fashion, without the loss of a single wagon or an ox. Only a few camps have fallen into our hands. In point of fact we were able to make only feeble efforts to interfere with their retirement.

"Stores are pouring in today. The progress of relief, however, is slow, as only 60 carts a day can cross the pontoon bridge."

Martial Law Proclaimed.

CAPE TOWN, March 6.—Sir Alfred Milner has issued the following proclamation:

"Whereas the enemy's forces have invaded the districts of Prieska, Kenhardt, Britstown and Barkly West, and whereas many British subjects have taken up arms, and whereas it is necessary to repel invasion and suppress rebellion, now, therefore, martial law is hereby proclaimed in these districts."

A strong force of British, including the Kimberley light horse, is marching northward from Kimberley.

It is expected that the crossing of the Vaal river will be disputed at Fourteen Streams, where the railway bridge has been wrecked.

Gatacre Takes Stormberg.

STERKSTROOM, March 6.—General Gatacre entered Stormberg unopposed yesterday. The Boers destroyed the railway approach, but the station is intact.

The Wreck Identified.

BARRINGTON, N. S., March 6.—There is now no doubt in the minds of the fishermen that a great disaster did actually occur and none as to the identity of the vessel wrecked on the ledge at Pubnico some ten days ago. On Sunday a life buoy was picked up at Pubnico point marked "Planet Mercury," and Lloyd's agent, E. W. B. Moody, found a life raft on Ellenwoods island with "Liverpool" marked on it. Mr. Moody searched the adjacent waters from Trinity to Tusket in a tug, but found no signs of a wreck. A Frenchman at West Pubnico claims to have picked up a life preserver with the name "Planet Mercury," and a number of hatches, deals, scantling, pieces of a ship's house, broken oars and box hooks have come ashore at Pubnico point. Several more dead cattle have also drifted in, and schooners have gathered up considerable wreckage of a miscellaneous character. The steamer Planet Mercury sailed from Portland, Me., Feb. 17. She was under three months' charter by the Elder-Dempster line and was under command of Captain Pye. She carried a miscellaneous cargo, valued at $300,000, but no passengers.

Revolution Nipped In the Bud.

NEW YORK, March 6.—The Tribune today prints the following: "From San Salvador, republic of Salvador, comes the news of a revolutionary movement recently nipped in the bud and of the confiscation by the government of $50,000 belonging to Dr. Jose Alfaro, who, it is reported, was to lead the revolt. Dr. Alfaro was formerly vice president of the republic, but for some months he has been in Honduras conspiring for the overthrow of President Tomas Regalado, it is said. Dr. Alfaro is wealthy, and it is reported that he instructed his representative in San Salvador to buy a draft on New York for $50,000 for the purchase of arms and ammunition. The agent did this, but President Regalado learned of the plot, the report goes, and immediately took possession of the money and also caused the arrest of the revolutionary agent. The payment of the draft was stopped, and the revolution has been temporarily abandoned."

Saloon Keepers Organize.

NEW YORK, March 6.—The Herald this morning prints the following: "Temperance societies and individuals interested in the cause of temperance in the state of New York are to have a new foe to fight in the Knights of the Royal Arch, a semisecret protective and beneficial order, membership in which is confined exclusively to persons engaged in the liquor traffic. The organization has been in existence for some time past, having been organized in Hot Springs, Ark., but its field up to the present time has been confined to states in the south and southwest. George P. Jaeger and George Herman, Jr., saloon keepers in Cincinnati, and prominent members of the order, have been in New York for several days for the purpose of ascertaining the sentiment of persons engaged in the liquor business toward the establishment of the order in this state."

The Netherlands Minister.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Le Baron Gevers, the newly arrived minister of the Netherlands to Washington, called at the state department yesterday to pay his respects to Secretary Hay and take steps looking to his presentation to President McKinley. The new minister is just from Servia and Roumania, where he was accredited as minister. He is of American blood on his mother's side, and his grandfather was Senator Wright of New Jersey. His appearance at the state department was the signal for the usual rumor as to mediation in the South African war, but it was without foundation.

Roosevelt's Engagements.

ALBANY, March 6.—Governor Roosevelt will deliver three speeches in New York city this week. On Friday evening he will speak before the Twenty-seventh district Republican club at Adelphi hall and before the West Side Republican club at Sherry's. On Saturday evening he will speak at the dinner to be given in his honor at the Waldorf-Astoria by the Produce Exchange and other commercial bodies of New York city as an expression to him of their commendation of his policy to transform the Erie canal into a barge waterway.

Manufacturers' Association Dead.

PITTSBURG, March 6.—The Independent Window Glass Manufacturers' association formed last December by a number of prominent independent manufacturers has proved a failure, and notices have been sent out announcing that the association is dead. The chief trouble from the start was that some of the manufacturers refused to adhere to the prices and rules adopted by the organization.

Brazilian Bishops' Queer Demands.

RIO JANEIRO, March 6.—The Brazilian bishops have issued a collective pastoral to the clergy and laity demanding the union of church and state and the suppression of liberty of conscience, civil marriages and secular cemeteries. The pastoral also announces a programme to combat the existing state of affairs.

Lost at Sea.

BERLIN, March 6.—The German bark Ida von Papenburg was sunk in the channel by the Spanish steamer Balio, all the crew but two being lost. The fishing steamers Amalie and Green, both belonging to Geestemunde, were lost in the North sea during the last heavy storm, all hands being drowned.

Iona Island For the Government.

ALBANY, March 6.—In the assembly last night a bill was passed ceding to the government Iona island, near Peekskill, for a federal explosive magazine, the governor sending in an urgency message. In the senate the bill went to a third reading, but did not pass.

BRIDGE WORK

In Dentistry is the best substitute for nature's work that can be done. Sound roots may be built up and crowned and thus fill up an unsightly space. It has to be made of a material that has strength and durability and one that will not discolor. Gold is the one that stands the test. That is the secret of the expense. THE OCEAN GRAVEYARD.

Just What Sable Island Is—Where It Lies—Its Fight Against the Sea.

Sable island belongs to Nova Scotia, is 145 miles from Halifax and 85 miles east of Cape Canso. It is a treeless, shrubless waste, seamed by wind and wave and of ever-changing aspect. A cone-shaped hill near the east end, once a mere undulation of sand, is now over a hundred feet high, and is still growing. Other hillocks are gradually being mowed away by storms. The hillocks are liable to be undermined so swiftly and swept out of existence that they are carefully watched from the various stations on the island, and, there being no certainty how far an inroad of the sea will extend after each successful attack. Even the coarse grass of the island grows in a different manner from that of the mainland. It does not bear seed, but shoots up from roots which run along under the sand. During the winter the sand is blown over the grass, and buries it sometimes three or four feet deep. But the hardy blades grow up next season, as if the island sands had protected them from the cold of winter in order to make them all the stronger. The island itself is fighting for self-preservation. It seems as if it drew ships into its fatal embrace as rallying points for its loose and shifting sand, and thus to protect itself by a bulwark of wrecks against annihilation by the sea. Tradition says that when Sable island was discovered by Cabot in 1447, it was 80 miles long and 10 miles wide. In 1802, when a rescue station was established there, it was only 40 miles long. Since then it has shrunk to but little more than 20 miles in length, and in width it is only a mile at its widest. Within 28 years the western end lost seven miles. Shoals over which the ocean now surges are pointed out as former sites of lighthouses. One of these was so swiftly undermined by the sea that it had to be abandoned with the greatest precipitation. The spot where once stood the superintendent's house is now under two fathoms of water.

The island, rapidly diminishing at its western end, is slightly gaining at its eastern. Slowly, like a ship dragging its anchor, it is moving eastward. Will it ever reach the edge of the shoals, stand tottering on the brink of the abyss till it receives its coup de grace and plunge over the submarine bank forever into the depths? Unfortunately, its end will probably be less dramatic. There is good ground for believing that this gray sand bar will slowly wear away until it becomes another submerged shoal added to an ambuscade already some 60 miles in length—for a line of breakers extends 16 miles from one end of the island and 28 miles from the other.—Gustav Kobbe, in Ainslee's.

WEATHER FORECASTS.

Every Land Now Has Its Daily Reports by Telegraph and Cable.

A century has passed by since the first meteorological society of Europe published the "Ephemerides Mannheimensis," containing weather observations at many stations. From these records Brandes subsequently made and studied the first weather maps. Now every civilized land has its daily reports by telegraph and cable.

The United States weather bureau bases its forecasts on 200 stations, and last summer Prof. Moore added 16 kite stations for determining the condition of the air high above the ground. The country has extended its lines to the West Indies, and is hoping to reach Hawaii and Alaska; Canada has added the Bermudas, and is stretching toward the Klondike. European bureaus are moving toward a special cable to Iceland.

Such outlying stations are very important for the protection of the nearer regions, but no mere increase in observers will enable us to predict accurately farther ahead or in greater detail than we now do.

What is first needed is a more profound study of the forces that affect the weather. The crying need of meteorology is not more stations, but more study. The highest talent for scientific investigation is called for. There are no problems more difficult than those that concern the weather, and none more important. He who solves one of these will benefit the whole world and merit a great reward.

The endowment at any university of a special school for meteorological research will mark the beginning of a bright era in the history of this science, and will benefit humanity.—Youth's Companion.

Reassuring.

Monsieur Calino, the simple-hearted and ingenious Frenchman, happened to be riding in a train in the same compartment with a lady who was in a constant fear of a smash-up.

At every sudden stop, every jar, every sound of the bell or whistle, she cried out:

"Oh, oh! Have we run off the track? Is it a collision? Are we going to be killed?"

Calino paid no attention, but remained wrapt in solemn silence. Presently the lady said to him:

"And you, sir, aren't you afraid of railroad accidents?"

"Not I, madame," answered Calino, reassuringly. "It has been foretold that I am to die on the guillotine!"

The nervous woman went into hysterics and had to be removed from the train at the next station.—Youth's Companion.

CHURCH AND PEOPLE

Comptroller Coler States the Case Plainly.

CHURCHES NOT DOING THEIR DUTY

It Is a Waste of Money to Build Costly Edifices to Be Used but Twice Each Week.

SYRACUSE, March 6.—Comptroller Bird S. Coler of New York delivered the opening address at the twentieth century movement convention of the central New York conference of the Methodist Episcopal church in this city last night; his subject being "The Need of a Greater Work In the Churches." He said in part:

"It is not without some hesitation that I present my views here this evening. However, if they are too radical those who come after me this evening will have the opportunity of advancing ideas that may be better. If the churches are to be successful in raising the twentieth century offering, to my mind they must convince the people that the money will be used to the best possible effect. I believe the masses of the people in our great cities are away from the churches simply because the churches are away from them. My experience in Methodism is confined wholly to the city in which I live, and having a fair acquaintance with the people of New York gives me a right at least to speak. Frankly, then, we are not doing our duty. It is a waste of money to build a $200,000 church and then use it only once or twice a week.

"These immense auditoriums that we now own should be thrown open for education as well as religious teachings. There should be libraries connected with every church, and certain educational work should be started. I do not mean necessarily interference with the work of the day schools. Citizenship cannot and will not be taught in the churches, but the higher development of men always takes place after they have left school.

"In this the church can and must become interested. If we are to have a better government, we must have better citizens and something must be done to make them, and when we have made a good citizen we have brought a man more than half way into the church. It is hard to overestimate the amount of good done by such institutions as the University Settlement Society of New York. This society has a large building in which are located may college graduates who are working among the lower foreign population of our city. They teach them the ideals of American government, and from the free library which is maintained more than 30 per cent of the books taken out are those which teach American history.

"The church has had little success in the great cities of late years to my mind because there has been too much contemplation and devotion and, if you please, too little activity. Teach a man to help himself and you have unconsciously helped yourself. The problem of the nation today is largely the problem of the cities."

Conservative Cabinet Out.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., March 6.—The Conservative ministry of Sir James Winter has resigned. Mr. Bond, the leader of the Liberal opposition, has been asked by Governor McCallum to form a cabinet. He has only 13 pledged supporters out of 35 members of the legislature, and it is necessary for him to include Mr. Morris, leader of the Independent Liberal party, five members of which broke from the regular opposition two years ago in order to support the Winter party in carrying the Reid railway contracts through the legislature. With the help of Mr. Morris it would be possible for Mr. Bond to get a working majority, but it will be difficult to reconcile the difference between the two leaders.

Gomez Cannot Accept Aid.

HAVANA, March 6.—General Maximo Gomez has written to the papers to say that he cannot accept any offer of monetary assistance, especially at a time when owing to Cuba's misfortunes her treasury is in the hands of the foreigner. "Nor can I accept," he continues, "such favors from individual organizations like the municipality of Havana. If the country were mistress of her own destinies, the matter would be different, but things in Cuba are now in a sad condition. Believe me, however, I do not despise what the Cuban people desire to do for an old friend."

A Brooklyn Blaze.

NEW YORK, March 6.—A fire which destroyed property worth about $75,000 and threatened several large establishments in the main business center of Brooklyn started shortly before 8 o'clock last night in the retail carpet warehouse of Hardenbergh & Co., at 44 Flatbush avenue. The Hardenbergh building, a four story brick structure, was entirely gutted, and the buildings at 42, 46, 48 and 50 Flatbush avenue, with their contents, were badly damaged.

The King of Nome.

EDGARTOWN, Mass., March 6.—Advices that have been received here state that Joseph Fizette, a Frenchman who was formerly a sailor, belonging here, has become a millionaire and is now known as the "King of Nome." Fizette was one of the crew of the whaling bark Alaska in 1897 and deserted at Kotysebue sound. Fizette is estimated to have sent down $300,000 in gold dust and nuggets last season. $60,000 of which was by one steamer.

Consul Hay Finds No Trouble.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—A cablegram received at the state department from Adelbert Hay, United States consul at Pretoria, indicates that he is having no trouble whatever in the full exercise of his functions, and especially is he unhampered by the Boer officials, with whom he seems to be on an excellent footing, securing any information desired as to the condition of the British soldiers who are prisoners at Pretoria.

Reopens With More Stockholders.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., March 6.—The National bank of Port Jervis, N. Y., which suspended several months ago owing to the defalcation of Assistant Cashier Goldsmith, has resumed business with 158 stockholders as against 84 at the time of the suspension.

Assaulter Quickly Punished.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., March 6.—For assaulting an 8-year-old girl at Clyde, N. C., Sunday afternoon George Ratcliffe was shot to death by a mob at Waynesville, N. C., early Monday morning.

GOEBEL'S SLAYER KNOWN.

Detectives Said to Have a Sure Thing and Will Soon Arrest.

LOUISVILLE, March 6.—It is stated today from Republican sources that Governor Taylor will call an extra session of the legislature at London as soon as the present regular session adjourns. In order to protect the members attending the extra session all the ammunition and arms in the Frankfort arsenal have been sent to London. The object in convening the assembly in extra session is to repeal the Goebel law. Two amendments to the measure were passed during the present session, making the law ewen more ironclad.

It is reported that the assassin of Governor Goebel is known and that detectives are on his trail on information received from Lexington. W. A. Pinkerton is working on the case and has been there.

He was induced to take the case by Colonel Chinn, a warm friend of the detective, and the legislature agreed to appropriate $100,000 and leave its disbursement to a committee.

As soon as the law appropriating this money becomes absolute the arrest will be made, as it is understood Pinkerton has the man spotted.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Martin Gallagher, seventh victim of the lodging house fire at 44 New Bowery, New York city, died.

Cotton quotations reached 9¾ cents a pound, the highest price since 1893, when 10 cents was the figure.

Thirty-five carloads of hay and 12 freight cars were destroyed by the burning of a freight shed in Boston.

John Corcoran of New York city fell seven stories in an apartment house air shaft and was only slightly injured.

Solicitor General Richards moved in the supreme court at Washington to advance the hearing of Admiral Dewey's appeal in his claim for bounty.

The navy department announced that the Detroit and Marblehead had been sent to Central American ports to protect United States interests there.

Rumors reached Benson, A. T., that Yaqui Indians are headed for the international line, and General Merriam ordered troops to be in readiness to repel any attempted invasion.

New Jersey Legislature.

TRENTON, March 6.—The senate had a brief session last night and adjourned in order to give a hearing on the bills to permit Jersey City to increase the salaries of its schoolteachers. Over 100 teachers from that city were in the galleries, having come to Trenton to advocate the passage of the bill. The principal speakers at the hearing, both of whom favored the measure, were President Mulvaney of the Jersey City board of education and Principal Hopkins of the Jersey City High school. The special assembly committee on the Girls' Industrial school investigation had a sitting last evening before the regular session of the house. A number of witnesses were examined.

Smith Left Much Wealth.

LONDON, March 6.—From the death duties on the vast estate left by George Smith, the American millionaire recluse who died at the Reform club, the British empire has obtained enough money to build a warship. This was brought out in the house of commons when it was made known that Smith's estate was vaster than any one had surmised. In speaking of the budget Hicks-Beach said that the death duties on Smith's estate were £900,000, enough to build a battleship. The death duty is 8 per cent. This makes Smith's estate foot up £11,250,000.

A Good Practice Throw.

PHILADELPHIA, March 6.—J. C. McCracken, the University of Pennsylvania football player and field athlete, yesterday hurled the discus 130 feet 6 inches, which is eight feet better than the world's record, made on Aug. 26, 1899, by Richard Sheldon of the New York Athletic club, who threw the discus 122 feet 3⅝ inches. McCracken's throw was made in practice and, of course, does not stand. McCracken is practicing for the Olympian games at Paris this summer, the university having decided to enter a team in the carnival.

CARTER FOR QUAY.

Montana Senator Tells Why—Spooner Philippines Bill Reported.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Mr. Carter of Montana dealt vigorously with the Quay case in the senate yesterday in the course of an explanation of why he will vote for the former senator from Pennsylvania. He voted against the seating of Mr. Corbett in the last congress because, he said, Mr. Corbett was endeavoring to benefit by a wrong perpetrated by himself. He declared Mr. Quay was the victim of a "diabolical plot" in his own state such as had no counterpart in American political history.

The near approach to the time of voting on the conference report on the financial bill brought out two speeches on that measure, one by Mr. Fairbanks of Indiana and the other by Mr. Butler of North Carolina. The Indiana senator defended the gold standard and generally applauded the action of the conference committee, while Mr. Butler attacked the pending measure particularly because of the power it conferred upon national banks. A final vote on the conference report will be taken today at 4 o'clock.

The senate committee on Philippines has decided to report the bill introduced by Senator Spooner of Wisconsin for control of the Philippines.

Senator Lodge, chairman of the committee, made the report to the senate.

The provisions of the bill are as follows: That when all insurrection against the sovereignty and authority of the United States in the Philippine Islands, acquired from Spain by the treaty concluded at Paris on the 10th day of December, 1898, shall have been completely suppressed by the military and naval forces of the United States, all military, civil and judicial powers necessary to govern the said islands shall, until otherwise provided by congress, be vested in such person and persons and shall be exercised in such manner as the president of the United States shall direct for maintaining and protecting the inhabitants of said islands in the free enjoyment of their liberty, property and religion.

Fatal Railway Accident.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., March 6.—An accident to the early morning passenger train on the East Broad Top railroad yesterday at Martins Meadow resulted in the death of Conductor George W. Briggs, the probably fatal injury of Mine Superintendent Lyon and Grant Schmittle and the serious injury of a dozen passengers. The accident was caused by a broken rail, and the derailed cars, containing about 100 passengers, were thrown over an embankment. Scarcely any one of the travelers escaped without some injury. A lone woman passenger and her little babe were extricated from the debris, the former being severely hurt, while the babe escaped without a scratch.

"Sapho" Stopped by Police.

NEW YORK, March 6.—Wallack's theater was closed last night. Under a decree of Chief of Police Devery Miss Nethersole was not allowed to appear in "Sapho." The police order followed the decision of Magistrate Mott in the afternoon holding Miss Nethersole, her manager and others connected with the play for trial. The order that the play should not be given was not received at the theater until nearly 7 o'clock. As soon as it arrived the following notice was placed in a prominent position at the entrance: "There will be no performance tonight. For particulars see the newspapers."

Emperor Favors Liberal Party.

BERLIN, March 6.—Emperor William yesterday listened to a statement by Count von Bulow regarding the difficulties which have lately arisen between the United States and Germany over the meat inspection bill. Later he received Baron von Hammerstein, Prussian minister of agriculture, who explained the reasons why the Agrarians object to the present status of meat import and insist upon the passing of the bill in the form which the Agrarians have all along approved. The emperor advanced some powerful arguments in favor of more liberal terms.

Shot In a Quarrel.

MEMPHIS, March 6.—H. A. Stephenson, a traveling representative of the St Louis Globe-Democrat, was shot and seriously wounded at 2:30 yesterday afternoon in the rotunda of the Peabody hotel by Frank Williamson, a deputy sheriff of Crittenden county, Ark. The injured man was taken to St. Joseph's hospital. Stephenson had a difficulty with M. F. Brey, an old Memphis citizen, and Williamson interfered in the melee. Williamson shot Stephenson in the abdomen. Williamson is under arrest.

Sugar Refinery Closed.

JERSEY CITY, March 6.—The American Sugar Refining company's refinery in Jersey City was closed for business yesterday. This is the third shut down of this refinery this year. All the employees, about 1,200 in number, were laid off. No date was mentioned for their return to work.

General's Expedition to Southern Luzon Successful.

A SHARP FIGHT AT LIBMANAN.

Little Resistance Met With Elsewhere—Insurgents Flee to Mountains—Nightly Harass Americans In South Camarines.

MANILA, March 6.—General Bates' expedition to southern Luzon, consisting of the Fortieth and Forty-fifth regiments, a total of 2,300 men, has occupied Nueva Caceres, province of South Camarines; Daet, province of North Camarines, and the neighboring smaller towns. The enemy resisted at one point, and two Americans were killed, including Lieutenant John B. Galleher of the Fortieth regiment.

On Feb. 20 the expedition arrived at San Miguel bay, landed and in three columns immediately pushed inland, converging upon Nueva Caceres and attempting to control the enemy's routes of retreat.

At Libmanan, northwest of Nueva Caceres, the enemy were concealed in the ricefields and resisted a battalion of the Fortieth regiment, which engaged them at close quarters with bayonets. After 40 minutes' fighting the enemy fled, and Libmanan was occupied.

The Americans buried 64 of the enemy, whose total loss in killed and wounded is estimated at 140.

From Libmanan the expedition proceeded to Nueva Caceres, the gunboat Paragua arriving ten minutes ahead of the troops. The town was found practically deserted. The Americans, daily scouting in the vicinity, report that the enemy have retreated into the mountains.

The insurgents around Legaspi and Albay, province of South Camarines, are harassing the Americans nightly. Foreigners doing business at Legaspi are living on ships in the harbor or in the American barracks.

On Feb. 24 Colonel Dorst, with six companies of the Forty-fifth regiment, started on a reconnoitering and foraging expedition which will occupy an indefinite time.

Lieutenant Edgar F. Koehler of the Ninth infantry was shot in the abdomen and killed at a village six miles north of Tarlac, where he went in search of some hidden rifles. A Filipino, promising to produce the rifles, led him into an ambush away from his command. The soldiers in revenge burned the village and killed 24 of the enemy.

The transport Sheridan will sail today with 120 soldiers and convicts and 20 insane soldiers.

Pennsylvania Railroad's Expansion.

PHILADELPHIA, March 6.—The annual report of the Pennsylvania railroad, which is made public and which will be presented at the annual meeting of stockholders next Tuesday, makes the important announcement that at the annual meeting in 1901 the stockholders will be asked to authorize an increase of $8,000,000 in the capital stock, thus bringing the capital up to $150,000,000. The growing traffic, the report says, makes it necessary to continue improving and adding to the property, and the policy of the company, while taking part of the expense from current income, is to get a portion through an increase of capital.

Want Officers Removed.

ALBANY, March 6.—A hearing will be given before Attorney General John C. Davies on Friday next in the matter of the application of certain policy holders of the Mutual Reserve Fund Life association of New York city that an action be commenced for the removal of the present corps of officers of the company on the charge of mismanagement of the company's affairs. Former Governor Frank S. Black, who represents the policy holders dissatisfied with the conduct of the affairs of the company, has required that a hearing be given on that day.

The Fayerweather Will Case.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Another effort was inaugurated yesterday in the United States supreme court to have that court review the findings of the circuit court of appeals in the Fayerweather will case. The effort was made by William P. Landon, who seeks to have the case brought to this court on a writ of certiorari. The case involves the estate of the late Daniel Fayerweather, who bequeathed $1,600,000 to about 20 institutions of learning throughout the country. The bequest has so far been sustained. The present effort is to break the will.

Liquor Law For the Philippines.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Representative Gillet of Massachusetts yesterday introduced a bill to regulate the sale of intoxicating liquors in the Philippines. It prohibits the sale of distilled or intoxicating liquor in quantities less than 20 gallons except on a physician's prescription for medicinal purposes. Severe penalties are provided for violation of the provisions, and the liquor kept for sale is made subject to confiscation.

He offers to supply full particulars to persons in the United States who are interested upon application.

There is danger ahead for the Democratic barbers in New Jersey. The bill now before the Legislature which provides for a board of examiners to decide the fitness of men to wield the razor and the shears on the hirsute growth of their precise patrons, does not mention a word about politics. The law does not describe whether the board of examiners shall be non-partisan, bi-partisan or partisan. The make-up of the board is to be left to the discretion of the Governor. The Governor might appoint Anarchists, Socialists, Democrats, Republicans, Prohibitionists or Populists. But he won't, of course. They will all be loyal Republicans. Such a condition will result—well, the Democratic barbers may as well prepare for the blow. They may as well commence to hunt for new jobs now as later on.

The Court of Errors and Appeals yesterday rendered an opinion of considerable importance in relation to taxation matters. The Paterson Y. M. C. A. sued for exemption from taxation on the ground that it is a charitable organization. The State Board of Taxation decided against the association, and then an appeal was made to the highest court of the State. The Court of Errors and Appeals decides that Y. M. C. A.'s are not entitled to exemption from taxation. This will put a quietus on the contest which the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. has made against the city on the same grounds as the association in Paterson.

Senator Reed is to have the privilege of voting to confirm the nomination of a gentleman, made by the Governor for an appointive office, who opposed his candidacy at the last election. This is brought about by the nomination of James J. Bergen, of Somerville, as a member of the board of managers of the State Village for Epileptics. Senator Reed will undoubtedly vote for the confirmation of Mr. Bergen's appointment with much satisfaction. And why shouldn't he?

Two civil service examinations have been held for the purpose of securing candidates who are avilable for appointment as letter-carries in Cranford, but at neither examination was there any one who passed the test. Now a third one has been called for March 17th. Are we to believe by this that Cranfordites are too ignorant to pass the simple examinations required by the civil service system? Here is a chance for our esteemed and talented friend, Editor Potter, to explain.

Senator VanCleef has introduced a bill in the Legislature requiring every candidate voted for at any public election to file within ten days of such election an itemized statement of all money expended by him or any other person or contributed toward obtaining his election. New York has had a law of this kind for several years, but so far as tending to lessen the amount of money spent illegally in campaigns and elections it is an utter failure. It is an easy law to dodge.

The merchant who wants to do business must not hide his light under a bushel measure, says The Record. He must make himself known and he must ask for the custom he desires. This cannot be done verbally. He must, therefore, advertise; and he must give as much thought and attention to his trade announcements as to any other matters pertaining to the proper conduct of his business.

The American Economist draws upon some unusual arguments to sustain the justice of the protectionist policy, as is evidenced in its statement that the church plate collections during the past year were exceptionally large. But, speaking of plates, how about the Tin Plate Trust and its relation to the tariff?

Surrogate Ellor has abandoned his efforts to have declared unconstitutional the law transferring from the fee to the salary basis the office of which he is the incumbent. Mr. Ellor has evidently felt the sting of the scorching criticism which his attitude and action caused.

We notice in the country correspondence of one of our contemporaries that "the Rockaway Valley Railroad Company has employed a new conductor, also a brakeman, and are now running more regular and making better time." Talk about your great railway systems!

The electric feeders for Glasgow's street railway are to be furnished by a New York conduit cable company, whose bid was nearly $50,000 under the lowest British offer. American enterprise and ingenuity are too much for our English cousins.

The Brooklyn factory of the Sugar Trust has thrown 500 men out of work by suspending operations in order to force up the price of sugar. The idle men will undoubtedly appreciate the maxim of "taking the bitter with the sweet."

The Dutch Republic is credited with being very religious, but we notice they are working the shell game on the British every chance they get.

Many a poet writes a poem and sells it "for a song."

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

A Newarker now in one of the volunteer regiments in the Philippines, in a letter received last Thursday, bewails the high price of beer, not alone in Luzon, but in the cities and towns you touch at in going there by way of the Mediterranean. "Colombo is a pretty good place," he writes, "but they charge you fourteen cents here for a glass of warm beer." Concerning Singapore, he remarks: "This place is about the same as Colombo, only not half so pretty, and they sock you twenty centy for a glass of beer." It is plain, from the whole tenor of his letter, that his impressions of the cities and towns he visits in foreign parts are formed largely by the price and quality of the beer to be had there.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World

Theatre-goers and lovers of Hoyt's original methods will hail with pleasure the announcement that his latest and most successful comedy work, "A Day and a Night," will be presented in this city soon. The new play has no lesson to teach; neither is it hampered with any great plot. It has, however, enough of a plot to serve as a thread upon which to string a lot of specialties and furnishes opportunities to introduce spirited and catchy music, topical songs, dainty dances and pretty women. The new piece has been constructed much after "A Stranger in New York," but it is said to be brighter in dialogue, and the situations are even funnier. "A Day and A Night" is the most successful of all his farcical skits that has emanated from the fertile brain of this popular author, and he has gathered together a remarkable strong cast, headed by Frank Doane and Hattie Williams, who is one of the cleverest young women on the stage. These two have been furnished with very strong parts. The cast also comprises Charles Warren, W. H. Currie, W. F. Ryan, M. Regan, Louis Eagan, J. W. Mitchell, Generva Gibson, the Clayton sisters, May Hampton, and the phenomenal soprano, Sara Carr. Reserved seat tickets now on sale.

The continuous vaudeville programmes that are being given week after week at F. F. Proctor's two theatres in New York city have become noted for the manner in which each and every act shows enough merit to constantly keep the attention of the audiences; in other words, dull acts are unknown in the Proctor programmes. At Proctors' Twenty-third Street Theatre the stars are: Oro, Bernard and Oro, in the novelty, "Scenes in Chinatown;" James Richmond Glenroy, "The Man with the Green Gloves;" H. V. Fitzgerald, the American Fregoli; Patterson Bros., triple-bar experts; Smith, Doty and Coe, musical trio; Julia Ralph, clever mimic; Lavender and Tomson, comedy acrobats; Pierce and Egbert, illustrated songs; Kalatechnoscope, showing numerous new motion photographs; and some dozen more. At Proctor's Palace the features for this week are: Dempsey, Mitchel and Co., in the laughable farce, "A Man of Chance;" Mr. and Mrs. Franz Wilczek, violinists; Willett, Thorne and Co., farceurs; Chas. G. Kilpatrick, the one-legged bicyclist; Broadway Trio, singers and dancers; Belle Hathaway's Monkey Circus; Kalatechnoscope, showing the latest motion pictures from the Transvaal, etc.

—The first issue of the new weekly paper to be published in the borough by the Webb Printing Company will make its appearance on St. Patrick's Day.

TRIBUTE TO LATE G. F. WEICHERS

Who Died in Ponce, Porto Rico, Feb 14th—Well-Known in This City.

During his last visit to the United States in 1897, and while at the home of his son, John F. Weichers, on West Eighth street, in this city, G. F. Weichers became known to a number of our citizens. And he was also well-known in New York in Spanish-American commercial circles. By all who met him, whether in social or business affairs, he was instinctively recognized as a man of high character and of greatability. His appearance, his bearing and his speech were such as to command respect and confidence among all classes.

Although the greater part of his active life had been spent in Spanish-America; although he had there established his home and acquired a well-earned fortune as a successful merchant and planter, yet he lived and died a German, retaining, too, his German citizenship. The strong frame, the fair skin, the blonde beard and hair, the steady blue eyes, all bespoke the typical German. German, too, were the moral traits, the love of family, the sense of justice, as were the habits of thought and the temperament—at once cordial and cautious, affable and reticent. And so implicitly was he trusted by his neighbors of a more impulsive race somewhat disposed to litigation, that he became among them a non-commissioned justice of the peace and arbitrator of disputes; as it were a Judge in Israel, whose law code was the Golden Rule, whose decisions were almost universally accepted without appeal.

While wholly averse to a show of piety, he was ever a man of prayer, a reader of the Word, whose trust was in God.

The tribute of sorrowful words to the memory of Herr Wichers as an upright man, a Christian gentleman, seems to the writer but a poor acknowledgment for the degree of confidence and friendship with which he has been honored. H. P. R.

FASHION NOTES.

Various Items Concerning the Present Day Wardrobe.

A black gown is an essential item in every woman's wardrobe. If it is of silk, an economical plan is to have two bodices, one high necked and long sleeved, the other an evening bodice, or there may be one bodice with transparent guimpe and sleeves and a separate black underbodice with sleeves and high neck to be worn beneath for ordinary occasions.

Flowers of silk and velvet are immensely worn, not simply in the hat or apote, but as accessories to the general costume. Orchids, pinks, roses and particularly violets are tucked into the boa, pinned to the fur revers of the jacket or employed lavishly in the decoration of evening corsages. Violets continue to enjoy the extreme favor which has been shown them for several winters past, an unusual constancy on the part of fashion.

Hats are often very simple, especially when they are made of fur, shirred crepe de chine or tucked velvet. One, for example, is a sort of toque, large, as are all toques this winter, and made of pale green crepe de chine draped and intermixed with net covered closely with silvery green spangles. Others, again, are quite elaborate. The illustration shows one of the latter class. The crown and the outside of the brim are covered with black astrakhan, while the brim is faced with sable. It is turned up at the side and trimmed with magnolia blossoms and foliage, in addition to which there is a sort of plume composed of shirred and tucked tulle.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

THE SEASON'S STYLES.

Up to Date Fashions of Various Descriptions.

Tunics of lace similar to those worn last summer are in vogue this winter also, for evening particularly. They are made in the princess form, with no seams, the lace being joined so deftly by lace stitches that there is no evidence of the juncture, and the entire garment is thus molded perfectly to the figure. It usually opens over a plaited or embroidered skirt in front.

Cloth is universally used, even for evening gowns and bodices. When employed in this way, it is usually enriched by embroidery and incrustations of lace or guipure and combined often with velvet.

Shirred waists of mousseline de soie are far from being a novelty, having been worn for years past. However, some new feature is introduced every season, and this season it is a little band of beading separating the puffs. Through this beading is run black velvet or colored satin ribbon of the narrowest width, these ribbons forming choux down the front. The top chou is very large and has a jewel in the middle, the others being smaller and diminishing toward the waist.

The ball gown shown is of white satin. The skirt is incrusted with butter colored guipure and has around the foot two ruffles of mousseline de soie. The bodice is covered with guipure and is draped in front by a jeweled brooch. Around the decolletage is a drapery of turquoise panne, and the belt is of blue panne with a jeweled buckle. The half length sleeves of guipure have draperies of blue panne, and around the neck is a collar of white satin with a lace ruffle.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

His Ingenuity.

"You say," said a judge to a witness, "that the plaintiff resorted to an ingenious use of circumstantial evidence. State just exactly what you mean by that."

"Well," said the witness, "my exact meaning is that he lied."—Columbus (O.) State Journal.

He Was Wise.

"I noticed after you left the house this morning you went back again. Don't you know that's unlucky?"

"Well, it would have been a good deal unluckier for me if I hadn't gone back. My wife called me."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

EMBROIDERY.

It Is the First Favorite Among Fine Decorations.

The rage for embroidery shows no symptom of decreasing, and spring costumes which are now in process of design and construction within the secret chambers of the great modistes are to still further exemplify the luxury to which this class of decoration may go. One of the newest ideas is the enrichment of open all over embroidery or heavy guipure with puffs of mousseline de soie which come through the open spaces with a mossy effect. Open and relief embroideries upon panne, satin, cloth, etc., although now an old story, have not yet become tiresome.

The four leaved clover, long a favorite of fashion in the form of brooches, pendants, charms and similar ornaments, is now used as a motif for embroidery and appears in application upon cloth gowns.

Narrow black velvet ribbon is much used in application, not merely in straight bands, but in chevrons and geometrical designs. Narrow satin ribbon gathered along the middle is similarly used, but lends itself more readily to elaborate and fanciful motifs.

The illustration given today shows a young girl's jacket made of heavy cloth. It is double breasted, closing at the left side, and the front forms a sort of square tab separated at the lower end from the basque. The back is closely fitting. There is a high flaring collar with a scalloped edge and a single revers. Applications of velvet ornament the back, front and sleeves of the jacket. The collar is faced with velvet and the revers covered with it. The applications are outlined by lines of stitching. Two rows of pearl buttons decorate the front.

ADVANCE FASHIONS.

Indications For the Coming Spring and Summer.

Lavender and lilac shades predominate among the advance styles of spring and summer goods, and no color is daintier or fresher, although not every complexion can wear it. In all over open goods such as are now sold by the yard for making transparent waists for summer wear there are materials composed of alternate stripes of lavender batiste or thin canvas and white valenciennes lace. Then there are sheer printed stuffs in lavender and white—organdies and lawns—and embroidered batistes in the same color. A touch of black is frequently introduced in the embroidered or printed design of delicately tinted goods, especially when the design is not of a floral character naturally treated. Some of the detached set patterns are exceedingly attractive, especially some very pretty pink batistes with rather large figures embroidered in masses of black and white.

A picture is given of a costume of cashmere cloth. The skirt is decorated with a stitched band, which is arranged in points to design a tunic. The tight bodice and the sleeves are of cloth laid in horizontal stitched plaits. The embroidered collar forms a sort of plaited drapery in front, and the high collar and plastrons are of plaited silk or satin. The revers are of white cloth. The hat of black chenille is trimmed with feathers.

IS A LAW OFFICER.

Mrs. Van Dusen, a Charming Texas Widow, Appointed a Deputy United States Marshal.

Mrs. Emma Van Dusen, the first woman in Texas to be sworn in as a deputy United States marshal, has just assumed that position in the headquarters of the northern district of Texas, at the federal building in Dallas, under United States Marshal George H. Green. Mrs. Van Dusen, a young and accomplished widow, has been connected with the office of the clerk of the federal court at Dallas since a short time after the death of her husband, Charles Palmer Van

MRS. EMMA VAN DUSEN.
(Deputy United States Marshal, Northern District of Texas.)

Dusen, of Evansville, Ind., nine years ago; soon after their marriage. Probably no other person in the federal building at Dallas is so well informed in the documentary department of the institution as is Mrs. Van Dusen. She has been in charge of an enormous number of papers, many of them forming parts of the records of some of the most noted criminal and civil cases in the history of the United States courts. Mrs. Van Dusen was born in Hillsboro, N. C. Her father was Robert O'Daniel, of the County Cork, Ireland; her mother was a Miss Jackson, of Virginia, a cousin of the immortal "Stonewall" Jackson, of confederate military fame. It will thus be seen that the new deputy marshal comes of "good fighting stock." Marshal Green says he will arm Mrs. Van Dusen with the regulation weapons, and insist that she "carry a gun," the same as a man. If she does, there is no doubt she will know how to use it, in case of necessity.

KEEPING FLOWERS FRESH.

Means Employed by Experts to Keep All Sorts of Blossoms for a Few Days at Least.

There are several methods of reviving flowers known to experts. One of the chief reasons why they fade is because the stalks are bruised where they were cut or gathered. The way to remedy this is to take a fine thread of wire and insert it at the end of the stems, pushing it a little way up. Then bind round the stalk a little pad of damp cotton wool or moss, arrange the flowers in tepid water with a morsel of stick charcoal in each vase, add a few sprays or greenery if possible, and in half an hour the flowers will expand and look as if they had only just been gathered. In order to preserve their beauty as long as possible, every evening place the vase on a stone floor, or on a large old try that cannot be injured by damp and either syringe with lukewarm water, or pour it over them from a small can with a fine nose. In the morning cut about a quarter of an inch from each stalk, and throw away every drop of the water, replacing it with fresh, from which the chill has been taken. When flowers made up into bouquets are received, as they often are on birthdays, or other domestic anniversaries, they look perfectly charming to start with, but often fade as soon as they are put in water.

Of course, there are bouquets and bouquets. If they consist of buds or short-stalked blossoms mounted on wire, the only thing to do is to water or syringe them "overhead" and put them for an hour under a bell glass. But if they are mounted on morsels of cane or bamboo they may be simply untied and put in water. Capillary attraction then comes into play, the cane takes up the moisture and transmits it to the stalks of the flowers, keeping them damp enough to live for some time, though, as they do not actually touch the water, decay does not set in for several days.

A capital method of warding off the corruption that makes mignonettes, asters, stocks and some other flowers very speedily unpleasant is to mix a little sal ammonia, four grains to the quart being sufficient.

Another mode is to hold the cut flowers in the steam of hot water directly after they are unpacked, and then to put the ends of the stalks in boilng water for two or three minutes, cut off the parboiled ends and place them in a vase with tepid water in the ordinary way. The latter part of the treatment is also available for flowers that are beginning to wither a little, though the evil day of fading cannot be long postponed.—St. Louis Republic.

Professional Dinner Tasters.

A curious profession for a woman is that of dinner taster. She is a product of Parisian refinement, and spends a portion of each day visiting houses and tasting dishes intended for dinner. She suggests improvements and shows the cook new ways of preparing dishes. The duties are pleasant and the compensation ample.

To Clean Jet Ornaments.

These are rather difficult to clean, as they are brittle and easily broken. with a soft brush remove every bit of dust and then apply a little oil on a piece of cotton wool. The ornaments must then be polished with a washleather and will look like new.

OLD PIPE OF PEACE.

Recently Exhumed on the Battlefield of Pittsburgh Landing.

Throws Light on Prehistoric Mound Builders—Belief That the Crude Work of Art Is Less Than Six Centuries Old.

Recent excavations on the field of the battle of Pittsburgh Landing have brought to light many interesting relics of the mound builders. Col. Cadle, the well-known G. A. R. and Loyal Legion man, who is a member of the Shiloh commission, is an ardent antiquarian and geologist, and in the course of the work of leveling the battleground into the proportions of a national public park, has lost no opportunity of delving into the mounds, of which there are a number on the ground. The relics exhumed are sent to the Smithsonian institution to be carefully photographed and recorded. It is for this reason, says the Cincinnati Enquirer, that by far the most valuable and interesting piece of work that has come out of an American mound in several decades was seen by only a few Cincinnatians. Col. Cadle lectured before the Cincinnati Natural History society the other evening on "The Work of the Mound Builders on Shiloh Battlefields." The lecture was particularly opportune, as the commission had exhumed on the day before the little statue, of which a good photograph is shown. Col. Cadle was on his way to Washington with the piece, which he considers the greatest find of the age.

The statue is nine inches long and carved from soapstone, out of which the pipes of the Indians were always made. This piece is itself intended for a pipe, as the hole between the shoulders is for tobacco and the opening in the bones for a stem. The kneeling woman is of a distinctly aboriginal type and may be taken as a fair picture of the woman of the times. The work is exceedingly well done and, while the woman is not beautiful, many of the lines have individual grace. The piece, which is the first ever taken from the mounds that will give any idea of the looks of the builders, cannot but be of the highest importance to the antiquarian. If this relic is to be accepted as a criterion the original mound builders were of the same race as the American Indians. The theories that the race which erected the mounds were of a different type, or were prehistoric to the Indians as to us, would fall to the ground and an interesting field of conjecture be opened to anthropologists, many of whom have long maintained that the American Indians are lineal descendants of the lost tribes of Israel.

Among other remarks on the subject Col. Cadle said in his lecture that much light had been thrown on the mounds by the recent exscavations at Shiloh. Just as the forester can approximate the age of a tree by the rings in the bole, and the horse doctor can tell the years of a horse by the layers of his teeth, so the geologist can approximate the age of a cliff, a sliding or a mound by the action of the elements on the rocks or the size of a channel made by the tiny rivulet. Col. Cadle stoutly maintains that the mound from which this statue was taken cannot have been more than 600 years old. It was so situated that in the fall and spring, in the time of heavy rains, the overflow from an adjacent hill cut little canals across it. These, he estimates, have been made in the last 600 years, proving that the mound was made at that time. The theory that the American Indian, as we know him, could have nothing to do with the mounds, is partially sustained by the fact that their traditions always ascribe the mounds to a prehistoric race. Yet this prehistoric race, if prehistoric it was, must have known the use of tobacco and have been accustomed to smoke the pipe of peace, since the statue was evidently made to be set in the midst of a circle and smoked from a stem with many branches. No one living man, with ordinary lungs, could have "drawn" a pipe of this character.

Women as Census Takers.

There's little to wonder at in the statement that women were such a success at census taking in Cuba, where they were for the first time officially employed in a government capacity. It was because of the other women. Women census takers would not only be pretty sure to make a victim give her right age, but if it came to the point she could always guess at it more accurately than a man. It takes a woman to catch a woman.

Must Believe It

When Well-known Plainfield People Tell It so Plainly.

When public endorsement is made by a representative citizen, in Plainfield the proof is positive. You must believe it. Read this testimony. Every backache sufferer, every man, woman or child with any kidney trouble will profit in the reading.

Mrs. Margaret Reville of 752 West Third street, says: "For a long time I was troubled with a lame and weak back and I never found anything which gave me any relief until I obtained Doan's Kidney Pills from L. W. Randolph's drug store and began to use them according to directions. It was only a short time before I felt the good effects and from that time on I improved steadily under the treatment. My back pained me and was weak and sore that I dreaded to bend and when I had a cold or over exerted myself I suffered severely. I used several different kidney remedies but got little if any relief. I give Doan's Kidney Pills all the credit for my improvement. I think they are a fine medicine for a lame back."

Problems for the Bowlers

Questions That Will Have to be Met By the Bowling Congress Sooner or Later

BOWLING has reached a vogue in the United States that even the most enthusiastic followers of the ancient game of ten-pins would have scarcely hoped to see. There have been years in bowling when critics smiled and said: "This is truly the high water mark," but they were in error. The maximum of interest has not been reached. More money is being invested in bowling alleys and paraphernalia every week than for a corresponding period last year.

Large cities monopolize interest in the sport. No community is now too small to be without its league or leagues and up-to-date alleys. Women no longer depend upon the chivalry of male bowlers to adjourn match games to permit the fair sex to have exclusive use of bowling alleys at certain hours. The feminine rollers demand and receive concessions. They get the exclusive use of alleys certain days of the week and the development that they have exhibited in the regular game is such that recently one of the most noted bowlers in the west, W. V. Thompson, was beaten in a series of games by a woman roller. And the average of the victor was well up in the 190 mark, too, it is reported.

THOMAS CURTIS.
"Father of Bowling."

Recently the American Bowling congress held a session in Baltimore and such legislation as the experts thought wise and timely was put on the books. But the most important feature of the meeting was the report of the progress of bowling in the United States. It was said that over $15,000,000 was invested in bowling alleys and buildings used for bowling purposes, and that there were orders enough placed with firms that built scientific and "regular" alleys to warrant the supposition that the game would soon vie with golf in the matter of investments for plants.

The United Bowling Clubs of New York propose to give the biggest bowling tournament ever held during the week of July 15 to 22. I have the word of Secretary Sam Karpf, of the American Bowling congress, that the executive committee appointed to get funds has already obtained a cash guarantee of $7,500 for this tournament, and that there is plenty of time to increase this to $10,000.

Never before has so much money been contributed to bowling for prizes for one tournament. Time was when the best bowlers of the land, banded together in one team, made a circuit of the big cities, meeting teams for $75 prizes. Efforts are being made to have the competition open to any regularly organized bowling team that won a championship. The latter term is, of course, elastic enough to please a great many and makes it possible to get representatives from every city in the country that has a championship winner. Cities like Chicago, Cincinnati, New York and Brooklyn might be represented by three or more teams, while such cities as Peoria, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Omaha, St. Paul, Minneapolis—in fact almost any good wide awake place, might send from one to three teams. Ten thousand dollars in prize money is an amount that cannot be overlooked. It is the value of the great American Derby value, for which scores of owners and trainers spend innumerable hours of worry preparing their turf kings and queens to win the classic event. It is what many an executive head of a business house puts in a year of brain fagging work to get. This is a commercial age in sport, it would appear, and after all the giving of these big tournaments has its value in stimulating interest in games.

FRANK BRILL.
All Star Team.

Preceding the great tourney or coming as an adjunct—the date has not been definitely settled—there will be a match contest for a series of games between the recognized best teams of rollers that will attract the attention of the bowling world. This event may develop into a feature that will overshadow the national tournament. Five men, selected by competition, covering many trial games, and coming from as many cities, will compose the All Star team. They will be pitted against the Greater New Yorks—practically the same team that in two years of touring in the United States established records for excellent bowling that may never be approached or passed. W. V. Thompson, expert in bowling, and a lithe, slight man, accepted as one of the best exponents of the scientific game in the west, will lead the All Stars in the battle for $500 a side. With him will be A. J. Kenna and Frank Brill, and others who are time-tried veterans on the alleys. In the Greater New York personnel will be such men as George Stein, William Cordes, the captain of the team, D. C. La Due, Fred Clinch, that veteran, Nic Thyne, who has rolled in more high-class competitions in more cities and on a greater number of alleys than any other roller in the western hemisphere, G. Phipard, Pete Wolf and others.

Problems aiming at the proper control of bowling will have to be met and solved by the American Bowling congress sooner or later, and the task will not be one that the delegates will choose to take up voluntarily. They will have to be forced a bit, it would appear, for the professional roller and his brother, the simon-pure amateur, are now wonderfully confused. Upon the proposition that the Amateur Athletic union cannot reasonably expect to assume control of bowling—many hold that this action would be as manifestly indiscreet as the attempt to control billiards—the critics are united. Bowlers claim that their congress should be representative enough to supervise all league contests, inter-city tournaments and national tourneys. With that end in view, the congress passed rules and directed its officers to see that they were executed. But not a word has been said about separating the professionals—they are multiplying with great rapidity in big cities—from the amateurs.

Chicago is an offender in the matter of men of great bowling skill, practically selling their services to more than one team not in the same league. Some of the thrifty bowlers think it no discredit to appear in the competitions of at least three leagues. Certainly there is no bar put up to prevent this species of professionalism, but it cannot fail to have a depressing effect upon the club members of leagues that think too much of the amateur status of their clubs to expend a dollar in hiring skilled bowlers. The practice of engaging professionals restricts interest in the leagues, and is bound to result in a loss of membership. If the engaged rollers are like the professional athletes that athletic clubs have engaged to act as point winners, they seldom contribute to the financial support of the clubs employing them. As long as the managers of the various leagues give their consent to this form of bowling, there will be men who will seek to earn a few dollars.

"The Father of Bowling," former Recording Secretary of the American Bowling Congress Curtis, says that bowling has become so much a national game that it will give outdoor sports a considerable rub this summer. He says that once a man "gets the fever" he will select cool and well-ventilated alleys and spend his summer afternoons in rolling, despite the oppressiveness of the atmosphere outside. If the veteran be correct in his premises, it would behoove the men who have invested thousands of dollars in alleys to figure upon ventilation and refrigeration. The dollars that might go to the coffers of the baseball clubs would jingle in the cash boxes of the alley keepers if cooling draughts could be sent through the bowling alleys hot evenings.

In conclusion, I might say that the demand for bowling balls has been so abnormal this winter that the manufacturers are actually facing a famine in properly seasoned wood. Alleys require kiln-seasoned, high-class material, and expert workmen get liberal wages while installing them. It is a good thing for all communities that sports and pastimes make their demands upon the workmen, the forest, the workshop and the capitalist.

The team from the Roselle Casino comes to Plainfield Thursday evening to roll the last series of games in The Daily Press Bowling League. The series was postponed from Friday, February 1st. The league has been a decided success although, on account of the comparative weakness of the Plainfield team, Plainfield has had little to enjoy. In Roselle and Westfield, there has been much interest exhibited in the league and even Cranford has always turned out a representative audience at the alleys when games were rolled in that place. The games rolled at the Park Club alleys have been well attendd but naturally the crowd was not as large as it would have been had Plainfield stood at the head instead of nearly at the other end of the list. Another year it is to be hoped that the Parks will brace up and make a better showing than it has this year.

VARICUS SPORTS.

The first of the series of contests at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium will be held Saturday evening. It will be the first section of the novice athletic contest, which lasts two weeks. The first section will include the standing broad jump, fence vault and running high jump. On the Saturday evening following the second section will be contested and will include the following events: Hop, step and jump, running high kick and potato race.

ROD AND GUN.

Tom Fahy shot a goshawk near Sebring's Mills Saturday, which Frank Hedden is stuffing and mounting for him.

Frank Hedden and "Spiel" Welch went shooting at the South Plainfield pond yesterday. They started two flocks of ducks and managed to secure two of them.

A WHIRL OF PLEASURE.

Montauk Club Had Plenty of Amusement at Its Gathering Last Evening.

One of the most enjoyable affairs under the auspices of the Montauk Euchre Club was that of last evening. The full membership of twenty assembled at William N. Tier's place on Park avenue, where Mr. Tier had his large wagon and a team of horses ready to take the party for a ride. The wagon was filled with straw. The start was make about 7 o'clock and for two hours the club travelled about the country in the nearby vicinity, and had a jolly good time.

About 9 o'clock the club stopped at the home of Former Councilman and Mrs. Vincent L. Frazee, of West End Park, where they were delightfully entertained by Miss Addie Weaver, who proved herself a most competent hostess. After everyone had been cordially received, play was started and continued until a late hour. Miss May MacLoughlin made the highest score for the women, while Mrs. Robert M. Clark was second. Mrs. Horace Huff secured the consolation prize. Arthur Cannon scored the highest point for the men, while Mr. Hardingham came in second. J. M. Smalley was the winner of the consolation.

At the conclusion of the play the members sought diversion in dancing. This was continued until the small hours of the morning. This feature was interspersed with vocal an instrumental music. Not the least of the many enjoyable features was the supper served by the hostess. It was quite late this morning when the guests departed for home, and they all voted Mr. Tier a "jolly good fellow." The club will be entertained two weeks from last evening by Miss Nellie Breen, of Elizabeth.

STROMBERG CAPTURED.

General Gatacre Drives the Boers Before Him—Natal Practically Clear,

(Special to The Daily Press.)

London, March 6.—The War Office gave out the following despatch from Lord Roberts today:

"Osfontein, Orange Free State, March 6.—Gen. Gatacre occupied Stromberg yesterday. The lines of railway north and west will now be repaired. Gen. Clements is at Joubert's siding station, beyond Colesberg.

"The Duke of Malborough with the Oxford company of the Imperial Yeomanry, has left Cape Town for Naouw Poort.

"Gen. Buller reports Natal as practically clear of the enemy and that he cannot hear of any formed body of them anywhere. The Boers left some ambulances full of their sick and wounded from which the mules had been taken for transport purposes."

DISLOCATED HIS SHOULDER.

John Jones Stepped Off a Train That Was Moving and Was Badly Hurt.

John Jones, fireman at the pumping station of the Plainfield Water Supply Company, Netherwood, met with a very painful accident this morning as he was getting off the train that reaches Netherwood at 5:38 o'clock. It had been hailing during the early hours of the morning and when Jones stepped off the train, which had just started from the station, he slipped and fell. He landed heavily on the ground and dislocated his shoulder.

Patrolman Nicholas Myers happened to be nearby at the time and he rendered assistance to Jones. Jones refused to be taken to the hospital in the ambulance, and the officer brought him to his home on East Second street on a trolley car. A physician was summoned and the proper treatment was given. Aside from the dislocation Jones did not receive any other injuries, but this will detain him from work for some time to come.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. C. A. Fowler, of New York, an old time friend of Mr. and Mrs. Maze Edwards, of the Jackson building, has been aiding in the care of Mr. Edwards, who is slowly recovering from his illness.

DEFEAT FOR CHAMPIONS.

PARK TEAM WON FROM NEW JERSEY WHIST CLUB.

The Contest was for State Championship, Though the Visitors Hold the National Cup.

The winning of the American Whist League trophy was enough for the New Jersey Whist Club, of Newark. The New Jersey Club team came here last evening in an effort to get the State trophy as well, but they failed. The Park Club team won by a score of 20 to 9, and now stands first for the State trophy, with ten out of the necessary fifteen wins that secures permanent ownership of the trophy.

The hard play for the big trophy Saturday had its effect on the visitors. Then, too, the absence of Cameron was felt. They did not play up to their usual game, and after the first round, which was fought particularly hard, the guests slackened their pace and the Parks had no difficulty in winning.

The Parks managed to get the best of every round. The first went to the home club 5 to 2. In the second the Parks won 6 to 3. The third was comparatively easy, the Parks coming out ahead 9 to 4. The total score was 20 to 9 in favor of the Parks.

The visiting team was composed of Messrs. Otis, Reynolds, Amar and Eagles. The Park Club had the usual team, Peter B. Matthews, Arthur A. Freeman, Albert O. Woltmann and Ralph Willis.

According to the rules, the trophy becomes the permanent property of the club winning it fifteen times. The Park Club, by winning the match last night, has advanced to first place with ten wins. The Elizabeth Chess and Whist Club is second with nine, the New Jersey Whist Club third with six and the Orange Whist Club fourth with five.

NEW HARDWARE FIRM.

H. E. Gayle at Head of a Company That Has Bought the Business of J. P. Laire.

H. E. Gayle, the carpenter and builder, yesterday formed a company, of which he is at the head, to purchase the old established business of the J. P. Laire Hardware Company, who are located on West Front street, near Park avenue. Mr Gayle will give up the carpenter business as soon as he can finish his present contracts. Mr. Laire will remain with the new company until about June 1st, when he will become secretary of a new corporation just formed in Elizabeth. He will continue to reside in Plainfield, however.

The present clerks and cashier will be retained by Mr. Gayle.

Vice-Chancellor Emery had decided the case in favor of the will, and his opinion was affirmed.

During the evening the refreshments were served and a social time indulged in by those present.

Decided Not to Have Easter Dance.

The friends of the Twilight Social Club will regret to learn that they have decided not to hold their annual Easter Monday night dance this year. Owing to the leasing of the Crescent Rink for manufacturing purposes they feel as though it would hardly be right to crowd their always large attendance into a smaller hall. They will discontinue their dances until such time in the future when there is a suitable place in Plainfield for holding them.

—The Delaware and Raritan canal was opened up for transportation yesterday. A sure harbinger of spring.

MRS. EYLER PICTURED IN A VERY BAD WAY

Dr. Laura Satterthwait Declares the Matron Inflicted Cruelties in Fits of Passion.

KILLED HOME INFLUENCE

THE LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE HEARS SOME DAMAGING TESTIMONY.

It is Expressed That the Matron of the State Industrial School is Not Fit to Run Anything—School Like a Prison.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, March 7—The investigation into the affairs of the State Industrial School for Girls was resumed yesterday afternoon in the Assembly Chamber, which was well-filled with spectators. Rev. Clarence Eyler, husband of the matron of the school, occupied his usual place near the committee. He constantly wrote questions on paper and handed them to the secretary of the committee to be asked the witnesses.

Lewis Parker, grand secretary of the Odd Fellows and president of the Trenton Savings Fund, was the first witness. He was for years secretary and treasurer of the old board of trustees. He said he had no criticism to make on the method of punishment inflicted at the school, and in a measure showed himself favorably disposed toward Mrs. Eyler. There existed no rule, he said, permitting corporal punishment, and the rules were broken when such punishment was inflicted. He had resigned because of lack of harmony in the board of trustees, but he did not know what had caused the friction.

Mr. Parker said he approved of all cases where girls were kept in cells for several days on bread and water. As for the case of Sadie Wiseman, who died in Paterson, he believed the punishment she had received was just, as did also the executive board of managers at that time. He thought Mrs. Eyler's control of the school was good. He said he did not favor corporal punishment, but thought it was necessary to call in men to control some of the girls, because the women could not handle them. He thought it necessary to keep a girl in anklets until she became penitent, no matter how long it might take.

Dr. Laura H. Satterthwait, the former physician of the school, who was recently dropped from the list of officers, was next called. She said she had been the attending physician at the school, and had been called to attend Kate Barlow for inflammation of the stomach. She had attended her several times, and during her absence the girl had been removed to the City Hospital without the witness' knowledge or consent. The doctor declared that she had never been given a history of the girl's case. She had seen evidence on the girl's neck that she had been choked, and from her general appearance and condition she considered the girl had been severely and cruelly punished.

She had reported several cases of cruel and inhuman treatment to the Board of Managers, but had never heard anything from them. When asked about Mrs. Eyler's temperament, the witness gave several illustrations of cruel and inhuman treatment which had been inflicted during a fit of passion on the part of Mrs. Eyler. Dr. Satterthwait said Mrs. Eyler was not in sympathy with the girls, but aggravated them more than anything else. The home-like influence which had prevailed in the school disappeared entirely upon Mrs. Eyler's arrival.

The witness stated that if Mrs. Eyler were a true woman the affairs at that school would at present be very different. Assemblyman Walklee quickly asked: "What do you mean by a true woman?" and was informed that a true woman was one who had a character and a reputation for truth and veracity.

Dr. Satterthwait declared that many cases of sickness in the institution had been caused by cruel treatment, in addition to being fed on bread and water for several weeks. The witness laid all the blame on the principal, and said there was a possibility of harmony existing at the school now because all the teachers were friends of Mrs. Eyler and would approve of the kind of treatment the girls would receive. When asked about Nettie Malone, who died in a Philadelphia hospital, the doctor said one ought to place the blame where it belonged, and that was on Mrs. Eyler.

"Why, Mrs. Eyler is not fit to run anything," said Dr. Satterthwait with PARENTS INSANE OR IN JAIL.

Mrs. Murr Will be Sent to Morris Plains and Murr Released to Support His Children.

Rev. Dr. Henry Hale Sleeper, rector of Grace Episcopal church, Elizabeth, accompanied by Miss Kremm, president of the Children's Aid Society, yesterday afternoon visited the home of Ernest Murr, at No. 53 Butler street, Elizabeth, who is in jail for thirty days for ill treating his wife.

Dr. Sleeper found that the woman was undoubtedly deranged and not fit to take care of herself. Steps will be taken at once to remove her to the Morris Plains Asylum. The eighteen-year old blind daughter will be placed in a charitable institution, and the other child will be taken into the Children's Home. Murr himself will be released from jail, in order that he may not lose his position, and he will be forced to provide for the support of his children.

DATE FOR CONVENTION

REPUBLICANS TO ELECT DELEGATES APRIL 19TH.

Silver Service, Costing $1,200, Presented to the Wife of Senator Sewell.

(Special to The Daily Press).

Trenton, March 7—The State Republican committee met here yesterday and set April 19th as the date for the convention to elect delegates to the Republican National convention. Gov. Voorhees sent a letter to the committee nominating Wm. Riker, Jr., as committeeman at-large to succeed the late Vice-President Hobart. United States Senators Sewell and Kean and State Chairman Franklin Murphy were present. The committee by a vote of 8 to 6 indorsed the Anti-Spring Election bill.

A $1,200 silver service of twenty-four pieces was presented to Senator Sewell. Congressman Loudenslager made the presentation. He paid a high tribute to Senator Sewell as a leader of his party. Senator Sewell was taken by surprise. In replying to Congressman Loudenslager's speech he said that in politics he had always tried to be fair. He was proud to say that he had two boys in the fight in Cuba and in the Philippines. He expressed thanks on behalf of Mrs. Sewell.

BIRTHDAY SOCIABLE.

Pleasant and Profitable Affair Given by Methodist Ladies' Aid Society.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church a birthday sociable was given last evening in Vincent chapel. Despite the stormy weather there was a good attendance and the society received quite a sum for their treasury to help them in their work in the church. The forepart of the evening was devoted to an entertainmet of much merit. It consisted of recitations by Miss Bertha Whitney, instrumental selections by Miss May Whitney, vocal solos by William Holmes, accompanied by Miss May Whitney, graphophone selections by Donald McGee, violin selections by Miss Wyatt and flute solos by Nabataro Tamaioki, of Tokio, who appeared in Japanese dress.

J. W. Jackson was in charge of the programme and announced the several numbers. After the entertainment refreshments were served and a social time was enjoyed. The affair was in charge of a committee composed of the following women: Mrs. J. M. McNaughton, chairman; Mrs. Whitney, Mrs. W. C. Snodgrass, Mrs. I. L. McVoy, Mrs. Templin, Mrs. C. H. Rugg, Miss Sharp, Mrs. Winters, Mrs. Pike, Mrs. Peck, Mrs. Nelson Miller, Mrs. Henry A. McGee, Mrs. Benjamin Mills, Mrs. Joseph Yerkes. To these women the credit for the success of the social is due.

SHUMWAY MUST LEAVE RUTGERS.

Trustees Sustain President Scott and Criticise Professor.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, March 7.—The trustees of Rutgers College yesterday accepted the regisnation of Professor Shumway. It is to take effect June 1st, but his salary is to continue until October 1st. The committee of the faculty recommended the action.

The committee's report accused Professor Shumway of aiding in the preparation and circulation of the petition to members of the alumni. It was declared that this was indiscreet.

This action sustains President Scott, but hardly closes the incident, as the alumni declare that the strictures the report contains are unfair and will be resented.

Every one in this city looks for some startling demonstration on the part of the undergraduates within the next twenty-four hours.

COUNCILMAN M'NABB SUCCEEDS IN HOLDING UP ORDINANCE.

Mayor and Majority of Council Looked Surprised Over Result, But They Could Not Prevent the Action.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, March 7.—Councilman McNabb took an active hand in the telephone war at the March meeting of the Borough Council last evening. It was expected that the ordinance granting the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company the right to establish an exchange here and erect poles in the streets would come up and there was a fair show that the ordinance would be passed. Councilman McNabb, who has been one of the bitterest enemies of the invading company, succeeded in temporarily blocking action. Meanwhile the big company is rapidly getting new subscribers and stringing its lines over private property.

For nearly a year the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company has been fighting a local concern. At first the greater company had but few advocates, but its advantages have been persistently put before the public until there is a decided feeling in favor of admitting the New Jersey company.

Three months ago an ordinance granting the company the right to erect poles in the borough was introduced. According to the State law the company has the right to put up poles on private property and string its wire across the highways. That is what has been done and an exchange established here in the Ross building. There are now twenty-three subscribers with the prospect of many more.

The ordinance was referred to the ordinance committee, of which McNabb is chairman. It was understood that the ordinance would be called up at the meeting of the Council last night. Mayor Richard Brokaw called upon the chairman of the ordinance committee to report the ordinance to the Council. Mr. McNabb refused. The rest of the Council looked surprised, but that ended the subject for the meeting.

There may be a change before the next meeting, however, as the terms of Councilmen McNabb and Hastings expire this month and new Councilmen will be elected. It is understood that they will not be renominated. Both are strong opponents of the big company and their successors may be otherwise inclined. Action will therefore be deferred until the new Councilmen are elected.

LOW EBB OF BUILDING TRADE

Only Ten Permits Granted by Building Inspector Doane During Month of February.

The building trade was at its lowest ebb in February. There were a number of buildings to be completed but only two new houses were started during the month. Building Inspector T. O. Doane granted ten permits in February, eight of them for additions, repairs and small structures.

One of the new houses is a comfortable cottage that David Arthur, Jr., is building on West Fifth street, near Monroe avenue. W. H. Clum is the architect. The house will cost $1,800. The other is the new lodge at the Methodist cemetery on Plainfield avenue. It will cost $1,000, and is being built by Munday Brothers.

E. H. Holmes has had a new brick stable built by his coal yard on Madison avenue, and iron coal sheds erected. The other permits were for small structures and extensions.

BICYCLES RECOVERED; TWO LADS CAPTURED

Youthful Prisoners Are Charged Wite Stealing Two Wheels Monday Afternoon.

OTHER FOR STEALING FLOUR

POLICE FOUND THE BICYCLES, ONE OF WHICH WAS WRECKED.

Trio of Youngsters Before Justice Nash This Morning—Alfred Talbert and George VanNest Held For Stealing Wheels.

The two bicycles stolen in this city Monday afternoon have been recovered by the police. Two little lads, Alfred Talbert, aged fourteen years, and George VanNest, aged ten years, are held responsible for the theft. Justice Nash sent the boys to Elizabeth this morning to await the action of the Grand Jury.

It will be remembered that the two wheels were stolen Monday afternoon, one from the piazza of the home of Miss Ada Marsh, of Franklin place, and the other from the rear of the residence of John F. Harman, of West Seventh street. They belonged to Miss Booth, of Central avenue and the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Townsend Rushmore, of West Seventh street.

A neighbor saw two small boys lead away the wheel stolen from the Marsh residence. The police were informed and traced the two lads to Mountain avenue. All Monday night the police searched the eastern end of the city to find the wheels. At last the police were informed that young George VanNest had been seen with a strange wheel.

Yesterday the police went after Alfred Talbert and VanNest. Chief Grant and Roundsman Frederickson hunted through the West End and captured Talbert at his home. VanNest escaped. One of the wheels was found in a yard at the corner of Central avenue and West Second street. It was alleged that VanNest and Talbert had taken a small amount of money away from a lad there and that his mother had taken possession of the wheel until the money should be returned.

This wheel proved to be the one owned by the Rushmores and was taken home by the police. The other one, the boys said, they had thrown under the Sycamore avenue bridge. Another boy had found it there and taken it to his home in the West End. Roundsman Frederickson recovered that one. The front forks were snapped. It was returned to Miss Booth.

Roundsman Flynn and Patrolman Totten captured young VanNest at midnight. He did not return home after he learned that the police wanted him, but went to sleep in a barn in that neighborhood. There the police found him and brought him down to the station house.

The youthful culprits were arraigned before Justice Nash this morning and were committed to the county jail to await the action of the Grand Jury. It is expected that an attempt will be made to have them sent to the Reform School.

Joseph Wisniewski, a 14-year-old boy was arrested last night in a barn with the VanNest boy. The police say that Joseph is a bad boy. He was charged with stealing five bags of flour from the mill of A. J. Cadmus on South Second street, and also with helping himself to a quantity of bread tickets belonging to Paul Reusch, a Dunellen baker. The tickets were taken from a coat in Mr. Reusch's cart. The flour was taken in the daytime. Each sack contained twenty-five pounds of flour. Mr. Cadmus thought the flour had been stolen at night, and was surprised when the accused boy admitted that he had taken the flour from the mill in the daytime when the employes were in another part of the mill.

Justice Nash committed them to the Elizabeth jail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Captain Grant took the trio of thieves to the county seat this morning.

The funeral services will be held Friday afternoon next from the Mt. Bethel church at 2 o'clock.

REED'S BILL FOR TAX REFORM PASSED

Senate Adopts Senator Reed's Measure, Which Seeks to Equalize Assessments.

THE CO-INSURANCE CLAUSE

SOMERSET SENATOR GETS THIS MEASURE THROUGH THE SENATE.

Slight Trouble in Passing Amendments to State Sewerage Bill—Hearing Held on the General School Bill.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, March 7—There was a long discussion yesterday in the Senate over Senator Reed's bill to equalize tax assessments. The measure gives Boards of Freeholders the privilege of applying to the county court for the appointment of a county board of commissioners, who shall have power to equalize assessments. Senator Reed explained that the present method of having the assessors come together annually in each county and equalize the assessment was cumbersome and unsatisfactory. The bill was not mandatory, and no county need accept it.

Senator McDermott, of Hudson, said he favored the bill. Senator Francis thought it should be mandatory that the public might quickly get the benefit of the reform. Senator Johnson, the President of the Senate, left the chair, and explained that he was the author of the bill. He said it had been prepared to relieve the situation in Bergen county, where there are sixty-six assessors, and where many abuses had crept into the present system.

Senator Martin, of Sussex, opposed the act on the ground that in the smaller counties the present system was working well. He thought three men would be unable to do such work. The measure passed by a vote of 14 to 2.

Senator Reed's co-insurance bill also passed the Senate. This measure is designed to prevent false pretenses of fire insurance companies, and provides that when a policy is issued on the co-insurance plan a clause shall be inserted to that effect, naming a reduction in rate.

There was some slight trouble experienced in having amendments passed to the State sewerage bill. The amendments were mainly of technical character and in no way altered the main purpose of the bill. The proposed law does not apply to inter-State streams unless used for potable water. It exempts the Hudson River and the Kill Von Kull, but includes the Delaware River, which will be inspected by the commission as soon as the act is passed. The bill making it unlawful for any one to practice law without having been regularly admitted was subsequently passed.

Senator Johnson's bill to prevent any one who is not legally admitted to the Bar of this State from declaring himself to be a lawyer passed the Senate this morning. This bill is a copy of the Pennsylvania law, and was introduced at the request of two prominent Camden lawyers.

There was a hearing yesterday afternoon before the Senate committee on education on the general school bill fathered by Senator Stokes. Several speakers favored the bill's general outlines. Considerable opposition developed to the section providing for elective instead of appointive Boards of Education. The committee was urged to amend the bill by adding a referendum clause, so that the respective municipalities affected might suit themselves in the matter. There will be another hearing on this bill next Wednesday.

SOMERVILLE PARTISANS WILL FORM A BIG CLUB.

Meeting Addressed by Jas. E. Martine—Delivered Characteristic Democratic Speech.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, March 7.—The Democrats of Somerville met at Somerset Hall last night to organize a club. Geo. P. Norton called the meeting to order, Walter Durling was elected chairman and Peter VanCleef secretary. The chairman was authorized to appoint committees, which he will do in a few days.

Hon. James J. Bergen made a brief address. He scored the Republicans for allowing corporate control of judgeships, saying that Judge Childs was turned down at the behest of corporations.

James E. Martine, of Plainfield, was then called upon, and for fifty minutes filled the hall with his eloquence. He opened with an apt illustration of the power of organization. He then scored the trusts and said bimetalism was not dead. He frequently referred to William J. Bryan and pictured the Nebraskan in glowing colors. He said that Bryan would be nominated at Kansas City by acclamation before the roll-call of States. He referred to McKinley as a good man, but said he was controlled by Mark Hanna. He touched up the Porto Rico tariff business and promised the workingmen prosperity and happiness if Bryan was elected. He was frequently greeted with applause.

A vote of thanks was extended to him and the meeting adjourned, subject to the call of the chairman.

WANT MR. MARTINE AS ONE OF THE "BIG FOUR"

"Farmer Orator's" Name Will Be Urged for Selection as Delegate-at-Large.

HIS RECORD IS CONSISTENT.

HAS BEEN A LOYAL AND DEVOTED "REGULAR" THROUGHOUT.

His Selection Would Give Satisfaction to the Rank and File of the Party—Friends Will Push His Name.

The question of what Democrats in New Jersey shall be selected to represent the State in the National Democratic convention, which will convene in Kansas City July 4th, is regarded as a knotty one to solve to the satisfaction of all elements of the party. It is a matter of political history of the State that the delegation representing New Jersey in the Chicago convention in 1896 walked out of the convention when the free silver plank was put into the platform. To the minds of the simon pure Democrats who respect the decision of the recognized organization above all things else, this unusual conduct on the part of the delegates was an action that has rankled their political souls ever since.

While there is a desire for party harmony and unanimity of action among all who have played the part of big or little leaders, there is a growing sentiment among the devoted followers of Col. William J. Bryan and the principles he advocates that when the time comes for choosing the delegates who will represent the party in New Jersey at the Kansas City convention, that there should be men chosen who can be depended upon to represent what appears to be the dominant sentiment among the rank and file of the party.

There has been considerable talk among the out spoken Bryan men that the New Jersey delegation should be made of men who are consistent believers and advocates of the principles of the Chicago convention, and not of men who violently opposed those tenets of the party four years ago, but since then, for the sake of political expediency and prestige, have changed their opinions and are now presumably "regular."

In the talk about men of whose regularity and loyalty there can be no question, there is one name that is almost unconsciously suggested at the first thought. That is the name of James E. Martine, familiarly known as "The Farmer Orator" throughout the State of New Jersey. Mr. Martine's Democracy has never been of a faltering or swerving kind. In the campaign of 1896 Mr. Martine was about the only Democrat of any prominence in this section of New Jersey that came out boldly for Bryan the moment he was nominated, and throughout that campaign he worked persistently and against great odds to win votes for the Nebraskan. At no time has there ever been any doubt about his opinions or devotion in the political world. He has been consistent and aggressive throughout.

Thus it is that the friends of Mr. Martine are beginning to mention the name of Mr. Martine as one of those who should go to Kansas City as a member of the New Jersey delegation. Not as a district delegate, however, but as one of the "Big Four" representing the State at-large. Mr. Martine's friends believe that when it comes to the distribution of honors in the Democratic party there are none who are more entitled to them than he is, and especially in relation to a leading place in the New Jersey delegation to what will be one of the most notable political conventions in the history of the country.

The sequence of political events in this State, it is argued, are such that the "Farmer Orator" is bound to be one of the leading spirits in the Presidential campaign, and it will be but fitting to have him elected as one of the delegates-at-large when the State convention for that purpose is held.

Between now and the time of holding the convention for the selection of delegates to go the National convention, the friends of Mr. Martine in several sections of the State will do their utmost to secure for him the honor to represent New Jersey as one of the "Big Four."

ENTOMBED IN A MINE

Disastrous Gas Explosion In West Virginia Colliery.

FIFTY DEAD BODIES RECOVERED.

At Least Forty-five More Thought to Be In the Wreck—Heartrending Scenes at the Mouth of the Mine.

FIRE CREEK, W. Va., March 7.—The most disastrous mine explosion ever known in the New River district occurred at the Red Ash mine shortly after the miners went to work yesterday morning. Although the most heroic work of the rescuing party has been going on incessantly, it is impossible yet to estimate the full extent of the loss of life and property. More than 50 dead bodies have already been taken out, and the number of the dead may reach 75 or more. It is thought that at least 45 miners are yet entombed in the wrecked mine.

The Red Ash mine is a large drift, and the explosion occurred near the entrance, which was thus closed by the falling slate, entombing a large number of miners.

The scene of the disaster is between this place and Thurmond, on the South branch of the Chesapeake and Ohio railway, and every assistance possible was rendered by the railway company and by the adjoining mining towns. Relief parties from great distances arrived as soon as possible. State Mine Inspector Pinckney with a corps of experts and many workmen was on the ground during the day rendering all assistance possible and devoting his attention more toward relief than to an official investigation as to the cause of the disaster.

At the mouth of the mine the scene was beyond description. The wives and children and the neighbors of those who were known to be entombed were there in full force, and their anxiety and distress were most intense. While they were all seeking to help those who were rescued and to get the mine reopened, yet these bereaved people were for the most part in the way of the rescuers and had to be held back from the entrance. The mine is one of the largest in West Virginia and was very heavily timbered in the different drifts. It was for this reason feared that those who had not been killed by falling debris at the time of the explosion would be pinioned by these connected timbers and suffer death from suffocation.

The population of this mining village is only 500. All are miners, and the calamity will reach almost every little house in the mining town.

At a late hour last night the most reliable estimate obtainable put the number of the victims at 125.

CONGRESSMAN HARMER DEAD.

Well Known as the "Father of the House"—Honored Career Closed.

PHILADELPHIA, March 7.—Congressman Alfred C. Harmer of the Fifth Pennsylvania district and the "father of the house" died last night at his home in Germantown, a suburb of this city. Mr. Harmer had been ill since last November, when he was stricken with a severe attack of kidney trouble. He recovered sufficiently to attend the opening of congress in December, but later was again confined to his bed. A few days ago he suffered a relapse and steadily failed until last evening, when he died surrounded by his wife, three sons and two daughters.

Alfred C. Harmer was born in Germantown on Aug. 8, 1825. He was educated in the public schools and in the Germantown academy. He began his public career in 1856, when he was elected to city councils for four years. In 1860 he was elected recorder of deeds for this city for three years. He was elected to congress in 1870 and re-elected to every subsequent congress with the exception of the Forty-fourth. The one break in his long congressional career was due to a three cornered fight. Neither he nor his Republican opponent would yield, and John Robbins, a Democrat, slipped in and captured the prize by about 1,000 plurality. Mr. Harmer was elected by a substantial majority in 1876 and since had had no difficulty in retaining his seat. His majority almost constantly increased, he being returned to the present congress with 30,000 majority.

Although not prominent for his ability as a speaker, Mr. Harmer had been a telling worker in the committees and throughout his long career as a congressman attended closely to the duties of his office. Congressman Harmer was engaged in many business enterprises in the course of his life.

The men indicted are Alfred R. Goslin, who was arrested in Philadelphia on Monday; Harry J. Alexander, an advertising agent; Charles T. Davis, editor of The Wall Street Review, and Eugene L. Packer, all of whom were put under arrest in this city; Warner T. Allen, an alleged stockholder of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit, and one Bogart, who is said to be Goslin's private secretary.

Santiago's New Hospital.

SANTIAGO, Cuba, March 7.—Work has begun upon the new yellow fever hospital to replace the building that was burned several weeks ago. Investigation has shown beyond doubt that the fire was of incendiary origin. The employees testified that they had thrice extinguished fires within a fortnight previous to the one that destroyed the hospital, with large quantities of quartermaster's and medical stores. No evidence was developed, however, reflecting upon Dr. Herman, who was in charge of the hospital at the time of the fire and who was relieved immediately afterward. The new hospital will provide the best possible facilities for treating yellow fever.

MEANING OF THE FLAG.

A Patriotic Sailor Who Had the Love of It Rooted Deep in His Heart.

If those who go down to the sea in ships to fight the battles of the nation are all of the brand of this sailor, it is no wonder that the United States is invincible on the ocean. He was standing on the corner of First and B streets southeast, having been viewing the capitol, when half a dozen young men came from the congressional library, and met the tar, who was waiting for a car. He was in regulation uniform of a sailor on land, and his rolling walk, as well as his seamed and grizzled face, gave evidence that for many a year he had sailed the briny deep. The particularly noticeable thing about him was a small silk flag, about six or eight inches long, which he wore pinned straight across his breast. This flag aroused the fun-loving propensities of the young men, and they began to chaff the sailor.

"Say, Jack," protested one, "what are you wearing that flag for? This isn't Dewey day."

"Naw!" returned the sailor, "it isn't Dewey day, but it's to-day, isn't it?"

"Well?" responded the young man.

"Yes, it's well, me hearty. It's today, and every day in this God blessedest of free countries is flag day, and sure, thot's well."

"Jacky, you're mighty patriotic," volunteered another, "but that isn't the only flag in the world."

"Please God, it's the best one," quickly retorted the tar. "Now, see here, me lads, I loves this flag. I wants to feel the folds of it the last thing when I goes to sleep, and I wants to see it the first thing when I wakes up. It don't mean much to young blokes, only to make things purty when there's a p'rade. To me, that's got no home, and no country but this'n, which ain't no mor'n a stepmother to me, though she do be kinder and generouser than most own mothers, this here flag," patting it with a tender hand, "this here flag says, 'while y'er honest and loyal to y'er stepmother, she'll purtect you and lick the livers out of any foreign lubber that attacks you.' Ain't she done it?" he asked suddenly of the laughing boys. "I say, ain't she kept her word?"

"You bet she has," was the hearty response.

"Now, see here, you can crack y'er jokes on me and be blessed to you, but you lets this here flag alone," tapping it significantly. "Lads, listen to Jack," he concluded, hitching his trousers and stepping out to take the car looming into sight. "I never hurted a woman in me life, because me mother is a woman. I never done nothing that hurted the flag, because it's me stepmother. Now, you just remembers that, and do likewise, and you'll be some decent. But if you comes around Jack a floutin' of either, you gits your visages smashed into smithereens. The bloke that ain't a lover of this flag ain't fit to live."—Washington Star.

PRICES OF WILD BEASTS.

Lion Cubs Are Almost a Drug Because Easily Bred in Captivity.

The importation of lions has almost ceased, because it is cheaper and easier to breed them in captivity. Formerly an importer of fine lions could calculate upon getting $5,000 for a good specimen, but to-day young lions bred in captivity are almost a drug in the market. The only demand for imported lions is to keep up the stock of the breeding ones or for very large, powerful creatures, for it is noticeable that the tendency in the cage breeding is for the animals to degenerate in size and ferocity. Tigers do not take as kindly to cage life as the lions, and they do not breed so satisfactorily in captivity, and considerable numbers are imported every year. Elephants do not breed well in captivity, not more than two or three ever having been bred in this country; but the importations of these animals are so large that the prices obtained for them have dropped from $10,000 to from $1,500 to $2,500 each.

Numerous as monkeys are in this country, they are not bred here, as they do not breed well in captivity. They are so easily obtained in the country south of us, however, that prices obtained for them are merely nominal, and there is little danger of their immediate extinction. In their native countries they multiply so rapidly that the supply always keeps well up to the demand. Among the highest-priced animals of to-day are the rhinoceroses. They are quite scarce, and they do not breed in captivity. There are probably not more than half a dozen in number in this country; all were bought years ago at good round sums. Thus the full-grown ones in Central park, New York, cost the department $7,000, and a similar sum was paid for the fine African specimen in the Philadelphia zoo. The most recent purchase of a rhinoceros was the full-grown one for Barnum's circus, which cost the proprietors $7,250.

The hippopotamus is another extremely rare and expensive creature, and sales of these African products are so few that it is difficult to quote a price for them. It is seldom that dealers have a good specimen to sell, and few private circuses could afford to give the prices that would be demanded. The hippopotamus born in Central park is the only instance of these animals breeding in this country. Had this baby hippopotamus belonged to a private show it would have made a fortune for its owners.—Scientific American.

A Thin Plot.

ROBERTS IS WAITING

British Force Being Strengthened and Replenished.

BOERS GETTING READY TO OPPOSE

President Steyn at the Front—Enemy Intrenching Their Position—House of Commons Authorizes a Loan of Thirty-five Million Pounds.

LONDON, March 7.—Lord Roberts still pauses in the neighborhood of Osfontein, while stores, remounts and fresh troops stream toward him from the Cape. The British position also continues to improve in the minor spheres of the campaign. Natal is clear of Boers, and Cape Colony is nearly so.

The Boers seemingly are pursuing the course commended by the strategists and are concentrating to resist the British main army. Various messages from correspondents with Lord Roberts report that the enemy are increasing continually on his front.

Mr. Spenser Wilkinson in The Morning Post today confines his review of the military situation to a mere record of events and concludes as follows:

"It almost seems as though Lord Roberts wished to let the Boers assemble as much of their army as they can before beginning to try conclusions with them."

A dispatch from General Roberts' headquarters at Osfontein says:

"The Boer position has now been fairly located as about four miles to the British front and extending about eight miles. The Boer right consists of a high, long mountain on the north side of the river, which General French shelled this morning.

"President Steyn is reported to be in the laager in front of us.

"Apparently the space between the mountain and the river has been intrenched. South of the river the Boer lines cover more ground. A few days ago their left rested on the high kopjes standing in the middle of the plain. They have been extended two miles farther south, while six small kopjes stand in the plain between the center and the left and between the center and the river and form a ridge, behind which the Boers move unseen. The weakness of the whole position, however, is that it can easily be turned in either direction. The country is flat, and water abounds, the recent rains having nearly filled all the dams."

PRESIDENT STEYN.

The house of commons, in committee of the whole, last evening adopted a resolution to authorize a loan of £35,000,000. The vote stood 161 to 26.

Dutch Rebels More Quiet.

ORANGE RIVER, Cape Colony, March 7.—The recent British victories have had a wonderfully quieting effect on the rebel Dutch, many of whom in the neighborhood of Douglas are reported disheartened and about returning to their homes. The commando in the neighborhood of Britstown has been given carte blanche by President Steyn to raise as many recruits and to do as much damage as possible. The rebels in the neighborhood of Kenhardt are particularly aggressive, acting on the supposition that the troops of Lord Roberts are fully occupied in the Free State.

Boer Women Prisoners.

CAPE TOWN, March 7.—Many women who are reported to be good shots are among the Boer prisoners arriving here. The Dutch church has issued a manifesto in favor of the Boer republics retaining complete independence. Lord Roberts has accepted the honorary colonelcy of the City of London volunteers.

Counterfeiters Arrested.

SYRACUSE, March 7.—United States Secret Service Detective Ireland has been working in this city for more than a week trying to ferret out a gang of counterfeiters. Two men and two women have been arrested for passing the money and sent to the penitentiary temporarily. They are Michael Giglio, Frank Bernardo, May Bernard and Mabel Doyle. The men are Italians. The counterfeits consisted of dollars, halves and quarters, and large sums have been circulated.

A Horrible Crime.

BAXLEY, Ga., March 7.—Dan Mimms, a young farmer living 20 miles from here, was murdered by two negro robbers Monday. He was on his porch when attacked, and when his wife ran out the robbers had killed him. She tried to escape with her baby, but the negroes killed the child and beat her so cruelly that her life is despaired of. Officers with dogs have gone from here. The murderers live in the neighborhood. They are both less than 20 years old.

Lock Works Damaged by Fire.

BRANFORD, Conn., March 7.—The Branford Lock works, a department of the Yale & Towne Manufacturing company, was damaged to the extent of several thousand dollars late yesterday afternoon from a fire caused by one of the lacquer kilns becoming overheated. The loss, however, is covered by insurance. Upward of 400 hands will be thrown out of employment pending repairs.

New Jersey Newspaper Men.

TRENTON, March 7.—The newspaper men of the New Jersey legislature of 1900 held their annual banquet at the Trenton House last night. There were about 60 present, including a number of invited guests. Among the guests present were Governor Voorhees, President Johnson of the senate, Speaker Jones of the house, United States Senators Sewell and Kean.

CORBIN IS AROUSED.

Adjutant General Demands a Searching Investigation.

NEWSPAPERS ATTACK HIS RECORD.

Official Documents Produced to Disprove the Charges Made—Thirty-eight Years of Continuous Service With an Honorable Record.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Brigadier General Henry C. Corbin, adjutant general, U. S. A., has sent the following letter to Senator Davis of Minnesota in regard to the charges affecting General Corbin's standing as an officer:

"Dear Sir—My attention has been called to certain newspaper reports purporting to set forth extracts from a 'memorial' that is said to have been transmitted to you which are in the nature of charges affecting my record as an officer of the army.

"So far as these statements or any others may be deserving of consideration or attention I desire to place myself at your command in asking you to make a searching examination of my record as a soldier with a view to ascertaining all the truth, and I wish to say in all earnestness if a search reveals to you a suggestion of unworthiness I will close the discussion, so far as I am concerned, by authorizing you to present my resignation from the service to the president.

"I believe in disposing of radical evils with quick remedies, and, so far as lies in my power, this rule is followed in the administration of the adjutant general's department, and I shall not shrink from having the same rule applied to my own case.

"It is my duty as adjutant general of the army to afford you and through you the congress all facilities for full and complete information on any question affecting the efficiency of the military service in part or in whole.

"I have the honor to hand you herewith an official copy of general orders No. 6, headquarters, first separate division, army of the Cumberland, dated March 14, 1865, promulgating the proceeding and findings of the general court martial resulting from trial on all allegations, and your especial attention is invited to the unusual expression of the court in its findings—to wit, 'Most honorably acquitted.' That the court was composed of officers of experience and high character goes without saying, and that its proceedings, findings and approval were in all respects regular and lawful has never been questioned.

"Your attention is also invited to a copy of the official report (inclosed herewith) of the engagements of the Fourteenth United States colored infantry in and about Decatur, Ala., during the latter part of the month of October, 1864 (printed in volume 39, part 1, pages 714 to 716, of the records of the Union and Confederate armies, war of the rebellion), which report is signed by the officer who later preferred the charges upon which I was tried, one of which related to that time and place.

"I feel confident that to one of your long experience as a public officer and your high sense of justice the official records herewith brought to your attention will not permit you to be misled nor to accept as truthful the statements which are reported to be contained in the 'memorial' referred to.

"If, however, you desire to make further examination into my record I will gladly give you any assistance in facilitating an examination of the records made day by day from the time, when as a lad of 19, I left my father's farm in southern Ohio and entered the volunteer army. I am now closing my thirty-eighth year of continuous service—a service, modest though it has been, I claim to have been honest and faithful. My service in the volunteer army covered nearly four years, having in that time held commissions of six grades, from second lieutenant to and including that of colonel, with brevet of brigadier general. From all of which I was honorably discharged. Following my discharge from the volunteer service I was appointed a second lieutenant in the regular army, and in July, 1866, was appointed a captain in one of the new regiments, and so far as I am aware without the solicitation of any influence outside of the military service. I served 14 years as a captain of infantry and in the adjutant general's office, nine years in the grade of major, seven years in the grade of lieutenant colonel and two years in the grade of colonel, and at the time of my appointment as adjutant general was the senior colonel in the department. Your attention is also invited to the fact that the president tendered me the commission of major general of volunteers, which I had the honor to decline, so that all these offices (limited in number by law) might be given to officers serving with troops in the field. I have now served in the regular army more than a third of a century, and I have been absent from duty from any cause less than 30 days.

"This appeal is made to you in the name of justice, and I am confident that it is not made in vain."

Naval Movements.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The navy department has been informed of the following naval movements: The Detroit has arrived at Key West, the Dixie at Funchal and the Hartford at Valparaiso. The Scorpion has sailed from Caimanera for Cartagena via Kingston, the Vixen from St. Thomas for Culbra and the Brooklyn from Hongkong for Manila. The army transport Sumner came out of drydock at Norfolk March 6.

MRS. LAWTON GETS THE GIFT.

Nearly $100,000 Presented to the General's Widow.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—An interesting scene occurred at the Riggs National bank yesterday, when the fund raised by a grateful people in recognition of the services of the late Major General Lawton was formally transferred to his widow. The parties to the transaction were Mrs. Mary C. Lawton, Adjutant General Corbin, Acting Commissary General Weston and Mr. C. C. Glover, the last named representing the bank. General Corbin and General Weston were members of the committee which organized the fund and conducted it to a most successful conclusion. Major General Shafter, the third member of the committee, is in San Francisco.

General Corbin, as treasurer of the fund, drew a check for $98,407.07 in favor of Mary C. Lawton and saw that it was transferred to her credit on the books of the bank. At the same time his account as treasurer of the fund was closed. General Corbin said he did not care for a receipt, but Mrs. Lawton insisted on giving him one.

In addition to the money the committee also turned over to Mrs. Lawton all the letters received from subscribers to the fund, many of which contain beautiful tributes to the memory of her lamented husband.

On his return to his office General Corbin received a check for $25 from Mr. James C. Carter of New York, which the sender asked to be added to the Lawton fund, explaining that he would have sent it earlier, but he had been out of the country. It will be turned over to Mrs. Lawton and will make the total fund $98,432.07.

YAQUIS SEIZE THE MAIL.

Escort of Three Hundred Soldiers Driven Off—Two Hanged.

POTAM, Mexico, March 7.—Three days ago the Yaquis intercepted the mail, which was being conveyed under an escort of 300 soldiers.

Of the 300 soldiers all were dispersed except two, who were hanged to nearby trees. The Yaquis carried off the mail.

There are 3,000 Yaquis between Potam and Torin. Twenty-four Mexican soldiers have been brought into the military hospital, and nine Yaquis are reported dead. Mail communication between Potam and Guaymas has been stopped.

Yesterday the Yaquis fired into a body of 200 Mexican soldiers on the road between Potam and Torin and disappeared.

Between Potam and Torin, 15 miles distant, 16 bodies are hanging to trees, 14 being Yaquis and two Mexicans.

An expedition of 400 men has left Potam to open the road to Cocorit, and great fighting is expected.

The latest in street railway Legislation, an idea that has much to recommend it, has made its appearance in a bill introduced before the New York Legislature requiring street railway companies operating in New York city to employ during rush hours three persons—a motorman and a fare collector and a conductor—on all cars exceeding 30 feet in length. Under this arrangement it would be the duty of the conductor to remain on the rear platform and to stop and start the car, and he is prohibited from collecting fares or going inside the car. With the long cars now universal, particularly when they are crowded, the conductor has to impose upon the good nature of the platform riders for information as to when the car is to be started, no lookout whatever being kept for those who wish to get on the car and who are thus often left standing on the street as the car whirls past.

Another plea from an impressive source has been made for the preservation of the Palisades. This time it is from the National Sculpture Society, which has presented a memorial to the Governors and the Legislatures of New York and New Jersey in behalf of the measures pending to establish a commission to preserve the Palisades. The memorial points out that the most valuable features of the proposed bill are that they provide for the exact determination of the extent and value of the real estate necessary for the establishment of a park for the preservation of the Palisades; that they designate a legally competent custodian of funds, and property that may be appropriated to this end.

The New York Journal of Commerce prints several columns of tables giving in detail the industrial consolidations of the last forty years and showing that since 1860 there had been over $4,000,000,000 in aggregate capitalizations of such organizations. The issue of preferred stock of the various companies amounts to $1,058,068,630; of common stock, $2,325,815,605; of bonds, $509,988,000, and adding $187,500,000 for pending consolidations since January 1st, 1900, brings the total to over four billion dollars.

The London Spectator says: "When the Philippines are finally reduced to order, Theodore Roosevelt would make an admirable Governor General of the archipelago." The Spectator must believe Roosevelt destined to live to a remakable old age, judging by the present course of events as to how long it will be before the Philippines are "finally reduced to order."

The Commercial Cable Company is being landed because it has given its employes an opportunity to buy its stock at par, thus benefiting in the difference between the market and the par value, which is about eighty per cent, to the good. How thankful the Third Avenue Railway employes must be that no such generous streak struck their employers a years ago.

President McKinley, before the Ohio Society's dinner in New York, said: "There can be no imperialism." Evidently the President and a very large number of poople disagree as to what imperialism means.

The imposition of tariff duties on the imports of Porto Rico, and then returning the money so collected as alms, is poor statesmanship, and later on will undoubtedly be found to be poor politics.

Assemelyman Foote has introduced three bills in the Lower House of the Legislature. Because they are three Foote bills it is not necessarily true that they are a yard wide and all wool.

When a young tailor commences to talk about pressing his suit in the parlor of a young woman he may not intend to talk shop, but he means business just the same.

What is more natural than when the political powers that be do something that no one but themselves understand that they should be riddled by their critics.

The Philadelphia Record asks, with a tingle of sarcasm, "Who is Governor of Pennsylvania?" We suspect Matthew S. Quay might answer that question.

The mysterious man who has been hugging Bound Brook women ought to have a proper idea of form by this time.

Isn't it about time some more New Jersey Republicans are mentioned as Vice-Presidential possibilities?

This March weather resembles neither a lion or a lamb; it is more like a mongrel cur.

Oom Paul's whiskers are still whistled through by the breezes of liberty.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about ¼ as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

DUNELLEN

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen, Mar. 7.—The Republican-Citizens' primary will be held at the borough Hall this evening. Nominations are to be made for two Councilmen, a Collector, Assessor, Commissioner of Appeal, Overseer of Poor Poundmaster, Constable. The election will be held next Tuesday, when appropriations for maintaining the borough, and appropriations for the support of the poor will also be voted upon. The only strife appears to be for Assessor, the aspirants being Chas. Coriell, the present incumbent, Arthur Gaston, retiring Councilman, Wm Larkin. Frank Humpston and George Huff. It is believed the battle between Coriel and Gaston will be hotly contested. Edward Lewis, the borough shoemaker, is anxious to succeed Wm. H. Cole as Overseer of the Poor There is believed to be no opposition to Geo W. Day for Collector. The friends of Night Operator Crosier are determined to present his name for Poundmaster. The other offices will go begging for candidates.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

The golfers of this country are beginning to feel the direct results of the recent combination in the rubber trade. The price of rubber has gone up, partly as a result of the Rubber Trust and partly from the fact that the demand exceeds the supply at present. The best quality of golf balls that sold last year for $3 50 a dozen are now retailing at $4 a dozen. The remade balls, sold at retail last year for $2 a dozen, are now bringing $2 75. The change in price came with the new year.

Fresh evidence of the determination of the South Jersey farmers to unite for the purpose of getting better prices for their products was furnished Monday at a largely-attended meeting at Woodstown. The avowed purpose of the meeting, as indicated in the call, was to form a dairymen's association, for the mutual protection of milk producers, dealers and shippers The organization, however, is in line with the general movement of the agriculturists in Cumberland, Salem and Gloucester counties as well as other parts of the State, the purpose of which is to make united efforts to reach better markets, to keep down the expenses of shipping and to take steps to wipe out the large commissions now paid.

During the recent scarlet fever scare at Princeton University, many of the college boys took advantage of the opportunity to secure a vacation that was not part of the school calender. There was only one slight case but nearly fifty boys served to make it an excuse for a trip home. One young man appeared before President Patton and asked to be excused on the ground that he had slept with the young man who was ill shortly before the contagious disease made its appearance. President Patton granted the request, it is said, but remarked at the time that the young man must have had a remarkably large bed as this was the eighteenth young man who reported that he had slept with the individual in question.

The Sportsmen's Show that is now in progress at Madison Square Garden, New York, has attracted many Plainfielders there who are special devotees of the rod and gun. The show this year far excels that of past seasons and is considered a great success. The exhibition of birds and fish is a valuable and interesting one. The miniature camp is very lifelike in appearance. The swimming contests and water polo form an interesting feature of the show. Among the winning contestants in the swimming races is Fred Wenck, well known in Plainfield as captain of the San Remo football eleven of the New York Athletic Club. T. H. Kellar, formerly of this city, is in attendance at the show, representing the Peters' Cartridge Company.

The evolution of moving—that is, moving one's household goods and effects—is quite an interesting study. The modern storage and van company and has brought about a great change. "Ten years ago," said an official of a large storage warehouse, "it was a very serious matter for a man to move from one city to another. When, for business reasons, he was obliged to move he would usually have a sale and dispose of his belongings at anything he could get. The idea of moving a houseful of furniture that distance would have appalled him. But now it's as easy as rolling off a log. There is scarcely a day that we don't have a shipment of that sort, either coming from or going to places from 50 miles to 1,000 miles away. So far as the actual moving is concerned, no man need now give it his slightest personal attention. Everything is done for him, and all he has to do is to pay his bill."

Large Parish Collection.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, March 7—The money collected in St. Patrick's parish last year amounted to $46 000, the largest sum paid in by the parish since Rev. Martin Gessner was rector of the church, twenty-seven years ago. More than $66,000 was spent last year in completing the new church and making improvements in the parish property.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World

The beautiful and sprightly Anna Held continues to attract large crowds to the Manhattan Theatre, in New York, where enthusiasm reigns nightly over the fun of this merriest of French musical comedies. Miss Held seems to grow younger and more beautiful every day, and Charles A. Bigelow has the audience in roars of laughter nearly every moment he is on the stage. "Papa's Wife" is noted, too, for its handsome girls, pretty scenery and catchy songs. It had its one hundredth representation sometime ago.

Hoyt's new farce, "A Day and a Night," will be seen at Music Hall next Monday evening and should meet with a grand reception. Mr. Hoyt's plays are well known to our theatregoers, and this, his latest, is said to be the best. The hero is the son of a naval officer with a girl in every port, and a Jersey woman who is wrapped up in church work. The son has been reared by the mother. She had him made deacon in the church which she supports, and when at home he is sedate and sober. But he has inherited the warm blood of his father, and it appears toward the close of the farce that he has been in the habit of having a high time in New York at night. The money that it has required to support this youth has been obtained from the mother on the plea that it was to be used for the heathen. Mr. Hoyt has taken this young man from his Jersey home to the metropolis in search of a church choir, and gets him into the company of chorus girls whom he has been told are candidates for positions in the choir. It may be foolish to seek for any theory of life on which Hoyt builds his farces, but in this one, at least, he seems to have based his structure on the assumption that it is better to be frankly a man about town than to be a hypocrite deacon in New Jersey and a rake in New York. In other words, singleness of life is better than doubleness. Enough has been said to show what opportunities there is for the introduction of songs and dances. These things occupy most of the time. They are well done by capable people.

Charles Smith, of Grove street, has recovered from an attack of the grip.

A baby boy has arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Matthews, of Grandview avenue.

Hiram Humes, of the J. P. Laire Hardware Company, has recovered from an attack of the grip and has returned to work.

—Unity Lodge, Knights of Pythias, will hold a regular meeting this evening.

—"An Old Maids Convention" will be held at the Y. M. C. A. Hall tomorrow evening. The proceeds will be for charity.

PERSONAL AND LITERARY.

Queen Victoria always has her new boots worn a few times by one of her dressers, whose foot is the same size as her majesty's.

Gen. Miles keeps up his good horsemanship by constant practice. Wherever he may be or whatever the weather, a morning never passes but he takes a brisk ride.

Although a great patron of the turf from personal taste and hereditary instincts, the late duke of Westminster was never in the ordinary sense a sporting peer.

A copy of Queen Victoria's "Leaves From the Journal of Our Life in the Highlands," presented to her majesty by Charles Dickens, was sold at auction in London the other day for $500.

Senator Simon, of Oregon, had a friendly dispute the other day, maintaining that he was not the smallest-sized man in the senate. He thought Mr. Vest shorter, but actual measurement proved him at fault.

George A. Hibbard, the new postmaster of Boston, taking warning by the fate of his predecessor, who was broken down by the combined weight of official cares and social duties, has made a rule not to attend public dinners.

There are no fewer than 96 translations of Milton's "Paradise Lost" in the British museum. Apart from the great languages of the world, these translations are in Danish, Polish, Manx, Armenian, Icelandic and Bohemian.

E. Charlton Black, the new head of Boston university's English department was a ward of Dr. John Brown, the famous author of "Rob and His Friends;" a classmate of Barrie at Edinburgh; a friend of Stevenson and Crockett, and afterward a regular lecturer at Harvard.

QUEEN STARTED LEAP YEAR.

Margaret of Scotland Originates the Extra Day for the Benefit of Her Maids.

This is a leap year according to the fitness of things, but it won't be a leap year, nevertheless.

There is quite an interesting and little known history connected with the introduction of leap year. In 1288, when Queen Margaret reigned over Scotland, this gracious lady decreed that during her reign every maiden lady in her realm, whether of high or low degree, should propose to the man that she loved, and that if the man were not betrothed already he must either wed the maid or pay a heavy fine.

On the death of Queen Margaret the women were urgent in their demands that their new privileges should be continued. To appease them an act of parliament was passed which made it lawful for maidens to do the proposing every leap year.

Not all the romantic ideas of our ancestors have been thus perpetuated, and comparatively few were transferred by our Pilgrim fathers across the Atlantic. For instance, in the good old days it was the custom in many towns and even villages in New England to own a house where poor couples, after they had been wedded in church, could entertain their friends at small cost, the only outlay, indeed, being entailed by the purchase of such provisions as they chose to bring with them.

In Hertfordshire there was such a house, which had a large kitchen, with a caldron, large spits and a dripping pan; also a large room for merriment and a furnished boudoir. Dishes, table linen and bed linen were among its possessions.

In Essex there was a house very much like this, which was used by the poorer folks for dining in after they had returned from church.

In some of the old English histories one may read that in 1456 Roger Thornton granted to the mayor and community of Newcastle-upon-Tyne the use of the hall and kitchen belonging to Thornton's hospital for the use of young couples "when they were married to make their wedding dinner in and receive the offerings and gifts of their friends."

At Hamelin there still exists a large building which is known as the wedding house. It was erected during the second decade of the seventeenth century.—Chicago Chronicle.

WHAT WOMEN ARE DOING.

Notes of Interest About Individuals of the Unquiet Sex.

Former Chief Corndropper of the Osage tribe stole a march on his watchers a few days ago. He sold his daughter to the highest bidder for 300 ponies. The newly made bride is an Osage half breed Indian girl of great beauty. She was educated at the government school at Powhuska, I. T. She is only 22 years old, but this is her third husband. The other two deserted her because they could not endure the mother-in-law.

The South African native women are noted for their desire to appear as beautiful as their white sisters. They pay great attention to beautifying their bodies. They are great athletes, and their life in the open air makes them strong and well formed. By the aid of a clay ointment they arrange their hair into any desired position, in which it remains for days without the aid of pins or any other fastening. The young women wear their hair drawn up into a peak at the top of the head. The gauge of beauty is plumpness. The plumper the girl the more valuable she is to her parents, for her admirers pay a dot for her. The greater her beauty the more cattle he will pay.

Mlle. Clotilde Ozouf of the St. Germain market, Paris, has been chosen the queen of queens for the Mi Careme procession. She is a blond and is employed in a bootshop. She is 19 years old.

Many of the young girls that have gone to Porto Rico to teach are meeting with many unpleasant surprises. Their lives are being exposed to unnecessary danger by long rides through wild country either alone or in the company of native men whom they have never seen before, seeing scenes of human living which are unfit for the eyes of any girl. They suffer much privation, though that is not what our brave girls object to. They realize that they owe it to their people at home to care for their personal safety. A few who have gone there to teach have returned, but the majority were obliged to remain through the force of circumstances or because, as one girl put it, "we have come here to teach, and we are going to do it."

Mrs. Milton Losee of Kansas City is planning to establish a school where women may learn to be competent servants. She wants by the aid of diplomas to do away with that vexing servant girl question and claims that she will revolutionize the relation of mistress and maid. She is very anxious to show that the mistress who knows that her cook or second girl is competent will not quibble over unessential details of the work, but will treat the girls with proper respect. She hopes to really help the servant girl problem.

One of the most successful examples of combined kindergarten and housekeeping schools in Chicago is under the supervision of Mrs. Mary Page. The place is really a self governing clubhouse in which education for kindergarten work goes on every day. Under the same roof students and pupils find a congenial home while carrying on their mental preparations. They work on a sociological platform. The children make up the classes through which the young teachers get their training. The school has been fashioned after the Pestalozzi institute at Berlin, with the adaptations necessary to the educational needs of America.

Miss Mary Barber of Canton, O., is the favorite niece of Mrs. McKinley. At present she is visiting at the White House. This bright young girl is, to use Mrs. McKinley's own words, "like a tonic." The mistress of the White House is never so happy as when her niece is with her.

Within a few days the picture of a woman will be hung in one of the lecture rooms of the Harvard law school. Hers will be the first to be placed among the collection of some 300 portraits of eminent judges and lawyers of which Harvard is justly proud. This rare honor is being conferred upon Mrs. Austin because after the death of her husband she collected his notes into book form, which, though they were written over 50 years ago, are still the authority on the subject of jurisprudence.

Mrs. G. E. Rodes, wife of the sergeant major of the Canterbury Yeomanry cavalry in New Zealand, is probably the only woman ambulance sergeant in the world. Mrs. Rodes takes as deep an interest in the regiment as her husband does, and her work for the sick and wounded is deeply appreciated by the men.

Miss Elizabeth Jordan, the new editor of Harper's Bazar, is a Milwaukee girl. She was educated at Notre Dame convent and at the University of Wisconsin. For nine years she has been doing reportorial work on the New York daily newspapers and also working in editorial departments.

Miss Emma Woolley, the new president of Mount Holyoke college, was a member of the Wellesley college faculty for five years. She is only 35 years old and was wonderfully popular with all her classes. ANNETTE CRAWFORD.

FANCIES OF FASHION.

Tailor Gowns and Millinery Absorb Feminine Attention.

Cloth and Silk Walking Coats Have Proved a Popular Novelty—The Skirt Problem Not Yet Settled Definitely.

[Special Chicago Letter.]

THE things most talked of in the world of fashion at the present moment are the new tailor gowns, spring millinery and the new cloth and silk walking coats. Of the tailor built gowns too much cannot be said, both as regards material and style. For general utility and rough and ready wear the severely plain tailor gown fashioned of rough tweed is still considered the thing to buy. Models of this description are made plainer than ever before, but are so beautifully tailored throughout as to have a certain charm and style quite their own. It is a well-known fact in the modistic world that in the perfectly plain tailor gown, the tailor's art is seen in its highest state of perfection, and only the master hand is able to turn out such a gown with any degree of success. Consequently they are an expensive luxury that not every one can afford. For more dressy wear up-to-date tailors are showing handsome gowns made of satin-faced cloth, elaborately trimmed with cloth and velvet applique, or more often still by embroidered bands, done in silk or chenille. Indeed, the number of embroidered gowns is really remarkable, and considering that all this work is beautifully done they are sold at a most reasonable price.

The two gowns shown in the picture are among the handsomest models seen thus far, one being carried out in black cloth, the other in dull blue. The most fashionable shades for spring spring tailor gowns are beige, French gray, wine red, dull blue and the ever-popular black. The prevalence of black goods, by the way, is rather remarkable, considering that the all-black gown has now been fashionable for quite two seasons. After all, black is perhaps the smartest gowning a woman can adopt, and while by no means so universally becoming as some imagine it to be, if properly managed a black gown is ever in good style and good taste.

In all the models hailing from Paris there is a growing tendency toward the revival of the directoire coat. Whether it is a generally dressy fashion or not is a matter of some doubt. It would seem almost too abrupt in its outline to prove becoming to any save the very few, but it is a new note of fashion and therefore welcomed by those who ever seek "the latest," no matter at what cost. Swell-looking coats made of large patterned broche in all-black, and the ever popular black and white combination, cut a la directoire, with fancy paste buttons, brocaded waistcoats and lace jabots, are to be reckoned among the fancies of the moment, while equally pleasing and even more novel are the little short walking coats fashioned of black peau de soie with triple collars of applique cloth and velvet. While preference is given to silk and cloth jackets for spring wear, capes will also be used to a large extent. The Frenchiest looking show a wonderful intermingling of velvet, silk and chiffon frills, the frills being sometimes accordion plaited and edged with chenille.

Chenille, I might mention, is one of the most fashionable trimmings this season, and is effective and decorative on gowns and hats alike.

Speaking of hats reminds me that the controversy over hats still continues fast and furious, the burning question being whether our headgear shall be worn tilted over our noses or turned back abruptly from our faces. The ultimate result is still an uncertain quantity, but for the present madame, if she wishes to be in the extreme of fashion, will wear a large black hat of fancy straw, turned well off the face and adorned with a bunch of deep crimson roses, or else a cluster of black ostrich plumes. The latter are ever smart, especially when placed to drop toward the face, and do much toward enhancing the good looks of the wearer. A number of the most desirable spring hats are made of shirred and tucked glace silk, the brims softened and beautified in a wonderfully becoming manner by fold upon fold of chiffon and net. These hats, when seen at their best, are a triumph of the milliner's skill, and ars so pretty and bewitching in every particular that I wonder they were not thought of long, long ago.

Some of the most beautiful hats brought out within the week show an intermingling of chenille and chiffon with plaited straw, which, aside from their air of novelty, have much to recommend them to the up-to-date dresser.

With tailor gowns cloth toques, decorated with embroidered crowns, are much in vogue, for there is evidently a strong desire on the part of Dame Fashion to have everything worn en suite this spring.

The pretty cashmere and flannel waists so popular during the past season are gradually giving place to more beautiful ones made of silk and satin. These new waists are made on the same lines as the old ones, with the exception of a growing inclination for pouching the bodice both back and front—ever so slightly—which is an improvement on the old style of things. Altogether the style of the moment, when interpreted by a skilled hand, is charming.

The blouse represented in the picture is made of oriental satin in the new shade, which is a cross between pink, orange and flame, or perhaps I should say a mingling of all three, with insertions of embroidered lisse between groups of fine tucks. On all the newest fancy waists, as well as on the dress bodices, the sleeves are again made exceedingly long; in some instances I have seen them extend as far as the first finger joints.

Skirts still continue to be the subject of much discussion among dressmakers. Tall, slender women are clinging with feminine pertinacity to the straight and graceful lines of the improved tight skirt, while the sister of large proportions is glad indeed to welcome a little fullness. Those who quickly tire of all modes are clamoring for plaits and gathers, and so the struggle goes on. Those who are supposed to know all about this important matter claim that the finely accordion-plaited skirt will be the one most sought after the coming summer.

So far the only ones I have seen have been models, and whether the style will take or not remains to be seen. It is certainly delightful to look upon, but I fear that unless well-made and very smartly put on it would look dowdy in the extreme.

The fal-lals of fashion are always more or less attractive, especially at this season of the year. The new spring collarettes, fashioned of glace silk and chenille, are charming; although I am afraid it will be some time before we can don them, owing to the uncertainty of our climate. Glace collarettes with long accordion-plaited ends, softened by frills of chiffon, are to be counted among the most pleasing novelties of the season. They look particularly well when worn with a handsome tailor-made, the whole being crowned by a glace and tulle toque.

I have not time to tell you of the charms of the new petticoat made of fine oriental satin and yards upon yards of misty lace.

Of shoes, too, I must discourse later on.

The Adams Murder Case

An American "Cause Celebre."

[Special New York Letter.]

NO CASE in the history of American criminal jurisprudence has caused greater interest among the lawyers of all nations than that which ended in New York the other day in the conviction of Roland Burnham Molineux for the murder of Mrs. Kate J. Adams.

Told in brief, the history of the crime for which Molineux is to pay the death penalty is as follows: Mrs. Adams, a widow 52 years of age, died suddenly on Wednesday morning, December 28, 1898, at her home, No. 61 West Eighty-sixth street, New York, after taking what she thought to be a dose of effervescing salts used to relieve headaches. The physicians who attended her and the coroner's office were equally sure that she had died of one of the deadliest poisons known, cyanide of potassium. Interest was added by the fact that if the police theory should prove correct the poison was intended for Harry Cornish, physical director and manager of the Knickerbocker Athletic club, who received the package containing the poison as a Christmas gift. Cornish and Dr. Hitchcock, the first physician called in after Mrs. Adams was taken ill, both tasted the contents of the bottle and were seized with the symptoms of cyanide poisoning. Cornish boarded with Mrs. Adams and her daughter, a Mrs. Rogers, wife of an insurance agent. On Tuesday evening Cornish and the two women went to the theater, after which they had supper. The next morning Mrs. Adams complained of having a headache, and applied to Cornish for some bromo-seltzer. He gave some of the contents of the bottle to her. Mrs. Adams took a heaping teaspoonful in a glass of water. She was taken ill at once, and died in a few minutes after the physician arrived. The gift, which was received by Cornish on Christmas eve through the mail, was a silver medicine holder, with a small bottle, supposed to contain bromo-seltzer. The silver case was a match-holder, just large enough to hold the bottle. It was nearly noon before the death was reported to the coroner's office. Dr. Weston, of that office, went to the Adams house and secured what was left of the supposed bromo-seltzer. Analysis proved that the stuff contained a portion of cyanide of mercury.

ROLAND BURNHAM MOLINEUX.

A few days later a morning newspaper printed an article headed "The Police Want Roland B. Molineux," and so the defendant was first brought into the case. Molineux, while a member of the Knickerbocker Athletic club, a year before, had had serious misunderstandings with Cornish concerning athletic matters. In searching for enemies of Cornish, Molineux was picked out, and handwriting experts later testified that his writing corresponded with that on the poison package. The morning after the publication of his name in connection with the case Molineux, then a prominent society man, and his father, Gen. Molineux, a veteran of the civil war, presented themselves at the house of Capt. McClusky, chief of detectives, and the younger man asked if he was wanted. He was told he was not, and so the matter ended for a time.

Then the handwriting experts again compared the address with Molineux's writing, and pronounced it his. At the coroner's inquest the district attorney was instrumental in securing a verdict to the effect that Mrs. Adams came to her death through poison administered to her by Harry S. Cornish, the poison having been sent to him by Molineux.

The latter was arrested at once, and an indictment found against him, which, later on, was dismissed. A succeeding grand jury refused to indict, and Molineux was discharged, only to be rearrested at once on the charge of assaulting Cornish. Then there followed another long legal battle, and Molineux was again discharged and rearrested. He waived examination on the assault charge, and finally the July grand jury found an indictment against him in seven counts, for the murder by poison of Mrs. Adams. His trial was a long one, and ended in his being found guilty, his execution to take place in Sing Sing prison during the week of March 26.

Many notable lawyers are dissatisfied with the verdict and the conduct of the trial, which cost the state of New York $175,000, and which has financially ruined the Molineux family.

An Ideal Philanthropist

Dr. D. K. PEARSONS, of Chicago

[Special Chicago Letter.]

ONE of our American humorists the other day defined a philanthropist as "a man who spends his time inducing other people to spend their money for charity." This definition may be considered witty by some, and quite to the point by others, but it does not apply to the venerable Dr. Daniel K. Pearsons, of Chicago, who has up to this time given $2,500,000 to charity, and has but recently made the announcement that he would dispose of the rest of his fortune, amounting to $1,500,000, in the same way, keeping none of this vast wealth and reserving only an annuity of two per cent., or $30,000 per year, payable up to the death of himself and his wife.

Dr. Pearsons is now nearly four score years of age. He came to Chicago in 1860, from Chicopee, Mass., where he had practiced medicine for ten years and accumulated a nest egg of $5,000. His one ambition at that time, according to his own admission, was to get rich; and he worked in season and out of season to attain his end. Instead of continuing the practice of his profession—a slow and uncertain way of laying up earthly treasure—he engaged in the sale of farm lands in all parts of the state of Illinois, acting as the agent of eastern capitalists, western landowners and railroad corporations. After disposing of 1,000,000 acres on a percentage basis of five per cent. he found himself a well-to-do man, financially able to become interested in urban transportation enterprises and other commercial ventures. He bought Chicago city lots and improved property, invested in Michigan pine lands and dealt in logs.

Whatever he touched seemed to turn to gold. The hopes of his middle age had reached fruition; and in 1875 he entered upon his matchless career as a philanthropist, the city of Chicago being his first beneficiary. In that year the western metropolis, still suffering from the evil effects of the great fire, had reached the end of its credit. The tax levies were in dispute, all claims against the municipality were paid in depreciated scrip, and the eastern bondholders were clamoring for their pound of flesh. The city council thought seriously of repudiating the bonds, a proposition which was energetically opposed by Dr. Pearsons, who was then one of the aldermen from the First ward. On his own responsibility he went to New York and Boston, convened meetings of the bondholders and pledged his personal fortune for the redemption of the bonds. His reputation for honesty and integrity was so high in the east that the guarantee was gladly accepted; and he returned to Chicago the savior of the city's credit.

When Dr. Pearsons, way back in 1860, resolved to accumulate a fortune, he also made to himself a promise that the money so saved should be disposed of for the public good—during his own and his amiable wife's lifetime, if possible. How well this promise has been kept is evidenced by the fact that since 1890 he has given away fully $2,500,000.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE ABROAD

Statistical and Historical Data Bearing on the News of the Day from Foreign Lands

FOR VICEROY OF IRELAND.

The Young Duke of Marlborough Expected to Secure This Position.

RUMOR has it in England that Charles Richard John Spencer-Churchill, ninth duke of Marlborough, lieutenant in her majesty's volunteer army and husband of an American heiress, will be appointed viceroy of Ireland when he returns from the war in South Africa.

And this little rumor, and in England no one seems to doubt that the rumor will be followed by the fact in due time, has stirred to the uttermost depths English society and English officialdom. In these later days the British have considerable regard for their American cousins, but that regard does not go far enough to permit of the seating of two American women in the best places under the English crown without a protest. The viceroy and vicerine of Ireland, like the viceroy and vicerine of India, are socially second only to the royal family itself, and the British matron feels that her American cousin is getting more than her share of the glory of English institutions. With Miss Mary Leiter, of Chicago, as vice-queen of India, and Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, of New York, as vice-queen of Ireland, American women will certainly be a factor in the English government and in English society.

The English people are kind to their nobility. They willingly forget all the bad they do in their lives, and permit only the good to live after them. In England to-day the young duke of Marlborough is an honored man with an honored lineage; the English people have forgotten that the duke's illustrious ancestor, the first duke of Marlborough, played fast and loose with English kings and queens; that he was a traitor to James II., whose army he deserted in the field for brighter personal prospects in the invading army of William of Orange. Later, when his personal advancement seemed to demand it, he turned from plotting treason against King James to the same course against King William in behalf of Queen Anne. But these things the English people have forgotten, and remember only that the young duke's illustrious ancestor was captain general of England for ten years, from 1702 to 1722; that he brought victory to English arms on the historic fields of Blenheim, Ramillies, Oudenard and Malplaquet. These are the things they remember, and for these they honor the name of Marlborough.

The title of duke of Marlborough was created in 1702 by Queen Anne as a reward for the man who had befriended her, and who was even then recognized as the strongest in England and one of the greatest men of his day throughout all Europe. It was the culmination of a long list of titles which had been showered upon him for gallant services in behalf of different sovereigns. The foundation of the immense fortune which he built up after he had forsaken the field of battle for a commercial life was a gift of £5,000 from Lady Castlemaine, mistress of the French king, whose favor he had won while serving as colonel of an English regiment in the service of France. The fortune that still goes with the title is ample for all needs, and the statement that the marriage of the young duke to Miss Vanderbilt was a love match, rather than an effort on the part of an impoverished nobleman to repair his shattered fortunes, seems true.

A BENEFICENT movement has recently been started among the school children of France in the shape of mutual aid societies, by two Frenchmen, Messrs. Edouard Petit and J. C. Cave. The object of these societies is to afford assistance to their child members during sickness and to furnish a pension fund for old age, to be drawn upon according to the amount deposited.

The plan upon which these societies are operated is as follows: The children deposit two cents per week, one of which goes to the mutual fund for aid in sickness, and the other to the pension fund. This money is deposited in a government depository, where it is invested in government bonds, and draws 3½ per cent. interest. The especial feature of these societies is the aid given them by the government. For every child who contributes during an entire year the state adds 19.3 cents to the common fund, and also gives a sum equal to one-fourth of the entire amount deposited by the children.

The cent deposited in the pension fund can never be recovered except in the form of a pension. If the child dies before reaching the age limit, or for any rason drops out, his cents go to the state, and the money derived from the reserve fund passes to the next of kin of the depositor.

Every school child is given a bank-book, upon which is printed a statement of the pension allowed. If one franc is deposited at the age of three years, the depositor may draw about 14½ cents annually when he is 55 years of age, and this sum is increased in proportion to the amount deposited, until it reaches the limit of $69.48 annually.

The sou deposited weekly as a reserve capital, which swells the mutual fund for sickness, does not draw as high a rate of interest as the pension fund, and a franc deposited at the age of three will yield but 12 cents pension at the age of 55. But the depositor does not part with his reserve capital. He can never possess it again, but should he die before his age to receive it, his next of kin can take his entire accumulations in the reserve fund, and the depositor in the meantime would still receive the benefit of it during sickness. This fund is sometimes increased by appropriations from the government, and by legacies and gifts.

Some of the aims of the societies, and which commend them in the eyes of parents, are: To imbue children at an early age with the elements of economy; to accustom them to the use of a bank book, and to the consciousness of having money at work earning something for them and held in reserve for their old age; to aid parents during the sickness of their children, and to create a fund the product of which will be exclusively used to provide means of industrial education.

ON THE DIAMOND.

North Plainfield is not to be without that popular game, baseball, this season. A few days ago the enthusiastic students at the Borough Public High School held a meeting and decided to place a team in the field to represent the school. George C. M. Smith, of Craig place, was elected manager, and H. George, of the same street, was made captain of the team. There was a discussion about uniforms, and it was decided to hold an entertainment during the latter part of April to raise funds to buy the suits. Every member of the team is from the school. The first game will be played Saturday, March 31st, with a team from Leal's School. Other games have been arranged with a team from the Plainfield High School, Westfield, Summit and other places.

VARICUS SPORTS.

Rhey T. Snodgrass, of Central avenue, this city, who quite distinguished himself at Dickinson College last season by his running, will go in training again for the track and will probably be one of those chosen to form the relay team from that college.

The candidates for the Lehigh University lacrosse team have already begun their outdoor practice. Among their number is J. Vincent Rittenhouse, of East Sixth street, this city. Rittenhouse played on the team last season at first defence and centre. He is considered one of the most available men for the team this year and will undoubtedly return to his old place. He already wears his "L", won by playing in a championship game.

ROD AND GUN.

One of the most important shoots of the season will take place next Thursday afternoon at Campbell's clubhouse, when there will be a match between ten men teams from Union and Hunterdon counties. Harry Campbell has secured four hundred fine birds for the shoot. Another attraction will be a match between James Bellis, of New Brunswick and a well-known shot from Rahway for $25 a side and twenty-five birds. A large number of sports are expected to be present throughout the afternoon.

COSGROVE IS THANKFUL.

UNFORTUNATE YOUNG MAN GLAD TO GO HOME.

Ladies in Charge of Fund Says There Will be a Small Balance After Trip is Paid For.

The ladies on the Cosgrove fund committee wish to express their gratitude to the people of Plainfield as well as the kind friends in New York, who so promptly and generously responded to the appeal for funds, with which to send young Cosgrove to his home in San Francisco.

The total amount received was $345, besides some gifts of clothing and a very handsome adjustable invalid chair. The latter gift gave the proud recipients the greatest joy and comfort. He took great delight in showing it to all visitors at the hospital and wheeled himself about at will.

The public will be interested to know that the young invalid set out from the hospital Monday evening, in the ambulance, en route for South Plainfield where he was placed in a Pullman car. He expected to reach Chicago Tuesday evening. There he is to be transferred across a short distance to another train which he will not leave until he reaches San Francisco.

The ladies on the committee wish to thank all who have helped in this good work and also to say how much interested young Cosgrove seemed in all that was done for him and how grateful he was. His last words as he was taken out of the hospital were "Well, good luck to all!"

He was accompanied by Walter Long, of Park avenue, who seemed anxious to perform his responsible duty in an intelligent and sympathetic manner.

Especial thanks are offered to Charles Lee, of East Ninth street, who considerably lessened the expenses of the journey by his personal efforts and influence. Quite a sum of money will probably remain after all expenses are paid, and this will be sent to young Cosgrove in installments.

His letter of thanks will be found below:

Plainfield, N. J.

Dear Sir—I take the pleasure of sending you these few lines to have you put in your daily paper a word of thanks to the people in Plainfield and New York for their kindness to me while here in the hospital as a invalid, and also their kindness in collecting the sum of money to send me home to my dear old mother, and to put me among my brothers and sisters. I also wish to tell the people of Plainfield that through the kindness of some gentlemen there was presented to me a fine invalid chair which will enable me to be out of doors when I arrive home, which I never expected to be.

Not very long ago in a piece in your paper about myself, it said that the doctors and nurses here had poured oil into my wounds. That is very true, they have poured oil into my wounds and healed them up, and not only that, but they have got me into a good condition to go to my home in the land of sunshine and flowers. When I get to my journey's end, I shall not forget to write and let the people of Plainfield know how I got to San Francisco. I shall bring now my short letter to a close. I remain, yours truly,

Wm. Cosgrove.

The Railway Mail Service.

The expansion of mail service by rail is illustrated by the facts that, in the year 1834, there were 75 miles of railroad in the United States on which mails were carried, and now there are 174,777, Of mail of all classes distributed by railway postal clerks, there were in 1898 12 225,706,220 pieces of second class mail (newspapers). There were in 1898, not including free in country, 336,126,338 pounds. Each of the pieces is, of course, handled several times; nevertheless, the vast number represents actual work. But the functions of the railway mail service are not confined to the control of its own employes, for all postoffices receive their instructions from the officers of this service in regard to the making up and despatch of mail, and as to the time it should be sent and by what routes. The railway mail service is the medium of practically all business with the railway companies except financial.—R. C. Jackson, in Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for February.

PROGRESSIVE HEARTS.

Six Tables of Players at the Park Club Last Night—The Prize Winners.

Among the few attractions of the Lenten season the one of progressive hearts at the Park Club last evening proved to be one of the most pleasant. There were six tables, or twenty-four players, and a very delightful time was had by all. The club offered four prizes and there was great rivalry for them. Miss Adelaide G. Ball and Mrs. George O. Stevens secured the first and second for the women, while Geo. D. Hallock and W. H. Chapman won the first and second honors for the men. The social features of the occasion added very much to the pleasure of everyone. Two weeks from last evening, March 20th, whist will be the attraction.

TO REORGANIZE MILITIA.

To Be a Sweeping Reduction of Honorary Titles.

Generals Sewell, Spencer and Wanser, the commission appointed by Governor Voorhees to revise and codify the militia laws, have reported that the result of their labors and a complete new military code is now in the hands of the chief executive. He is reticent about its provisions and the members of the commission won't talk.

But it is pretty well understood that the new code will place the State militia on the same basis as the regular army as nearly as it is possible to do with militia. The rank of the staff officers is reduced from general to colonel, and reductions are made all along the line, but it is provided that present incumbents shall retain their titles while in the service. The reduced rank applies to their successors only.

The most notable change is in the Governor's staff. If the new code passes, the Governor will be entitled to a military secretary with the rank of major, and he may select from the organized militia instead of from civil life, as at present, five staff officers.

The new code will be submitted to the Legislature next week, probably on Monday night. It will have the governor's backing.

The entertainment given at Marconnier chapel last evening was a decided success and despite the inclement weather there was a good attendance. The programme consisted of piano solos by Clifford Braider, Miss Margaret Sheppard, Miss Lillie Zeisz; tenor solo by Oscar Moore; soprano solo by Miss Ethel Reynolds, and a vocal duet by Oscar Moore and H. J. Martin, Jr. There were also vocal selections by a quartette. The entertainment closed with two tableaux entitled "Liberty" and "Rock of Ages," which were given by Miss May Squiers. HIGH SCHOOL NINE IS GETTING READY.

Candidates For Battery Practiced in School Yard Yesterday Afternoon.

WILL TURN OUT SATURDAY,

WILL PLAY ON THE CRESCENT OVAL THIS SEASON.

Harold Davis and Albert Schomp are Strong Candidates for Pitcher's Position—Captain Walter Squires Will Catch—Other Candidates.

The work of preparing the baseball nine of the Plainfield High School for the coming season has begun. The first preliminary practice of the battery candidates was held in the High School yard yesterday afternoon. Saturday morning all the candidates for the team, twenty three in all, will be invited to turn out for the first regular practice in the school yard. It will furnish Captain Walter Squires and A. B. Meredith, the coach, an opportunity to see just what material there is to choose from.

The only position that is a settled thing so early is the catcher. Walter Squires will go behind the bat unless, of course, he should be injured before that time. Squires tried Harold Davis yesterday afternoon for pitcher. Albert Schomp was also on hand for a trial for the same place. A third candidate is Denton. Both Davis and Schomp showed good control of the ball for so early in the season and with good coaching are likely to develop considerable speed If possible, both men will be trained for the place so that the team will not have to depend on only one man in the box. Denton lacks the experience of the others but may improve with good coaching.

Hazeltine was also on hand yesterday afternoon for a little preliminary work. He is being considered for first base and will be placed there unless a "dark horse" appears. He has the advantage of a tremendous reach.

The other positions are still open with several candidates for each and the probabilities will be picked shortly. The first regular practice is scheduled for Saturday morning. The team will largely be devoted to throwing and catching and limbering up.

Townsend Mason, the manager, has gone ahead in an enterprising fashion in making his arrangements for the season. Although the Crescent Oval as an inclosed field, is a thing of the past, the diamond still remains and arrangements are being made to secure it for the spring and summer until school closes.

Manager Mason has scheduled games with Leal's School, of this city, the Newark High School, Newark Academy, Pingry's School, of Elizabeth, and the Rutgers Preparatory School, of New Brunswick. Other games will be arranged.

A meeting of the board of directors of the Plainfield High School Athletic Association was held at recess this morning, when Manager Mason was empowered to purchase the necessary equipment of balls for the practice work of the eleven. A meeting will be held shortly to arrange the financial end of the team. Under the new constitution, there are no dues and all funds will have to be raised by subscription and entertainment.

Rahway Wants a Soldiers' Monument.

An effort is to be made in Rahway to erect a soldiers' monument, a project that was started years ago, but failed then to materialize. Now Barry Post, G. A. R., is to take up the undertaking and expect to make a success of it. There has been quite a boom in the membership of the post since this was learned by the old soldiers, and a dozen new members are to be installed this month, among them Captain Joseph W. Martin, commander of the famous Sixth New York Independent Battery and president of Rahway's Excise Board. Captain Martin is a hustler in anything he takes in hand, and he is enthusiastic over the proposed monument.

Italian Banker Missing.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, March 8.—Gennero Mascoli, an Italian, who for three months has been doing business as a banker at No. 624 Third avenue, has disappeared with several hundred dollars belonging to his countrymen. It is said that the money had been paid in for drafts on Italy which were worthless.

COUNTRY HOUSE BURNED

BIG CONFLAGRATION AT UNION VILLAGE THIS MORNING.

Tramps Supposed to Have Started the Fire—Total Loss is Estimated to be About $15,000.

The country residence of Manning Hanville, a New York optician, doing business on Twenty-third street, was totally destroyed by fire between 1 and 2 o'clock this morning, together with the barns and outbuildings of John Taylor adjoining, at Union Village, five miles from this city, on the Morris and Essex branch of the D. L. and W. Railroad.

The total loss will be $15,000, $10 000 of which is on the property of Hanville. The latter's property was unoccupied during the winter months, and it is believed that the house was broken into and set on fire by tramps. The neighborhood has no protection from fire, and the flames illuminated the heavens so that it attracted the attention of people for several miles around.

Despite the time of the conflagration there were several hundred people who came from the neighborhood and watched the buildings burn. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

POLITICIANS GUESSING.

WHO WILL GET PLACE THAT LATE J. N. VOORHEES WAS TO HAVE?

Charles Welsh is Still Hustling to Get the Job to Superintend Macadamizing.

State Road Commissioner Henry I. Budd, of Mt. Holly, as well as the "powers that be" of Somerset county, including the Board of Chosen Freeholders, are much perplexed as to who shall be the supervisor of the road that is to be macadamized between Millstone and New Brunswick at an expense of several thousand dollars.

A few weeks ago Charles Welsh, of East Millstone, secured the appointment at the hands of Commissioner Budd, through the influence of Freeholder Cornelius VanCleef, East Millstone. It was claimed that Welsh secured the position through misrepresentations on the part of Mr. VanCleef, and when the matter was brought to the attention of Senator Charles A. Reed he immediately took steps to have the commission revoked. It was claimed by the Senator and many others that J. Newton Voorhees, of Middlebush, was to have the position. The latter had secured the names of a majority of the members of the Board of Freeholders to his petition, and as he had been instrumental in securing the consent of the Board to macadamize the road in question, it was thought no more than fair that he should have the commission. Then he had worked faithfully for the success of the Republican ticket, and despite the fact that he held a good position in the State Assembly the position was conceded to him.

Last Saturday morning while Mr. Voorhees stood in the postoffice at Middlebush reading a letter, which was believed to have something to do with the position promised him, he suddenly threw up his hands and fell to the floor dead. By his death matters are left in a very peculiar state. Mr. Welsh received his commission and so far as known has it yet, notwithstanding that Commissioner Budd sent him a letter revoking it. It is said that he determined to make a fight for the position and intended to hold on to his commission.

There were no other candidates for the position except Mr. Voorhees and Mr. Welsh, and the question now to be settled is who will get the place. It is understood that Freeholder VanCleef will make a fight for Mr. Welsh, while it is also understood that Senator Reed and his friends will make a great effort to see that he does not get the coveted place. Just what action the Freeholders will take in the contest has not yet been determined. Commissioner Budd wants to do the best thing for all concerned and he has had no end of trouble over the affair, which of itself is comparatively small. The outcome will be watched with great interest by all concerned.

Want Crossing to be Safer.

Freeholder Farrell, of Rahway, will hold a conference this week with the Pennsylvania Railroad officials relative to changing the grade at Six Roads, one of the most dangerous crossings in the vicinity of Rahway. The Freeholders propose to elevate the road ten feet at the crossing, while the railroad company will depress the tracks two feet. The work of elevating the road will be begun two hundred feet on each side of the crossing and the raise will be five feet to the hundred. When the work is accomplished one of the worst death traps in Union county, and the scene of numerous fatalities in the past, will have been wiped out.

FRANCHISE TAX BILL IN MR. FOOTE'S HANDS

The Plainfield Assemblyman Introduces Most Important Measure of Session.

ACTING FOR THE SPEAKER.

COOPER'S FIVE PER CENT. BILL IS EFFECTIVELY KILLED.

Assembly Refuses to Pass the Measure—Opponents Declared That it Would Injure Business Interests of State.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, March 8th—Assemblyman Foote, the Union county member of the Lower House, who hails from Plainfield, has not been heard from a great deal at the present session of the Legislature, but yesterday he came into prominence by being chosen by Speaker Jones to introduce the really most important bill of the year.

It is a measure similar to the one introduced by Senator Ford in the New York Legislature last year, and which was made a law after bitter opposition from corporations and vested interests. The bill introduced by Mr. Foote proposes to impose a franchise tax on persons, companies and corporations enjoying municipal franchises. Their property is to be assessed locally as heretofore, and in addition a tax of 2 per cent. is imposed on annual gross receipts. A return of such receipts must be made annually to the State Board of Assessors. The Board will apportion the tax to the local governments of the State in proportion to the value of the property owned by the corporations, etc., in the several municipalities. The tax will be collected locally. Where money is now paid to local governments for franchise privileges, the amount so paid is to be credited on the amount of franchise taxes apportioned to such government, but where the amount now paid is greater than the amount apportioned the excess must continue to be paid. No credit will be allowed on apportioned tax by reason of any money spent for street paving. The bill is the result of a recommendation of Governor Voorhees.

The bill, introduced by Assemblyman Cooper, of Somerset, to reduce the legal rate of interest in New Jersey to 5 per cent was killed in the Assembly yesterday by a vote of 41 to 10 Messrs. Wakelee, Campbell, Bradley, Tennent and Klein spoke against the measure. They argued that the effect of the bill would be to drive capital out of the State, which would injure everybody more or less, and farmers and poor men or small borrowers particularly. Such a law, they said, would crush the small banks and injure the savings banks, building and loan associations and life insurance companies, because money would have less earning power in New Jersey than it has in adjoining States.

Mr. Wakelee, chairman of the Assembly Judiciary Committee, yesterday afternoon reported adversely Mr. Benny's bill abolishing capital punishment, and also his bill giving juries power to decide in murder cases whether the punishment on conviction shall be death or imprisonment for life.

The State sewerage bill was passed by the Senate without opposition. Mr. McCarter, the introducer, said the measure was the most important before the Legislature, but the Senators were already so familiar with its terms that he deemed further explanation unnecessary.

The Assembly passed the following bills:

Permiting Bayonne to elect a president of the Common Council; repealing the Dunn act relative to the admission of law students to the bar; the Atlantic City Water bill; requiring corporations to file lists of officers and directors in the office of the Secretary of State within thirty days after the date of the annual election; creating the Borough of Metuchen, Middlesex county; authorizing the payment of the expenses of the investigation of the State Industrial School for Girls.

Assemblyman Cooper introduced a bill which compels owners or occupants of land abutting on any highway in townships to cut and remove during September all brush, briars and weeds growing in and upon such highway upon which owners or occupants land may abut. Township committee may cause such work to be done in case of neglect or refusal and cost charged against such owner or occupant of such lands.

DUER STREET OPENING.

HOW IT IS POSSIBLE TO MAKE IT FOR $500.

Interested Property Owner Has Bought Dyer House and Will Donate the Site.

A good deal of guessing has been going on in the city and the borough as to how Duer street could be opened to the city line in case $500 was privately subscribed to aid the improvement. The work of making the opening will cost a great deal more than that, and heretofore all estimates of the expense have been far in excess of what is claimed will ensure the success of the project now.

The Daily Press is now able to tell why it will cost only about $500. It appears that one of the largest property owners in this city, who will benefit by the opening of the street to connect with Madison avenue, has purchased the Dyer house, on Craig place, which stands in direct line of the proposed extension. This building the new owner is ready to move from its present location and to donate the site to the borough for street purposes. If this is done, the owner expects to receive his compensation in the increased value of the city property which he owns and will be benefited by the improvement.

The dwelling house will be moved either to one side of the rear of its present lot and turned around so as to front the extended street, or else it will be moved across Green brook and established on property owned by the interested party on this side of the brook. Whichever is done, it will make it possible and advantageous for the improvement to be made.

Former Mayor Needham, of the borough, who occupies the Dyer house, has received orders to vacate the first day of April, which is taken to mean what is said above.

ROSS MUST GO TO JAIL.

THE RESTAURANTER IS UNABLE TO PAY HIS FINE.

He Violated Health Ordinances—City Unable to Collect $25 Fine Imposed.

Wm. Ross, Sr., erstwhile proprietor of the Delmonico Oyster and Chop House on Park avenue, is preparing to go the county jail for seven days. He has transferred his business to Albert Perry, a cobbler, and the latter will conduct the business in the absence of Ross.

The particular reason for Ross' trip is a fine imposed by City Judge Runyon that has not been paid. Ross was arrested for violation of the ordinance of the Board of Health in keeping decayed vegetables in the basement of his establishment. He was fined $25. According to law Judge Runyon issued execution against Ross, which was served yesterday afternoon by Roundsman Frederickson. A bill of sale was shown wherein the establishment had been transferred to Perry. So the Roundsman returned the execution unsatisfied.

As Ross cannot pay the fine and it cannot be collected, imprisonment is the only alternative. In pronouncing sentence the Judge made it $25 or seven days. Ross will therefore be taken down to Elizabeth this afternoon or tomorrow morning to serve his seven days.

"A NIGHT OFF."

To be Presented by Amateur Plainfield Talent Right After the End of Lent.

The Plainfield people who are religiously observing Lent will have an event to look forward to that will bring much pleasure. A number of well-known Plainfielders have decided to present the late Augustin Daly's play "A Night Off" This is one of the most amusing plays ever presented, and no doubt will be one of the events in amateur dramatic circles in this city.

The first rehearsal for the play will take place tomorrow evening in the barn of William L. Saunders, Washington Park. Alfred Young, of Brooklyn, who coached the participants in the production of "Diplomacy," which will be given in Music Hall, will also coach those who take part in "A Night Off." It will be given in Music Hall or the Casino, and the proceeds will go to charity. The play is scheduled for sometime after Lent.

CITY JAIL PUT OUT OF BUSINESS BY A FIRE.

Overheated Stove Ignited Woodwork and the Interior is Ruined.

OCCURRED JUST AFTER 12.

CITY WILL BE OBLIGED TO IMPROVISE A LOCKUP.

Morgan Bird, Who Owns the Building, Estimates the Loss at $500—Everyone Looked Happy When Result Was Seen.

The City Jail had another narrow escape this noon. An overheated stove in the corridor was responsible. Before the flames were extinguished, however, the interior of the lockup was so generally demoralized that it will be of little use to the city here after. A large crowd watched the efforts of the firemen, cheered mightily when the axes were used and vowed vengence on the man who sent in the alarm.

Only the regular denizens of the building, the creeping and the crawling ones, were there when the fire started. Warden Tommy Martin, who occupies the second floor with his family, was absent on business. Mrs. Martin and the children were also away. There was a fire in the stove and there is no doubt but that the conflagration started from it.

Several men saw the fire, but somehow they neglected to send in an alarm. A young colored man finally ran down and informed Patrolman McCue that the station house was afire. McCue was inclined to unbelief. Meanwhile the blaze continued at a merry pace. Finally McCue consented to investigate. He found the flames busy with the interior. The colored man went running down the street yelling "fire."

John VanNest, an employe at Hedden's stable, heard the shout and hurried into The Press office for the key. His only explanation was that there was a fire on Park avenue, hence the key was found sooner, perhaps, than it might otherwise have been.

The alarm was sent in from box 13, at 12:15 o'clock and the fire department responded promptly. The fire had gained considerable headway in the corridor and on the upper floor. The stream from the chemical engine and two regular lines of hose were laid in.

Where there was no fire the axe was used freely and the interior of the place now presents a sad appearance It is practically ruined as far as the interior is concerned, although the cells did not suffer greatly.

A great crowd assembled to watch the fire. City Judge Runyon was on hand and he looked positively happy. The police didn't seem worried either, and Tommy Martin wasn't greatly agitated. His property on the second floor was covered by $500 insurance.

Morgan C. Bird, the owner of the building, visited the scene of the fire and remarked that he guessed it was gone this time. He estimated the value of the building at $2,000, and placed his loss at $500. It is covered by insurance.

DEATH OF TUNIS D. PEER.

Formerly Resided in Plainfield, But Has Lived in Boonton for Several Years Past.

Tunis D. Peer, one of the oldest residents of Boonton, who made Plainfield his home for ten years, died at his home in Boonton Tuesday evening. He was eighty-eight years old and had never known what a sick day was until a year ago. A bruise on his foot resulted in gangrene that finally caused his death.

Mr. Peer was born and raised in Boonton where he plied his trade as a carpenter. He had two sons and three daughters. One of the sons, Sylvester H Peer, settled in Plainfield and now resides on West Front street. The son is a carpenter as well. Sixteen years ago the elder Mr. Peer came to this city and worked for his son at the carpenter trade. He remained here for ten years and then returned to Boonton. He has since visited in this city frequently.

Mr. Peer was well known by the older generation and had many warm friends living in Plainfield. Of his seven grandchildren, Mrs. Frank Vanderhoof, of West Front street, is the only one residing in this city. There are also several great grandchildren.

The funeral services will be held from Mr. Peer's late residence in Boonton tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock.

Col. Julian Scott, of West Front street, has been visiting Newark friends.

TROUBLE OVER FARES.

DAMAGE SUIT BROUGHT AGAINST BRUNSWICK TRACTION COMPANY.

Alleged That Conductor Hodge Pushed and Kicked James F. Eganey Off the Car.

An altercation between James F. Eganey, of this city, and Conductor Hodge, of the Brunswick Traction Company, that occurred on one of the cars of that company running between Dunellen and Bound Brook January 20, has resulted in a lawsuit for $1,000 damages. Suit was started in the New Jersey Supreme Court yesterday by Murphy & Blatz, lawyers for Eganey, against the Brunswick Traction Company.

The trouble happened over the question of collecting fares. Eganey and his father are employed at Lincoln and commute daily on the trolley cars. On the morning of January 20, they left Dunellen at 6:45 o'clock. The elder Eganey alleges that he paid his son's fare as well as his own. The conductor differs. The latter demanded the fare from the son and, it is alleged, that when the latter refused to pay it, he pushed and kicked the young man off the car.

UNITED WORKMEN MEET

GRAND LODGE OF A. O. U. W. IN SESSION AT TRENTON.

Excellent Condition of Order in the State Shown by Reports—Plainfielders Present.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, March 8—All the leading members of the Ancient Order of United Workmen have assembled here this week for the session of the Grand Lodge, the State organizatipn of that order. The first session was held last evening and was attended by the delegates from the various lodges all over the State. The meeting of the Grand Lodge will continue today and tomorrow.

The reports of the State officers shows the order to be in very prosperous condition. Regarding membership, there has been a decided increase. January 1st, 1899, the total membership in the State numbered 6,363. December 31st it was 7,218. There are now 68 lodges in New Jersey, one more than last year. Two of them, Central and Columbia, are located in Plainfield.

The report of the treasurer shows some interesting facts concerning the satisfactory condition in that department. The receipts to the general fund during the year amounted to $15,177 27, and a balance of $4 082 60 still remains in that fund. In the beneficiary fund, the receipts for the year were $137,871, with a balance of $1,344.31 still remaining.

Central Lodge, the older of the two Plainfield lodges, has several representatives at the meeting of the Grand Lodge. The regular delegates from that lodge are N. C. Mague, Edward Mosher and James R. Dunham. C. T. Rogers is present as a deputy grand master workman while William Newcorn, a member of the State law committee, is also in attendance.

Among those from Plainfield attending the grand lodge of A. O. U W. at Trenton are V. W. Nash, grand guide, and J. W. A. Bauersachs and Henry Nischwitz, the two latter being past-masters of Columbia Lodge and go as delegates from that body.

TROLLEY THROUGH NOTCH.

Petition to That End is in Hands of Harry Runyon and Being Liberally Signed.

There are good prospects that the extension of the Plainfield Street Railway up Somerset street to Watchung will be constructed early this summer. Harry C. Runyon is circulating the petition. He has already secured the signatures of nearly half of the property owners along the highway between the end of the Somerset line at Demler's corner and Watchung. Nearly all the owners of land fronting on the street are in favor of the extension and there is reason to believe that a sufficient number of signatures will be secured in a few weeks to make the prospect an assured fact.

Debts Are About $2,000.

W. H. & W. VanWinkle, grocers, doing a business on Somerset street, who made an assignment Monday, have not determined just what they will do. W. R. Codington is the assignee. The debts amount to about $2,000. The assets as yet are not known. The assignee will take an inventory of the stock very soon, and a public sale will be held to settle up affairs.

Still Alarm.

A still alarm of fire called out No. 3 and Chief Doane this morning to extinguish a chimney blaze at the house of Thomas Burke, of 903 West Third street.

SENATOR REED FIGHTS TO SAVE GAME FISH.

Angling Sport at Lake Hopatcong is Said to be Seriously Threatened.

PITNEY'S STRANGE ACTION.

MORRIS COUNTY SENATOR OPPOSES THE REED BILL.

The Aim is to Prevent Fishing Through the Ice, Thus Destroying the Sport for the Fishers in the Summer.

The fight that is being made by Senator Charles A. Reed in the Legislature to save from total extermination the game fish in Lake Hopatcong is attracting much attention. Strange as it may seem, the principal opposition to the bill is being made by Senator Pitney, of Morris county, within whose district Lake Hopatcong lies.

For years Hopatcong's waters have been noted for its black and Oswego bass and pickerel. It is one of the few places near New York where fishing can be indulged in Sunday, which has been one of the reasons of the big success of the Lake Hopatcong Club. Prominent New Yorkers during the past few summers have landed many strings of fine fish, among them being H. P. Frothingham, Albert Tilt, L. C. Ivory, Former Mayor Wurster, of Brooklyn, E. F. C. Young, of Jersey City, and Judge Coult, of Newark.

Last year fewer fish were landed than during the previous season, and as just as many young fish had been placed in the lake the preceding fall by the fish commissioners as formerly the only reason that could be found for the decrease was that too many were caught during the winter months.

An investigation was made, and it it is alleged that last winter tons of fish, principally pike, were caught through the ice by the people who reside near the lake during the entire year, and who it is said live for the most part on what fish they catch out the lake. When the bill came up in the Senate Tuesday of this week Senator Reed made the statement that a few persons caught tons of fish through the ice and injured the summer fishing. This statement was denied by Senator Pitney in a long speech regarding the rights of his constituents to catch fish when they liked. Despite his objection the bill went to second reading.

Why Senator Pitney should take this ground no one in this section can see, for without good fishing in Lake Hopatcong the free-spending fishermen from New York who go there each summer would remain away, and the Hopatcong people would not reap the annual harvest of dollars.

HOMES FOR MURR CHILDREN.

Elizabeth S. P. C. A. Looking After the Blind Lena and Her Sister.

The Elizabeth Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children has begun an investigation of the accusations made against Ernest Murr relative to his treatment of his demented wife and blind daughter. Rev. Henry Hale Sleeper and Miss Josephine Kremm talked with the neighbors of the Murr family Tuesday and found their stories were substantiated by the blind girl. She said a blow by her father destroyed her sight when she was five years old.

The visitors found the girl alone in the house, but her mother soon came in. The girl was poorly clad and seemed cowed with fear. She said her father abused her whenever he was under the influence of liquor.

"He strikes me over the eyes," she said with a sob. "This is where he burned me with a poker," raising a sleeve and showing a scar on her forearm.

She seemed afraid to talk in the presence of her mother and went to her room upstairs.

The society hopes to have the two children put in institutions where they will be cared for. They think the girl's eyesight can be restored. William T. Day, counsel for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, is preparing the papers.

BOERS ON THE RUN.

Lord Roberts Reports Another Signal Victory.

GENERAL FRENCH IN HOT PURSUIT.

British Headquarters Moved to Poplar Grove, Fourteen Miles Eastward—General Cronje to Be Sent to St. Helena.

LONDON, March 8.—The war office has just posted the following advices from Lord Roberts, dated Poplar Grove, March 7, evening:

"We had a very successful day and have completely routed the enemy, who are in full retreat.

"The position which they occupied is extremely strong and cunningly arranged with a second line of intrenchments, which would have caused us heavy loss had a direct attack been made.

"The turning movement was necessarily wide owing to the nature of the ground, and the cavalry and horse artillery horses are much done up.

"The fighting was practically confined to the cavalry division, which, as usual, did exceedingly well, and General French reports that the horse artillery batteries did great execution among the enemy.

"Our casualties were about 50. I regret to say that Lieutenant Keswick was killed and Lieutenant Bailey was severely wounded, both of the Twelfth lancers. Lieutenant De Crespigny of the Second Life guards was severely wounded. Remaining casualties will be telegraphed tomorrow.

"Generals Dewet and Delarey commanded the Boer forces."

A dispatch from Carnarvon, Cape Colony, dated March 6 says:

Lord Roberts wired yesterday morning from Osfontein and in the evening from GENERAL FRENCH.

Poplar Grove, 14 miles eastward. By an application of the elementary principle of strategy the Boer positions 15 miles long across his path have been emptied, and their holders have been obliged to retire in confusion consequent upon hasty withdrawal.

Nothing was done by Lord Roberts to disturb the symmetry, the deadly ingenuity of the Boer trenches in front of him. He marched out infantry estimated from the commands named at 30,000 men and sent 10,000 horsemen and horse artillery in a bold sweep around the Boer left, whereupon the Boer center and right became untenable. Fifty British fell when the cavalry came into contact with the Boers.

The correspondents differ as to the enemy's strength. The Daily Mail's representative thinks the Boers number something more than 4,000. The Daily News' man estimates them at 10,000. As these figures come from observers at headquarters, it is clear that Lord Roberts' force was overwhelmingly superior. He can scarcely have fewer than 45,000 immediately available men, as the Guards brigade reached him from Lord Methuen Tuesday.

Lord Methuen now commands only volunteers and the local forces at Kimberley, some of whom have gone toward Mafeking.

The military authorities have decided that General Cronje and the other Boer prisoners shall be sent immediately to the island of St. Helena, there to remain until the end of the war.

Lord Roberts has chosen Lord Bathurst, colonel of a militia regiment at the front, to command the escort to St. Helena, which was last month placed in cable communication with Cape Town and London.

It is also asserted that the cabinet has resolved neither to propose nor to entertain proposal at the present juncture for an exchange of prisoners.

At no other time since the diamond jubilee has the queen been so conspicuous an object in the public mind as she is now. Her majesty's visit to London for a drive in semistate from Paddington station to Buckingham palace would be sufficient in itself to create great public manifestations of loyalty, but the announcement last evening that, for the first time since the jubilee, she would today drive from Buckingham palace along the Embankment to St. Paul's cathedral and back, through Holborn and Piccadilly, to St. James', synchronizing with the new success of Lord Roberts, makes this a gala day in the annals of London.

Beyond all this is the announcement of the queen's intention to visit Ireland, for the first time, it is said, since the death of the prince consort. This is regarded as one of the most remarkable acts of the queen's life. No minister of the crown has ever dared to suggest such a remarkable undertaking. "The trip," said a well informed official, "is the spontaneous suggestion of the queen alone, and the enthusiasm it is bound to create when known in London can hardly be estimated."

Mr. A. G. Hales, the correspondent of The Daily Mail who was captured by the Boers Feb. 9 and released a few days ago at Bloemfontein, telegraphing from Sterkstroom Tuesday, says:

"While I was a prisoner at Bloemfontein I had an interesting interview with President Steyn. He said the burghers were determined to fight to the last man and that the struggle in the Free State would be child's play compared with what would follow in the Transvaal.

"President Steyn predicted that the capitulation of Pretoria would be preceded by events which would astonish Europe. He appointed a deputy president to remain at Bloemfontein during his absence at Pretoria in the interests of the Free State."

A correspondent of The Morning Post at Osfontein, telegraphing March 6, says:

"The agitation by the peace party in England and the hope that the Conservative government may be defeated are neutralizing the effect of the British victories because they encourage the Boers to persist in the struggle."

Cape Dutch Rebel.

CAPE TOWN, March 8.—Almost the whole of the Dutch population of the Prieska and Kenhardt districts are in rebellion. Many of the Dutch from neighboring districts are reported to have joined them, notably Piet Moolman, who will lead the rebels to Brandbles.

Lucas Steinkamp, in command of a force of Boers, is reported to be marching on Carnarvon. It is believed that Gordonia and Victoria West will rise and that the total number of men in arms will exceed 3,000. The general opinion of loyalists is that a strong force of British will be required, as a reverse would spread the rebellion.

Queen's Visit to Ireland.

DUBLIN, March 8.—Earl Cadogan announced the queen's intended visit last evening at the drawing room. The news had previously been telegraphed by the various news agencies and was already known throughout the city, causing much good feeling. Her majesty's visit will be of a private character, such as she is in the habit of making periodically to the south of France. It will probably extend for more than a fortnight. Her last visit was in 1861.

Boers on the Run.

OSFONTEIN, March 8.—Lord Roberts' force advanced early yesterday morning. General French turned the southern part of the position of the Boers, who fled incontinently, leaving a gun, immense quantities of forage and their tents. He is now in pursuit. The Boers on the north bank are also evacuating the position.

Kruger Still Firm.

GLENCOE, Natal, March 8.—President Kruger has returned to Pretoria. His address to the burghers has fired them with fresh enthusiasm to continue the fight for independence and to bring the war to a successful issue.

New Jersey Legislation.

TRENTON, March 8.—The senate yesterday passed Senator McCarter's state sewerage commission bill. There were no negative votes. The bill provides for a state sewerage commission, with power to divide the state into sewerage districts and to take steps for the purification of the rivers and streams in those districts. When a system of sewage disposal is recommended, the adoption of such system is dependent upon the approval of all the municipalities of the district. The primary purpose of the bill is to secure an abatement of the much talked of pollution of the Passaic river. In the house Mr. Wakelee, as chairman of the judiciary committee, reported adversely Mr. Benny's bill abolishing capital punishment and also the bill by the same member providing that in cases of conviction of murder in the first degree the jury may decide whether the punishment shall be death or imprisonment for life by a recommendation to mercy.

The Kentucky Legislature.

FRANKFORT, Ky., March 8.—The house yesterday passed the McChord railroad antiextortion bill by a vote of 56 to 42. The bill authorizes the state railroad commission to fix the maximum of freight rates and to punish for discrimination and extortion. From a party standpoint its passage was the carrying out of the principal planks in the platform on which the late Democratic governor, Goebel, was nominated. The Republicans in a body opposed the bill, and up to the last it looked as if enough Democrats would bolt party lines and defeat the bill, but on the final vote only two, Representatives Klair and Armstrong, voted with the Republicans against it. The Goebel assassin reward bill for $100,000 was approved formally by Democratic Governor Beckham.

A Revenue Test Case.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 8.—A jury in the federal court has found against the Northern Pacific railroad in a test case involving the validity of the revenue tax on bills of lading for export. The road had shipped 50,000 pounds of wheat to Liverpool and claimed exemption on constitutional grounds, quoting the clause of article 1, section 9, which says that "no tax or duty shell be levied on articles exported from any state." All railroads are directly interested. The Northern Pacific will take the case up to the supreme court. The government contention is that the tax is laid, not on the goods, but on the bill of lading as a document.

Rope Making by Electricity.

BOSTON, March 8.—Electricity will take the place of steam as the motive power for rope making at the Charlestown navy yard next week. This is the first time electricity has ever been utilized for power in such work, and the operation of the plant will be watched with considerable interest. The necessity for the change and increasing facilities of the ropewalk was demonstrated during the late Spanish war. This is the only ropewalk owned by the government, and the greater portion of the rope used in the service is made here.

Returned Home Badly Hurt.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., March 8.—Fred Hall of Pine Island returned to his home yesterday morning in a dazed condition. His face was badly lacerated, his ear mutilated and one eye torn out. He had been to Deckertown on business. It is believed by some people here that he had been given knockout drops and that he was afterward attacked by some animal.

Boy Murderer Sentenced.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., March 8.—The jury in the case of Charles B. Cross, a 17-year-old boy who was on trial for the murder of Mrs. Sarah C. King, a woman of over 60 years, after 3 hours and 20 minutes' deliberation returned a verdict of murder in the first degree. Judge Roraback immediately sentenced Cross to be hanged Friday morning, July 20.

Severe Peruvian Floods.

LIMA, Peru, March 8.—It is reliably reported that recent inundations in the department of Muquogua have caused losses to property estimated at $1,500,000. The inhabitants are petitioning the government to exonerate them from the payment of taxes in view of the floods.

WATCH YOUR KIDNEYS!

Never for one moment forget that your constant duty to yourself, to your business, to your family, is a constant watch on your kidneys. As the careful engineer watches each pulsation of his daintily tended engine, so should you give the closest scrutiny to your kidneys, for are they not the great engines of human life? The kidneys filter the blood, all its impurities are left in the kidneys, to be, in turn, passed to the bladder and so find escape from the human system. Can you not readily see how with improperly working kidneys the blood scatters its poison, and before you know it you are in the clutch of Brights Disease and death is upon you.

Hundreds of the sudden deaths you hear and read about are due to neglect of the signals nature gives, such as weak back and pains across the small of the back. If you ever have backache, don't hesitate, but seek the best and surest and quickest acting remedy at once in Dentistry is the best substitute for nature's work that can be done, sound roots may be built up and crowned and thus fill up an unsightly space. It has to be made of a material that has strength and durability and one that will not discolor. Gold is the one that stands the test. That is the secret of the expense. But the advantages of a bridge over a plate are many times more than the cost of one compared to that of the other.

THE BUDDHIST RELIGION.

It Contains Many of the Great Lessons That Are Taught by the Christian Faith.

Dr. Maurice Bloomfield, of Johns Hopkins university, who has been lecturing on the "Sacred Literature of Eastern Religions" before the Ethical society of Philadelphia, spoke recently on "The Sacred Literature of the Buddhist."

"The Buddhist literature contains so many of the great teachings of the Christian religion and so many of those familiar stories of folk-lore and fable that are known to the western races from childhood that we are much impressed by the striking analogy. It pieces out the theory that we must go back for all our greater inspirations to that dim, mystical east, out of which the life of Europe and our own country has come.

"The Buddhists form a branch of that religious revolution which is connected with the name of Buddha and which is entitled to a prominent place in the history of worship and sect. At a period which is even now, with our modern methods of scholastic research, uncertain, Buddhism sprung into being as an opponent to Brahminism and maintained against it a long series of bloody contests, which contributed at least to give a new impulse to philosophical activity.

"The documents of this religion that have been collected are more or less fragmentary, and are not entitled to a complete degree of confidence. Much of the modern opinion is formed from the testimony of their Brahmin opponents.

"There are two schools of Buddhists that have in some unknown way diverged from the original teaching of the great founder. One school holds that everything is vacuum or nonbeing and as it distinguishes different degrees of nonbeing its doctrine has appeared to many oriental philosophers as a mere tissue of extravagances.

"It admits no other existence than that of mind or spirit, an existence which is revealed in reflection. It is a system of idealism and spiritualism.

"In the opposite extreme is another school. It professes sensualism and materialism. Its starting point is sensation, and it operates upon sensation by induction.

"There is a third school, which admits of no other existence than that of self. The entire Buddhist sect conceives salvation as the chief end, and it is to them a state of complete apathy, where all thought is extinguished. This is, in brief, the structure of their theology.

"The philosophical opinions of the Buddhist schools agree more than those of other Hindu doctrines with the system professed in Europe in modern times. The spiritualism of the first school resembles very much that of Berkley and the individual pantheism has been represented in Germany by Fichte.

"The story of Buddha in some of its features resembles that of Christ. He enlists for the sect as the redemptionist. He survived because of great sacrifice. The haven and end of life to the Brahmins, the early sect from which the Buddhists are an offshoot, was Nirvana, where the soul joined the universal soul. He had to pass through many transmigrations before he entered into the divine rest. Buddha refused to enter Nirvana and continued his round of existences. This was regarded as a great renunciation.

"The legend of Buddha sets before us a figure of profound splendor—gentle and benevolent. He was the son of a small ruler and, like Socrates, searched out the noblest type of man and consecrated himself to the pursuance of such an existence, with the idea of uplifting his people.

"He marked out for their guidance the eightfold page which the devout Buddhist must follow. He must uphold right livelihood, right doctrines, right efforts, right speech, right conduct, right aspirations, right meditations, right raptures, right memory.

"These are the ethics of the Buddhist. They know no such thing as immortality nor do they conceive a unic with a universal self. Absolute peace, repose, freedom from life is their theory of the after death. It is reserved and vague—an absolute negative."—Chicago Chronicle.

Dots Insured for French Girls.

The dot or dowry is as much a part of the wedding arrangements in France as the bridal veil. A woman marries as seldom without the one as without the other. French novels contain many allusions to the thrift and toil with which the parents lay by a suitable dot for their daughter. One man and wife in Zola's "Fecondite" laid by nearly half of their earnings for this purpose in the hope that she would make a match that would raise the family in the social scale. A company has been organized to furnish "assurance dotales." The plan is for the father to make annual payments during his lifetime, and at his death no more premiums need be paid. Thus a father 29 years of age pays 381 francs a year, and on her majority the daughter receives 10,000 francs. Should the girl die, the company returns the payments to the parents. There are no statistics at hand as to the prosperity of the company, but it is well advertised in the French magazines, and probably will be a success.—Chicago Tribune.

Saved from the Enemy.

From Rensburg, in Cape Colony, comes the news that a train loaded with supplies and without any engine somehow got started on a down grade within the British lines and was headed for the Boer lines. It was seen to be impossible to stop the train, so, rather than have the supplies reach the Boers, the British gunners directed their guns on the cars and destroyed them and their contents.—Chicago Tribune.

CROWDS HEAR LODGE

Speech on the Philippine Question Well Received.

EXHAUSTIVE EXPANSION ARGUMENT

Address Follows a Resolution by Mr. Sullivan Favoring Silence as to Our Intentions While Insurrection Exists In the Islands.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The senate seldom accords to any of its members a greater compliment than it gave yesterday to Mr. Lodge of Massachusetts. The announcement that he would deliver a speech on the Philippine question drew to the senate every senator now in the city and to the galleries an unusually large number of auditors. Throughout the delivery of the speech, despite the fact that it consumed three hours, the Massachusetts senator was given close attention. Keen interest was aroused in the utterance, not only because of the oratorical ability of Mr. Lodge, but also because as chairman of the Philippine committee and a prominent member of the committee on foreign relations who had studied the Philippine question exhaustively, he was expected to present a notable addition to the literature of the great problem which now confronts congress and the American people.

Neither his colleagues in the senate nor his other auditors were disappointed in his address.

When he had concluded, he was overwhelmed with congratulations from both sides of the chamber. Soon after Mr. Lodge had concluded the senate adjourned in respect to the memory of the late Representative Harmer.

Soon after the senate convened Mr. Sullivan (Miss.) offered a resolution that the Philippine Islands are the rightful property, honorably acquired, of the United States, and that "while the misguided Filipinos continue the present war, brought on by them, against the rightful authority of the United States, so long as a single gun in their hands is trained upon our flag, no expression of intention as to the future course of the United States with respect to them should be made by the senate." Mr. Sullivan asked that the resolution lie on the table until he should call it up.

In accordance with notice previously given, Mr. Lodge (Rep., Mass.) then addressed the senate on the Philippine question.

Adverting to recent diplomatic achievements, he said:

"The possession of the Philippines made us an eastern power, with the right and, what was equally important, the force behind the right, to speak. Mr. Hay, as secretary of state, has obtained from all the great powers of Europe their assent to our demand for the guarantee of all our treaty rights in China and for the maintenance of the policy of the open door. I do not belittle one of the most important and most brilliant diplomatic achievements in our hundred years of national existence when I say that the assent of these other powers to the propositions of the United States was given to the master of Manila. They might have turned us aside three years ago with a shrug and a smile, but to the power which held Manila bay and whose fleet floated upon its waters they were obliged to give a gracious answer. Manila, with its magnificent bay, is the prize and the pearl of the east. In our hands it will become one of the greatest distributing points, one of the richest emporiums of the world's commerce. Rich in itself, with all its fertile islands behind it, it will keep open to us the markets of China and enable American enterprise and intelligence to take a master share in all the trade of the orient."

In conclusion Senator Lodge said:

"I do not believe that this nation was raised up for nothing. I do not believe that it is the creation of blind chance. I have faith that it has a great mission in the world—a mission of good, a mission of freedom. I believe that it can live up to that mission; therefore I want to see it step forward boldly and take its place at the head of the nations. I wish to see it master of the Pacific. I would have it fulfill what I think is its manifest destiny if it is not false to the laws which govern it. I am not dreaming of a primrose path. I know well that in the past we have committed grievous mistakes and paid for them, done wrong and made heavy compensation for it, stumbled and fallen and suffered. But we have always risen, bruised and grimed sometimes, yet still we have risen stronger and more erect than ever, and the march has always been forward and onward."

The Precious Stone Output.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—George Kunz, the gem expert at the geological survey, has submitted his annual report on the production of precious stones in the United States for 1899. He reports an increased output of sapphires in Montana and the discovery of a fine blue stone that afforded gems up to three carats in weight. The beautiful sapphires of various colors were also discovered in Grant county, Mon. The total value of gems produced last year was $185,770, a gain of $24,850 over the previous year. Diamonds to the value of $300 were produced in the United States.

A Large Mortgage.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., March 8.—A mortgage for $1,000,000 has been filed with the collector of customs of the port of Oswegatchie by Louis Hasbrouck of the Rutland Transit company. The mortgage is given to a Boston trust company to secure the bonds of the Rutland Transit company, which recently purchased the Ogdensburg Transit company's fleet of eight freight steamers plying between Ogdensburg, Chicago and Duluth, and also purchased wharfs and other property in these cities.

Supplies For British Army.

BINGHAMTON, March 8.—The Faatz Brush and Felting company of Lestershire has shipped to Southampton an express car full of saddle cloths and saddle pommels to be used by the British army in South Africa. This is the first consignment in an order which will amount in value to about $50,000 and which will consume about 26,000 pounds of fine wool.

Bomb Throwing In Paris.

PARIS, March 8.—A bomb was thrown yesterday through a window of the Paris residence of M. Alfred Picard, commissioner general of the Paris exposition. It did not explode. A lady who saw two men light the fuse and who gave the alarm was attacked and severely handled by them.

STEEL RAILS.

Unusually Large Production In This Country Last Year.

PHILADELPHIA, March 8.—The American Iron and Steel association has received complete statistics of the production of Bessemer steel ingots and Bessemer steel rails in the United States in 1899 except the comparatively small quantity of standard rails and street rails which were made from purchased blooms or were rerolled from old steel rails. The total production of Bessemer steel ingots in 1899 was 7,586,354 gross tons against 6,609,017 tons in 1898, showing an increase in 1899 of 977,337 tons, or over 14 per cent. The production of 1899 was more than twice the production of 1894 and was almost twice the production of 1896. Of the ingots produced in 1899 Pennsylvania made 3,968,779 tons, Ohio 1,679,237 tons, Illinois 1,211,246 tons, other states 727,092 tons. There were no Clapp-Griffiths works in operation in 1899, and only one Robert-Bessemer plant was active. Four Tropenas plants were at work in that year, and all were employed in the production of steel castings. The ingot statistics include the production of a few thousand tons of Bessemer steel castings.

The production of all kinds of Bessemer steel rails direct from ingots by the producers of Bessemer steel ingots in 1899 was 2,240,767 gross tons against a similar production in 1898 of 1,955,427 tons and 1,614,399 tons in 1897. The maximum production of Bessemer steel rails by the producers of Bessemer steel ingots was reached in 1899. The year of next largest production was 1887, when 2,044,819 tons were made. The figures given do not include the rails made each year from purchased blooms or rerolled rails, statistics for both of which products for 1899 are not yet available. Of the total production of Bessemer rails in 1899 Pennsylvania made 1,224,807 tons, and other states made 1,015,960 tons.

THE RED ASH DISASTER.

Only One Known to Have Escaped Alive Tells of the Disaster.

HINTON, W. Va., March 8.—It is practically a certainty that 42 lives were lost in the explosion at the Red Ash mines, reported in these dispatches yesterday. The cause of the explosion is unknown, but is supposed to have occurred from a miner entering an unused room in the mines with an open lamp. There were 42 men in the mine at the time of the explosion, and if it had resulted 20 minutes later the loss of life would have reached 150 or more.

The only person who entered the mine and who is known to have escaped alive is Electrician Evans, who was near the entrance. In relating his experience Mr. Evans said: "I heard a low rumbling sound similar to an earthquake. I realized in an instant that fire damp had exploded, and before the force of the concussion reached me I threw myself down on my face. A sheet of flame, rock and debris shot over my head.

"I managed to creep to the mouth and into the fresh air. My God, it was awful! I saw that I was the only one left. Every one of the other fellows was lost."

A pathetic feature of the disaster was the annihilation of the family of B. B. Long, fire boss. His wife died some time ago, leaving to his sole care two little boys. Having no one to stay with in their desolate home, the boys begged to go with their father into the mine to spend the day with him. He consented, and when the search is finished their blackened little bodies will be found beside that of their father.

The unexplained cause of the accident has terrified miners in adjoining localities. Very many are afraid to go to work, and it will require the most searching inspection by competent men to remove their fears and induce them to return to their places.

Quaker City Fire.

PHILADELPHIA, March 8.—A fire entailing an estimated loss of over $700,000 occurred yesterday in the retail dry goods district. The conflagration originated in the engine room of Shoneman Bros.' dry goods and millinery store at Eighth and Arch streets. The building was T shaped, fronting on three streets—Eighth, Arch and Cherry. The engine room was in the basement at the center of the structure. It is said that while the fire was being drawn from the furnaces sparks communicated with some waste paper and the little blaze spread with astonishing rapidity to the upper floors.

Newfoundland Differences Settled.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., March 8.—Messrs. Bond and Morris, the chiefs of the Liberal factions in the colony, have compromised their differences, united forces and formed a government, absorbing Messrs. Callahan and Woodford, assemblymen for St. John's, and the Morine wing of the Winterite party, who bolted from the Conservative ranks a fortnight ago and upset the Winter ministry. A Bond cabinet is likely to be announced on Saturday.

Must Believe It

When Well-known Plainfield People Tell It so Plainly.

When public endorsement is made by a representative citizen. In Plainfield the proof is positive. You must believe it. Read this testimony. Every backache sufferer, every man, woman or child with any kidney trouble will profit in the reading.

Mrs. Margaret Reville of 752 West Third street, says:—"For a long time I was troubled with a lame and weak back and I never found anything which gave me any relief until I obtained Doan's Kidney Pills from L. W. Randolph's drug store and began to use them according to directions. It was only a short time before I felt the good effects and from that time on I improved steadily under the treatment. My back pained me and was weak and sore that I dreaded to bend and when I had a cold or over exerted myself I suffered severely. I used several different kidney remedies but got little if any relief. I give Doan's Kidney Pills all the credit for my improvement. I think they are a fine medicine for a lame back."

KAUNG HAU'S DETHRONEMENT

Dowager Empress of China Forced Him to Renounce His Title.

VANCOUVER, B. C., March 8.—Chinese advices say that in effecting the dethonement of Kaung Hau on Jan. 24 the empress dowager practically forced the monarch to be the author of his own undoing to the extent of renouncing the throne, proclaiming a new emperor and practically asserting himself a usurper by stating that his election to succeed Tung Chih had been discovered illegal. The decree of renunciation says in part:

"Now be it also known that when selected to the throne it was then agreed that if ever we should have a son, that son should be proclaimed heir to the throne, but ever since last year (1898) we have been constantly ill, and it was for this reason that the empress dowager graciously acceded to our urgent prayers and took over the reins of government in order to instruct us in our duties. A year has now passed, and still we find ourselves an invalid, but ever keeping in our mind that we do not belong to the direct line of succession and that for the sake of the safety of the empire of our ancestors a legal heir should be selected to the throne, we again prayed the empress dowager to carefully choose from among the members of the imperial clan such an one, and this she has done in the person of Pu Chun, son of Tsai Yi, Prince Tuan second order."

ROOT IN CUBA.

War Secretary Reaches Havana and Is Well Received.

HAVANA, March 8.—Secretary Root arrived here yesterday on board the United States transport Sedgwick. He was received with a salute from Cabanas fortress. General Ludlow was also on board.

Governor General Wood and all the division staff and the department of Havana staff were conveyed to the transport and escorted the party ashore.

The local papers indulge in much speculation as to the reasons for the visit, but almost without exception they say that Mr. Root is welcome and that they hope he will not only enjoy the experience, but that he will learn more about the Cuban people than he ever could by reading newspaper dispatches and opinions, which give such varying opinions that no man can tell what to believe. One journal says:

"Secretary Root is less liable than some others to be led astray by casual talk, for the people with whom he is most likely to come into contact will be Cubans of intelligence and foresight."

The military reception at the palace in the afternoon was largely attended by American officers and their families.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Mount Asama, the Japanese volcano, was reported unusually active.

Somebody sent a bottle of bromo seltzer to Roland B. Molineux in prison.

A Chinaman supposed to be a bubonic plague victim was isolated in San Francisco.

Two lives were lost by an engine falling from a bridge to an Alleghany City street.

The Japanese navy will hold extensive maneuvers in the straits of Korea the last of this month.

The wages of 4,000 employees of the National Tube company at McKeesport, Pa., have been raised 10 per cent.

A formidable rebellion against the government of the empress dowager was reported to have been organized in China.

Alfred R. Goslin, accused of conspiring against the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company, was released in $7,000 bail in Philadelphia. He will fight requisition.

The Chicago Labor Troubles.

CHICAGO, March 8.—Apparently all hope of a settlement in the near future of the differences existing between the unions affiliated with the Building Trades' council and the contractors were dissipated yesterday when the Building Contractors' council made a declaration that no opportunity to arbitrate will be afforded by that body, no matter what pressure may be brought to bear by the industrial commission soon to meet here. "We have locked no one out and are willing to employ men regardless of their affiliations," continues the official statement, "but we refuse to be dictated to by the Building Trades' council." It is now believed by many leaders on both sides that the combination of strike and lockout in Chicago will develop into a simple test of endurance.

Mountain Detective Shot.

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 8.—George W. Drake, the famous mountain detective and ex-deputy United States marshal, and a man named Ford were shot to death Tuesday night near Torrent, Ky., by William St. John. It is reported to be the result of bad feeling of long standing between Drake and St. John. Drake is said to have run down more moonshiners and criminals in the mountains of eastern Kentucky than any other officer in the service of the government.

Cleveland Stealers Convicted.

CLEVELAND, March 8.—The jury in the case against Albert E. Davis and Samuel G. Brooker, charged with defrauding the city in connection with the so called city hall steals, brought in a verdict finding both of the accused men guilty. They were employed as clerks in the public works department and were charged with making out and receiving on false bills to the extent of many thousands of dollars.

Dissatisfaction In Jamaica.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, March 8.—What is called "Mr. Chamberlain's autocratic action in reducing the colony of Jamaica to the condition of crown government" is much resented, and the political situation does not improve. Lawless persons threaten a disturbance of public order.

Fourth Victim Dead.

KANSAS CITY, March 8.—W. R. Vaughan, the Cincinnati newspaper man who was injured in the Missouri Pacific wreck at Independence a week ago, died at the University hospital after an operation on his arm. This makes four deaths as a result of the wreck.

PORTO RICO'S STATUS

The Views of Committeeman Payne on the Subject.

STATEHOOD RIGHTS NOT FAVORED.

The Insular Problems Confronting Us Should Be Carefully Considered. Free Trade With Islands Would Injure American Workingmen.

MILWAUKEE, March 8.—Henry C. Payne, member of the Republican national committee from Wisconsin, said yesterday in regard to his views on the subject of a tariff for Porto Rico:

"Looking to the future welfare of the republic, I consider it would be a calamity to have the status of Porto Rico, Cuba or the Philippine Islands made such as would give them later on rights which would entitle them to admission as states into this Union.

"This question should have the most careful, thoughtful and statesmanlike consideration. The bill pending gives time for ample study of the question. Let us not make haste to settle irrevocably a question which may be of most vital importance to our people in the future.

"There is no class of people so much interested as the working classes. If free trade is established with the islands, they will at once become competitors with almost the cheapest labor known in the world.

"Is that condition desirable? Do our working people desire full and unlimited competition with the masses of Porto Rico, Cuba and the Philippines?

"Calm, dispassionate discussion of the whole subject is in order. A mistake made now may cost us dear later. The provisions of the bill are operative but for two years, and in that time we may realize better the problems before us.

"The people who are to pay this slight tax levied for the benefit of the masses of the people of Porto Rico are practically the sugar and tobacco trusts. If no tax at all is levied, they will be able to buy these materials free of any tax, and the sugar and tobacco raiser in this country will suffer by reason of this competition with almost the cheapest labor known in the world.

"In what more easy or equitable manner can relief be given to the people of Porto Rico?"

Aid Not Likely to Reach the Boers.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Mr. Montagu White, the representative of the Transvaal in the United States, has authorized the following interview: "My attention has been drawn to the appeal for funds issued by the committee of the American hospital ship Maine. I have not the slightest wish to check the generosity of those who are desirous of relieving the British sick and wounded in South Africa, but though it may seem somewhat superfluous I feel it my duty to point out that as the Boer lines are some 300 to 500 miles inland the suffering Boers are not in the least likely to profit by the charity of the Maine, even supposing that those responsible for the undertaking really desire to extend their care to the republican belligerents. I therefore feel compelled to request all those who are anxious to assist the Boer sick and wounded or the widows and orphans to send their subscription to me or any of the properly constituted organizations which are collecting money for that purpose."

A Scourge of Smallpox.

JACKSON, Miss., March 8.—An official report made to the Hinds county board of supervisors reveals an appalling state of affairs in the Jonesville neighborhood in the southern part of the county. The community is literally honeycombed with smallpox of the most virulent and loathsome form, and during the past six weeks nearly 100 deaths have occurred. On some days the death rate has been so large that it was impossible to secure coffins, and rude caskets were made from rails. Whole families have been wiped out of existence, and of several large families only one or two children are left. Many of the patients are now in a critical condition, are without medical attention, and dying at the rate of from three to five per day. The death rate exceeds 75 per cent, and the entire lower portion of the county is demoralized.

Lieutenant Governor's Dinner.

ALBANY, March 8.—On next Wednesday night at 8 o'clock at the Hotel Ten Eyck the lieutenant governor will tender his annual dinner. It will be to the governor, the judiciary, the senators, the speaker and leaders of the assembly and members of the legislative reporters' association. The dinner, it is said, will be one of the largest ever held in the city of Albany. It is expected that there will be present at least 200 guests. It will take place in the large dining hall of the Ten Eyck.

The Plague Increasing In India.

CALCUTTA, March 8.—The bubonic plague increases, there being 411 deaths from the disease here last week. This is causing a great exodus of merchants. The viceroy, Lord Curzon of Kedleston, addressing some of the plague stricken patients, said he considered it his duty to visit all the quarters of the vast dependence committed to his charge.

Fruit For Charity.

BOSTON, March 8.—At the fruit sheds of the Fitchburg Railroad company here 250 boxes of fine California oranges, sent by a number of growers for the benefit of the California Homeless Children's association, were sold for about $2,500. The highest price paid for any single box was $21.

Skating Record Again Lowered.

PITTSBURG, March 8.—At Duquesne Garden last night John Nillson, champion ice skater of the world, lowered the indoor record made by Baptie recently by skating a mile in 2 minutes 54½ seconds on the Duquesne's official nine lap track. Baptie's mark was 2 minutes 55¾ seconds.

Governor Shaw's Father Dead.

MORRISVILLE, Vt., March 8.—Governor Shaw of Iowa is here, having been called hither by the death of Boardman Shaw, his father. The latter died from a shock Tuesday night. He was 84 years of age.

Took Fatal Dose by Mistake.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., March 8.—Gilbert Green, an aged farmer, near here, while ill from a cold took a quantity of oil of wintergreen, mistaking it for whisky. He died in great agony.

The Elizabeth City Campaign.

The Democrats and Republicans of Elizabeth are getting things in shape for an aggressive campaign for the city election which will be held early in April. It is generally conceded that Mayor Mack will be renominated by the Republicans, because he is looked upon as one of the best and most popular chief executives that Elizabeth has ever had. Although Elizabeth is unquestionably a Democratic city under nominal conditions, the Republicans are confident that Mayor Mack will surely be chosen to fill the office again.

Notwithstanding the confidence of the Republicans and strength of Mayor Mack, the Democrats are preparing to put on their best political clothes and enter the contest in an aggressive manner. It is still uncertain who will head the ticket as a candidate for Mayor. One name has been mentioned in connection with the nomination that commands attention. That is the name of P. J. Ryan, the present President of the City Council. The selection of Mr. Ryan as a candidate for Mayor on the Democratic ticket would give to that party the prestige, ability and popularity of one of its best-known citizens, and would prove a formidable competitor for Mayoralty honors with Dr. Mack.

As one who has been closely identified with the best and most substantial interests of the city since boyhood, and whose personal characteristics and business capacity are now universally admired and recognized by his townsmen, the promotion of Mr. Ryan from the second to the first officer of the city would not be a mistake.

If Mr. Ryan consents to become a candidate for Mayor in opposition to the almost certain candidacy of Dr. Mack at the hands of the Republicans, Elizabeth voters may well congratulate themselves that they are so fortunate as to have two such gentlemen to make a choice from. Under such circumstances, whichever way the majority of votes cast, the people of the municipality will feel that no mistake has been made in the effort to secure a capable official, although, of course, the defeat of either one or the other would cause partisan grief.

Mr. Martine as One of the "Big Four."

The selection of James E. Martine as one of the delegates-at-large to represent New Jersey at the Democratic National convention, to be held in Kansas City July 4th, would be bestowing an honor on the "Farmer Orator" that he not only personally deserves, but an action which would be prompted and justified by good politics. However much one may disagree with Mr. Martine as to the political principles and public policies of this country, it will be conceded by everyone who knows him—and his friends are legion throughout the State—that there has been no man who has been more steadfast and honest in his devotion to enunciated tenets of the dominant element of the party than has the "Farmer Orator."

When, in 1896, nearly all the then prominent Democratic leaders of the State either bolted the ticket outright or else remained inactive and luke warm throughout the campaign, Mr. Martine worked like a Trojan till election day expounding the principles of the Chicago convention and advocating the election of its candidates.

Even after the overwhelming defeat that Bryan and Sewall met with at the hands of the voters of the country, Mr. Martine, with characteristic consistency and peserverance, remained unflinching in the firing line of the political battalion. He was there through thick and thin, and now, when the political condition of affairs is such that those who hooted and jeered, figuratively speaking, at the procession which he was constantly sounding the reville for in its darkest days, have fallen into line, it is eminently proper and fitting that he should be among the elect.

Though the Puerto Rican tariff measure has the partisan stamp impressed on it, it is not certain as yet that Senator Sewell will vote for it. Mr. Sewell was interviewed yesterday about his attitude towards the measure, and he said: "It will depend largely upon what arguments are brought out in the consideration of the bill as to what I shall do." It is probable, however, that Senator Sewell will wheel into line with the majority of his political colleagues in the Upper House at Washington when the time for decisive action comes. Senator Kean says that he will vote for the bill.

At the banquet of the Legislative correspondents in Trenton the other evening the topic assigned to Senator Reed was "What I'll do when I get to be a Congressman?" The newspapermen evidently have but little regard for the finer points of politics, but we suppose they considered that the Senator would be privileged to follow out that old rule in respect to making an after-dinner toast—talking about everything except the subject assigned.

The Newark News says that the discussion and vote in the Senate on Senator Reed's bill to prevent winter fishing for pike at Lake Hopatcong were not so much divided on the question of catching fish as on catching votes.

The Republican State committee probably thought that it would be perfectly proper to pay Senator Sewell a compliment by presently his wife with a silver service set as long as it was gold-lined.

A Trenton correspondent yesterday penned a few words to the effect that "a spirit of unusual activity was developed in the Legislature today." And then the Legislature adjourned for a week.

A Red Bank mule that was unmercifully licked by its owner, retaliated by kicking his assailant in the head and killing him. The Jersey mule insists on being respected.

The Lawton fund has been turned over to the widow, Mrs. Mary C. Lawton. She has a credit in Riggs' Bank of $98,432.

When a party leader bolts a candidate there always is a screw loose somewhere.

The enforcement of blue laws always make some people look on the dark side of life.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The friends of "Farmer Orator" James E. Martine will make a vigorous effort to have him selected as one of the delegates-at-large from New Jersey to the Democratic National convention. Mr. Martine is a devoted supporter of Colonel Bryan and the Chicago platform. Mr. Bryan was entertained by Mr. Martine last month. There is no doubt but what Mr. Martine could be selected as a district delegate, but his friends intend to make an aggressive effort to have him chosen as one of the four delegates at-large.—Newark News.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about ¼ as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

NEWS OF THE SUBURBS.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen, March 8—Some of the cars of the Plainfield Street Railway are permitted to be in such a filthy condition that they are a continual source of complaint. A few days ago a gentleman accompanied by his wife and two children boarded one of the cars at the North Avenue station. The car was found to be so disgustingly dirty that the lady was compelled to ask her escort to vacate the car. The attention of the Board of Health has been directed to the matter.

The boys in the seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth grades of the Whittier School have organized an athletic club with these officers: President, Wm. Dealaman; vice-president, Ferdinand Titsworth; secretary and treasurer, Joseph Eganey. The boys have permission from Supt. Meserole to fit up the basement of the Whittier building for a gymnasium. There are about 25 members in the club.

There was a lively time at the Republican primary at New Market yesterday afternoon. The principal strife was for the nomination of three Town Committeemen. There was also a contest for Freeholder. The Democratic caucus in the evening was more harmonious.

At the last meeting of the Board of Education the sum of $3,300 was recommended to be appropriated for school purposes for the next year. This is about $1,000 in excess of last year, which is to be devoted to improving the heating apparatus of the building.

The Common Council has adopted an ordinance making all fares on the Brunswick Traction Company's line 5 cents, except for children under eight years of age and those pupils and teachers attending the Plainfield and Bound Brook schools.

Miss Lena Brakeley lost a handsome tan-colored pocketbook yesterday. A silver monogram "L B." is conspicuous on the side. A suitable reward will be paid if left at the drug store of Dr. P. W. Brakeley.

The Watchung Water Company has been notified by the Common Council to repair the streets, which had been left by that company in a bad condition by the laying of the water mains.

The annual report of the Board of Education, as submitted by Clerk Fredericks, shows that $5,000 has been spent in the past year.

Nine new names were added to the registry list yesterday, making 343 names of voters now on the registry.

Two additional electric lights are soon to be placed on Prospect street.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Scotch Plains, March 8.—The Republican and Democratic primaries will be held this evening. The Democrats will meet in the Bucket and Engine Company's rooms, and the Republicans in Excelsior Hall. The latter will, no doubt, be the largest primary ever held in the township, as the race for the Freeholder nomination between George Kyte and John Robison has reached and interested nearly every Republican in the township and borough. Both primaries will be called at 8 o'clock. Immediately after the primary for the Freeholder nomination the borough voters will withdraw and the local primary for township offices will be called.

The trolley company have a gang of workman at work cutting down the gutter from the Park avenue trolley crossing to the Meadow Brook stream. This will carry off the water which gathers about the crossing after every rain.

Fanwood Bucket and Engine Company held their regular monthly meeting in their rooms last evening.

Mrs. George L. Dunn and son are spending several days visiting relatives and friends in Newark.

Mrs. Norman Dunn spent Wednesday with her sister, Mrs. William Banks, of Plainfield.

Miss Aimy Cook has returned from a pleasant visit with friends at Patchogue, L. I.

Robert Walpole has returned from a visit of several days with his daughter in New York.

Mrs. W. S. Terry, of Netherwood, was the guest of relatives in town yesterday.

Avoid all drying inhalants and use that which cleanses and heals the membrane. Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy and cures Catarrh easily and pleasantly. Cold in the head vanishes quickly. Price 50 cents at druggist or by mail

Catarrh caused difficulty in speaking and to a great extent loss of hearing. By the use of Ely's Cream Balm dropping of mucus has ceased, voice and hearing have greatly improved.—J W. Davidson, Att'y at Law, Monmouth, Ill.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

The many Plainfield friends of George Taggert, a former fellow-townsman, will be pleased to learn of his great success as a writer of songs. He has already well established himself in the musical world and his work has been commented upon most favorably by critics. Heretofore, Mr Taggert's efforts have been in the channel of popular music of a secular nature, but he has of late turned his attention to sacred music. His efforts have been very successful and in a new composition entitled "The Everlasting Light," he has given a work for Easter worship that bids fair to rival any that will be presented to the public this season. These words by Mr. Taggert have been fittingly set to music by Max S. Witt, a well-known composer. The cover is artistically designed and printed in silver.

The Jersey City News tells a good story about a Jersey City police commissioner who strayed into the sleepy little town of Somerville the other day. He spent half an hour roaming about looking for a telephone and after a time discovered that he was being followed by two men. Number one accosted him thus:

"My man, what is your business?"

"None of yours," replied the astonished commissioner.

"What is your business here?" the other fellow asked.

"Just what I have been telling this man here; but since you are so curious, come across the road, and when I have treated you I will tell you," said the commissioner with a grin. Refreshments being served, the two men opened their coats, displaying huge tin plates on their breasts with the word "Constable!" on them.

"I have a badge, too," said the commissioner, opening his coat and shewing the gold and diamond emblem of office, "and let me tell you that if you were in Jersey City I would walk you off the force in short order. Good-day!"

The report of the New Jersey Bureau of Statistics for the year just closed contains a valuable statement showing prices of leading commodities which make up the greater part of the cost of living in every household. Prices charged in many localities in different parts of New Jersey were obtained. Similar figures were published for the preceding year. Of the forty eight articles on the list twenty-seven show a decrease and sixteen an increase in price for 1899 as compared with 1898, five articles showing the same prices for both years. The variations in prices are not very great either way, except in flour. This latter commodity shows a decrease for the first and second quality per barrel of $1.46 and $1.65, respectively. Potatoes also show a considerable decrease in price, whites being nineteen and sweets thirteen cents per bushel lower than in 1898. The total amount of reduction in prices of twenty seven articles in which a decrease is shown is $3.74, and a total increase in prices on the sixteen articles that show an increase is nineteen cents. There is, therefore, a net decrease in the cost of the entire list as compared with 1898 of $3.55. The report says that the results reached in this comparison of prices are highly valuable and interesting, demonstrating as they do that the cost of the necessaries of life have not been increased by the war revenue law of 1898.

A little girl of nine years, living in Wagar, Washington Co., Ala., had been sick from the time of her birth with some ailment which no one seemed able to diagnose correctly. The physicians who were consulted differed in their opinions as to the nature of the complaint. Some said it was catarrh, while others were sure it was not catarrh. The mother of the child had about given up hope of ever seeing the little one well again, but one day her cousin advised a trial of Ripans Tabules. After taking the Tabules three days, the child improved rapidly, and could eat any food that was given her. In two weeks' time she was well, and could run about with just as much vigor, and play just as hard, as the neighbors' children. As her mother stated to a lady acquaintance: "She had been sick all her life until she took Ripans Tabules, and they cured her."

RED CROSS WORK IN MANILA

Trained Women Nurses Have Been Found to Be Indispensable In the Army Hospitals.

BY MILDRED MERRIAM.

The work of the various Red Cross auxiliaries which seemed about to end early in 1899 has been going on all this while, to the surprise of many of the committee who had charge of the work. It is now perhaps as important as ever.

The ladies of the committee recently held a meeting at the residence of the chairman. The amount of money received to date was reported as $5,700, the number of nurses sent to Manila by them as 29 and the work as still in full progress and as efficient as ever.

The government is now prepared to meet its own needs, so that more nurses are not being sent out by the committee. But those already in the field are being eagerly retained for the special service for which their training and large experience especially fit them.

A great part of the money expended was used in procuring delicacies for the sick and forwarding them to the Philippines. Many lives have doubtless been saved, since recovery so often depends on diet alone. Milk, which it is next to impossible to get in Manila, because the cows die of a disease which is very common there, had to be replaced by other foods.

For many months there was an average of 3,500 sick and wounded in the hospitals, and repeatedly as many as a thousand of these were under the care of the committee nurses.

Out of the entire number of nurses sent out only one was not a graduate trained nurse with large hospital training and professional testimonials of highest efficiency. The nurses have entered heartily into their work and rendered faithful and intelligent service.

At the beginning of hostilities the wisdom of sending women nurses by the government while a state of war existed so near Manila was doubtful, but the success of the nurses was proved by the great demand for their services. At one time there were over 1,000 sick and wounded men under the charge of the committee nurses, and they are still reserved for the officers' wards and the most serious cases. All now in the field have agreed to remain in the service until June 1, 1900, and the committee has decided to make every effort to keep the work up to its full efficiency till that date.

The greatest care was taken by the committee to properly house the nurses so that they would not suffer from their confined work and the deleterious effects of the climate. The best results have followed, and a nurse has been very rarely incapacitated by illness.

From the time the first nurses started on the transport Grant they have been far from idle. Five hundred and fifty-two cases were cared for on that trip, together with a like number on the other transports. After their arrival in Manila the rush was simply continuous, and until the arrival of the Sheridan they had not a moment to themselves between dispensing Red Cross supplies and answering emergency calls to officers' wives who were sick in their own homes. It was go, go, go, from early morning to late at night, with many night calls besides.

Many letters have been received by grateful officers testifying to the noble work done by the self sacrificing nurses. In an early letter, dated Sept. 2, speaking of the force as a whole, Colonel Woodhull wrote: "I take opportunity to say, and I am very glad to say it, that the nurses supplied by your association have been of inestimable value. This has depended upon the good quality of the women themselves and upon Miss Henshall's excellent judgment, firmness and executive ability. When there is an opportunity for civil help, as there is here, I cannot expect to find it better satisfied than you and your associates have done through these excellently selected and well managed representatives."

Miss Henshall was the person selected by the committee for the general charge of all the nurses that they should send out.

The foregoing is cited to show that the doubt entertained by those in power regarding the utility of female nurses in the field has been dispersed by the nurses themselves and that their noble self sacrifice has been the inspiration of much good from other sources and that they deserve great reward from a grateful government.

THE GIRL'S AMBITIONS.

Time Modifies Her Great Plans Into Smaller and Simpler Duties.

Many girls will have noticed, I am sure, that as our lives advance our ambitions are apt to become more simple. The great plans we had as girls of 13 or 14 settle gradually into simpler ambitions. We learn gradually to know that in smaller duties better fitted to our hands lies the greatest happiness, and the possibility for fullest and richest development. Almost every girl, when she first begins to realize that she will probably never fulfill all her girlish ambitions because they are many of them beyond her possibilities, will have the inclination to "give up," as the children say. This is apt to be the beginning of real discontent, and it ought to be battled with. Let a girl once try to fully realize what it means to be the inspiration of some one person's life, the sunshine in the darkened lives of some one or two people, and she will then understand how it may fill her life almost to the brim with happiness.—Helen Spencer, in Ladies' Home Journal.

THE HEMP INDUSTRY IN THE PHILIPPINES

Methods Employed in the Cultivation of This Important Product of our Eastern Colonies—Profits That Are Realized

COMMERCIAL circles have been more than usually interested in the recent work of American soldiers in the Philippines, for the reason that the campaigns being waged were for the purpose of quelling the disturbances in the southern provinces of Luzon island, in which are located the hemp producing districts.

The opening of the ports in the provinces of Albay and the Camarines is of importance, not only to the Philippine islands, but to the entire civilized world, for Manila hemp is almost as much a necessity of commerce as are provisions and fuel, and these provinces produce the majority of the product shipped from the Philippines.

The Philippine islands have practically a monopoly on this valuable fiber, which is a native of these islands, and has never been grown successfully elsewhere. Many attempts have been made to transplant it to other countries, but none of them can be termed successful. It has been grown both in Cochin China and in British India in a small way, but in both places the experiments have failed to be profitable, because of the lack of the proper knowledge of extracting the fiber from the plant. In India the method employed was the same as is used in extracting the ordinary hemp grown in India, with the result that it was an entire failure. The hemp plants of India and the Philippines belong to entirely different families of the vegetable kingdom, and require a radically different treatment.

Manila hemp is secured from a plant known as the Musa textilis, a species of plantain that grows wild in the islands, and closely resembles in appearance the edible banana of commerce. In fact, it takes an expert to detect the difference between the two plants. The banana is a trifle taller, as a rule, and its leaves a lighter green. But in the fruit of the two there is a vast difference, that of the hemp plant being very much smaller and unfit to eat.

The hemp plant is not a tree, but an herb, and dies after once bearing flowers and fruit. When being cultivated for their fiber they are seldom allowed to bear fruit, for the reason that the bearing of fruit weakens, and consequently cheapens, the fiber of the plant. To prevent the bearing of fruit, the flower stems are cut away, and at the same time the leaf stalks that surround them are cut into strips for the extraction of the fiber. These leaf stalks are usually from six to seven feet in length, and the strips are cut five or six inches wide.

The methods employed in extracting the fiber from these stalks are of the most primitive sort, but, while many have tried, none have as yet succeeded in devising a practical machine which would do the work without cheapening the product to such an extent as to render it practically worthless.

The strips from the leaf stalks are made up of the hemp fiber and a soft pulpy substance inclosing it, and the primitive method of extracting the fiber from these is very simple. The tool employed is a scraping knife, with a dull edge, attached by a hinge to a block of wood. To this knife is attached a treadle, worked by the foot, which enables the operator to increase or decrease the pressure on the stalk as it passes under the knife, thus giving the degree of force necessary to remove the pulpy substance without injury to the fiber. As the fiber is removed in this way, the operator winds it around a stick. After this the fiber is laid in the sun to dry, where it must remain for some five hours, and is then pressed into bales and is ready for shipment.

Many attempts have been made to improve upon this stripping process, but none have been successful. Where the machines have attempted to clean the entire length of the stalk at once it has broken the fiber, as it is not strong enough to stand so great a pull as it is subjected to under such conditions, and machines made with a cylinder on which to wind the fiber after it has passed under the scraping knife have discolored the fiber in the winding process. The first of these machines were made with steel cylinders, and afterwards cylinders of glass were tried, but the effect of both was much the same, the fiber being discolored to such an extent as to cheapen its market value considerably.

The Philippine hemp plant requires a considerable amount of moisture, but it will not thrive in swampy land. It requires shade, but not a great depth of soil for its cultivation and development. Forest land, partially cleared, is the best that can be selected, and it thrives well upon the sides of volcanic mountains. In Albay province it grows with great luxuriance on the declivities of the Mayon volcano.

Of all the agricultural operations in the Philppines, hemp growing is the least troublesome, and gives the best returns for the investment. Its culture is not an occupation in which the settler without capital can engage, because it takes at least three years before the first returns can be had. The plant can be grown from seed, but shoots are to be preferred. At first planting each shoot occupies a space of about 36 square feet. But when this original plant has reached maturity and has been stripped and felled, suckers come up everywhere, growing spontaneously from the parent root, and yielding a much denser plantation.

Profits in hemp culture in the Philippines are large; as high as 30 per cent. of the investment is not considered unusual, and with present methods of cultivation and manufacture, and the carelessness and negligence of native labor, the amount of waste is enormous, averaging very close to 30 per cent. of the tntire crop.

One of the largest cultivators of hemp in the islands is an English planter who has some 1,800 acres devoted to hemp in Albay province, island of Luzon. He has invested in the enterprise some $60,000, which includes the price paid for the land, storehouses, bale presses, horses and vehicles and other accessories to an estate of this size. Before the war with Spain, which transferred the islands from that country to the United States, this planter received on an average for his crop of hemp $27,000 in Manila. Out of this he had to pay for labor, including clerks, overseers, freight to Manila, commissions and other expenses in addition to heavy tribute to corrupt Spanish officials, all of which amounted to an average of $10,000 a year, leaving him a profit of $17,000 annually. Under American control of the islands he expects his profits to be even larger, because of a reduction in his expense account. The saving will be in the items of bribes to government officials, and in shipping charges. Under the Spanish reign he had to sell his products in the markets of Manila, or at least ship from there, because of a lack of open ports. With a greater number of open ports he will be able to ship direct from his plantation to any part of the world, and the saving will be considerable.

Under Spanish control this product figured in the exports of the islands to the extent of about $10,000,000 annually. But Spain gave no encouragement for the development of the resources of the colony. Shipping facilities were totally inadequate, as but two open ports were maintained; internal improvements were unknown, and corrupt officials levied heavy tribute on invested capital in all lines. There are many thousands of acres of land suitable to the cultivation of hemp, and those with sufficient experience to speak predict for the industry a rapid growth.

HONOR IN POLITICS.

Shrewd Observers Say Such a Virtue Has No Existence.

Absolute Selfishness a Prerequisite to Success in Political Life — Honesty as Dangerous as Unguarded Speech.

[Special Washington Letter.]

PROPERLY defined, politics is the science of selfishness. Men who engage in politics, young men who have political hopes and aspirations, may as well understand that only those who are selfish and self-seeking can achieve success.

There are exceptions to all rules, but men who have had long experience in dealing with politicians will tell you, if they tell the truth, that there is no notable exception to this rule, but that absolute selfishness is a prerequisite to success in the political world.

All living political leaders have their followers who believe in them implicitly, and who would not for the world suspect their idols of selfishness. They pose as the friends of the dear people and assure their hearers that they are laboring by day and by night to promote the welfare of the poor and oppressed. It may be easy for the people of the present day to believe that Buchanan, Pierce, Van Buren, Jackson and other long dead presidents were politicians; but the people would not like to have mention made of their living leaders in that manner.

These reflections and the following statements are timely because the people of this republic are soon to be stirred to fever heat by political leaders in a great struggle for the control of the government. When the candidates for congress, for the legislature and for state offices are shouting and ranting before the people it may be just as well for the calm and considerate citizens to realize all the while that the candidates are not working themselves into frenzy without hoping for their own preferment, primarily.

It has been truly said that "the world is self, and self alone, from surface to foundation stone." But selfishness in business and in all other walks of life appears but slightly in comparison to its exhibition in the field of politics. Men rend and tear each other's reputations, as wild beasts rend and tear their prey. Every man endeavors to build himself up, and in so doing often deems it necessary to pull down those about him who aspire. For this reason young men of real ability, worth and forcefulness of character find it difficult to receive recognition. The older men who manage political affairs in their districts and states will not permit those young men to rise who manifest superior ability. Only those who dissemble or sincerely truckle to the leaders are permitted to come to the front.

A TALK WITH LINCOLN.

No class of men exercises greater care and precaution in political campaigns than the candidates for the important offices. They not only prepare their speeches carefully, but they scan and criticise the speeches of those who are permitted to address their constituents. The utterance of a single sentence has often marred the fortunes of ambitious men, even when spoken sincerely in the interest of the candidate. The most noted instance of injudicious utterance was that of Rev. Dr. Burchard in October, 1884, when he referred to the democratic party as the party of "rum, Romanism and rebellion." That remark caused Mr. Blaine to lose many thousands of votes, thereby defeating the ambition of his life.

During the campaign of 1896 Maj. McKinley not only carefully prepared every speech which he delivered at his home in Canton, but he carefully read every speech which was to be made to him before it was delivered; and many of those speeches were revised by the major before he permitted his visiting admirers to be heard. Very few speeches were made to Mr. Bryan in that campaign, as he preferred to do most of the talking himself.

The first notable political mistake in the history of our republic was made by Henry Clay, in 1844, when he wrote a letter containing a clause of less than a dozen words that sealed his defeat. There was probably never a more popular politician than Henry Clay, and his election seemed a foregone conclusion. He had been nominated with enthusiasm and with unanimity. His party was splendidly disciplined, and absolutely sure of success. But, unfortunately, Mr. Clay wrote a letter to a friend in Alabama, in which he made some ill-considered allusion to the admission of Texas; and that single sentence caused him to lose the electoral vote of New York state, and thus to fail of election to the presidency. It was called the "Alabama letter," and was used upon the hustings everywhere with great effect to the detriment of Mr. Clay. Politicians of that day all declared that nothing else could have compassed Mr. Clay's defeat.

Another notable mistake on the part of a candidate was made by Gen. Hancock in September, 1884, when he wrote a letter saying: "The tariff is a local, not a national, issue." Although it has since been demonstrated and admitted by politicians of both parties that Gen. Hancock was technically correct in his statement, it was taken up at the time by the opposition and turned into ridicule with such effect that it insured Hancock's defeat.

For a long time after Henry Clay's defeat the political managers would not permit their presidential candidates to make any speeches nor to write any letters. Zachary Taylor was required to be as solitary as an oyster and as silent as a clam. Only one letter was promulgated over his signature, and that was prepared for him by Thurlow Weed, Millard Fillmore and William H. Seward. Franklin Pierce was kept in retirement, although he had long been known as an orator of magnetic presence. His campaign managers feared that he might commit some fatal error in public utterance.

When Abraham Lincoln was nominated in 1860 the republican managers were perturbed lest he might commit some error. Thurlow Weed went to Springfield to see Lincoln and caution him, to tell him to remain absolutely quiet and say nothing about politics even to his neighbors. After half an hour's conversation with Mr. Lincoln the great New York politician told him the object of his visit, but stated that he had no advice to offer. He returned to New York and told the politicians that Lincoln possessed the keenest and most subtle intellect he had ever encountered. He said that during his half hour conversation Mr. Lincoln cleverly entertained him, drew from him all manner of information, but never made any suggestions himself. He said to Mr. Seward: "This man Lincoln may be only a country lawyer, and may have had no great political training, but he is wiser than all of us, and we need give ourselves no concern about him during the canvass. If he says anything he will say what should be said, and he will say nothing else."

In 1868 the politicians had an easy time of it with Gen. Grant, because he was not a speech maker; knew it, and did not want to talk. He kept quiet and allowed his military fame to speak for him, and it spoke most eloquently and successfully. In 1872 Gen. Grant was again "the silent man" during the campaign, while Mr. Greeley made a famous tour of the country, making speeches.

In 1876 Hayes and Tilden were conspicuously silent. In 1880 Garfield and Hancock left the speech-making to others, and the country was deluged with political talk. In 1884 Mr. Cleveland made no pretense as an orator, while Mr. Blaine talked incessantly without avail. In 1888 Benjamin Harrison made speeches daily, and all of them marvelously discreet, many of them eloquent. Harrison was, in fact, the only presidential candidate since the days of Lincoln in whose discretion the political managers had absolute confidence. In 1896 both Bryan and McKinley appeared daily before the people, and neither one of them was guilty of an indiscretion, although Mr. Bryan disappointed public expectation in his first speech in New York city, because he read a long statement instead of giving the vast audience an exhibition of the eloquence for which he had become famous in the nominating convention.

But, presidential candidates aside, and without criticism or commendation of any of them, we may return to the original proposition that all political leaders are supremely selfish, very few of them having at heart the welfare of the people so much as their own advancement and preferment in public place. One of the older senators this evening, after giving hints from which the above facts were deduced, said: "There are three candidates for an office in my state, and all of them have supported me in my campaigns. This morning I spent an hour thinking them over, and selfishly studying which of them could do me the most good in the future. I finally settled the matter, decided which one I would prefer, and concluded to drop the other two, as gently as possible, assuring them of my distinguished consideration. That is the way we have to do in politics."

That is the gist of it. They are all after the offices, because the salaries are large, and usually larger than they ought to be in a government economically administered. Covetousness is the incentive to selfishness. In the mad struggle for place the strong men, not always the good men, achieve success. In no other vocation in life is there a better exemplification of the theory of the survival of the fittest, because those who are most selfish and self-seeking, wholly disregarding the feelings and sufferings of all others, are they who obtain precedence.

The present season in the Daily Press Bowling League will end this evening with a series of three games to be rolled on the alleys of the Park Club, this city, between the Park Club team and the team from the Roselle Casino. The series was postponed from an earlier date as the first date interfered with a dance held at the Roselle Casino which the Roselle boys did not want to miss. Roselle stands at the top of the league but three straight for the Parks would put Westfield tie with them. There is little chance of such a thing happening however.

Can't Drill in Rink Now.

Now that the Crescent Rink has been leased to a manufacturing concern, the plans of the cadet battalion of the Plainfield High School will have to be changed. Their present quarters in Washington Hall are too cramped to allow any maneuvreing, and it was planned to hire the Crescent Rink now that the worst of the cold weather is over and drill there until warm weather comes. But with a factory in the rink, drilling will be out of the question.

KNIGHTS OF HONOR.

Facts and Figures About Lodge Insurance That is Said to be First-Class.

The Knights of Honor was organized June 30 1873. It is national fraternal beneficial association organized under the lodge plan. It has thirty six grand jurisdiction and twenty-four hundred lodges.

It affords protection at cost to its members in sums of five hundred, one thousand and two thousand dollars.

It has paid in death benefits since its organization sixty-eight millions of dollars to the families of thirty-five thousand of its deceased members, and in addition to this large sums paid in death benefits, it has paid many millions in cases of special relief.

The assessments are levied upon the step rate plan, which plan is endorsed by the leading actuaries of old-line companies and writers upon insurance.

Sheppard Homans, formerly actuary of the Mutual life, says: "Equity among the members as well as safety to the institution imperatively demands that the rates to meet death claims shall increase with age."

L. C. Lawton, author of Life tables on Life contingencies, says: "There is no need of argument to prove that the chance of dying within a year increases with the age of the individual."

B J. Miller, actuary of the Mutual Benefit Life, says: "The members must be charged each year according to the actual value of the risk of that year, and the cost must therefore be graded according to the current ages of the members, and must not continue to be based upon their ages at the time of entering the company."

No one is admitted under 18 years of age or over 50 years of age. Only one assessment per month is levied upon the members at the following rates:

	$2,000.	$1,000.	$500.
18 and 21.....	1.20	60	30
22 and 26.....	1.45	75	40
27 and 31.....	1.80	90	45
32 and 46.....	3.30	1.65	80
47 and 50.....	4.00	2.00	1.40

Under this system the amount received monthly exceeds by thousands of dollars the deaths for the month.

The order is paying monthly in death benefits three hundred thousand dollars; seventy five thousand dollars a week; ten thousand dollars a day. If you wish to protect your family in case of death there is no better way than by joining the Knights of Honor. It has age, conservative and progressive management, an equitable table of rates, and furnishes protection at actual cost. For a membership in this order consult the members of Senate Lodge, 3542, Plainfield, R A. Frey, reporter, or any of the grand officers: C. J. Feytel, grand dictator, Newark; G. E. Tooker, grand vice-dictator, Demarest; F. Ahr, Jr., grand dictator, Newark; J. M. Mayhew, grand reporter, Newark; S. Klotz, grand treasurer, Newark; J. W. Pearsall, past grand dictator, Ridgewood.

Hoyt's latest farce, "A Day and A Night," will be presented at Music Hall next Monday night. Theatre patrons all over the country are so familiar with the somewhat unique character of Hoyt's farces that it is not necessary to comment upon this, his latest, further than to say that it is built upon very much the same lines as its predecessors. By this it must not be understood that it is at all wanting in originality, but rather that this originality applies to detail rather than general outline. It takes a theme, hangs upon it a tolerably funny story, (whose plot is extremely simple and unpretentious), and fills it with sprightly dialogue which is for the most part filled with an excellent brand of unmistakably Hoytian humor, and then depends upon clever acting and fairly good specialties to do the rest. There are flashes of humor in the dialogue and bits of stage business that would seem adequate to the task of exciting the risibilities of an oyster, and these, with the excellent comedy work of the company, serve to keep the audience constantly agitated with successive ripples and waves of laughter from the rise of the curtain until its final fall.

William J. Romain, who will appear as Lieut. Guy Warrener in "Our Regiment," at Music Hall, Saturday evening, March 17th, is a sterling actor of recognized excellence who has become familiar to the theatre going public through his excellent work in the companies of Madam Rhea, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Macdowell, A. M. Palmer's "Trilby" company, (in which many will remember his artistic personation of Gecko,) "A Southern Romance" and many other companies of like calibre. Last season Mr. Romain headed a company of his own, The Romain Stock Company, in Providence, R. I., where by his excellent acting, and that of his supporting company, together with the attention to detail with which he staged the most difficult pieces, placed him at once in popular favor with the patrons of the drama in that usually conservative city. He has just closed a season with The Independent Theatre Company, of New York, in which he scored his usual hit.

RESULT OF "ROUGH HOUSE"

Frank Hand Called to Court for Enforcing Rules in Music Hall Last Saturday Night.

Frank Hand was arrested this morning upon complaint of Roy T. Phillips, who charged him with assault. Hand, through his counsel, City Judge Runyon, waived examination before Justice Mosher and gave bail in the sum of $200 for his appearance before the Grand Jury. Charles W Runyon became surety.

The alleged assault took place in Music Hall Saturday evening. For a time there was a veritable "rough house" owing to the efforts of several fresh "chappies" attempting to monopolize a box that had been sold to two separate parties of young men.

Both sides claimed the right to the front seats in the box. The result was that Hand, as an employe of the theatre, interfered and attempted to straighten out matters. While endeavoring to do so Philips and some of his crowd were hustled about in no gentle manner, and finally compelled to view the performance from another part of the house.

ROBISON BEAT KYTE FOR FREEHOLDER

It Was the Hottest Political Contest in the History of Fanwood.

MR. KYTE LACKED 31 VOTES.

BOTH FACTIONS INDULGED IN VERITABLE LOVE FEAST AFTERWARDS.

The Primary was Participated in by 173 Voters—Township Nominations Made Without a Fight After Freeholder was Decided.

What was undoubtedly the hottest political fight in the history of Fanwood was witnessed at the Republican primary last night over the candidacies of Mayor George Kyte and John Robison for the nomination of Freeholder. Mr. Robison has filled that position for several years past, but during the last few months Mr. Kyte has been working to secure the Republican nomination, which is regarded as equivalent to an election in Fanwood under ordinary conditions.

Both candidates and their friends have brought every influence possible to strengthen their forces, and up to last night it was a doubtful question as to which would be victorious. At the primary 175 votes were cast. Freeholder Robison received 87 and Mr. Kyte 36, thus giving the former the nomination again by a majority of 31. On motion of Mr. Kyte himself the nomination was then made unanimous. After this action the contestants locked arms and entered into a regular mutual admiration society, both sides agreeing to go to the polls and work hard to elect the candidate.

After the nomination of Freeholder the Republicans of Fanwood borough withdrew and the voters of the township held a separate primary for the nomination of township officers. The following were nominated:

Township committeeman, three years, William R. Buckley; two years, Wm. H. Terry; one year, Wm D. Johnson. Collector, L. W. Miller. Assessor, James Goodman. Constable, George Allen. Justice of the Peace, Joseph Clark. Surveyors of Highways, Thomas R. Whitenack and Andrew Schaffer.

The following appropriations were recommended: Road improvements, $1 750; police, $50; sidewalks, $150; fire department, $250; support of the perr, $350.

The primary was called to order by Mr. Kyte as a member of the county committee. A. D. Beckon was made chairman, and W. B. Noble secretary. At the township primary afterwards John Robison was chosen chairman, and Mr. Noble continued to act as secretary.

The Democratic voters met in the Bucket and Engine Company's rooms last evening to nominate candidates for the spring election to be held next Tuesday. Charles Haberle was made chairman and John Radin secretary. The following nominations were made: For Freeholder, Clarence Lambert; for Town Committee, three years, Thomas J. Nichol; for Town Committee, two years, George Scudder; for Town Committee, one year, Theodore Bruchman; for Collector, John L. Darby; for Assessor, Charles French; for Constable, Joseph Guerrier; for Justice of the Peace, Philip Blank.

SPENT NIGHT IN JAIL.

EDWARD LITTLE NEARLY FROZEN IN TWO HOURS STAY.

Then Warden Martin Let Him Out and Together They Embraced the Stove Until Daylight Came.

Despite the fact that Councilman Buckle, president of the Police Board, and Chief Grant issued explicit orders that no one should be confined in the remains of the city jail except on some very serious charge, one prisoner spent the night there. He was Edward Little, colored. He was locked up at 11 o'clock. Two hours later Warden Tommy Martin found him stiff with cold. Martin rescued him, chilled to the bone, and together they hugged the stove in the corridor until daylight appeared.

Little has been living with his stepmother in a flat on West Front street. According to the tastimony of the latter, Little has refused to work this winter. He went home drunk last night and became so abusive that Patrolman Mattox was called in. On the arrival of the policeman, Little transferred his attentions from his step-mother to the officer so that Mattox felt it necessary to lock him up. Little wanted to instruct the policeman in pugilism and matters reached an exciting state. A few minutes in the cold, damp cell calmed Little's spirits wonderfully and Warden Martin found him in a rather demoralized state.

When Roundsman Frederickson arrived at the jail this morning, he found Warden Martin and his prisoner in close intimacy with the stove.

City Judge Runyon went over to the jail at 9 o'clock to hold court. Warden Martin had carted several loads of debris out of the court room and placed a chair without a back behind the remnants of the desk for Judge's use. The Judge climbed over the wreckage, glanced at the accommodations and didn't look happy. He finally held court in the doorway and the policemen and reporters were allowed to keep on their hats during court as a young gale was blowing through the places where the windows should have been.

Little's story was heard and his stepmother gave her testimony. As Little had only had two hours in the cell, the Judge sentenced to a fine of $5 or ten days in the county jail.

The Judge calculates that one hour in the wreck is equivilent to ten days in the county jail. Had Little remained in the cell a little longer he would have escaped without other punishment, provided he lived through it.

"POP" JONES DEAD.

His Old Body Racked With Rheumatism, but He Was Full of Patience and Humility.

David Jones, a colored man, who held the regard and respect of everyone who knew him, died at his home on West Second street yesterday afternoon. He suffered much of late years, and for four months just past was in such agony from rheumatism and asthma that it was impossible for him to lie down or sit down. He spent all his days and nights continually in a kneeling posture, and ever without a word of complaint.

Those of his race loved and revered him and aided him as best they could, and many others considered it a privilege to add to his comforts even though it was not possible to lessen his pain; and he was an object lesson of patience and humility to all.

For many years David Jones was a chef at the Sheridan House in Elizabeth, and also at the Washington Rock Hotel.

He was born a slave, and earned his freedom by cooking for the sick in the armies of '61. Probably no man in New Jersey ever filled so completely the character of "Uncle Tom" as did David or "Pop" Jones, as he was lovingly called.

Entertained Whist Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Will F. Williams, of Central avenue, entertained the Thursday Night Whist Club at their home last evening. The full membership of the club was present and a very pleasant evening was passed. The contest for honors was very close and interesting. Miss Etta Krymer and Miss Bertha Thorn were successful among the women, while Richard Dunbar and John G. MacLoughlin won the first and second honors for the men. The usual social features were enjoyed, not the least of which was the serving of refreshments by the host and hostess. The club will be entertained Thursday evening, March 22d, by Miss MacLoughlin, of Somerset street.

—A glace through J. M. Smalley's advertisement in today's Press will show you some specials for cash only. His meat market, corner of Fourth street and Watchung avenue, is well supplied with meats, fresh fish, oysters and clams.

ROSELLE WINS DAILY PRESS LEAGUE TROPHY

Park Club Ended Season With Three Straight Defeats on Their Own Alleys.

OPPONENTS FROM ROSELLE.

TWO FIRST GAMES WERE WON BY ONLY SEVEN PINS.

Parks Made a Big Brace in First—Second Was Bitterly Fought From Start to Finish—Third Easy for Roselle.

Three straight defeats on their own alleys was the fashion in which the Park Club bowlers ended the season of The Daily Press Bowling League last night. But the first two games were rousing ones and were marked by as exciting finishes as have been seen during the tournament. The visitors from the Roselle Casino are now champions of The Daily Press League and their crack young bowler, D. W. Mulford, has carried off individual honors in the contest for the highest average score.

A number of spectators of both sexes accompanied the Roselle team to Plainfield last night while there was a good turnout of the Park Club people. Chauncey D. Smith, who has won the prize for the highest average spares per game, and Forster, both of the Westfield team, were also present.

The visitors took the lead in the opening game and began to run well in front. In the seventh frame, their lead amounted to 59. Then a remarkable thing happened. Every one of the Roselle bowlers broke on the eighth while the Parks had a clean frame. The ninth showed the two teams very close. The windup was thrilling. The Parks held their own but the brilliant work needed to win the game came not. A double header by Dr Thiers at the end might have saved it but his best was a spare with seven on the last ball. So it was that Roselle won by just seven pins.

The second game was one of the most bitterly contested of the whole tournament. Roselle lead on the first frame by a single pin, on the second the teams were tied. Roselle gained the mastery on the third and led by thirty three, only to lose the lead to the Park Club in the next frame by ten. Again they swapped places in the fifth, Roselle in front by three pins. That was increased to seventeen in the next. The seventh saw a brace on the part of the home team, and plenty of strikes ran them in front again by twenty-four pins. The Parks still led in the eighth, lost it again in the last, Roselle making a a rattling wind-up that saved the day. Luck was against the Parks on the wind-up for Fred Ball, Johnson and Hibbard all drew splits. Roselle won again by seven pins.

After the first two frames of the last game, the interest began to drag. Roselle bowled steadily and left the home team far in the rear. By the sixth frame the Roselle contingent was ninety-five pins ahead. During the game, there were several wonderful shots made. Fred Ball scored two spares on seemingly impossible splits. The wind up was slow, Roselle leading by 121 pins.

The individual scores were as follows:

A Sad Bereavement.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, March 9.—Frank B. Dumont, aged about 25, died at his residence on South street, last night, from pneumonia, after an illness of only a week. Mr. Dumont was employed in the office of the Magdeburg Fire Insurance Company, in New York, and last Friday fainted away at his desk. He was brought home and pneumonia developed. Yesterday morning he was reported better, but suddenly took a turn for the worse during the early evening. Mr. Dumont was married on August 17 last to Miss Grace Cone, of this town. In June Miss Cone's father died, so that this is the second sad bereavement she has had in less than a year.

CONVENTION OF OLD MAIDS FULL OF FUN.

Big Crowd Attracted to the Y. M. C. A. Hall to Enjoy the Entertainment.

ELIGIBLE BACHELORS RATED

HAPPY HITS MADE ON MANY WELL-KNOWN PLAINFIELDERS.

Wonderful Remodelscope Machine in Charge of W. O. Chapman, Who Transformed the Spinsters as They Wanted.

The "Old Maids' Convention" given in the Y. M. C. A. Hall last evening by a number of Plainfield women, assisted by a few from out of town, was a great success. Before the hour arrived to call the convention to order every seat was taken in the hall and a large number of people were obliged to stand throughout the whole performance. The fact that the affair was given for charity had a tendency to increase the patronage. From beginning to end the participants kept the audience in a continual roar of laughter. The cast is as follows:

President, "Josephine Jane Green."
Miss Alice Crane
Secretary, Rosalie Abigal Hodge."
Mrs. Decker
"Calamity Jane Higgins."
Mrs. A. C. LaBoyteaux
"Rachel Rebecca Sharp".....Miss Pruden
"Tiny Short".....Mrs. W. O. Chapman
"Mary Jane Traddles".....Miss Sue Woodland
"Jerusha Matilda Spriggins."
Mrs. W. K. Browning
"Patience Desire Mann".....Mrs. W. B. Vail
"Sophia Stuckup".....Mrs. S. B. Struthars
"Julietta Long".....Miss Bertha Needham
"Betsey Bobbett".....Miss Florence Dodge
"Charity Longface".....Mrs. Arthur T. Gallup
"Cleopatra Belle Brown".....Miss Demarest
"Experience Makelove."
Miss Margaret Vermeule
"Penelope Gertrude Doolittle,"
Mrs. M. F. Ward
"Cynthy Ann Nightingale"..Miss Mary French
"Violet Ann Ruggles".....Miss Robinson
"Polly Jane Spratt".....Mrs. J. H. French

The convention was called to order by the president, and the first part of it was devoted to the discussion of papers on the rights of women, the reading of the market report, and the display of talent, vocal and instrumental music and recitations by the members. Those participating were dressed in the old-fashioned style. Cats, pollparrots, dogs and other animals usually found among old maids, were also present.

"Penelope Gertrude Doolittle" read a very interesting paper on the relative merits of man and woman that received the approbation of the convention. "Tiny Short" and "Betsey Bobbett" delighted all with a vocal solo and instrumental music. There were so many amusing features at the convention that it would be impossible to enumerate them. The reading of the market report showing the status of the men eligible for marriage, was the most amusing. A lamentable fact was that there was not enough men to go around. Here is the report:

F. S. R.—First National Bank stock slow; R. L.—Coffee stocks, bid in; B. VanD. H.—Unusual demand; A. B. L.—Electrical stock afloat; F. C. A.—Hard to obtain; L. W. VanB.—Short and fluctuating; M. E.—Stationery, but good; W. R.—Judicial, fairly active; E. M. F.—Real estate, going to the highest bidder; J. E. M.—Tammany stock; F. L. C. M.—Long on the market, still uncertain; R. J. S.—Drugs, interested in Bound Brook stock; A. A. F.—Card stocks, quiet but steady; F. W. F.—Dental instruments. Out of the market; A. H. I.—Watered stock. To be had for the asking.

After everyone had satisfied themselves as to womanhood, Prof. Makeover appeared in the person of W. O. Chapman and offered to change any of the women and make them as they desired. He had a remodelscope and by placing the women in the machine he effected the change. "Jerusha Spriggins," a very fat lady, wanted to be a little girl again, and after she passed through the operation, Beulah VanVinkle appeared and gave a recitation. Gertrude Doolittle wanted to be a singer. She appeared afterward as Mrs. Ward and gave a vocal solo. "Miss Makelove" wanted to be a poetess. This resulted in Miss Ella Serrell coming forth and reciting a selection. "Miss Ruggles" wanted to be cured of rheumatism, but the machine would not accomplish this. "Cynthy Ann Nightingale" desired to be a violin player. After she went through the machine Miss Marguerite Burnett appeared and played a violin selection, accompanied by Miss Clyde Burnett. "Cleopatra" wanted to be an elocutionist, and she was transformed into Miss May Batchelor, who gave a recitation. "Patience Desire Mann" was desirious of being a man. She was then put through the machine,

WHAT WILL THE CITY DO FOR A JAIL NOW?

Problem Which the Common Council Will Have to Solve Right Away.

TO CONFER ON THE MATTER

SENTIMENT AGAINST FURTHER USE OF THE OLD BUILDING.

Some of the Councilmen, However, are in Favor of Repairing the Rookery, but It Remains to be Seen if it Will be Done.

The wind moaned through the ruined interior of the city jail last night but the police were not there to hear. Only the survivors of the fire and flood crawled out of their hiding places to see the devastation wrought by yesterday's fire. The police had taken refuge elsewhere.

As soon as Councilman J. F. Buckle, chairman of the Police Board, learned of the fire at the jail and its disastrous results, he immediately began to make arrangements for a temporary police headquarters. In its present condition, without a whole pane of glass in the building, it is not tenantable.

Mr. Buckle held a hurried conference with Chief Grant, of the police department, and Chief Doane, of the fire department. As a temporary measure, he decided to establish police headquarters in the old fire engine house on West Second street. The only vacant room there was on the second floor in the rear of the sleeping rooms. This was arranged for the assembling of the police and the stowing away of their equipment. There is a telephone in the building whereby the Chief and Sergeant kept in touch with the force during the evening.

Just exactly what will be done in the future regarding a station house it is impossible to say. Plainfield is placed in a decidedly unenviable position. The delay to take action to secure a new station house long after the present building was condemned by the Board of Health has resulted in the city practically being without any jail at all. Even under the old conditions before the fire it was bad enough. City Judge Runyon expressed an opinion that the city rendered itself liable to a damage suit every time a prisoner was confined there. Now the Judge says that it would be a serious thing to confine anyone there under present circumstances. It is practically out of doors, for the windows have all been broken. Everything is damp from the flood of water that followed the arrival of the firemen.

Councilman Buckle seemed to be of the opinion yesterday afternoon that the owner, Mr. Bird, would repair the building so that it could be utilized until the new City Hall, with its adjacent jail, could be completed. The latter would not happen, he said, inside of a year.

Regarding the suggestion of Chief Grant that a store be hired and temporarily equipped with cages that could be used at the new city jail when it should be erected, Mr. Buckle did not think that any such arrangement could be completed inside of a month. It would be necessary, he said, to secure bids for the iron cages and then have them built, all of which would take time. He believed that the quickest arrangement would be to have the old jail repaired sufficiently to make it tenantable.

City Judge Runyon said yesterday afternoon that he did not believe that the city should spend another cent toward the repairing of that disgrace to the city, the city jail. He thought temporary arrangements could be made in some store that would be more economical and far more satisfactory than any attempt to return to the old structure.

The members of the Common Council will consider the matter of a city jail at the caucus to be held this evening to discuss the franchise for the People's Gas Company. When the caucus was called, it was not expected that the problem of a change in police headquarters would demand immediate solution, but, under the circumstances, the question will be considered and some kind of a decision reached so that action may be taken at the meeting of the Council Monday evening.

There were several informal conferences of the members of the police board and the Council last night and this morning, and it is understood that Mr. Buckle and the other members believe that the only course will be to get new temporary quarters and make no further attempt to retain the old building.

JUST STARTING IN LIFE.

DEATH OF HENRY V. RYDER AFTER A SHORT ILLNESS.

Well-Known and Popular Young Man—Was Champion Tennis Player of Hillside Club.

The death of Henry V. Ryder, son of Mrs. Charles E Ryder, of East Front street, occurred yesterday afternoon about 1 o'clock. A little over a week ago he caught cold at an entertainment and last Friday it developed into a severe attack of pneumonia, with typhoid complications. This caused his death. Dr. George Ryder, of New York, and Dr. Murray, of this city, were constant and faithful in their administrations.

Mrs. Ryder and her remaining son have the sympathy of the community in the loss of one who was so near and dear to them. He was highly esteem and admired by all who knew him for his many excellent qualities. In a large circle of friends and acquaintances he will be greatly missed.

Henry V. Ryder was born in this city and has lived here all his life. He was prepared at John Leal's school for a course at Yale College. He was graduated from the college in 1897 with honors. While a student at Yale he was a member of the champion hockey team.

After completing his course he entered the employ of the Atlantic Trust Company, New York, under the president, L. V. F. Randolph, of East Front street, where he remained up to the time of his death. He was a valued employe. His executive ability and steady habits won for him a place of responsibility that was a source of pride to him and his friends.

Mr. Ryder was prominently identified with tennis and golf, and was one of the best players in the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club. He was the champion tennis player of the club, having won this honor three times. Last season was his third successful play in tennis. As a tennis player he had few equals, and in golf he won many honors. In season he devoted his spare time to tennis and golf merely for the exercise, and he was to be found on the courts of links many times during the season for these games.

Mr. Ryder was a member and attendant at Grace P. E. church, and the funeral services will be held from that church next Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

HIS END WAS PEACEFUL.

Aged Daniel Hogan Laid Down to Take a Nap From Which He Never Awakened.

Apparently as hale and hearty as ever, Daniel Hogan, of 222 New street, laid down yesterday afternoon to take a nap from which he never awakened. He was in his eighty-ninth year. Death was the result of old age which affected the heart. Nearly a half century of Mr. Hogan's life had been spent in and near Plainfield, and he was well-known among the older generation.

Mr. Hogan was a native of Ireland. He came to this country in 1841, and after eleven years spent in New York and the south, he settled down in Plainfield. Most of his time was spent here, but he traveled in the south during that time. He was well liked, and labored faithfully until old age compelled him to stop.

Since the death of his wife last August, he has made his home with his son, Daniel Hogan, Jr., on New street. He leaves two sons, Daniel, Jr., and John, both of this city, and one daughter, Mrs. Mary Galbraith, of New York. He was a member of St. Mary's church.

The funeral services will be held tomorrow morning from the house at 8:30 o'clock and from the church at 9 o'clock.

Radel's Fine Hospitality.

The party of business men from this city who were the guests last evening of Superintendent Radel, of the Brunswick Traction Company, report a pleasant time. Besides a trolley ride in a special car to South River, the gentlemen were the recipient of bountiful hospitality at the hands of Mr. Radel, who gave them a perfect symposium at the Mansion House in New Brunswick.

Shotgun Exploded.

While Peter Emmons, of Woodland avenue, was shooting at pigeons at Campbell's road house yesterday afternoon, his Parker breech-loading shotgun suddenly exploded. Strange to say Mr. Emmons was not injured. His hearing in his right ear was much affected however. The breech mechanism was defective.

—Neuman Brothers will have a fine line of green vegetables on hand tomorrow for Sunday dinners. They include green beans, spinach, cauliflower, celery, lettuce, cucumbers, ripe tomatoes, radishes, rhubarb, cresses and beets.

THEIR AIM TO SAVE BEAUTIFUL BIRDS.

Former Mayor Alex. Gilbert Again Chosen President of the Audubon Society.

TO EDUCATE THE YOUTHFUL.

PROMINENT NEW JERSEY PEOPLE INTERESTED IN SOCIETY.

Annual Public Meeting Held in the Crescent Avenue Church Chapel Yesterday—Interesting Report Read by the Secretary.

The cosy chapel of the Crescent Avenue church was much too small to contain the large number of ladies and gentlemen who yesterday afternoon attended the annual public meeting of the Audubon Society of the State. Standing room was at a premium. Had those interested in the meeting been aware of the liability of so large an attendance, it would have been held in the lecture room of the church.

As is well known the purpose of the Audubon Society is two-fold—to arouse an interest in birds, particularly among young people, and the preservation of the native birds, and to discourage buying and wearing the feathers of any wild bird, and thereby lessen the present slaughter of bird life for commercial purposes. Leaflets, setting forth the objects and principles of the society, were distributed before the business meeting, which was held at 3:30 o'clock. A life membership in the society can be secured by the payment of a fee of $1, except for teachers and scholars in any of the schools when a fee of but 25 cents is made. There are no annual assessments for life members.

The president of the society is Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, of this city. Among the vice-presidents are the Hon. Charles J. Fisk, of this city; Rt. Rev. John Scarborough, of Trenton; Hon C. J. Baxter, Trenton; Attorney General John W. Griggs, Trenton; Mason W. Tyler, Plainfield; Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, Plainfield; Pierre Mali, Plainfield; John Gifford, Princeton; Mrs. Sophie Bledsoe Herrick, Bayonne; Charles B. Yardley, East Orange; Frank M. Chapman, Englewood; Wilson Farrand, Newark; James M. Green, Trenton; Thomas L. James, Trenton; George Pfeiffer, Jr., Camden; Austin Scott, New Brunswick.

Miss Anna Haviland, the secretary and treasurer, read an interesting report regarding the society and the efforts it was putting forth for the preservation of the birds. The report stated that there was a membership of 165, with eight local secretaries. She said the members have manifested a widespread interest in the cause. Bird study had already become an important element in the public schools in the State, and the children have displayed much interest in the matter, many of the pupils of the schools having taken up the study of birds. Miss Haviland referred to the work of the local Audubon societies in several of the more important cities of the State, and of the laws that had been enacted for the protection and preservation of both the native and wild birds. In regard to the invoking the aid of the children in the schools, Miss Haviland said that many of the teachers place upon the blackboards the names of the birds as they appear in the spring and summer months and in that way seem to awaken interest in them.

After the reading of the report the following officers, including those given above, were elected for the ensuing year:

President, Alexander Gilbert; secretary and treasurer, Anna Haviland; executive committee, Rev. A. C. Nickerson, chairman; Miss Caroline Haviland, Mrs. Frederick Goodhue Mead, Mrs. David Hall Rowland, Miss Florence Tweedy, Miss Mary A. Mellick, Charles C. Abbott, Austin C. Apgar, Andrew J. Gavett, Charles A. Shriner, Wm. Stillman.

With the close of the business meeting William Dutcher, a well-known ornithologist of New York, gave an interesting and highly instructive talk on birds, illustrated by views on the stereopticon. This was the most entertaining feature of the meeting and much appreciated by those who had the pleasure of listening to it. Mr. Dutcher threw some light upon the life and characteristics of the birds not heretofore known by many, who, with much satisfaction, saw the handsome views which he disclosed.

The meeting was the most interesting in the history of the society.

—Mrs. E B. Horton will address the Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church tonight at 8 o'clock. Everybody welcome.

FLIGHT OF THE BOERS

General French Still Pursuing the Enemy.

MAFEKING GARRISON IN DISTRESS.

London Hears Rumors of Peace Overtures—Kruger, However, Still Believes In Ultimate Triumph and Trusts In God.

LONDON, March 9.—The Boers appear to have made no stand whatever except that while in retreat they twice repulsed General French's cavalry with rifle fire. As no report has been made of the capture of prisoners the enemy probably got away with their entire force. General French is still following them and keeping between them and Bloemfontein.

The evacuation of the northern districts of Cape Colony is now nearly complete. The British are in possession of the railroad crossings.

The military critics comment on the discouraging news from Mafeking. Colonel Baden-Powell seems to be in grave need of outside help, otherwise he would not allow the correspondents to send out information respecting the distress of the garrison.

A readjustment of some of the higher commands is taking place. General White is to go to Stormberg to take supreme command of General Gatacre's division and the Tenth division, now under process of formation, which will be under the immediate command of General Hunter, Sir George White's chief of staff.

The Daily News makes the following editorial announcement:

"It was rumored in London yesterday—and we have some reason for believing the rumor to be correct—that the two republics made informal and unofficial overtures of peace on the preceding day.

"Unfortunately the conditions were of such a character as to preclude the possibility of leading to any result. Terms which might have been gladly accepted before the war in order to avert it are impossible after the war with all the sacrifices it has entailed."

The Standard publishes the following dispatch from Poplar Grove, dated March 8:

"The movements of the mounted men were somewhat too rapid for the supporting infantry, and as a result the Boer position was turned before the main body could strike effectively. The Boers fell back precipitately, and, extending to the southeast, they checked the advance of the British cavalry with a heavy rifle fire at 800 yards range.

"Accordingly General French moved southward and outflanked them again, but the Boers repeated their tactics."

A dispatch from Osfontein, dated March 7, says:

"Lord Roberts' movements today again thoroughly surprised, outwitted and outmaneuvered the Boers, who fled almost without firing a shot. The plan of battle was as follows: General Colville's division extended along the north bank, General Tucker held the center reserve, and the guards brigade had the center advanced. General Kelly-Kenny's division was ordered to make a huge flanking movement on the Boers' left, following General French, who was instructed to move southeast until opposite the Boer flank and then to swing around the rear.

"Every movement was admirably executed and entirely successful. The Boers were surprised, as was evident from the state of the deserted camps. Twice the British cavalry were almost in a position to charge, but they admit that they were foiled by the maneuvering of the Boers.

"When last seen, General French was pursuing the enemy vigorously. He was between them and Bloemfontein, about 11 miles from the right wing.

"General Colville merely demonstrated against a high mountain occupied by the Transvaal troops, who are now fleeing in consequence of the flight of the Free Staters south of the river.

"It is impossible at present to give the Boer numbers, but it is estimated that they reach 14,000, all of whom are now in flight."

Mr. Hollawell, The Daily News correspondent at Mafeking, who passed two months in prison in Pretoria, escaped last week and was recaptured 60 miles from Pretoria, sends a dispatch to his paper, dated Pretoria jail, March 2, via Lourenco Marques, describing the misleading news given the Boers by their officials regarding the course of the war. He adds:

"Great dissatisfaction exists among the Boers, as their supplies of food, especially meat, coffee and sugar, are very irregular, and many threaten to return to their farms."

The Daily Mail has the following from Kimberley, dated March 7:

"Benjamin Silpent, born in Russia and alleged to be an American citizen, has been sentenced to three years' imprisonment at hard labor for signaling the enemy during the siege."

KRUGER TRUSTS IN GOD.

He Has Faith That the Tide of Fortune Will Soon Turn.

PRETORIA, March 9.—A special dispatch from Bloemfontein says that President Kruger, addressing a crowd of people, said:

"Although God is testing our people, my personal opinion is that the limit of the test is nearly reached. If the people are sustained by faith in the time of adversity, God will soon again turn the tide in our favor. If we have strong faith in God, he will surely deliver us. The God of deliverance of the olden time is the same God now."

The speech of the venerable president brought tears to the eyes of men and women alike.

The Free State volkslied (national anthem) was then sung.

The visit of President Kruger has done much good and has cheered the despondents.

President Kruger more recently has been visiting the commandoes south of Bloemfontein.

Fighting is proceeding at Mafeking All the outside forts except one have been taken by the Boers.

Much satisfaction is expressed in all circles at the courtesies extended to General Cronje by the British.

Couldn't Stop the Retreat.

POPLAR GROVE, March 9.—President Kruger, who at present is far in the rear, Wednesday tried to stop the retreating Boers who refused to stay. The Bloemfontein police tried to stop the retreat of the Free Staters, but they declared that they were not willing to fight any longer, and they blamed President Steyn. The Russian and Dutch military attaches arrived at the British camp Wednesday.

LONDON GREETS THE QUEEN.

Immense Crowds Throng the Streets and Cheer Victoria.

LONDON, March 9.—Queen Victoria and the people of the greatest city in her empire yesterday celebrated the victories which they believe have transformed the campaign in South Africa from one of reverse into one of success. That is the only explanation of the unbounded, the unparalleled enthusiasm with which hundreds of thousands hailed their sovereign.

In many ways these demonstrations outdid those of the diamond jubilee, although there were no glittering pageants, no triumphal arches, no procession of princes, but only a dozen life guards, followed by a little old lady in the plainest black costume, who had come for a few days' stay at Buckingham palace, as she had done many times before. Yet her hold upon the hearts of her people was probably never more strikingly manifested.

Thousands braved the raw east wind and stood for hours waiting patiently who have often seen the queen and who in ordinary circumstances would scarcely budge to watch her pass.

When the hoarse volley announced the royal approach, children and women were hoisted on the shoulders of men. The art students at Kensington, male and female, as on Ladysmith day, were again to the fore, bareheaded and singing patriotic songs, while throughout the day medical students in large bodies led the cheering and singing.

The scene in the quadrangle of the palace after the queen's arrival, when lords and commoners joined in singing the national anthem, was unprecedented and will probably never be repeated during the present reign.

A British Repulse.

PRETORIA, March 6, via Lourenco Marques, March 9.—It is officially stated here that on Sunday last there was heavy fighting at Dordrecht; that the British were repulsed with great loss and that the federals captured three cannon.

NEW YORK LEGISLATURE.

Educational Unification Bill to Be Reported, With Amendment.

ALBANY, March 9.—It is understood upon good authority that the assembly committee on public education has practically decided to report the educational unification bill with an amendment which will take the high schools and academies from the control of the state board of regents. The matter was, however, held in abeyance upon the request of Secretary Parsons of the regents to permit the members to be heard in opposition to the proposition.

This determination was reached after a long conference yesterday with Superintendent Skinner and his deputy, D. E. Ainsworth, and Secretary Parsons, and it is regarded as improbable that the determination will be changed by the arguments of the regents.

The senate committee on taxation and retrenchment met yesterday afternoon for the consideration of the mortgage tax bill. They were in session for two hours when an adjournment was taken. The committee is revising the measure and is practically drawing up a new bill. There will be several amendments, and the phraseology of the bill will be materially transposed.

Third Fire In a Week.

BOSTON, March 9.—For a third time this week the large hay sheds of the Boston and Maine railroad on Rutherford avenue, Charlestown, and rented by it to various firms, were visited by fire yesterday afternoon, when a shed containing 85 carloads of baled hay was almost wholly burned, together with four loaded freight cars and an adjoining building occupied by E. A. Gillette & Sons, carriage manufacturers. The losses will aggregate $25,000. So menacing was the fire for about two hours that all the available fire apparatus turned out. The fires this week have caused nearly $70,000 loss to commission merchants and the railroad. The belief is that incendiaries are responsible.

General Lawton's Estate.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Letters of administration have been issued to Mrs. Mary C. Lawton in the matter of the estate of her deceased husband, Major General Henry W. Lawton. Mrs. Lawton set forth in her petition for letters that she had made diligent search and inquiry for a will of the deceased and had not found any or obtained any information that he left or made one. Those entitled to the estate, it is explained, are the four children of the deceased general. The petition sets forth that at the time of his death the only personal estate of General Lawton consisted of his accumulated pay as an officer of the army, amounting to about $1,000.

Beckham's Forces Beaten.

FRANKFORT, Ky., March 9.—The Tripplet joint resolution to appropriate $100,000 to be expended under supervision of Democratic Governor Beckham and Adjutant General Castleman was defeated in the senate yesterday by failure to receive a constitutional majority. The resolution authorized the expenditure for the purpose of arming a new state guard and recovering from Republican Governor Taylor the arms removed from Frankfort to London. Four Democratic senators, Roberts, Puryea, Jones and McConnell, voted against it. The vote stood: Yeas, 15; nays, 4. It requires 19 votes to pass a bill.

Copper Smelting In Nova Scotia.

HALIFAX, March 9.—H. B. Meech, a mineral expert from Boston, is at North Sydney, C. B., to select a site for large copper smelting works to be erected by a syndicate of American capitalists. It is estimated the construction of the works will cost about $150,000, and the town council will be asked to make some concessions.

Railroad Shop Hands Strike.

FERNANDINA, Fla., March 9.—The machinists and boiler makers in the F. C. and P. railroad shops have quit work They demanded 20 per cent increase in wages, which the railroad refused to pay, claiming that the men received the same pay as that given by the Southern and Louisville and Nashville railroads.

Bank Officer Arrested For Robbery

COLUMBUS, O., March 9.—A special to The Dispatch from Lima, O., says "N. L. Michael, vice president of the late American bank that was mysteriously robbed of $18,000 over a year ago, has been arrested, charged with the robbery Michael brands his arrest as blackmail."

STORY OF BILL COOK.

Record of the Famous Indian Territory Outlaw Who Died in Albany Prison.

The recent death of "Bill" Cook, the famous territory outlaw, at the Albany penitentiary, where he was serving a 45 years' sentence for train robbery, removes with a possible exception the last of the desperadoes who ran the gauntlet of crime in the Indian territory for a number of years. The inhabitants of Fort Gibson well remember "Bill" Cook, the boy who worked on a farm near that place. He was an industrious lad and saved his small earnings.

The territory at that time was in a turbulent state of affairs. Crimes were so frequent that the inhabitants guarded their homes against the violators of law wih shotguns and Winchesters. Bill Cook disappeared from Fort Gibson one day; yet nothing strange was thought of this. It was common for men then to drift from one place to another. Young Cook returned to near Fort Gibson, and his services were always in demand. He was a hard-working young man, and his delicate physique and pale face won for him the sympathy of the neighbors. He disappeared on several occasions, but would always return. It was at this time that two or three gangs of outlaws made life a burden on the highways. The robbery of mails and stores and other crimes alarmed the people greatly. Deputy marshals were unsuccessful in their efforts to exterminate the gang, but, on the other hand, some of the marshals fell by the wayside, victims of the treacherous outlaw's Winchester. Never in the history of the territory were the people so terrorized. The Starr gang was among the first to haunt the people and commit desperate deeds. They were considered the worst set of criminals that ever invaded the Indian country. Simultaneously with the deeds of these men a gang of organized criminals appeared.

Young Cook, who had made frequent trips no one knew where, was never suspected of being a member of a gang of well-organized outlaws. One day Cook left the farm. He afterward turned up in several fights and was recognized. The report was circulated that the heretofore frequent trips of Cook were to participate in crimes, and then return to his work to avoid suspicion. It may be said in passing that Bill Cook was the leader of a gang that stopped for nothing in the way of crimes. His partner, "Cherokee Bill," was for a long time a feared outlaw and it was with relief that the people of the Indian territory learned of Cherokee Bill's capture. He was tried at Fort Smith on a charge of murder and was sentenced to be hanged. He paid the penalty of his crime on the gallows.

The capture of "Cherokee Bill" led to the breaking up of the Cook gang. Cherokee Bill and Bill Cook were great friends and much attached to one another. The balance of the gang was captured and are to-day paying the law's penalty. Afterward Bill Cook was arrested. Many crimes were laid at his door, but it is said that the gang was responsible for a great many of the deeds credited to Cook. He was tried at Fort Smith, that court then having jurisdiction, on a charge of train robbery and was sentenced to 45 years' imprisonment, which has just been cut short by death. The story of Cook is a sad one. He never profited by his deeds, save to make a reputation as a daring criminal. The Dalton, Nice and Hart gangs have long paid the penalty they so richly deserved. The criminals of late days who infest the territory cannot be compared in class or methods to the former outlaws. The days of criminal success are about over.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

IRON IN THE ARCTICS.

Two Interesting Spots in the Northern Part of Russia and Sweden.

According to the Zeitschrift fur Angewandte Chemie, the largest and at the same time the most northerly iron mine in the world is situated in the north of Sweden, at Kirunavara. A railroad has been built from this mine, a distance of 114 miles, to a good port, which is accessible to vessels of deep draft. The governments of Sweden and Norway bore the expenses of the construction of this railroad, which was about $8,040,000. This bed of ore is near Lake Luossajarol, and 65 miles farther north than the well-known and long-time-worked Gellivare mine, from which so much of the well-known fine quality of Swedish iron has come.

The deposit is said to be even of better quality and richness than the old mine. It is estimated that there are from 250,000,000 to 300,000,000 tons of ore in sight, and borings that have been made have led to estimates of the deposit as from 700,000,000 tons upward.

Russia is also starting to open a valuable iron mine in the Magnetberg district, near Tongorov. The ores in this Russian mine are reported as 65 per cent. pure iron, and the extent of the deposit is excelled only by the mine of Kirunavara. This Russian iron deposit has been known for some time, but on account of the lack of fuel and transportation nothing has been done toward developing it. Quite lately coal of good quality and in large and available veins has been discovered near Tawlograt. The Russian finance minister proposed for the government to build a railroad to connect the coal and iron deposits and to give exit for the finish product, and thus reduce the present high price of iron in Russia. The proposition is now to be taken up, and active measures are on foot to develop this mine.—Baltimore American.

ABOUT SOUTH AFRICA

John Hays Hammond Talks Geology and Politics.

TELLS HOW HE ESCAPED HANGING.

Conditions of the Country Favor Mining, but Harsh Boer Laws Prevent Profitable Results—The Jameson Raid an Injury.

BALTIMORE, March 9.—Mr. John Hays Hammond, the Maryland uitlander whom Oom Paul Kruger sentenced to be hanged in 1896 for promotion of the uprising which was one of the causes of the present war, is in Baltimore. He gave an informal talk to the students of the Johns Hopkins university. Although his talk was not announced, he came before one of the largest meetings ever held in the geological lecture room.

"I don't know what you'd most like to hear about," said Mr. Hammond, "for your claims on me must be divided very much by your interests, and your interests are peculiar. As scientists you would no doubt like to hear something from an engineer about the gold deposits, and as plain citizens you have a right to expect something about politics. As a matter of fact you ought to hear something about both, for geology and politics overlap in South Africa. Yes, they overlap—they overlap to such a degree that you can hardly determine where one begins before you find yourself in prison."

Mr. Hammond went on then to a technical description of the gold deposits of the Rand, describing the positions of the beds and veins and the nature of the principal gold-rock, which, he said, looks like peanuts stuck in molasses. He called on Mrs. Hammond, who sat at one side of the room, to give a more detailed description of the sort of candy which the gold conglomerate resembles. As an arithmetical idea of the magnitude of the mines Mr. Hammond said: "Our works at the Rand fields now employ 125,000 natives, nearly all of them underground, and 10,000 whites. Had it not been for the war we would have crushed 10,000,000 tons of ore this year. Out of this great mass we would have secured nearly 30 per cent of the gold product of the world.

"Every condition of the country favors mining. The first operations were confined to the mining of outcrop, but as these were followed farther and farther underground the prospectors were amazed by the persistence of the veins, and the more adventurous began making geological calculations and taking up distant locations for reaching the invisible treasure. 'Deep level' mining thus took its start.

"Nearly seven years ago I was sent to Africa by English employers and found nearly all of the engineers there to be Americans. It was largely by my advice that deep level mines were started. I gave advice, thinking that African economic conditions would at least be no worse in the future than they were at that time. I was surprised, however, to see that the laws soon began to change so as to make it a hard matter to make both ends meet with the mines. The ores were of low grade, and bad legislation was destroying the small margins.

"While we could have left the country at that time had we wished to do so, we engineers talked it over and thought we would stay and stand for our absent employers. Our delegations to Pretoria were insulted one after another until at last we were told that if we 'wanted anything we would have to fight for it.' That was a bad argument, and we were getting ready to fight when Jameson made his famous raid for our relief. We did not want to be relieved. He alienated all general sympathy from us as well as that of the progressive Dutch.

"The report got abroad that we had 30,000 rifles, and on the strength of it we tried to bluff the Pretoria people into giving us what we ought to have had. A bluff is a good thing sometimes, but this one went wrong. The 'olive branch' delegation visited us then, but we could never persuade it to guarantee the removal of the religious disabilities on a good many of us. We were told that we had only to lay down our arms. We did—3,000 guns, not 30,000—and Mr. Kruger and his friends were so surprised and disgusted to find out what they had been afraid of that they marched us all into prison.

"We were all told that if we pleaded guilty we would all get a nominal fine. We did so, but the old Dutch Roman law was revived, and four of us were sentenced to 'hang till we were dead.' This was most surprising and unpleasant. So farcical was the trial that Mr. Kruger himself inquired of me afterward why I had pleaded guilty. I told him through the jailer—his own cousin and a particular friend of mine—that I pleaded the way I did because I remembered the story of a Texas judge whose horse was stolen. 'I am a biased party,' the judge said, 'and can't try this case. But you try the case for me, Mr. Bailiff, and in order not to lose any time I'll go out and select a tree.' Kruger saw the point. He is good at seeing points.

"But South Africa could not lose us. She needs geologists too much, and so after disgraceful negotiations we were released on the payment of $125,000 each. Mr. Kruger had religious scruples at first about taking the money, but I think he meant this only for the vulgar crowd, for he likewise brought a bill against England after we were loose for 'moral and intellectual damages.'"

MUCH TARIFF TALK.

Senate Begins to Discuss the Porto Rico Bill.

FORAKER CHAMPIONS THE MEASURE.

Explains Why the Committee Decided to Impose a Small Tax Upon Island Products—The House Again Unseats Robbins.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Formal discussion of the Porto Rican tariff and civil government began in the senate yesterday and continued uninterruptedly for 4½ hours. The principal speakers were Mr. Foraker (Rep.) of Ohio, in charge of the measure, and Mr. Pettus (Dem.) of Alabama, but at various times during the debate lively colloquies occurred in which other senators were participants.

After Mr. Mason of Illinois had entered his motion to discharge the committee on foreign affairs from further consideration of his resolution expressing sympathy for the Boers and it had gone over until today under the rule Mr. Pettus delivered a carefully prepared speech in opposition to the pending bill. He argued that it was unconstitutional and in violation of the principles of this government as laid down by the fathers of the country.

Mr. Foraker occupied the floor during the remainder of the session. He explained the measure in detail and gave the reasons why the committee had determined upon the levying of a tariff upon Porto Rican products. In his opinion it was impossible for a direct tax to be levied upon the people of the island to support a local government because of their present destitute condition. The committee, he said, had conceived the idea of placing a small tariff on Porto Rican products in order to raise a sum sufficient with the sum otherwise raised to give the people of the island not only a good government, but also to build schoolhouses and to make necessary public improvements. Then, too, it was necessary that the question of the extension of the constitution over our insular possessions should be determined by the supreme court, and by the very provisions of the bill it would be inevitable that the supreme court should pass upon that question. Porto Rico and the Philippines, he said, were on the same basis, so that the court's decision would determine our right to levy a tariff on products of the eastern archipelago.

The house unseated Gaston A. Robbins, a Democrat from the Fourth Alabama district, and seated in his stead William F. Aldrich, a Republican who has been three times a contestant from the same district, on the ground of fraud, and who is now given his seat for the third time by a Republican house. The vote was a strict party one. This case out of the way, a new rule was brought in to set aside the day sessions on the second and fourth Fridays of each month for pension legislation. The rule limited debate on each bill to ten minutes on a side, but this provision was withdrawn upon the assurance of Mr. Richardson, the minority leader, that his side of the house would not indulge in filibustering. During the debate on the rule there was quite a lively row between Mr. Mahon of Pennsylvania and Mr. Talbert of South Carolina. Before adjourning the house took up the contested election case of Wise versus Young from the Second Virginia district, Mr. Weeks giving notice that he would ask a vote on it at 2 o'clock Monday.

Big Price For English Racer.

LONDON, March 9.—Representatives of the elite sporting world were in attendance at the sale of the late Duke of Westminster's string of race horses, which took place at Kingsclere, England. Among those present were the Prince of Wales, Prince Christian of Sleswick-Holstein, Lord Coventry and Lady Jeune. Flying Fox, winner in 1899 of the Derby, the Two Thousand Guineas, the Eclipse Stakes and the Doncaster St. Leger, was purchased by Edmund Blanc for 37,500 guineas (about $196,900). Mr. Blanc is the son of the founder of Monte Carlo and brother-in-law of Roland Bonaparte.

Manila Hemp.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The war department makes the statement that the total exportation of hemp from the Philippine Islands from the date of American occupation to Dec. 31, 1899, as far as the same has been reported by customs collectors, was 95,370 tons, valued at $10,998,509. The distribution of the product was as follows: To the United States, $4,477,450; to the United Kingdom, $3,215,853; to China, $2,312,801; to Spain, $504,110; to Japan, $22,095; to the British East Indies, $219,812; to Australia, $242,788, and to France, $3,600.

Fifth Cavalry Coming Home.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The homeward movement of the Fifth cavalry, which has been stationed in Porto Rico since the Spanish war, will begin next week and will be carried through as rapidly as possible. The transport Kilpatrick has been ordered to San Juan to embark a squadron of that regiment consisting of 10 officers and 378 men, with 332 horses. They will be sent to Jefferson Barracks, St. Louis, unless present plans are altered.

A Queer Tidal Flow.

PROVIDENCE, March 9.—A singular phenomenon was reported as having occurred at Block island yesterday forenoon, and it caused much uneasiness among the island folk for a time. During the entire forenoon the sea flowed a two-thirds full tide, occupying from five to seven minutes in its ebb, and its reflux was of the same duration, the flow and ebb occupying about 14 minutes, when, according to all known regulations of tides, they ebb and flow twice in 24 hours.

FAMOUS PLAYHOUSE BURNED.

Theatre Francais In Paris Is Destroyed—One Life Lost.

PARIS, March 9.—The famous Theatre Francais has been destroyed by fire.

It was situated on the Place du Theatre Francais, near the Palais Royal, and occupied the highest rank among the theaters of France. It was built in 1782, but was much altered in later years, the facades being modern.

The Doric vestibule contained a statue of Talma, the tragedian, by David d'Angers, and figures of Tragedy and Comedy, by Duret, bearing respectively the features of the celebrated actresses Mlle. Rachel and Mlle. Mars. The foyer du public was adorned with a statue of Voltaire, by Houdon, with a chimney piece, with a relief representing comedians crowning the figure of Moliere, by Lequesne; with busts and scenes from the writings of celebrated French dramatists, and with a new ceiling painting, by Dubufe the younger, of "Truth Enlightening the World." At the end of the corridor leading out of the foyer was a statue of George Sand, by Clesinger. The ceiling of the interior represented France distributing laurels to her three great dramatists—Moliere, Corneille and Racine.

Nearly all of the rich treasures of art which the house contained were destroyed.

M. Jules Claretie, the director, says he believes the historic playhouse was set on fire by some attache of the theater suffering from an imaginary grievance as the result of recent quarrels.

The only victim of the fire, so far as is known, was Mlle. Henriot, a beautiful young actress of 19, whose photograph has been displayed in the shop windows along the boulevards as a type of beauty. She came of a theatrical family, and her mother has been filling an important role at the Theatre Antoine.

Blast Furnaces In Canada.

COLLINGWOOD, Ont., March 9.—The town has just concluded arrangements with the Cramps, shipbuilders of Philadelphia, by which they agree to establish at this point blast furnaces for the production of iron and steel. The capacity of the plant will be 200 tons per day and will be taken direct from the furnaces and manufactured into sheets, ingots and structural iron. They agree, for certain concessions given them by the town, to establish a plant costing not less than $1,500,000 and to employ not less than 600 men continuously for 30 years.

The Wrong Man Convicted.

BOSTON, March 9.—Chief Inspector Watts of this city has been informed of an alleged deathbed confession made by James Sweeney, a Boston crook, in which Sweeney is said to have admitted that he killed a man in New York for whose death Edward Wise of Boston has been found guilty and is at present in Sing Sing prison under sentence of death. The information came to Chief Watts from London detectives.

English Petrolium Syndicate.

COLUMBUS, O., March 9.—A special to The Dispatch from Toledo says: "The English petroleum syndicate of London, the foreign branch of the Standard Oil company, is reliably reported to have closed a gigantic deal in the Ohio oilfield. The company absorbs the Cudahy combination of Chicago and the Manhattan Oil company. The consideration is said to be $10,000,000."

GENERAL WHEELER'S VIEWS.

He Advocates a Territorial Form of Government For the Philippines.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 9.—General Joseph Wheeler favors giving the Philippines a territorial form of government. He said to a reporter today:

"I believe the people are ready for a certain kind of self government. They could be given the power to make laws under such a system of government as has been adopted for our territories. The municipal governments are all in the hands of the natives, and they get along without trouble or friction. Under a territorial form the islands could be best controlled."

Reviewing his impressions of trade possibilities in the orient, he continued:

"England, Russia, Germany and France braved war and pestilence in efforts to secure a share of the wealth which will come to them by commercial relations with this people. The treaty of Paris cast upon us the responsibility of sovereignty over from 9,000,000 to 11,000,000 persons, together with the islands which they inhabit, containing an area three times that of our great and prosperous Empire State.

"Very naturally there may be honest difference of opinion as to whether everything has been conducted during the two years in accordance with the highest wisdom and best possible judgment, but there should be no question among the American people as to the duty and wisdom of now uniting in a determined effort to take the situation as it stands and to so conduct the affairs of our country as to add the most to its glory, honor, welfare and prosperity. It is a friendly struggle for American supremacy, in which our rival nations are using their best efforts, and, I say, let us in a friendly but determined spirit use our best efforts also.

"Our Pacific cities are now face to face with the eastern shores of Asia. The Nicaragua canal will bring our gulf ports nearer to them than those of the Atlantic and Europe. With Manila as a great depot, steamships from that emporium could reach the commercial ports of eastern Asia as readily as it can be done by English steamships from Hongkong."

THEY COULD NOT AGREE.

Mr. Lala of Manila Talks With Boston "Antis."

BOSTON, March 9.—Ramon Reyes Lala, a native of Manila, who is at present on a lecturing tour in this country, had a cordial reception from Mayor Hart yesterday. They had an interesting talk over the present situation in the Philippine Islands. Mr. Lala also visited the office of the Anti-imperialist league by request of Secretary Erving Winslow. William Lloyd Garrison was also present. The three gentlemen had a long talk, after which Mr. Lala said that he and his new formed acquaintances could hardly agree on a single point.

During the conversation Mr. Lala told the Boston men that Aguinaldo's following is among the uneducated and that he fills these people full of stories, making them believe that if they accept American government they will only return to Spanish oppression. Mr. Lala further said: "Aguinaldo is assisted by the anti-imperialists in this country. These latter he blames for the bloodshed in the Philippines. They have sent documents to that country, and these are published in the Filipino papers. Aguinaldo reads them and shows them to his followers, with the statement, "I told you that the Americans want us to continue the war." As a result the poor fellows continue to fight.

General Ludlow's Good Work.

HAVANA, March 9.—General Ludlow says he expects to get through all his private business and to wind up the affairs of the department between this date and May 1. His departure will be regretted by the best classes of Cubans, because he has made himself extremely popular in Havana society. Although a few newspapers and the mob element still object, the majority recognizes the fact that he has worked early and late during the last 14 months to make Havana a model city, a task requiring not only considerable tact and diplomacy, but also ability far above the average. Various forces combined to place obstacles in the way of all improvements in Havana, but the work done under General Ludlow's supervision cannot fail to have a farreaching influence. His work shows to better advantage than all the work done for Havana during the Spanish regime, which extended over four centuries.

Now is the Chance.

What public sentiment, condemnation proceedings by the Board of Health and a vast amount of ridicule has failed to accomplish in the effort to get the city to abandon the veritable rookery which has served as a police station and city court room, the fire fiend brought about in a few minutes yesterday. The use of this building for such important municipal purposes has been a disgrace and reflection upon the progress and enterprise of the city for several years. At its best it has been nothing more than a make-shift, but now that the interior has been gutted and made untenantable by flames it will be a gross wrong to attempt to utilize it any further for police and court purposes.

The fact that Plainfield will probably have a city hall, in which there will be provisions for the proper housing of the police force, the detention of offenders and their subsequent trial in a decent court room, does not require the further use of this old rookery for such purposes. The time when Plainfield will have a city hall in use is still considerably distant, and as a consequence the Common Council should at once make arrangements for the temporary use of some other place better fitted for police and court practices than the building gutted by fire yesterday. The cost will not be much greater, and even if it was the taxpayers will not object to a reasonable expenditure for work that is so necessary and urgent for the best interests of the city, its servants and its prisoners.

The Philadelphia Press has little faith that the projected cigarette crusade in Philadelphia will accomplish anything. "The smoking of cigarettes by boys," it says, "will go on as usual. The cigarette evil is one which laws can do very litttle to diminish. It is largely a home and school matter. If parents and teachers did their duty the practice would fall off seventy-five per cent. They do not do their duty and the practice continues and grows constantly. The cigarette evil can be checked by dealing with it in the right way, but ephemeral bursts of energy succeeded by long periods of lethargy will accomplish little good."

Not long ago a public man who had been made the central figure in a rather cutting cartoon complained to Mark Hanna about the illustration, saying that he was half inclined to sue the paper for $25,000 damages for holding him up to public ridicule. "I wish you would," said Senator Hanna; "if you can get $25,000 for that picture it will insure my getting about $25,000,000 for all the cartoons that have been printed about me."

The Newark News notes that Senator McCarter's short-weight and coal bill is now a law, and if there is any coal dealer still laboring under the delusion that there are only 1,500 pounds in the avordupois ton, he would do well to revise his information on the subject of weights and measures, lest correctiog of his ignorance cost him at the rate of $50 a lesson.

Even the most inveterate "shopper" occasionally likes a hint as to what she should purchase; and she gets that hint from the advertisements she reads in her favorite newspaper, says the Philadelphia Record. If the "shopper" can thus be moved thousands of other purchasers can be more easily influenced. Advertisements point the way to trade.

The question which it is now important to consider is whether or not one Foote in connection with the franchise tax bills in the Legislature will be able to cope with the corporations when they put both feet down on the proposition to tax them further than the present laws permit.

The watchman employed at the State Industrial School for Girls who has the assurance to tell the Legislative investigating committee that he frequently "bumped" the defenseless inmates in the institution, ought to be "bounced" without ceremony.

A Connecticut court has rendered a decision to the effect that a man who asks another for a chew or tobacco cannot be held on a charge of begging. Thus are the finer points of human liberty decided.

The Republicans in the State Assembly want to adjourn sine die March 23d. Now it remains to be seen if the Senators will concur.

The National Women's Suffrage League will not be true to tradition unless it elects Mrs. Carrie W. Catt president nine times.

One year's sweepings of the British mints yealds over $5,000 in gold and silver, and the Queen needs every penny of it.

Isn't it odd that a Cooper couldn't stave off defeat for the bill reducing the legal rate of interest to five per cent.

The longer Congress legislates over Puerto Rican affairs the longer the people of that island will starve.

The latest in the line of corporations is the brick trust. It will not be a hard job to run that to earth.

Now let's have a new jail.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Persons intending to visit Morristown for a short or long stay should wear a well-defined vaccination mark somewhere, or provide themselves with a physician's certificate that they have undergone a successful inoculation against smallpox. A Plainfield citizen reports that he drove over to the infected town yesterday on business, and when about to leave, was stopped at the border because he admitted that he had not been vaccinated. As a condition precedent to his departure for home the Plainfielder was compelled to bare his arm and submit to Jenner's operation. In its zeal to defend its neighbors from itself, Morristown has not yet stopped the railway trains on the way through, but it may come to that.—Newark Advertiser.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen, March 9—The Republican primary at Piscataway Wednesday afternoon proved an exciting event in local politics. Rev. J. B. Cleaver, who was chosen chairman, suggested that the meeting, which was held at New Market in Friendship Hall, be opened with prayer. The suggestion was unanimously adopted, and Rev. Frank Fletcher invoked the divine blessing. Then these nominations were made: Freeholder, Fitz Randolph; Assessor, Dr. M. J. Whitford; Collector, John C. Osmun; Township Committee (3 years) Thomas Brantingham, (2 years) Arthur R. Tappen, (1 year) Nelson M. Giles; Surveyor of Highways, Albert L. Boice, Luther Boice; Commissioner of Appeal, Calvin S. Boice; Constable, Luther Mundy; Justice of the Peace, Harry E. Weaver. The pound-keeper is to be selected by the Township Committee. It was voted to appropriate $5,000 for roads and $1 000 for the poor.

In the evening the Democrats gathered at Nelson's Hotel, and, without prayer, nominated this ticket: Freeholder, Alex. Manning; Assessor, C. E. Kelly; Collector, Dr. W. J. Nelson; Town Committee, Albert Manning, (3 years), B. DeWitt Giles, (2 years), George R. Conover, (1 year); Commissioner of Appeal, Bethune Dunham; Surveyor of Highways, Lewis Harris; Constable, Charles A. Meeker. The appropriations for roads and poor were the same as the Republicans made.

Wednesday evening the Citizens' primary was held at borough hall. There was a spirited contest for assessor between Charles Coriell and Arthur Gaston. This ticket was nominated: Assessor, Charles Coriell; Collector, George W. Day; Commissioner of Appeal, Henry V. Dunham; Councilmen, Henry C. Gaskill and Lewis Titsworth; Constable, John H. Rinehart. The sum of $2,500 will be asked for the borough expenses and $150 for support of the poor. It is not probable that any other ticket will be put in the field. The election will be held next Tuesday.

Many of the members of Court Dunellen, Independent Order of Foresters, visited Plainfield last night as guests of Court Watchung, where a smoker was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dineen have been entertaining friends from Washington.

Miss Minnie and Kittie Dineen have returned to New York after a pleasant visit with their parents.

The sociable held at the home of Dr. Nelson Wednesday night under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Baptist church was a grand success. More than 100 young people were present and the evening was passed with music, games etc.

William E. Henry, a brother of Mrs. R. I. Swackhamer, died recently in Joliet, Ill.

The family of Chas. Debele is afflicted with the grip.

The friends of Joel Giddis will be pleased to learn that his young son Joel is somewhat improved.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Scotch Plains, March 9.—A balky horse attached to an ancient vehicle, with which W. H. Day of Scotch Plains, was trying to round the corner from Elm street into Broad street, Westfield, furnished considerable amusement to the large number of people in the vicinity at that hour by his obstinacy in describing a circle in the street against the wishes of the driver. The animal made several attempts to enter the postoffice, Wittke's store and Condit's pharmacy, and was barely saved from so doing by the heroic efforts of the driver, who finally, by dint of coaxing and caressing, succeeded in leading the animal to a more retired location for further argument.

The Borough Council held an interesting and spicy meeting in the borough rooms Wednesday evening. The business before the Council was the annual borough report. Owing to several discrepancies in the report the matter was not passed at the meeting but will probably be fixed up in a short time and then accepted by the Council.

"A Wheeling Journey Through France" proved to be an interesting subject at the Epworth literary reading in the Methodist church last evening. Mrs. Ira G. Walker had charge of the meeting.

Mrs. T. M. Paff, Sr., who dislocated her shoulder last week, is improving slowly and it will be a long while before she will be able to use her arm again.

The juniors of the B. Y. O. U. are holding one of their pleasant meetings in the parlors of the church this afternoon.

The Bible study class of the Methodist Sunday-school met in the class rooms of the church last evening.

Goodwill Lodge, K. of P., held an important meeting in their rooms last evening.

John R. Haskard, of Plainfield, was the guest of friends in town last evening.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World

The main plot of Hoyt's "A Day and A Night," which comes to Music Hall next Monday night, tells of an old naval officer who, returning from a long cruise, finds the boy whom he had left grown to be a man, devoted to sewing circles and church fairs. The young man goes to New York to select singers for a church choir, and the father goes along intending to show his son a little of the town. The father falls in with a theatrical manager who says that he will introduce the son at a private dinner party to a number of chorus girls, passing them off as church concert singers, and the father is to keep in hiding to witness the fun. When all are gathered an ex-leading lady of the theatre discovers that the good young man is her fiancee. When the fun is at its height the minister and the mother of the young man put in an appearance and there is a warm scene. The father emerges from his hiding place and denounces the mother for bringing up her son so rigidly. The ex leading lady reveals herself to her lover and all is forgiven.

WESTFIELD

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Westfield, March 9.—Chairman J. Alston Dennis, of the Township Committee, who has taken a great deal of interest in the proposed Consumer's Water and Light plant, and who wished to have the Summit Water Company submit a proposition to the Township Committtee of Westfield, has received a letter from Carrol H. Bassett, president of the Summit Water Company, in which it is said that the company thinks it would be best to delay the consummation of an agreement until after election on the grounds that they would rather make the agreement with the Committee that would supervise the construction of the new plant if it was decided to build.

Louis E. Hendrickson, the suburban representative of the Elizabeth Journal, is laid up at the home of his parents, in Elizabeth, by an attack of the measles. E. O. Hopkins, of Cranford, is covering Mr. Hendrickson's district during his illness.

False Teeth of Antiquity.

The manufacture and use of false teeth is undoubtedly a practice of great antiquity. The ancient Egyptians were no mean dentists. Jawbones of mummies have been found with false teeth in them, and also with teeth filled with gold. The ancient Greeks also knew how to make false teeth. There is plentiful evidence of skilled dentistry among the Romans, for many of the old Latin authors have references to false teeth. In the "Roman Laws of the Twelve Tables" there is distinct references to artificial teeth. The first part of No. 10 forbids useless expense at funerals in general, but an exception is permitted by No. 11, which allows that the gold fillings of false teeth or the gold with which they were bound should be buried or burned with the deceased. Within the last year an ancient grave was discovered near Rome and opened. In it was found the skeleton of a woman with a complete set of false teeth, displaying admirable workmanship and wrought out of solid gold.—N. Y. Herald.

GOWNS FOR LENT.

Festal Robes For Those Who Find Sackcloth Unbecoming.

It was Sarah Bernhardt who devised the very effective plan of combining lace and fur, and we all ought to be glad she did, for there is no denying its beauty. It is an odd combination to find a reception gown of all over net bordered with a couple of rows of black fur around the bottom, but one looks twice at such a gown and admires it.

The reception gown illustrated here will show the plan of the combination. The inner dress is of pale blue taffeta and the outer of the figured net. This has the skirt laid in plaits and sewed down to the knees, fitting the skirt rather closely. From there it is left loose to the bottom, which forms a sort of flounce. The waist is swathed across the front and has a simulated bolero, with a tie made of pale blue crepe de chine finished with netted silk fringe of the same color. This scarf or tie is so long that it goes twice around the neck and fills in the entire front like a jabot. These are shown now in a few of the best stores and are sure to become very popular.

I saw a very dainty and girlish dress for a very young lady to wear at one of the penitential parties where girls are expected to forsake all the vanities of the world. This was a white dotted net, very fine, with pinhead dots. The underdress was also of waite, being taffeta. The skirt was tucked closely lengthwise to about 18 inches from the bottom, and the surplus fell into a full flounce. Above this was a band of renaissance lace, and above that equidistant were two others all around. The belt was of the same, and the other bands crossed the waist.

The sleeves were merely ruffles and puffs of the net. There was a long scarf of white tulle drawn from the right shoulder to the waist and from there to the knees and fastened in each place with bunches of parma violets and bows of white ribbon. There were bows of this on the shoulders and a lacing of the ribbon around the upper part of the arm tied at the elbow in a pretty bow.

The gloves to wear with this reach but to the elbow. The tulle scarf floats loosely after the last bunch of violets. What a sweet and lovely penitent gown! If any girl could not repent of all sorts of little sins of omission and commission in such a gown, she is past hoping for.

I saw two dresses just finished for two young married sisters. These ladies do not keep Lent quite so strictly as some do, and there is to be a grand dinner at the home of one, and that is the reason for the being of the gowns. One is of lemon colored peau de soie, with bunches of wood violets and green stems embroidered upon the skirt and waist. The dress is cut princess shape and draped a little across the front. The neck is cut square, and there are three rows of amber beads sewed around the edge. Below these is a band of sable, and another borders the whole skirt. There are but straps on the shoulders. The long gloves will leave little of the arm to be seen.

The sister's dress is of heavy heliotrope satin duchesse. The skirt is plain save for a rich cascade of butter colored lace down the left side and from there forming a full ruffle all around the bottom and up to a point. There are revers of the same back and front at the shoulders and placed so that they come to a double point on the top of the shoulder, forming a sort of sleeve.

The dress is low on the neck. The waist is swathed to the left side and has a small standing bow of ribbon of the same shade in front. The lace drapes across the front of the waist. These two dresses form a most effective combination when beside each other—the one yellow, with purple flowers; the other purple, with yellow lace.

I must mention one more festive gown, and that is one for a young lady. The body of the whole is of exquisite cheney design of vague and indistinct roses and leaves on a blue white ground. The low waist is slightly pouched and has a pointed belt of black velvet. There is a band of wide white renaissance lace across the bust and drawn over the shoulders for sleeves. This part, however, has a puffing of pink chiffon under it. There are four quite deep ruffles of pink chiffon on the skirt, cut so that they form a sort of point in front and are deeper in the back. Each is edged with a narrow ruche, and the upper one is headed with one.

HENRIETTE ROUSSEAU.

HINTS FOR THE HOME-MAKER.

BY ELIZABETH LYON.

A wastebasket of brown leather, particularly suited to the requirements of a library or den, consists of three baskets that slip one inside of the other.

It is very practical, because by raising the middle wicker the height of the basket can be nearly doubled. And, in addition to that, the inside baskets can be removed, thus doing away with all possibility of bruising the beautiful exterior in emptying, which so often occurs when servants have charge of the room. When closed, the whole basket is only 20 inches high.

To make it a "nest" of cheap wicker baskets was purchased at a wholesale store for 60 cents (a "nest" consists in a number of baskets that fit one inside of the other). The baskets chosen had deep, solid rims. The bottom of the middle basket was partly cut away, leaving an inch margin about the edge. This edge was firmly overcast and reenforced with the wicker ravelings. It is necessary to do this, so that the edge which serves as a rim to hold the inside wicker when the basket is drawn out will be strong enough to bear the strain.

The smaller basket, which slips through the bottomless one, should fit so snug that it will hold the larger one in place when it is raised to increase the height.

The outside basket is covered with leather and is laced up one side with thongs. The design is done in "poker" work, and the figures are burned deep. Two coats of varnish give it the desired finish.

How to Make a Laundry Ottoman.

A very pretty and at the same time useful laundry receptacle for a chamber can be made after an inexpensive pattern. The mother of a large family who does her own work will find it very convenient, for a good part of her labor is generally occasioned by thoughtless children who drop things, especially their soiled laundry, just anywhere, well knowing that "mother will pick it up."

The little folks are usually the first to object to an unsightly laundry hamper or bag. Both are ugly unless placed in a closet, because their use is so apparent. This defect is overcome in the laundry ottoman here pictured.

A half sugar barrel with a well fitting cover is required for its construction. Make a white cotton bag the exact shape and size of the inside of the barrel. Turn an inch hem around the top and sew hooks every few inches apart just below the edge on the side of the goods facing the barrel. Make a similar lining for the lid. Cover the outside of the ottoman with figured cretonne having a large bold design.

Lay the goods in side plaits and bring it well over the edges; tack firmly on the inside about an inch below the top edge. Sew eyes along the inside edge at distances corresponding with the hooks on the lining. Pad the lid and cover with cretonne. Sew on hooks and eyes in the same manner as for the barrel lining. Use one large hinge to fasten the lid in place and two pieces of tape, one on either side, to prevent its turning back too far. The lining is purposely made removable that it, too, may be laundered as occasion requires.

A Valentine Supper Party.

A valentine entertainment offers splendid possibilities for the clever hostess. The dining room should be a bower of pink and green, with hearts in some form in evidence everywhere. On the walls pink cheesecloth should be prettily draped and festooned with strings of tiny hearts caught up here and there by floral love knots made of paper roses. This scheme was followed at a recent observance of the day.

If there are side lights and no chandelier, attach to the ceiling above the table a large Japanese umbrella, hung with smilax and pink carnations. From the center of the umbrella suspend a large shaped lantern of a rosy hue and from the tips of the ribs smaller lanterns of similar shape. Let the table decorations also be in pink, the flowers, dishes and bonbons all repeating that color. At regular intervals hearts made of wire and carefully intwined with smilax and carnations should surround slender vases of cut glass filled with roses and fern, while in the middle of the table on a mound of roses stands a bisque Cupid.

At each cover place a bunch of roses, having on the ribbon with which they are tied hearts, darts and ribbon scrolls painted in different colors and outlined in gold.

A lovely idea for place cards would be to have satin hearts filled with tiny heart shaped candies, the name and date on one side and on the other two little Cupids on wheels, bearing the legend, "Love makes the world go round." The sandwiches and fancy cakes should be heart shaped, and in one of the cakes inclose a small silver heart, which is sure to bring good luck to the one who finds it. Let the ices take the form of Cupids, doves and roses and the maids in attendance wear caps and aprons decked with small hearts.

Just before coffee is served have a maid hand a silver salver to each guest, on which are piled large, square cards with white pencils attached by pink ribbons. Request every one to draw a picture of the person who sits opposite him, and likewise write underneath an original rhyme with valentine sentiment. When all have finished, let the cards be collected and handed around, one at a time, for inspection.

Have two prizes; first, for the one who makes the most correct guesses as to whose likeness each portrait is meant to represent. The second prize should be given to the person who is most successful in guessing who wrote the different verses or jingles.

When supper is over, have Lowell's "The Courtin" read aloud and illustrated by a shadow play, and be sure that those who take part have been carefully drilled beforehand.

A Powder Puff That Is Practical.

For ladies who appreciate the refreshing qualities of a fine, cooling powder on an overheated face the following novel arrangement for carrying powder without the inconvenience of the bulky puff box will be valuable.

With very little trouble one can make from a lightweight silk handkerchief

a covering for the powder puff which will be found very convenient. A pretty square, embroidered in colors, was chosen for the model. At the center of the silk the powder puff is securely fastened by means of a neat silk tape. Then, according to the size of the puff and at equal distance from the center, say about three inches, a narrow white silk tape is sewed on the outside, which serves as a casing for the double drawing strings.

The bag thus made is large enough to entirely envelop the puff, when the strings are drawn closely and tied. The embroidered corners fall lightly over this essential conceit of the toilet.

The illustration shows the covering open and closed. This mode of protecting the puff and the art of using it undetected on all occasions ought to interest the ladies in its favor.

Wrinkles, Cause and Cure.

Wrinkles are described as "furrows caused by the skin having become too loose and large for the organs it has to cover," and melancholy and lymphatic temperaments are considered to be those that wrinkle the soonest. Wrinkles are also produced by the skin losing its natural oily substance and thus becoming too dry. Hot water, though good for flushed faces, is not good for continual use, as it tends to wrinkle the skin. Bad cosmetics also induce wrinkles. This is one reason why none but the best toilet preparations should be used. Wrinkles on the forehead and round the mouth often develop even on a young face into very deep lines, caused by the continual habit of raising the eyebrows, frowning and laughing. Facial massage, combined with a good unguent, is recommended for eradicating wrinkles. A cheap remedy is a mixture of equal portions of eau de cologne and white of egg rubbed into the wrinkles; also honey and white wax, melted together into a pomatum and used at night.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For Week Beginning March 11—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Rejecting Christ.—Mark xii, 1-9.

THE PARABLE.

The topic, rejecting Christ, is illustrated by Christ's parable of the wicked husbandmen. By this parable a certain man planted a vineyard, let it out to husbandmen and went into a far country, an incident of common occurrence. At proper times he sent his servants to the husbandmen for the fruit of the vineyard. But they shamefully treated them, beating them, wounding them and even killing some. At last he sent his only son, thinking they would reverence him, but instead they said, "This is the heir; come, let us kill him." "And they took him and killed him and cast him out of the vineyard."

THE INTERPRETATION.

The owner of the vineyard is God. The vineyard is the Jewish church, the husbandmen the Jewish nation. The servants sent are the prophets whom God sent at different times to the Jews, whom they persecuted, abused and even killed. The only well beloved Son is the Lord Jesus Christ, the only Son of God, whom the Jews rejected and crucified on the cross of Calvary. The judgment pronounced is the judgment that God has and will continue to bring upon the Jewish people for their rejection of Christ.

THE APPLICATION.

The explanation and application of this parable are easily made. There is nothing difficult to understand in the parable, nor is it hard to apply it to ourselves. The Jews were the chosen people of God. He selected them from the other nations of the world and made them His peculiar people. He gave them great opportunities, which brought with them great responsibilities. They did not measure up to their opportunities. They persecuted and even killed God's prophets, and when at last He even sent His Son to them they crucified Him, and God's judgment has rested upon the Jews ever since. Jerusalem was destroyed, and the gospel was sent to the gentiles. The rejected Christ was offered to the whole world. This includes us. Christ is now before us for our acceptance or rejection as He was once before the Jews. What will we do with Him? How the fate of the Jews should warn us against rejecting Christ! If God spared not His own people when they rejected His Son, much less will He spare us, who are not of the chosen family of Israel, but by nature aliens and strangers to the covenants of promise.

To reject Christ is to stand in the light of our own best interests, to destroy all hope of the eternal salvation of our souls. It is to turn our backs upon our best friend and to trample underfoot the cross of Calvary—yea, even the Son of God Himself. Are we prepared to do that? Dare we do it, remembering that we will answer to God for it in the day of judgment?

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Make this meeting evangelistic in character. Give an opportunity to any who may be present, who have not done so, to accept Christ. Make a special effort to get the associate members to accept Christ and to confess Him publicly before the world.

Bible Readings.—Sam. viii, 1-7; Ps. lii, 1-12; cxviii, 22; Isa. liii, 1-3; Math. ii, 1-18; xxvii, 15-26; Mark v, 1-17; Luke iv, 16-31; xviii, 24, 25; Heb. ii, 1-3; x, 28, 29; xii, 25; Rev. xxi, 17.

Through Suffering to Life.

By going down to death and rising again therefrom Christ overcame death and brought life and immortality to light. Through death He won the victory. The same general principle is taught in what is said that our sufferings work out a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory. Death worketh in us, but life in you, said the apostle. This is true of the pastor, of the Christian worker in every other line. We must undergo suffering if we would enter into the highest life. We must come into the sufferings of others if we would help them and lift them out of their depression. The vital principle must cast off its hard surroundings if it would grow.—United Presbyterian.

Spiritual Hypochondria.

Some think they are too well to go to a doctor, though dying of a stealthy disease. Others have a sort of spiritual hypochondria, imagining they have everything ailing them, while a visit to the doctor reassures them that they are well. All should welcome God's revelation of self, for they can but reassure the holy and will clearly indicate the weak spot of the sickly.—Christian Standard.

Time's Harvest.

How the hungry grave is longing
To despoil the fairest charms,
All relentless in its wronging,
With the clasp of cruel arms.

While we mourn the sad intruding,
As our flowers death's hand shall reap,
Blessed thought, the grave eluding,
Only dust it has to keep!

When the stricken heart is sighing
Requiems o'er the loved and fair,
Planting flowers where they are lying,
While they seem to hover there,

'Tis a holy mystic meeting,
With a thrill of pensive bliss,
To return the zephyr's greeting
As responsive to their kiss!

Oh, how dear is their entombing,
Consecrated spot of earth,
Where the cypress, ever blooming,
Tells of an immortal birth!

In the heart an echo lingers,
Whispered in the mourner's ear,
As the touch of angel fingers
Wakes their harps the soul to cheer.

Oh, not lost! They live in spirit,
"White robed" angels in the skies,
Where their glory now inherit,
All too bright for mortal eyes.

When we watch the stars of even,
Sister spirits of the night,
We will think of them in heaven
Making earth for us more bright.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning March 11, "Rejecting Christ." Text, Mark xii, 1-9.

What a sight it was when in the temple at Jerusalem the leading priests and most venerable religious leaders of the nation stood before the young Gallilean carpenter and demanded of Him by what right he had driven out from the temple those who sold beasts for sacrifice on the altar and had turned over the benches of the brokers who exchanged foreign money for Jewish coins to be used in making offerings for the service of the house! They had seen His acts with illy concealed indignation, but dared not openly arrest Him, for fear the common people, who believed in Him, would resist them and raise such a riot as would bring the Roman soldiers upon them to keep the peace.

They were all the more stilled because they saw plainly their own baseness and evil spirit in contrast with His piety and the righteousness which He taught as essential to favor with God.

As leaders of the nation in religious things they were the very first ones who should know whether Jesus was a true man and prophet. If He came in the spirit and power of the promised Messiah, they should be the first to recognize His claims and to lead the people to believe in and follow Him.

The more carefully we read the gospel story the more clear it becomes that the priests and scribes and religious teachers of the time had lost in great degree their care for truth and godliness and were filled with pride, worldly ambition and avarice. They made their religion the convenient means of securing their own ends rather than glorifying God and saving men.

Jesus by His pure life and truthful teaching made their iniquity and hypocrisy so plain that their anger and jealousy were aroused to the utmost. One or the other must go under. There could be no compromise or middle ground. Truth cannot be tolerant of error. Either God owns the vineyard, or man does. God claims His own. He demands righteousness. His claims must be met, or the tenants must deny His demands.

If Jesus is right, the rulers are wrong. To acknowledge His Messiahship is to ruin all their prospects of gain and rulership and to revolutionize everything in the nation. They must silence Him or lose their place, for they will not turn from their evil, however deeply they are convicted.

Blinded by their rage, they vainly hope to hold the possession after they have killed the heir. How hard it has been for men to learn that repudiation does not cancel an obligation and that falsehood can never kill the truth!

Reject the Christ and crucify Him, but He will rise the third day, for He is Lord of Life and cannot be held by death.

Reject the Christ and crucify Him, but He is the last hope of the nation, and when He cries, "It is finished!" the deathknell of Israel's hopes is sounded, and the day goes down in darkness. No power shall save the temple from flame, her priests from slaughter, her worshipers from slavery, famine and torture. This stone is the destined head of the corner, and, however the builders reject it, the day shall come when it shall crown and bind the whole building together.

Be Alone.

We are too much in company and depend too largely on the inspiration of numbers in our religious life. The spirit which stirs us is not always at such times the spirit of holiness and a sound mind, but often emulation or imitation. God can talk to man in a crowd, but the man can hear God talk more clearly if the noise of the crowd is hushed. The limitation is in us and not in God. We sometimes mistake the opinions of men for the commandments of God.

Jesus was accustomed to seek solitude after the multitudes had been with Him in the daytime. In the quiet night hours, in the mountains above, He talked with God. So we need to seek close personal friendship with Him alone. No crowded convention can give the uplift of soul and strength of purpose to us that quiet hours of communion with God will impart. Companions are of value, but no human companionship should come between us and the Master. No cares and no hurry of business should keep us from quiet talks with Him whose strength is our constant need and whose peace can quiet all anxiety. Have some place and some time each day where no interruption shall break your interview with the Saviour. His friendship, His fellowship, is the most desirable, the most durable. Cultivate acquaintance with yourself and your Leader.

Correct Speech.

This is more than having it in proper grammatical form. It is using words so that they convey accurate ideas and truthful impressions. It is of great value to be able to see things rightly and then to report them correctly.

Breathe on Me.

Breathe on me, breath of God,
Fill me with life anew,
That I may love what Thou dost love
And do what Thou wouldst do.

Breathe on me, breath of God,
Until my heart is pure,
Until with Thee I will one will
To do or to endure.

Breathe on me, breath of God,
Till I am wholly Thine,
Till all this earthly part of me
Glows with Thy fire divine.

Breathe on me, breath of God,
So shall I never die,
But live with Thee the perfect life
Of Thine eternity.

NEW IRISH LEADER.

John E. Redmond, Well-Known in This Country, Elected Chairman of the Nationalists.

John Redmond, the Parnellite leader, member of parliament for Waterford City, was unanimously elected chairman of the United Irish nationalist party at a meeting held in a committee room of the house of commons the other day. A vote of thanks was given Timothy Harrington for his success in restoring unity among the nationalists.

Since the death of Parnell Mr. Redmond has been one of the foremost of the Irish leaders. Americans had an opportunity of hearing his eloquence and of gauging his earnestness. He visited the United States in 1896 and made a tour of the principal cities with his lecture on "Fifteen Years in the British Parliament." They saw a strongly built man of medium height, a fine head, with thick hair of a ruddy color, and a small mustache, which in no wise concealed a firm mouth.

JOHN. E. REDMOND.
(Chairman of the United Irish Nationalist Party.)

Mr. Redmond's speeches in parliament have ever an attentive and often a thrilled audience. He is a tactician who knows the value of obstructing business and who realizes just when and how to do it. He can speak for a day, or for days, if need be, as he did upon one occasion when he wished to hold the house on a question vital to Ireland. It was in that memorable speech Mr. Redmond gave to Charles Stewart Parnell his title of "uncrowned king," which has survived the great land leaguer, and which has been considered one of the most felicitous epigrams in public speaking. Mr. Redmond's style is deliberate, he has wonderful reserve, and when he opens wide the gates of his oratory his power is superb yet never overleaps itself.

The new chairman of the Irish party is 44 years old and a Wexford man. He was educated altogether in Ireland. He stepped almost directly from the University of Dublin, whence he was graduated, into the house of commons as representative of the borough of New Ross, and was afterward elected for Wexford, but since 1891 he has sat for the city of Wexford. He is a member of both the Irish and the English bar, and a lawyer who understands the origin of law as well as its theory and practice.

In 1884 Mr. Redmond made a tour of Australia and visited America on his way home, landing at San Francisco, and seeing most of the cities of America on his journey to New York.

long continued glare from these snow fields, it has been found, makes the animals blind, in which condition they are with difficulty able to find the necessary amount of food. A large Russian cattle raiser with an eye at once to profit and philanthropy has, accordingly, invented snow glasses for the protection of the cattle's eyes. The glasses are made of smoked glass and are fastened about the animals' heads by straps, as shown in the illustration. In a single herd, it is reported, there are 40,000 cattle which wear these queer spectacles.

Big Maple Sugar Factory.

More Vermont maple sugar is made every year in Davenport, Ia., from cheap yellow sugar flavored with vegetable extracts than can be produced from all the maple trees in the whole state of Vermont. Currant jelly is manufactured from the cores and parings of apples utilized after they have been evaporated; glucose, sugar, a vegetable acid and some coloring and flavoring matter complete the delicacy.

FINGERS AND FIGURES.

New Method of Teaching the Multiplication Table Invented by a Polish Pedagogue.

The boys and girls in the schools of Poland are taught a method of multiplication by the use of the fingers. It is said that the little people find it much more interesting than studying so many multiplication tables. This method is used in multiplying numbers above 5; below that the children commit to memory the few short tables necessary. That they may learn the finger process readily, in the beginning the numbers are written with pencil on the fingernails. The method is as follows:

The thumb represents 6, the first finger 7, the middle finger 8, the next 9, and the little finger 10.

To multiply any of these numbers the fingers that represent the multiplier and multiplicand, or the numbers to be multiplied, are placed together as illustrated.

For example, to multiply 8 by 9, the fourth finger of the left hand (counting always the thumb as the first finger) and the third finger of the right hand are placed tip to tip. Counting these two fingers thus joined with those above, on both hands, there are 7; add a cipher, and you have 70. Below these 7 fingers there are 2 on the right hand and 1 on the left, multiplying one by the other: 2x1 equals 2. Adding this 2 to

FIG. 1—8x9.

70, the first obtained, you have 72, the product of 9 and 8.

The second illustration, showing the multiplying of 7 and 9, may be clearly seen. Joining the second finger of the right hand to the fourth of the left, and counting these two with those above—there are 6; adding a cipher—60. Below there are 3 on one hand and 1 on the other, 3x1 equals 3, which, added to 60, equals 63, or 7x9.

Multiplying 6 by 6 with the joining of the thumbs works out as follows:

FIG. 3—6x6.

Adding the thumbs, being no fingers above—2; with cipher, 20. Multiplying the fingers below, 4x4 equals 16, added to 20, equals 36, or 6x6.

Any of these numbers represented on the fingers can be multiplied in this way with almost perfect results.

A somewhat similar process can be used with the higher numbers, the thumb representing 11, and so on. In this case there is a change in the latter part of the operation, and 100 is always added to the final result.

To multiply 13 by 14 place the fingers representing those numbers together (the third on the right hand and the fourth on the left). As before, add the upper fingers, including the two that touch, there are 7; with cipher, 70. Now multiply the same fingers that were just added, that is the 4 and 3 upper fingers that were added to make 7 and now used again and multiplied—4x3 equals 12. This 12 with the 70 makes 82, and adding the 100, the final result is 182, or 13 times 14.

Any number from 11 to 15 multiplied in this way will give correct results, as in the case of the smaller numbers.

This finger multiplication was invented by Procopovitch, a Polish mathematician, who carries his method into many and much more difficult combinations. — Jean Ely, in N. Y. Tribune.

Portland's Old Fire Horse.

In Portland, Ore., there is a big bay horse named Jerry, which is 23 years old, and for 17 years has faithfully served the city in the fire department. Anyone who has seen a fireman's horse in active service will know that Jerry has certainly earned his board. Now Jerry has become old and is inclined to be stiff in the joints. Under such circumstances a private owner generally takes out his faithful servant and knocks him on the head, under pretense that it is a "mercy" to him, but the city of Portland thinks otherwise. So the fire commissioners have decided that they will not sell the old fellow to be starved and abused, nor will they "mercifully" kill him, but that he is to have free hay and oats at the expense of the city as long as he lives.

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

William R. Townsend, of Kensington avenue, went to Somerville yesterday to bring home a valuable colt which he will train to the harness. The colt, whose dam was one of the famous mares of the Duke stud at Raritan, does not know what the bit is, and Mr. Townsend anticipates a lively time. The colt will be brought to his stable in this city, and kept here where it is being broken.

Harry Wilkes, 2.13½, whilom champion, is spending a serene old age at the farm residence of ex-Senator W. J. Keys, Somerville. The ex-champion will be 24 years old April 2d next. He was a stallion for a year or two, and some of his get are in the trotting list. He was bred by James M. Hendren, Speedwell, Ky. He was 11 years old when he made his record at Sacramento, Cal. He was a very handsome horse in his prime, and had a bold way of going which impressed one with his superb appearance when at top speed. It is only about two years ago Mr. Keyes cleaned the snow path at Somerville with the old horse. The old fellow liked the sport, and would make the old time rush when challenged for the lead. He had a checkered career while on the turf. His great campaign was in 1889, when Patron, Belle Hamlin and Prince Wilkes were in the zenith of their powers. Latterly, before his present owner rescued him, Harry Wilkes was pounded around from post to pillar, hippodromed and disgraced week in and week out, and yet few horses that have appeared were his equal in campaigning qualities. He is safe now. Mr. Keys will never sell him, and his remaining days will be passed in tranquility.

ON THE DIAMOND.

The newly-organized baseball team composed of scholars in the Borough Public High School are out most every day for practice and as the team is composed of good material some interesting games may be looked for.

The first regular practice of the candidates for the baseball nine of the Plainfield High School will be held to morrow morning in the school yard. A. B. Meredith, of the faculty, will be present to coach the boys and direct their preliminary practice.

The question of a pitcher is already beginning to trouble the boys of the Plainfield High School. Walter Squires, captain of the team, will occupy the place behind the bat, where he puts up a reliable game. Harold Davis has some ability as a twirler, and it is hoped that he will round up into good shape with plenty of practice.

It is the intention of the boys of Leal's School to have a nine on the diamond this season if possible. They had intended to hire the Crescent Rink for their preliminary practice and had started the necessary negotiations when they found that the rink was to be changed into a factory. As soon as the weather permits, the boys will start their practice out-of doors.

Among the candidates who will turn out this spring for the freshman nine at Princeton University will be Thos. Thomas, of Dunellen, who graduated from Leal's School last June. Thomas is a fast young player and is expected to distinguish himself on the diamond. Arthur Lederer will not be a candidate for the 'varsity nine, as he has left college for good. Lederer played on the freshman team and won his numerals. He was considered a good man for the 'varsity team and would have turned out with the squad had he been at college.

WHIST

The state whist trophy will be played for again next Monday evening when the team from the Jersey City Club will come here as challengers. In the many times that the Jersey Cityites and the Park Club five have met, the Park Club team has always been victorious. Another victory for the Plainfield team is there expected. That will make eleven victories for the Parks out of the coveted fifteen that give permanent ownership of the trophy.

FORESTERS' GOOD TIME.

COURT WATCHUNG GAVE A SUCCESSFUL "SMOKER."

Many High Chief Rangers From Out of Town Present—Musical Entertainment Provided.

The "smoker" given last evening by the members of Court Watchung, Independent Order of Foresters, to their brother Foresters proved a high old time, many high chief rangers from out of town, besides some not so high in the popular order, being present. Among the chief officers present were High Chief Ranger Sharrat, of Marlener's Harbor, Staten Island; J. C. Calvert, past high chief, of Elizabeth; Wm. T. Bingham, high court deputy, of Elizabeth; Lewis T. Titsworth, past high chief ranger, of Dunellen; J. B. Naylor, past high chief, of Plainfield; J. H. Davis, high secretary, of Elizabeth and High Physician Lowry, of Plainfield. Representatives of Court Dunellen, and members of the order from Elizabeth and Scotch Plains were present to the number of fully 200.

The evening was passed with a musical entertainment principally, solos being sung by William Holmes and High Secretary J. H. Davis, while a phonograph served to enliven the occasion.

High Chief Sharrat made a few remarks outling the benefits to be derived from the order.

After the entertainment coffee and sandwiches were supplied the guests, followed by cigars. While the smoke filled the hall a "feast of reason and a flow of soul" predominated. The evening proved to be one of the pleasant events in the history of the local order. The visitors felt well repaid for becoming the guests of so genial hosts at Court Watchung proved to be.

The entertainment committee consisted of Thomas H. Stafford, chairman; John Daub, Asa F. Randolph and John Lewis.

TO AID MARCONNIER.

Trinity Reformed Church Consistory Has Decided to Help Oak Tree Society.

An important step in religious circles was taken last evening by the consistory of Trinity Reformed church, when that official board decided unanimously to accept the application recently made by the members of Marconnier chapel to become members and a branch of Trinity Reformed church. This action was taken after due deliberation, during which the good work being carried on in that field was fully investigated. The members of Trinity Reformed church are glad to answer this call for help, and they will supply Christian workers for the Sunday-school at the chapel, and will occasionally assist in the divine services held there Sunday evenings.

Trinity church will assume full charge and in a few days the deed transferring the property will be arranged. Friday evening, March 23d, probably, a preparatory service will be held, and Sunday, March 25th, is the date set when the new arrangements will go into effect. In the afternoon of that day officers and members from Trinity church will hold a service at the chapel. Sacrament will be administered and members of the chapel will be received into church membership. There will also be interesting exercises to mark this event. From that date Trinity church will assume control and assist in the spiritual matters of this branch of their church.

and Edson C. Martin came forth and sang a pleasing baritone solo. "Sophia Suckup" was quite old but she wanted to be older. This broke the machine and further changes were impossible. This part closed with the singing of a popular selection by Mrs. Ward. Throughout the entertainment the members of the convention sang popular songs, individually and together, and the whole affair made a great hit.

Those who took the part of the president and secretary are from Somerville. They, as well as all others, received much credit for the very fine performance given.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Not all the wild animals are to be seen at the Sportsmen's Show at Madison Square Garden. Some have been found roaming at large in Plainfield. Wednesday a large sized muskrat was killed on North avenue and this morning a son of J. T Vail captured an opossum in the front yard at his father's residence on LaGrande avenue. It is believed the muskrat was forced from his winter quarters along the brook by the recent high water. Where the opposum came from has not yet been determined. With these harbingers of spring apparent warmer weather must be in sight.

MRS. HALL WANTS THE SCHOOL BILL PASSED

Public Statement Issued By President of New Jersey Woman's Suffrage Association.

URGES THE WOMEN TO VOTE.

PROPOSED LAW PRESERVES PRESENT RIGHTS OF THE FAIR SEX.

Mrs. Hall Points Out Several Features of the Bill Which She Considers Good Enough to Recommend Its Passage.

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, president of the New Jersey Woman's Suffrage Association, issued the following statement to the public today, in which she advocates the passage of the school bill now before the Legislature, and also urges upon women to participate in the school elections which will be held throughout the State outside of the cities March 20th:

"A bill revising the system of public instruction is now before the Legislature, and will doubtless be passed, with some modifications, before the end of the season. A difference of opinion exists as to certain features of this bill, such as the best method of apportioning money to the schools, powers of the State superintendent, etc. All who believe in our public system of education must rejoice, however, in the increased advantages given to children.

"I. By lowering the age of admission to the kindergarten from five to four. This is a logical consequence of the establishment of kindergartens since they are specially intended for very young children.

"II. By enabling the people of adjoining school districts to establish a Union Graded School, thus providing a better school than either district would be able to sustain alone.

"III. By giving Boards of Education power to provide for the transportation of children. With our rapidly developing trolley system, the latter can be transported at very low rates, by special contract, thus securing better advantages to those living at a distance from good schools.

"IV. By arranging for evening schools.

"VI. The employment of a medical inspector, thus preventing the spread of contagious diseases, and saving a community from untold misery and suffering, and loss of life and property.

"VII. By providing that all schools built hereafter shall be constructed with due regard to proper heating, lighting, ventilating, and other hygienic requirements, thus protecting children in the most precious of all possessions—health and eyesight.

"VIII. By establishing a written contract system for the employment of teachers, thus protecting the latter from unjust or arbitrary dismissal.

"Other excellent features might be enumerated, did space permit.

"While the bill gives no new rights of franchise to women, it carefully preserves those already possessed by them, to wit; the right of voting on all questions (save the election of school trustees) at all school meetings, and the right of serving as trustees in cities as well as in rural districts.

"Sixteen or more women were serving in this capacity at last accounts, and a number of substantial schoolhouses in our State have been erected through the feminine vote.

"It is to be hoped that mothers and all other women interested in education and the welfare of children, will attend the annual school meetings to be held March 20th, and will use the considerable power of franchise they now prossess.

"Florence Howe Hall,
"President New Jersey Woman Suffrage Association."

To Improve Evergreen Avenue.

C. M. Meeker has received the contract to macadamize Evergreen avenue from Hillside to Woodland avenues, and the work will be started at once. In connection with this improvement James E. Martine has promised to macadamize the road from Hillside avenue to Watchung avenue, and thus a fine road will run continuous in that section, adding much to the value of the property. F. J. Hubbard is the surveyor under whose direction the work will be done. The Plainfield Water Supply Company has also been asked to lay a six inch water main through the above section and provide fire plugs.

The Last Chance.

Chief Marshal Campbell says that he will give delinquent taxpayers a few days longer to settle with the collector. After that they will have to take the consequences.

THEY HELP THE MISSIONS

IMPORTANT MEETING OF TRINITY REFORMED CHURCH SOCIETY.

Miss Lillian A. Force Appointed Committees—An Address by Mrs. E. B. Horton.

The Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church met last evening in the lecture room of the church. Miss Lillian A. Force, the newly-elected president, presided for the first time. The first part of the meeting was devoted to transacting the monthly business. This included a report from the treasurer showing a balance of about $35, which is to be divided between the home and foreign mission fields. Miss Searing read several letters from beneficiaries of the band who are located in the west.

The president at this time announced the appointment of the various committees for the ensuing year. They are as follows:

Domestic missions—Mrs. A. J. Moore, chairman; Miss L. Bogart, Miss Grace Smith, Miss May VanFleet, Miss Mabel A. Woodruff, Mrs. L. Fischer. Foreign missions—Mrs. F. E. Woodruff, chairman; Mrs. F. S. Cutter, Miss J. Kissam, Miss Kirch, Mrs. W. Startup. Paper mission—Mrs. Will F. Williams. Mrs. A. E. Leggett, Miss Sadie Holmes, Miss Lillian Remsen. Flower mission—Miss Emma Line, chairman; Miss Bessie Martin, Miss Gertrude Tier, Miss Beulah Waters, Miss Mabel Wyckoff, Miss Grace Wyckoff. Birthday box—Miss Mabel Woodruff, chairman; Miss Grace Emmons, Miss Josie Fritz, Miss Abbie VanCleef, Miss Bertha Fischer. Cake committee—Mrs. W. Startup, chairman; Mrs. B. R. Rogers, Miss Anna Searing, Miss Cora Laire. Programme committee—Mrs. L. S. Smith, chairman; Mrs. F. E. Woodruff, Miss May Griffen, Miss Minnie Williams. Entertainment committee—Mrs. H. W. Marshall, chairman; Mrs. A. Leggett, Miss Etta Krymer, Miss Ada Chandler, Miss Adelaide Baxter. New membership committee—Miss Lillian Remsen, chairman; Miss Jennie Quick, Miss Martha Anthony, Miss Maude E. VanDyke.

This concluded the business and the president introduced Mrs. E. B. Horton, a mission worker of wide experience and ability, and an officer of the Board of Domestic Missions. She has spoken at this church before and is no stranger. Last evening she talked briefly concerning the mission work in North Dakota and in the south among the mountain whites. She depicted the condition of some of the people in those far away parts of the country, showing the urgent need for more work on the part of Christians at home. In many instances these people live a great many miles from stores and it is impossible for them to get articles that are a necessity, hence they appreciate the barrels of good things sent. In referring to the work in the south she said that the denomination thus far could only support one teacher, while there is a call for five more. In conclusion Mrs. Horton said that there are 60,000 women in the denomination and it is proposed to try and get $1 from each one this year for a century collection for mission work.

DOLLAR GAS IS UNDER CONSIDERATION AGAIN

Application Of The People's Company Talked Over by the Councilmen.

NOTHING DEFINITE AS YET.

HARD WORK TO TELL WHAT TERMS WILL BE ASKED.

Before the Meeting of the Council Monday Night, However, it is Expected that Proposition Will be Got in Shape.

The question of dollar gas is again to be considered by the Common Council. The lights and trees committee of the 1899 Council reported at the last meeting of the year and favored the granting of the franchise to the People's Gas Company under certain conditions. The report of the new lights and trees committee will be made at the meeting of the Council Monday evening. In preparation for that Councilman Mellick, chairman of that committee, called an informal conference of the Councilmen for last evening when the subject was discussed.

The committee will recommend that the Council grant the People's Gas Company a franchise, provided they comply with certain provisions suggested in the report. These provisions will be substantially the same recommended by the committee of last year's Council. Exactly what the changes, if any, are to be, it is impossible to say. There may be a conference between Mr. Mellick and representatives of the new gas company before the Council meeting Monday night that will decide concerning certain small questions.

The provisions recommended by last year's committee are now of considerable interest since they will form the basis of the demands of the new committee. It was suggested that for a term of at least five years, the company shall agree not to sell out or assign and shall give a bond for the faithful performance of that part of the agreement. It is remembered that the company promises to sell gas at the rate of not over $1 per thousand cubic feet.

Regarding proper regulations for the opening of streets to lay the pipes, it was suggested that not more than 200 yards of a street be opened at one time without special permission, while careful provision should be made for the proper relaying of the macadam. The third recommendation was that the Council should have the say as to what streets and in what part of the roadway the pipes should be laid as would be the most advantageous to the city's interests. Furthermore, it was advised that the company should give two weeks' notice before opening a street so that the city may have an opportunity to change the time if necessary.

The committee recommended that a date be fixed for the completion of the plant and piping of the city and that the city be given an option on the plant to buy it on equitable terms. The last suggestion was that the company should furnish all the city buildings with gas.

The question of charging a certain percentage on the gross receipts of the company was discussed but that subject the committee left open for further discussion.

These are the principal items that will be included in the report of Mr. Mellick's committee. The other additions are reported to add to the strictness of the contract but they will not be of a startling nature.

Most of the Councilmen and the Mayor were present at the conference last evening and spent some time discussing the subject.

Coal Bills Reduced 20 Per Cent.

Every householder in Plainfield will be interested in the advertisement in today's paper, inserted by Mr. Evans. A lively interest has already been awakened and some 25 installations made. The company which Mr. Evans represents asks no favors of anyone, but will install at their own expense to prove the claims made. Reports from those already installed show even better results than the guarantee. The device not only saves fuel, but gives more heat, less ashes, no clinkers, and works like a charm in mild or severe weather.

Special Sermon at St. Joseph's.

At St. Joseph's church tomorrow evening the musical service given by the quartette one week ago will be repeated, and Father Miller will deliver a discourse on the "History of the Catholic Church From the Human Standpoint." The music a week ago was greatly enjoyed, hence it was decided to repeat it.

"ROOKERY" NO LONGER FOR USE OF POLICE

Chairman of Police Board Decides to Rent the Olympia Building.

IT WILL BE FITTED FOR USE.

TEMPORARY CELLS WILL BE PUT INTO USE.

The Old Building is Too Much Damaged to Warrant Its Further Use For Police and the City Judge.

The "rookery," devastated by fire and condemned by the Board of Health, is to be abandoned by the city as police headquarters and city jail. President J. F. Buckle and the other members of the police board decided last evening that it was time to wipe out that public disgrace to this municipality since the conflagration of Thursday added to the general demoralization of the lockup. Until the new City Hall is built or a permanent quarters found for the station house and jail, the old Olympia on Sycamore street, near East Fourth street, will be utilized as temporary quarters for the police and their prisoners.

While the police are fairly comfortably quartered in the old fire engine house on West Second street, the cells in the "rookery" have been the only place for the confinement of prisoners. Considering the condition of the jail the police board has decided that it is a case of emergency and has taken immediate steps to get new quarters.

Another engagement prevented Councilman Buckle, president of the police board, from being present throughout the conference of the Councilmen on the $1 gas franchise last evening. Mr. Buckle visited the Council chamber just before the meeting, however, and secured a concensus of opinion from the Councilmen present regarding the question of temporary arrangements for the jail. His idea that it was a case of emergency was generally supported and he was given to undertand that the Council would stand by any action he might take at once without waiting for formal action by the Council.

The Olympia, which has been chosen by Mr. Buckle as the best answering the requirements for a temporary jail and station house, has had quite a history. It was originally built for a bowling alley by Asa Collier, who still owns it. It was then floored over and occasionally used for dances, parties and various meetings. The annual convention of the Plymouth Brethern was held there one year. The Filmore Colored Baptist church occupied the building for some months. Now it is to be a station house and city jail. It is on a back street, is close to the centre of town and can easily be reached.

Although a wooden structure, the building is strong and clean and can be comfortably heated. Temporary cells will be built at the back of the hall and the cell doors from the old jail will be removed for use there.

Practically the only alterations needed are the building of the cells which will be stronger and far more comfortable than those of the old jail. The city will, of course, have to bear the expense of making them as the building is not leased for any particular period. The plan of the board is to use it until the City Hall with its adjacent jail is ready for occupancy.

Baptism of an Infant.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Laury, of Watchung avenue, was baptized a few days ago by Rev. George Hauser, pastor of the German Reformed church, in the presence of a large number of relatives from Bethlehem, Pa., New York, Elizabeth and this city. The occasion was a very pleasant one. Jacob Miller and Edward Kenner, the latter a brother of Mrs. Laury, stood up with the parents. Mr Miller was the godfather. The son's given name is Arthur Edward. After the ceremony a social time was enjoyed and refreshments were served by the host and hostess.

Her Death Unexpected.

Mrs. Lydia M Atkinson, aged about 60 years, daughter of the late William C. Ayers, died this morning at the home of her sister, Mrs. S. A. Robinson, 122 Watchung avenue. Death was due to heart and liver complication. Mrs. Atkinson was ill about three days and her death was unexpected. Her home was in New York, but occasionally she visited this city. A daughter, Mrs. William Stout, of New York, survives her. The funeral services will be held from the residence, 122 Watchung avenue, Tuesday afternoon next at 2 o'clock. Interment private.

TROLLEY ROAD FOR BUSINESS PURPOSES

Line From Somerville to Pluckamen Is Said to be Assured.

IT WILL BE SIX MILES LONG.

EXPECTED TO HAVE IT IN OPERATION BY AUGUST.

Somerville Woollen Mills Want the Line for Freight Purposes—Will Run Over Private Property.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, March 10.—For over a year past James Brown, Jr., manager of the Somerville Woollen Mills, has been working to gain consents for the construction of a trolley line from Somerville to Puckamin, and at last his aim has been realized. Mr. Brown built a large hotel at Pluckamin and called it Kenilworth Inn. It was opened last summer and was well patronized by city folks. It is hoped to increase the patronize by the trolley. City people will then be enabled to reach this hostelry, at the foot of the Blue Ridge Mountains, with less effort than now. Pluckamin is an historic old village. There Washington and his army were encamped many months, and a number of soldiers of the Revolution lie buried in the little churchyard.

But the increased patronage for the hotel is not the only object of building the trolley. The Somerville Woollen Mills have built a wool washing plant at Pluckamin, the only one of the kind this side of Massachusetts. It requires absolutely pure water, and this is found in the Mine brook, along which the plant is located and which has been dammed for the purpose. Besides washing all the wool for the Somerville mill, washings for other mills is taken in, and teams are kept constantly busy carting wool back and forth. When the roads are bad there is considerable difficulty in getting the wool to and from Pluckamin, and here is where the trolley will come in. The road will be built over private property from Somerville to Pluckamin and freight cars will be run to transport the wool and other freight.

The road will enter Somerville near the Birdsall property, on the Easton turnpike, and will then come down West End avenue, joining the Brunswick Traction Company line at Doughty avenue.

Work will be commenced shortly and it is hoped to have the road in running order by August 1st. The distance is a little over 6 miles. The road will eventually be extended to Far Hills.

The building of this road will be a good thing for Somerville, as it will tend to bring trade here that now goes to Morristown. It will offset the trade that now goes from Somerville to Plainfield.

DINNER TO CHURCHMEN

Pleasant Affair for Workers in the Park Avenue Baptist Church.

At the residence of Mrs. Peter Wyckoff, 913 Putnam avenue, a complimentary supper was tendered by G. E. Hall to the pastor, deacons and trustees of the Park Avenue Baptist church, Thursday evening. Covers were laid for fourteen. At the close of the supper a number of interesting and spirited after dinner speeches were made.

Each guest received a little booklet especially prepared for the occasion. The little volume contained a complimentary notice to the pastor, deacons, and trustees, with suggestions and questions as to how the work in the church might be improved and enlarged.

The guests of the evening were Rev. John W. Richardson, Wm. M. Tallman, T. I Runyon, D. M. Runyon, Andrew Fish, J. W. Johnson, John H. Doane, Roland C. Treadwell, C. K. Compton, A. D. Thompson, F. K. Fish, Sr., F. D Ostrom.

LAWYERS ASK FOR VOTES

URGE THE RE-ELECTION OF JUSTICE MATTISON IN BOROUGH.

Praise His Judicial Record and Say That He Deserves to Continue in Office.

The many friends among the legal fraternity in this city of Justice William E. Mattison, the Democratic candidate for a re-election in the borough, have united in a "Round Robin" in his behalf. A printed circular has been sent to each voter setting forth that the venerable justice has been considered "accurate in the preparation of papers, fair in his rulings, and equitable in his decisions, being proverbially courteous to the members of the Bar; that his decisions have almost invariably been in conformity with the law, only one judgment rendered by him having been reversed by a higher court." It is further set forth that Justice Mattison can always be found at his drug store and office, 85 Somerset street, and that no other candidate for the office in question is similarly situated, the other candidates being engaged in occupations demanding their attention in various parts of the borough each day.

The "Robin" concludes with an appeal to the voters of North Plainfield, irrespective of party, to cast their ballots next Tuesday for Justice Mattison for the office of Justice of the Peace "thereby placing the judiciary beyond the pale of politics, putting aside all feelings of personal enmity for the promotion of justice and right, honor and equity." The petition is signed by C. L. Murphy, Isaac P. Runyon, George Ball, John H. VanWinkle, H. C. Suydam, Harry C. Runyon, Walter L. Hetfield, F. J. Blatz, R. M. Clark, W. S. Angleman, Carlos C. Gallup, W. K. McClure, J. P. D. Kirch.

Justice Mattison's political opponents are Joseph Lunger and Charles Taynor, the Republican nominees. It is understood that neither of these gentlemen desire the office.

SHOP MEN WON THE DAY.

Citizens' Primary in Bound Brook Was a Lively One Last Evening.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, March 10—The citizens of this place held a primary last evening for the purpose of placing in nomination two members of the Council to fill the places to be vacated by Councilmen David Hastings and Jas. McNabb, and also to nominate a Constable and Commissioner of Appeal. There was a very large attendance of citizens and the contest was very close. The employes of the various shops and woollen mill turned out and overwhelmingly defeated what might be termed the "kid-glove" element. John McGaw and Joseph L. Durn were nominated for the Council for a term of three years. J. W. Sebring was nominated for Constable for three years, and Benj. Billian was nominated for Commissioner of Appeal for three years.

Just what bearing this will have regarding the efforts of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company to get into Bound Brook cannot yet be ascertained. It is the general opinion, however, that the telephone company will be successful and eventually get what they are after.

DEATH OF MRS. SWAIN.

Passed Away After an Illness Extending Over Two Years.

Mrs. Phillip Swain, aged 48 years, died yesterday afternoon at her home on Craig place, after an illness extending over a period of two years. During the past three weeks her condition was critical and her death was expected at any time. The cause of death was chiefly heart trouble. Mrs. Swain was a native of this State and was a resident of the borough for many years. She was a devoted Christian woman and a faithful member of the Crescent Avenue church. A husband and four children survive her. The children are the Misses Margaret, Stella and Edna Swain and Walter Swain. She also leaves a brother, Joseph Bogart, of this city.

A Great Trip Abroad.

Mr. Honeyman's first trip to the Paris Exposition is advertised to start May 24th, and, first, takes in Berlin, the picture galleries of Dresden and Munich, and then the Passion Play at Ober Ammergau. The party then visits Switzerland and the Paris Exposition, after which there is to be a special extension of the tour through Normandy, that quaint old portion of France which was the home of William the Conqueror, and whose ancient inhabitants conquered England. Mr. Honeyman announces that he will personally conduct the tour throughout, and that the party is limited to twenty persons.

MARCH ATTRACTIONS AT THE MUSIC HALL.

Hoyt's "A Day and a Night" To Be Played Monday Evening.

"DARK" WEEK IS OVER NOW.

"HEART OF MARYLAND" BIG EVENT IN APRIL.

A Rapid Succession of Good Plays for the Remainder of This Month With Others in View.

After being "dark" for a week, the Stillman Music Hall will resume its wonted activity Monday evening with Hoyt's production of his latest farce comedy, "A Day and a Night." Hoyt's plays are always good and this one made a decided hit during the time it appeared at the Madison Square Theatre and the Garden Theatre, New York. Substantially the same cast that assisted in the New York production will come here Monday evening. A good sale of seats is already reported.

The next attraction booked by Manager Edwards is for Thursday evening, when a two-act musical farce comedy, entitled "Clorindy or the Origin of the Cake Walk" will be given. Last summer it was produced by E. E. Rice on the Casino Roof Garden, New York, where it rose in popular favor at once. There's just enough plot to serve as a pleasant background for a great variety of excellent up-to-date specialties.

The evening of St. Patrick's Day, Saturday of next week, will see a big crowd at Music Hall. Under the auspices of the A. O. H., William J. Romain and a talented company will produce the comedy "Our Regiment."

The plot is not burdensome. It is as follows: A regiment of British lancers is coming to the village of Muddborough-On-Slush, and as it is an event which seldom happens, the whole town is ago with excitement and enthusiastic welcome, all but one retired merchant, Mr. Dobbinson, who can't so much as bear the sight of a uniform. Of course his wife, his daughter and his niece are all devoted admirers of the military and Mrs. Dobbinson, unbeknown to her husband, has invited two of the officers to stop at their house during the stay of the regiment in the village. When Dobbinson finds this out, there is considerable excitement, but in spite of all, the wife carries the day and Captain Featherstone and Lieutenant Warrener arrive.

Dobbinson's niece, an heiress, had met the captain two years before and believes that she made a great impression on him. He appears upon his arrival to be perfectly indifferent to the young woman, while Lieut. Warrener, knowing her to be wealthy, is very attentive. Piqued at Featherston's apparent forgetfulness, the niece flirts violently with the other officer, while Olive, Dobbinson's daughter, who has fallen in love with Warrener, strikes up a hysterical flirtation with the captain in sheer desperation.

Dobbinson's old friend and neighbor, Mr. Ellaby, is a great admirer of the military, but seriously objects to clerical robes. His niece falls in love with the parish curate, whereat the Ellaby tries to control his niece's affections.

There is no end of fun before all these complications are satisfactorily settled as of course they are before the curtain falls. The young people are paired off properly, the objecting relatives are reconciled to the situation and all ends happily. During the third act, the brilliant military gavotte will be danced on the lawn by three young couples.

And the other attractions for the month. To begin with, Al Reeves' big vaudeville company is booked for Monday evening, March 19th. Among the artists associated with him is Miss Inez Mecusker, the American Patti, a prima donna of great talent.

Charles Heywood is coming in a musical comedy Thursday night, March 22d. He has been heard here in the "The Irish Alderman." Associated with him is Charles Fostelle, the female impersonator. Friday and Saturday evenings, March 30th and 31st, Ah Foon, a Chinese juggler, with a supporting company, is to appear. They have had a very successful run at Keith's Theatre, New York.

The star event for April will be Belasco's own company in "The Heart of Maryland," on the evening of April 19th. It is a certainty and will undoubtedly fill the house to its utmost capacity. Bert Coote and his company of comedians will give "Naughty Samuel" while the Tommy Shearer Repertoire Company are booked for the week beginning April 23d.

BOER POWER WANING

England Believes the End of the War Near.

RUMORS OF MAFEKING'S RELIEF.

Lord Roberts Reports Further Progress—The Boers Appear to Have Been Seized With a Panic and Are Scattering.

LONDON, March 10.—Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, chancellor of the exchequer, when explaining to the bankers the terms of the new loan gave them an intimation that the government considered the end of the war near. "Since the estimates were prepared," he said, "events have taken place that have changed the situation, and probably not all the money will be required."

Whatever the government may know or intend, unofficial opinion seems everywhere to think that the Boer power is collapsing.

It is quite clear that General Buller will not try anything large in the future, as he is to lose Sir Charles Warren and the latter's 10,000 men, who have been ordered to join Lord Roberts. It is the expectation of the war office that Lord Roberts, notwithstanding the necessity of garrisoning his depots, will be able to operate a constantly increasing force until by the time the Transvaal frontier is reached he will have 70,000 troops.

His telegrams dealing with nonessentials are taken to mean that he is up to some mischief, as his apparent inactivity usually spells uncommon activity.

Mafeking as a beleaguered town attracts much sentiment and sympathy. Nothing has been heard from there since Feb. 19. There is a rumor this morning that Colonel Baden-Powell has been relieved, but this cannot be traced to any substantial basis.

The war office has issued the following dispatch from Lord Roberts:

"Clements has occupied Norval's pont and the adjacent drift. As soon as the engineers, pontoon and troops arrive he will cross the river, when the necessary repairs to the railway bridge will be commenced.

"Gatacre occupied Burghersdorp March 7 and was greeted with great enthusiasm on the part of the loyal inhabitants. His scouts report that large numbers of the rebels in the neighborhood are anxious to surrender."

All the special dispatches from Poplar Grove confirm the reports of the panic of the Boers. The Morning Post's correspondent says:

"President Kruger shed tears at his ineffectual attempts to rally the Boers, who were completely paralyzed by Lord Roberts' masterly tactics. They were too demoralized to heed his expostulations and declared that the British cannon were everywhere."

The correspondent of The Daily News says:

"The Boers were seized with a panic, thus spoiling the whole plan, which had been beautifully calculated to destroy them utterly.

"As the Sixth division emerged from a hidden position and appeared on the crest with the mounted infantry in skirmishing order the Boers thought the whole earth covered with soldiers, in their front and rear and on their flanks. They did not wait to verify their supposition, but fled, seized apparently with a dread that they might share the fate of Cronje."

The Daily Mail publishes the following dispatch from Pretoria, dated March 8, via Lourenco Marques, which had been censored by the Boer government:

"Conversations I have had with the highest state officials show that the Boers want some arrangement. They say that if England is waging a war of conquest they will fight to the finish. Otherwise they believe that a plain statement of the British intentions will reveal a basis of negotiation now that England's prestige is repaired.

"President Kruger and President Steyn conferred Monday at Bloemfontein on the incorporation of the above representations in a cablegram to Lord Salisbury. The preservation of the independence of the two republics is a sine qua non."

A correspondent of The Daily Mail at Lourenco Marques, telegraphing Thursday, says:

"I am reliably informed that high officials openly avow that the British flag shall never fly at Johannesburg. The place will be razed to the ground and the mines put in readiness to be electrically exploded from the fort as occasion requires.

"Most of the gold mines, except those which the government controls, are in a shocking state. They are flooded, and the machinery is rusting and being willfully smashed."

The Boers Scattered.

POPLAR GROVE, Orange Free State, March 10.—General French, who is ten miles ahead, reports that his front is clear of the Boers. All other reports tend to confirm the state of disorganization of the Boer forces, Transvaal as well as Free State. The general impression is that the further progress of the British to Bloemfontein will not be opposed.

A great amount of ammunition was destroyed yesterday. This included several boxes of explosive bullets, on the outside of which the Boers had marked, "Manufactured for the British government."

Stanley H. Riggs a Suicide In Mexico.

NEW YORK, March 10.—Word has been received here that Stanley Huntington Riggs, noted as a football player, conspicuous in the naval reserves and well known in this city, had committed suicide in a lonely camp in the heart of Mexico. The news was sent to his father, H. B. Riggs, a well known clubman, in a letter from D. F. Buckingham, who was Riggs' tent mate and also from New York. Stanley Riggs went to Mexico as a civil engineer two years ago with a party composed of Yale and Princeton graduates. They received high salaries for laying out the new railways of the Huntington system in Mexico.

Lost Fireman Found.

FISHKILL LANDING, N. Y., March 10.—Fireman Frank Spencer disappeared from an engine on the New Haven road a month ago. It was supposed he fell into the Housatonic river. The company spent $100 dragging for the body. His wife and children mourned him as dead. A former employee of the New Haven railroad discovered him acting as a brakeman on the New York Central railroad as a train stopped here and spoke to him. He told a confused story regarding his disappearance.

MASON'S PRO-BOER TALK.

Given Behind Closed Doors—Hay-Pauncefote Treaty Amended.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Discussion of Mr. Mason's resolution expressing sympathy for the Boers was conducted in the senate yesterday behind closed doors, Mr. Davis, chairman of the committee, demanding that the doors be closed.

The feature of the open session was a speech by Mr. Lindsay of Kentucky on the Porto Rican tariff and government measure. He opposed the tariff provision of the bill and some parts of the proposition for the Porto Rican government. He maintained that under the treaty of Paris, which provided that the civil rights and political status of the native inhabitants of the islands acquired by the United States from Spain shall be fixed by congress, the congress had authority to deal with Porto Rico and the Philippines as it saw fit, giving free trade to the one and levying a tariff on the products of the other. He opposed the doctrine that the constitution extended ex proprio vigore over the territory acquired by this government.

The senate committee on foreign relations agreed to report the Hay-Pauncefote treaty amending the Clayton-Bulwer treaty with an amendment granting authority for the defense of the canal by this country when constructed.

The committee was practically unanimous in favor of the amendment to the treaty. Some objection was made by Senator Morgan (Ala.), but he will not oppose the measure in the senate, accepting the change in order to hasten the action of the senate. Quite an elaborate report has been prepared by Mr. Morgan, which will be submitted to the senate in executive session when the treaty is reported. It is the opinion of the members of the committee that the senate will with but little delay ratify the treaty as amended.

The amendment is brief. It simply provides that the restrictions in the treaty shall not operate to prevent the United States from using its own forces for the defense of the interests of the United States and the maintenance of order.

Senator Morgan was the only member of the committee who cast his vote against the amendment, Senators Bacon and Daniel, the only other Democrats present, voting with the Republicans. They also voted with the Republicans to have the treaty reported as amended.

THE MORTGAGE TAX.

A Modified Measure Reported to the New York Senate.

ALBANY, March 10.—The committee on taxation, through Mr. Stranahan, reported to the senate yesterday almost an entirely new mortgage tax bill, so full of amendments is it.

So certain are the members of its passage that the bill in section 1 contains a clause authorizing the comptroller to borrow $6,000,000 for current expenses, to be paid out of the mortgage tax to be collected.

The bill still further provides for a tax of five mills on all real estate mortgages and 1 per cent on all trust company and bank stock, with these exceptions:

The bond or mortgage previously issued for less than 4 per cent shall not pay the tax.

All bonds hereafter to be issued for any rate of interest shall pay the tax.

Senator Stranahan gave this explanation of the changes:

"It does not change the tax of one-half of 1 per cent on the regular mortgage or 1 mill on bank and trust company shares, but in this particular:

"It exempts mortgages heretofore made bearing less than 4 per cent interest, whether individual or corporate.

"It exempts mortgage secured bonds where there is an agreement in the instrument that the obliger will pay any tax imposed on the mortgage. This is to help out street railway companies in some cities which in mortgages already in existence have agreed to pay any tax imposed, and the bill was not intended to be a burden on the borrower.

"The bill permits trustees and executors to invest in securities upon lands within the state in which savings banks are permitted to invest, so as to encourage investment in domestic instead of foreign securities.

"The bill does not exempt building and loan associations from the tax on mortgages, but does exempt them from the bank stock tax."

The Chicago Labor Troubles.

CHICAGO, March 10.—Efforts of contractors yesterday to place nonunion men at work on buildings in various parts of the city, work on which had been interrupted by the strike, resulted in several encounters between union and nonunion men, and but for the presence of strong guards of police serious trouble might have occurred. At the new Ogdensburg dock the contractors succeeded in getting 18 men through the picket lines of the union picketmen and put them to work. A few bricks were slammed around in promiscuous fashion, but no one was hurt, and the police quickly suppressed the disorder. Strikers and nonunion men also clashed near the factory of the Western Electric company, Jefferson and Congress streets, several fist fights occurring.

Bold Thieves at Rye.

RYE, N. Y., March 10.—Two daring thieves entered the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad station here at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon and in the absence of the agent, Shields, loaded the fine armchairs, revolving chairs, fancy tables, mats and costly pictures upon a wagon and drove away. Many persons in the station witnessed the robbery, but they thought the men were taking the things away for repairs.

A Sunshine Society.

ALBANY, March 10.—The International Sunshine society, with its principal office in New York city, was incorporated yesterday. The object of the society is to bring the sunshine of happiness to the greatest possible number of hearts and homes. Among the incorporators are Cynthia Westover Alden, Dr. Sara Williams-Vanderbeek, Mrs. Phœbe P. Knapp, Mrs. Bertha Roberts and others of New York city.

A Great Tragedian Remembered.

PHILADELPHIA, March 10.—The ninety-fourth anniversary of the birth of Edwin Forrest was commemorated by the placing of a bronze tablet in the front of his former home here, now occupied by the School of Design For Women. The tablet contains the following inscription: "This building was formerly the home of Edwin Forrest, the greatest tragedian of his time." Forrest died here Dec. 12 1872.

BRIDGE WORK

In Dentistry is the best substitute for nature's work that can be done, Sound roots may be built up and crowned and thus fill up an unsightly space. OH, MAMMA DEAR!

did you hear that Woolston & Buckle has the finest wall paper in town. With Kaleidoscopic change on lovely backgrounds?
Daisies blossom on paper of azure blue,
Roses bud and bloom on an ashen hue,
Lillies of the valley are scattered on green
And flowers of all tints are everywhere seen
On colors exquisitely blended with care
To reproduce fruits, and flowers as fair
As if aid on by Nature's own hand,
Unique designs both opaque and round,
And Japanese figures on gilded ground
And fantistic Beardsley lines are found
In a bewildering array.
Transform your bare and hideous walls
Into dreams of beauty as profuse
As covered Granada's famous halls.
From any design your fancy may choose,
The walls of the cottage are covered with ease,
It's not our custom, but the wealthy to please.
We have beautiful papers at a low price.
Although not so gorgeous, are artistic and nice.

THE "Know How" —IN— PAPER HANGING

is what we make no charge for. You pay for the materials and the labor—nothing more. Our paper hangers are men who "KNOW HOW" to measure a room—"KNOW HOW" to size it—"KNOW HOW" to cut, match and hang the paper. They know their business. Its good policy to intrust your work in our hands—we'll see that you get a good job. That's what you want; that's just what you'll get if we do it. You can surely find just what you want among our many choice patterns—all the very latest styles.

FOREIGN GOSSIP.

Nearly 50 per cent. of the people of France and Germany are engaged in farming pursuits.

Natural gas, conveyed through bamboo tubes, has been used for years in China for illuminating purposes.

The population of London is equal to the combined population of Paris, Berlin, St. Petersburg and Rome.

The depopulation of Peru is illustrated by the fact that the valley of Santa, which in the days of the Incas had a population of 700,000, now has only 5,000.

The Muckross estate, which includes the famous lakes of Killarney, is annually visited by so many visitors that their fees amount to at least $6,000 a year, which is two per cent. of the price paid by Lord Ardilaun for the property.

The military budget of the French republic foots up a total of 29,000 officers, whose pay alone amounts to nearly £4,000,000. Italy, under the same head, has 14,000 officers, drawing £1,450,000 annually. Spain pays, on account of 23,000 officers, the sum of £2,750,000.

One of the reasons why Paris is so pleasant a city to live in is that there are many "mondes" there. Whether you are literary, or musical, or artistic, or, indeed anything whatsoever else, you are sure to find a little congenial world and society devoted to your favorite form of art.

The greatest banquet in history took place on August 18, 1889, when the 40,000 mayors of France sat at a table in the Palais de l'Industrie, in Paris. There were three relays of about 13,000 guests each. To prepare the feast required 75 chief cooks and 13,000 waiters and scullions, etc.

WHEN HERRING SWARM.

How Thousands of Barrels Are Captured with Torch and Net in Massachusetts Bay.

Never in the history of Massachusetts bay fisheries has there been recorded a more successful herring season than the present one. Thousands of barrels have been trapped, many have been taken in the gill nets, but the torch and dip net have played great havoc with the shining-backed fishes. The taking of fresh herring in the harbor and near the shore this season in such large numbers brought thousands of dollars to the trapmen, and because of their cheapness and quick delivery hundreds of vessels have been baited up, sent to the fishing grounds and brought in on quick trips.

The use of the torch for enticing fish to the surface of the water dates away back; the Boston, Swampscott and South Shore fishermen have dipped sperling near Plymouth by the aid of the torch for 50 years, as well as the Eastport sardine fishers. The novelty about this season's business is the dipping of full-grown herring at night by the use of the torch. There have been few spawn herring taken in this way, for the fish that once made the waters of Boston bay appear like a sea of milk by their deposits of spawn and melt have not shown on this coast for years. The herring which struck this coast in such countless numbers this season is an entirely new species.

Among the novel boats engaged in fishing is the potroleum boat Quartette, and when Capt. William Dexter extended an invitation to a reporter to make a trip it was accepted, and the craft was churned toward Cohasset at the rate of seven knots an hour. Outside Boston light a heavy swell was met, but the boat kept on until the shore of Cohasset was reached, then the anchor was dropped and the mainsail set to keep her from rolling.

The preparation for torching was simple, as when the dory was hauled up alongside a pole with a grate attached was lashed across the bow and the grate filled with cotton, over which was poured petroleum. There were four men in the dory—two on the oars, one to dip and a boat steerer. As soon as they got into shoal water the torch was lighted, and while the men on the oars made the dory spin through the water the man in the bow stood ready to dip when the fish came to the surface in response to the light.

Soon there rose to the surface herring in countless numbers, and every time the dip net went down a bushel of the shiny backs was brought into the boat. Thirty dips were made, resulting in a take of ten barrels. Then the dory went alongside the launch and shoveled them on deck. Ten trips were made, and Capt. Dexter said he had 100 barrels, which was all he could comfortably carry.

The anchor was hauled up and the boat headed for Boston. It was as novel and pleasing a way of taking fish as the writer ever saw, and when under way the crew sat down to a midnight meal after two hours' hard work. The boat arrived at T wharf at 3:30 a. m., and when the market opened at seven o'clock part of the catch was sold for bait and the balance to the dealers.—Boston Globe.

Women's Hands.

Women's hands are increasing in size. The athletic sports in which they indulge have had the effect of widening their hands, and glovemakers are turning out large sizes in greater quantities. The fashion of wearing no gloves in summer has hurt the glove trade tremendously. Last summer it was the exception to see a girl or woman wearing gloves.—Detroit Free Press.

His Desire.

Her Father—No, young man, my daughter can never be yours.

Her Adorer—I beg pardon; I don't want her to be my daughter; I want her to be my wife.—Harlem Life.

THE YAQUI UPRISING

Several Mexican Towns Ransacked by the Indians.

MASSACRE FEARED BY TROOPS.

The Government Is Puzzled to Locate the Source From Which the Indians Get Their Arms and Ammunition.

AUSTIN, March 10.—Advices from Ortiz, state of Sonora, Mexico, are that the Indians have continued their depredations to an alarming extent during the past week, having ransacked a great stretch of territory and done no little damage to several hamlets along the road between Potam and Torin. The Mexican troops do not seem to be able to cope with the situation at the present writing, and it is manifest that more men will be needed to effectually suppress the uprising. The Indians, who were all banded together about ten days ago for the purpose presumably of making an attack upon the main forces of the Mexicans at a point near Torin, have again dispersed into roving bands of some 200 or 300 each, and in this manner they are covering a great range of territory and doing more damage in the way of marauding movements. It is evident, however, that they are in constant communication with one another, both by "runners" and by signal fires, as almost every night signal fires are flashed from the mountains, indicating the temporary camp of some of the Indians.

Owing to the unsettled and extremely wild country in this neighborhood, however, the Mexican troops do not dare venture to the location in the night, and, for that matter, they find great difficulty in leaving the road during the day owing to the acres of prickly pear and chaparral through which they have to wade and which seriously interferes with their progress. The Mexican troops are very suspicious of the Indians laying traps to massacre the entire force and do not show much inclination to venture into the mountain fastnesses. Several efforts have been made to get small detachments of men through to Potam, but without success, as the Indians seem to be very plentiful in that neighborhood and are waging an unusually bold warfare upon all troops that come to the scene of action.

The Mexican government will make one more attempt during the coming week to force its way through and to that end will mobilize its troops and attempt to engage the Indians. The Mexican government is puzzled to locate the source from which the Indians are securing all their guns and ammunition, as they seem to be securing additional supplies of both almost weekly, and now hundreds of them are armed with the very best rifles, while at the opening of the uprising it was estimated that not 1,000 of them had rifles, many having to use bows and arrows. Parties coming in from the scene of the various engagements state that evidently no prisoners are being taken.

A few miles out from Guaymas on Tuesday half a dozen Mexican soldiers were found swinging from trees, and near Potam, on the same day, five Indian braves were hanging from mesquite trees. Near LaMoucha on Sunday 15 bodies were discovered lying in the undergrowth.

A Revenue Tax Ruling.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The commissioner of internal revenue in a letter construing the paragraph in schedule A in the war revenue act relating to the stamp tax on conveyance of real property now holds that it is only upon conveyances of realty sold that conveyance stamps are required—that is, upon conveyances of realty where a valuable consideration, a benefit capable of estimation in money value, either passes or has passed or is to pass from the grantee to the grantor. The previous ruling upon this question is reversed, but taxes heretofore paid in compliance with it will not be refunded.

Pure Food Men at Odds.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The national pure food and drug congress closed its sessions with more or less bad blood prevailing as a result of what some officers and members claimed was an attempted breach of an understanding that no business should be transacted before adjourning. A resolution was passed thanking Senators Hansbrough, Allen and Mason and Representatives Brosius and Babcock for their efforts for pure food legislation. All the old officers were re-elected and the congress adjourned, although harmony had been by no means restored.

John Ruskin's Will.

LONDON, March 10.—Though John Ruskin's will and codicils have not yet been proved, it is understood the testator confirms the deed of gift made by him in 1885 whereby Braywood and all its contents are settled on Mrs. Arthur Severn. Certain literary duties are intrusted to her, in conjunction with Professor Charles Eliot Norton, the author, of Cambridge, Mass., and Mr. Alexander Wedderburn, Q. C. After certain annuities to the servants, the residence is given to the Severns, who, with Mr. C. M. Barker, are executors and trustees.

Government Clerk Arrested.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Chief Wilkie of the treasury secret service has been notified of the arrest in Philadelphia of Edward E. Grimmell, formerly a civilian clerk in the office of the disbursing officer for the medical department of the army under Major J. B. Hall in San Francisco. The charge against him is that of the theft of United States property, and he was held by a United States commissioner for a further hearing on March 16. It is expected that he will be taken to San Francisco for trial.

The Queen Serenaded.

LONDON, March 10.—The huge serenade in front of Buckingham palace which was the feature of Thursday's welcome to her majesty was repeated last evening, some 20,000 people participating. The queen, the Prince of Wales and other members of the royal family appeared at the windows, and the people sang "God Save the Queen" and other patriotic songs.

McGovern a Winner.

NEW YORK, March 10.—As had been anticipated, Terry McGovern won his fight against Oscar Gardner last night at the Broadway Athletic club with little trouble. Gardner landed some hard blows, but was clearly outpointed by his opponent.

DEBS FOR PRESIDENT.

Social Democracy Names a Ticket In Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 10.—This is the ticket of the Social Democratic party:

For President—Eugene Victor Debs of Indiana.

For Vice President—Job Harriman of California.

By these nominations the Social Democratic party absorbs the Hilquit-Harriman faction of the Socialist Labor party by agreement.

The Social Democrats were happy today. They say the candidacy of Debs will attract hundreds of thousands of voters to their party. They profess to see the beginning of a great national victory.

The convention in agreeing to unite with the Socialist Labor faction retains the party name—Social Democratic party. The candidates and the amalgamation are to be approved by a majority of each party, according to the referendum.

Mr. Debs had previously refused to accept the nomination, but finally succumbed to persuasion.

FILIPINOS ACTIVE.

Hood and Young Ask For Re-enforcements to Repel Attacks.

MANILA, March 10.—Generals Young and Hood are asking for re-enforcements, and a battalion of the Forty-eighth regiment has been sent to Aparri. Other troops will follow. The rebels recently persistently attacked Aparri for several hours, but were finally driven away. Details of the affair are lacking.

The rebels are holding reunions in the province of North Ilocos, and the red "Katipunan" cross, symbolic of resistance, is again appearing among the natives.

It is believed that the insurgent Generals Tinio and Flores have been driven by General Young into General Hood's district.

The fact that General Young is unable owing to lack of troops to maintain garrisons in all the towns occupied has had a bad effect on the natives.

General Bates has returned here after leaving garrisons in the provinces of North and South Camarines. The expedition lost seven men killed and ten wounded. On entering New Caceres, province of South Camarines, General Bates learned that 2,000 insurgents had departed the same day.

The Americans immediately sent out three pursuing columns, encountering the enemy in small engagements and killing a total of 40 men.

The Spanish prisoners report that the enemy has divided into small bands in the mountains under the leadership of General Legaspi.

The town of Iraga has been burned by the enemy. Both provinces were thoroughly scouted.

Twelve hundred well armed insurgents formerly of Cavite province, with a Chinese general in command, surrounded the towns of Albay and Legaspi. They have made three night attacks and continually harass the Forty-seventh regiment, which has lost 8 men killed and 20 wounded in defending these towns.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Sixteen miners were killed in an explosion near Nimes, France.

The snuff trust was incorporated in New Jersey with $25,000,000 capital.

The ameer of Afghanistan authorized the publication of a statement showing friendliness to England and hostility to Russia.

A disappointed audience at San Luis Potosi, Mexico, attacked the bullfighters and were about to lynch them when the police interfered.

Judge Morris in the district court at Austin dismissed 100 franchise tax suits pending against quasi public corporations for alleged taxes.

The steamer Windsor, arriving at Calais, France, reported the loss of the steamer Cuvier in collision with an unknown vessel. All on board but three were believed to be drowned.

Overcome In a Tunnel.

SOMERSET, Ky., March 10.—Engineer O'Brien and the fireman of train No. 5 of the Queen and Crescent, which left Cincinnati at 6:50 a. m., were overcome yesterday by smoke while passing through the long tunnel at King's mountain, Tennessee. Several members of the Gentry Dog and Pony show were also overcome, but no one was killed, and there was no wreck. Officials say the train was only delayed an hour. The tunnel is about a mile long.

Pennsylvania Coal Lands Bought.

GREENSBURG, Pa., March 10.—The Jamison Coke and Coal company, after a lively struggle with big moneyed competition, has closed a deal for 1,500 acres of coal land, the last of the Greensburg basin to be bought up. The company will erect 300 coke ovens and open mines in the early spring. The option on the land was held by John B. Steel. The price has not been given out, but it is said it will average about $200 per acre.

Millions of Trout Hatched.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 10.—During the month of February the output of trout and trout fry at the three state fish hatcheries was 2,935,525. Of that number 2,157,125 were hatched at the Caledonia hatchery, 284,100 at Cold Spring and 494,300 at Pleasant Valley.

A BUSINESS SHRINKAGE.

Nothing Unusual at This Season. Cotton Falls—Wheat Supply Large.

NEW YORK, March 10.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

A certain hesitation in business with shrinkage in its volume is not unusual nor unnatural at this season. It is not necessarily disheartening, therefore, if business is no longer as large in volume as ever, but falls behind that of February or January or of the corresponding week last year. If obstacles in the way are soon removed and if prices are so adjusted as to encourage and not to prevent transactions, the measure of prosperity realized may again surpass all records. The obstacles are considerable. Strikes in building trades or of machinists and others at Chicago affect many industries and the wages of 50,000 hands. The remarkable rise in cotton has apparently met the expected reaction which tends for the time to repress business.

The output of iron furnaces March 1 was 292,643 tons weekly against 298,104 Feb. 1, and unsold stocks increased 35,516 tons in February, making consumption 40,921 tons daily against 41,642 tons in January. Temporary stoppage of four furnaces near Pittsburg by a strike and the reduction of output by many furnaces in blast, perhaps in part desired and in part the effect of scarcity of coke, have supported prices of pig, and of finished products the only change is a slight decline in plates. Connellsville coke ovens are producing 219,221 tons weekly, with 200 more ovens soon to be added, but coke is hard to get even at $3.50 for furnace.

Cotton sold on Monday at 9.81 cents, the highest point since Jan. 10, 1893, when the crop suddenly fell from 9,000,000 to 6,700,000 bales. A sharp reaction came on Wednesday, and the price dropped three-sixteenths that day.

Estimates of wheat in farmers' hands March 1, 164,000,000 bushels, according to The American Agriculturist, do not indicate a lack of supply this year, for with 54,000,000 bushels in visible stock there is in sight nearly as much as a year ago, when foreign demands were extraordinary, and yet the crop year ended with over 33,000,000 bushels in visible supply.

London wool sales, so long awaited by speculators here to lift up prices again, opened with a severe decline of 7½ to 10 per cent, causing such disappointment that much selling is likely, especially as manufacturers who have held out of the market for some months have still too large stocks of wool and too uncertain a market for goods to be in haste. Prices had previously declined a little here, but with small transactions. The business in goods, though less active than has been expected, is at fairly steady prices as yet. In boots and shoes no change appears in quotations, though not an eighth of the usual orders for boots has been given and not a quarter for men's or women's heavy shoes, while the demand for light shoes has been the smallest in five years.

SECRETARY ROOT'S VISIT.

Inspects the Tobacco District—Cuban Exhibits at Paris.

HAVANA, March 10.—Secretary Root and General Wood, with Generals Chaffee and Humphrey and a number of ladies, left Havana yesterday by a special train for the province of Pinar del Rio to view the tobacco district.

Another large party, including Senor Villalon and several American engineers and their wives, made the eight mile trip over the electric railway line from Regla to Guanabacoa in 14 minutes. Mr. Cecil Goudie is the manager of the line, which is the first constructed in Cuba.

The executive committee for the Paris exposition expects that the exhibit from Cuba will lead to substantial gains for the island's trade. In this belief they are relying not so much upon the exhibits of well known products, like sugar and tobacco, although these will show that Cuba still produces, for instance, the best cigars in the world, as upon the exhibits of products not so well known, such as the marble of the Isle of Pines, iron, gold and copper ores, sponges, asphalt, hemp, honey and the various woods, all of which will go to show the variety of the island's wealth.

Ingersoll Brought Back.

ITHACA, N. Y., March 10.—Sheriff Charles Seaman and District Attorney Blood of Tompkins county returned to Ithaca yesterday, having in custody Charles Ingersoll, defaulting treasurer of Tompkins county, who was recently arrested in Iola, Kan. He was immediately lodged in jail to await trial. The officials had no trouble to induce the prisoner to come to Ithaca.

An Arrest In the Goebel Murder Case

FRANKFORT, Ky., March 10.—W. H. Coulton, a clerk in the office of State Auditor Sweeney, was arrested and placed in jail last night, charged with complicity in the murder of the late Governor William Goebel. The arrest was made by Chief of Police Williams at 9 o'clock. More arrests are likely.

HON. E. J. PHELPS DEAD

Former Minister to England Yields to Long Illness.

FAMOUS FOR LEGAL ATTAINMENTS.

Descended From Noted Vermont Ancestors—Held Office Under Presidents Fillmore and Cleveland. Professor of Law at Yale.

NEW HAVEN, March 10.—Hon. E. J. Phelps, former minister to England, died at his home on Humphrey street late yesterday afternoon after an illness of about two months. The end was peaceful, and for several hours before he passed away he was unconscious. There were present at the bedside the wife and son, Charles Phelps of Boston, and daughter, Mrs. Horatio Loomis of New York, and his physician.

Though Professor Phelps recovered from the pneumonia attack, he was so weakened that he was unable to regain vitality. It had been hoped that he might recover until a few days ago, when it was apparent that his strength had so failed that it was but a matter of hours when death would come.

The funeral services will be held from Battell chapel Sunday at 3 p. m. The remains will be taken to Burlington, Vt., for interment.

Edward John Phelps was born in Middlebury, Vt., July 11, 1822. He came of ancestors famous for their legal learning and prominence in American political life.

He was graduated from Middlebury college in 1840 and at once took up the study of the law with Horatio Seymour. He was admitted to the bar of the state of Vermont in 1843 and at once took a prominent position as a lawyer. Under the administration of President Fillmore he was second comptroller of the treasury, serving to the close of that administration. He was later a delegate to the Vermont constitutional convention and in 1880 was elected president of the American Bar association. He wrote extensively on constitutional and international law and in 1881 was elected Kent professor of law at Yale, which professorship he held at the time of his death.

In April, 1885, President Cleveland appointed him United States minister plenipotentiary to Great Britain. He was appointed one of the international commissioners on the Bering sea controversy and was also one of the Venezuelan arbitration commission. He was honored with the degree of doctor of laws by Middlebury college in 1870, by the University of Vermont in 1887 and by Harvard in 1887. Yale conferred on him the degree of master of arts in 1881.

In 1887 the Edward J. Phelps professorship of law at Yale was endowed in his honor by Junius S. Morgan.

Professor Phelps resided in this city only during the winter and spring terms of the college year and claimed Vermont as his residence.

CHRISTIAN JOURNALISM.

Sheldon Sifting Advertisements For His Wonderful Daily.

TOPEKA, March 10.—The Rev. C. M. Sheldon, who is to edit The Daily Capital next week as he thinks a Christian newspaper should be edited, spent the day sifting out objectionable advertisements offered. He has set apart ten columns for local and ten columns for foreign advertisers. He is the sole judge of what sort of advertising matter shall be printed. Every advertising contract made with the newspaper for the Sheldon week contains a provisional clause the advertisement must pass muster with Mr. Sheldon.

Mr. Sheldon has rejected more than he has "O. K'd." Not a single patent medicine advertisement will appear during the week. He will not permit any suggestive illustrations to be run with advertisements. He rejected a corset company's advertisement because he believes that tight lacing is injurious to the health and that women should not wear corsets, also for the further reason that a picture of a woman fitting on a corset in an advertisement is coarse and suggestive.

Nearly every leading magazine in the country has sent advertising copy to run during the Sheldon week, but Mr. Sheldon has checked most of them off the admissible list. He will not advertise a magazine that contains whisky advertisements or advertisements containing suggestive cuts. He has hurriedly scrutinized each magazine that has applied for space and cut out all those which do not come up to the standard required by him. He has also refused to insert advertisements from Kansas City retail houses because, he says, the Kansas City houses compete with Topeka merchants, and it is the duty of a newspaper to stand by its home merchants.

Fatal Powder Explosion.

POMPTON, N. J., March 10.—The Smith Fuse manufactory, located here, was blown up at half past 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and four persons were killed and a number more or less injured. The killed are John Rhoda, William Cadmus, William H. Talmage and John Merritt, a boy. They were at work in the factory with about 50 other men and girls. The bodies of the four persons killed were badly mangled, and some of them were blown to pieces.

Seal Fishing Begun.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., March 10.—The seal fishery began today. Twenty steamers, with 5,000 men, will sail for the icefields at daybreak. Governor McCallum visited the ships and afterward addressed the seal hunters in one of the public halls, strongly urging the men to enroll themselves in the royal naval reserve. The captain of each steamer has been supplied with a list for this purpose, and it is expected that almost all the men will enroll before returning.

Lieutenant Gillmore Returns.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 10.—Lieutenant Commander J. C. Gillmore and four of the men who suffered eight months' captivity with him arrived yesterday on the steamer Solace. They are: William Walton, chief quartermaster; Paul Vaudoit, sailmaker; W. H. Rynders and O. W. Woodbury, sailors. Gillmore now weighs about 140 pounds. Before captivity he weighed 165 pounds, and when rescued his weight had fallen to 115 pounds.

The Proposed Franchise Tax.

The franchise tax bill introduced in the Assembly by Mr. Foote, of Plainfield, was drawn up by Speaker Jones, but the one whose ideas are best represented in its provisions is none other than that eminent and influential gentleman, Governor Voorhees. The measure is undoubtedly the most important which has or will appear in the Legislature at the present session. If passed it will be of close interest to nearly every community in the State because of the fact that corporations using public franchises in the operation of their enterprises have already invaded and secured concessions from very many municipalities, and it is only a matter of time when probably every town of big or little importance will have to cope with the provisions cited in the proposed law.

The proposition of the measure is that all corporations coming under its demands, and they include enterprises of every kind that utilize public privileges in, upon or under public streets, shall furnish annual reports showing the amount of gross receipts for the year preceding. Upon this amount a franchise tax of 2 per cent. shall be levied, and then this amount is apportioned by the State Board of Assessors and finally collected by the officials of the various municipalities to which it applies.

In an interview in relation to the proposed law Governor Voorhees explains that when there are existing contracts between the companies and the different municipalities, whereby percentages or license fees are to be paid, pursuant to any resolution, ordinance or agreement, the measure provides "that these shall not be affected," and requires payments to be made as heretofore. When the percentage of the gross receipts apportioned to these localities exceeds the amount so paid, the municipality will receive the excess. But until that time payments are to be made as required by the agreement.

In the case of cities that are already collecting a special tax on the receipts of corporations working under franchises granted them by such municipalities—as for instance, the case of Plainfield collecting 5 per cent. of the gross receipts of the Street Railway Company—the law will only impose the payment of a sum in excess of the amount already being paid to equal what the 2 per cent. State tax would call for.

It would probably not make a great deal of difference with the Plainfield Street Railway Company under the terms exacted from it by the Common Council, but with the electric light, gas, water and telephone companies the franchise tax would mean that they would have to pay considerably more than they do now to the city treasury.

In speaking of its chances to become a law, Gov. Voorhees says that "undoubtedly the measure will meet with considerable opposition, and it may not contain all of the promises that some may think should be enacted. It will, however, serve, if enacted, to establish a new policy in the State, and the communities wherein franchises are enjoyed will have the benefit of its provisions, instead of the State at large. It may not meet with the approval of those who believe that a much higher scale of tax should be imposed. As some one has said, it is not so much the length of the step as it is the direction in which the step is taken that is to be considered. The measure, I believe, is in the main, a fair one to all affected by its provisions."

Some idea of the terrible plight in which the natives of Porto Rico find themselves is disclosed in the cold official report of General Davis, the military governor of the island. He says he must have 500 tons more of rice, codfish and bacon in addition to the 500 tons which were to be sent March 16th. He says a great many people are in danger of starvation, sickness will prevail and there may be an outbreak of lawlessness unless he continues the rations and provides work. General Davis also recommends that he be given means to put 25,000 men at work for three months on the improvement of the roads. He thinks $225,000 a month will meet the need for labor, tools and supplies.

It's a long way from a Governor to a court constable, but because the latter failed to recognize the fitness of reappointing Judge Child for another term in the Essex County Circuit Court that fact did not seem to dull the appreciation of the ever-faithful constabulary force for the turned-down jurist. Evidence to this effect was afforded yesterday when the constables presented Judge Child with a handsome and costly silver ice set as a token of their esteem for him. The presentation was made at this time as the term of Judge Child expires today.

In the course of politics New Jersey developes unusual characteristics. And none more so than the incident of opening a Piscataway Republican primary with prayer. We hear a good deal pro and con about mixing politics with religion, but opening of a party primary with prayer seems to be carrying the idea to the extreme.

The appeal of the citizens of Jersey City for a new postoffice, to cost $500,000, will probably have the desired effect. The committee on public buildings and lands is favorably inclined toward Representative Daly's bill, and it will make a visit to Jersey City next week to select a site.

In the Middlesex County Court yesterday Judge Strong discharged a young man who stole a horse and wagon, and kidnapped a boy younger than himself in the bargain. Now if this had been in Texas the boy would never have got as far as the judge who tempers justice with such mercy.

The Comptroller of Currency at Washington gives out an abstract of the reports of New Jersey banks for the last quarter, which indicates a highly prosperous condition. The total resources of the New Jersey banks is over $109,000,000.

Those who desire to emphasize their feelings over the trouble that is besetting the faculty of RutgersCollege have but to say "Great Scott," and they satisfy themselves and tell the truth at the same time.

The total contribution by New South Wales of men to the South African War is 1,840. As paradoxical as it seems, this is no wailing matter for the British, though.

The bill extending the time for the completion of the proposed bridge to span the Hudson to 1912, introduced by Senator Sewell, has been passed by the Senate.

The tongues of American citizens are doing their share in carrying on the war in the Philippines by the frequent licking of the revenue stamps.

So it is with a big business like that conducted by these four great united stores, we can place before you much more attractive offerings than a score of small independent concerns. Ample illustration of the truth of this statement can be found in our ads and windows every day, watch them closely, they pay us and they will pay you if you take advantage of the good things we tell of in them. THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen, March 10.—The many friends of Mrs. Fritts, of this place, tendered her a surprise Thursday evening. To the number of about 40, the party first gathered at the home of Charles Wyhuskey and then proceeded in a body to Mrs. Fritts' on Front street. Rev. E. S. Jamison, pastor of the M. E. church, was the leader in the fun. When he presented himself at the door the popular hostess had retired. But she made the best of the surprise and did the honors most agreeable. The guests took possession of the house and soon all kinds of amusement were in vogue. The "donkey party" proved the most amusing and popular. Mrs. J. Emmons Henry won the first prize for pinning the tail correctly. Music and refreshments rounded out a pleasant evening. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tilton, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. John Kennedy and daughter Lillie, Mr. and Mrs. William Shiveley, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Henry, Mrs. John Peters and daughter Elsie, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Richardson, Rev. and Mrs. E. S Jamison, Mr. and Mrs. F. Vail, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wyhuskey, Mrs. Staats Titsworth and daughter Bessie.

There is some dissatisfaction among the friends of William R. Larkin over the result of the Citizens' primary Wednesday evening. It is possible that a Republican ticket may be placed in nomination containing the names of all the nominees save that of Chas. Coriell, for Assessor. In its place will be the name of William R. Larkin. There's a general opinion that the Democrats sacrificed everything for their candidate Geo. W. Day, for Collector.

The annual school meeting will be held at the Lincoln School building Tuesday evening, the 20th inst., at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of electing three members of the Board of Education. At the same time the question of raising $2,400 for school purposes will be submitted. Also an appropriation of $200 to be used to improve the heating and ventilating of the Whittier School.

Justice Storms, of New Market, has issued a summons in the action of John Lambert, of Dog Corner, against E. C. Tappen, of Mt. Pleasant, on contract, for $160 on a promissory note. Murphy & Blatz, of Plainfield, are attorneys for the plaintiff.

Services will be held tomorrow at 10:30 o'clock at Holy Innocents' Episcopal church. Rev. C. E. Phelps will officiate. Lenten services will be held Thursdays at 4:30 and Friday evenings at 7:45 o'clock.

W. S. Frederick, clerk of the Board of Education, requests patrons and others of the Dunellen public schools to return to Superintendent Meseroll all books belonging to the schools.

The girls of the High School have adopted a society colors of white and olive green with a gold pin upon which are the initials "D. H. S."

C. W. Blaine and Nelson Giles have been drawn to serve on the petit jury for the April term of court.

The members of the family of Postmaster Adam Dealaman, who have been ill, are somewhat improved.

The league topic for tomorrow evening at the M. E. church will be "Rejecting Christ."

Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Staats have been entertaining Mrs. T. G. Robinson, of Newark.

The Methodist Sunday-school is arranging for the observance of Easter.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Scotch Plains, March 10—Rev. G. M. Shott takes exception to the article appearing in the News of last evening, saying that he had entered politics, and, together with the members of his church, had turned out to the Republican primary Thursday evening to down George Kyte for the nomination for Freeholder. Mr. Shott says he attended the primary as a voter and citizen only, and the story that he was working about the primary was a canard.

Miss Mamie Miller left Friday for Philadelphia where she will enter one of the hospitals to take a course to prepare her for a trained nurse.

Rev. G. M. Shott will take for his subject for Sunday morning "Ordinary and Extraordinary." In the evening "Sin Lieth at Thy Door."

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., held an interesting meeting in their rooms last night. Business of importance was transacted.

WESTFIELD

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Westfield, March 10—Mrs. Harriett E. Houston, widow of the late Henry O. Houston, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. James O. Clark, on Clark street, Thursday afternoon, after a short illness. Mrs. Houston was 64 years of age and was for many years a resident of Rahway, moving from there to New York about four years ago. A short time ago her only daughter was married to School Commissioner Clark and she came to Westfield to make her homo with her daughter. The funeral services will be held from her late residence tomorrow and will be private.

The recital to be given by Miss Mary Adelaide Luckey, of Plainfield, at the Westfield Club hall Thursday evening, March 22d, promises to be a big success from the large number of tickets which have been sold.

The ambulance from the Muhlenberg Hospital, Plainfield, came to Westfield yesterday and removed Mrs. Leveridge, who was stricken with illness while visiting a friend here, to her home.

The total registration in the township this year is 975, of which 443 are in the First and 532 in the Second district. Both parties predict a large vote Tuesday.

Der Grund wird in Eifersucht vermuthet. Die Frau wurde mit rechtsseitig zertrümmertem Schädel noch lebend in's Krankenhaus geschafft.

Köpenick. Ein Original, der langjährige frühere Nachtwächter des inzwischen in Köpenick eingemeindeten Fischerdorfes Kietz, Karl Noack, ist dort im 86. Lebensjahre an Altersschwäche gestorben. Noack war es, der beim Verlassen seines Amtes von sich sagen konnte: „Det is mien Ruhm, ick hebbe in siefuntwintig Johre keen' Antüg g'hebbt." Das heißt, er brauchte in 25 Jahren keine Anzeige zu erstatten. Sein Bruder war der letzte Ortsvorsteher auf dem Kietz.

Reinickendorf. Grundstücksverkäufe im Werthe von über 2,000,000 Mark sind in der letzten Zeit in Reinickendorf zu Stande gekommen; unter Anderem ist ein bisher dem Militärfiskus gehöriges Terrain an der Scharnweberstraße in den Besitz des Landtagsabgeordneten Baurath Wallbrecht zu Hannover übergegangen, und Kommerzienrath Gilka-Berlin hat vom Bankier Haffer für circa 1,000,000 Mark Bauland an der Raschdorffstraße gekauft. An Umsatzsteuer flossen der Gemeindekasse aus den Landverkäufen über 20,000 Mark zu.

WOMAN'S PART IN WARTIME.

Titled English Ladies Who Are Home Guard Colonels and Boer Wives Who Can Shoot.

BY GLADYS LA TOUR.

The great interest that every nation is taking in the strife between the Boers and the British has been participated in by the women as well as the men. American women might well take example from the women of the Boers. Learn to shoot. How many of us who are proficient in the arts of tennis, teas and golf could handle a gun in self defense? If necessity should demand, what woman of your or my acquaintance could hold her home against hostile attack?

It is a generally accepted theory that in civilized countries these duties do not fall to the part of the gentler sex, but who can foresee the events that might make the knowledge of the handling of a gun of extreme value?

Abroad one of the most picturesque features of the home guard is the woman colonel. In England and Germany especially the woman colonel is a well established institution, but she is wholly for ornament. She is for dress parade only, but on that occasion she does display a pretty costume and ride her horse gracefully. Though her position has been one of ornament only, it has been a royal favor that has conferred upon her the compliments of a regiment.

The lady colonel is supposed to take a personal interest in her regiment. Once in awhile she visits the officers at mess, and she receives their wives at certain regular intervals. In England the Duchess of Connaught, as colonel of the Eighth Brandenburgs, is considered the handsomest of the women commanders.

The empress of Germany is an excellent horsewoman, and her maneuvers on the field are always well performed. She is colonel of the Sleswick-Holstein fusileer regiment. She always appears on parade wearing the uniform of her cuirassiers.

The Grand Duchess of Hesse takes great delight in her regiment and visits it constantly when it is on field duty.

DUCHESS OF CONNAUGHT IN COLONEL'S UNIFORM.

The severe style of military dress is very becoming to her, more so than to the other European court ladies, for she is about the only one of the royal family who can lay claim to the distinction of being really slight.

The hereditary Princess Charlotte of Saxe-Meiningen and the crown princess of Roumania are other popular colonels of the Germany army. There are now 13 in all. The present German emperor has made the custom of appointing women colonels common. He was the first to appoint foreign princesses colonels of Prussian regiments.

The young queen of the Netherlands was greatly delighted when Emperor William conferred upon her the Fifteenth hussars. Her mother, Queen Emma, is colonel of a Prussian regiment. The emperor is particular to make the princesses colonels of those regiments that are connected by tradition to their own countries.

All this only goes to show that the military position occupied by the women of court circles has no actual significance as indicative of ability to lead in the true military sense of the word. There is a marked difference between their soldierly position and that of the Boer women. The one is all show while the other is all utility.

The recent report that President Kruger intended to fill the trenches with women has made the American women feel keenly the unflinching determination of the Transvaal people to maintain their liberty, no matter what the cost. Such a move on the part of Oom Paul would have a tremendous moral effect upon all the nations of the earth, and it shows what confidence the Boer men must place in their women that they will permit them to fight even in such extremes as the present ones.

Thousands upon thousands of English women, mostly society ladies and actresses, are making application at the war office for positions at the front. All want to be nurses or assistant nurses, or anything that will bring them near to the men doing the fighting. Though the war office discountenances as much as possible ladies going to the front, lots of them start just the same.

THE BEST SPARE ROOM.

SOME THINGS WHICH SHOULD BE IN IT ◁ AND ▷ SOME THINGS WHICH SHOULD NOT.

HOW TO MAKE IT COMFORTABLE.

BY LUCY LAWN.

I remember when a youngster of the happy hours I spent
When to visit Uncle Hiram in the country oft I went,
And the pleasant recollection still in memory has a charm
Of my boyish romps and rambles round the dear old fashioned farm.
But at night all joyous feelings from my youthful bosom crept,
For I knew they'd surely put me where the comp'ny always slept,
And my spirit sank within me as upon it fell the gloom
And the vast and lonely grandeur of the best spare room.

—Joe Lincoln.

There is scarcely an out of town house where I am acquainted that does not acknowledge one of those elaborately gilded rooms known as the guest chamber. If it were labeled "a cage of misery," the true condition of things would confront the unoffending guest at the threshold and perhaps embolden her to ask for the few necessary arrangements that would add so much to her few holidays.

I do not say this in disparagement, but I state it as a simple truth. If any one of my fair friends doubts me, let her pack a grip with the few things she would consider essential for a day's trip to an acquaintance and cross her own hall into that sacred guest chamber that has so long been the delight of her heart and, leaving her own cozy room behind, exile herself for 24 hours to those domains of her cherished friends. That is the only way to find out just what your self sacrificing friends suffer when they accept your hospitality.

"THERE SHOULD BE AN EASY CHAIR."

If you should chance to decide on this trip some evening when you are thoroughly tired out after a day's shopping, you will probably appreciate the situation by lying awake half the night, rising stiff and tired in the morning, fuming over your toilet for an hour and then joining your bright, well rested family at breakfast. If you are not a sadder and a wiser woman for this experience, then you are the exception that proves the rule and are to be congratulated.

To begin with, it is the duty of every hostess to see to it that the bed in the guest chamber is a couch of ease. There are many details that are involved in that word "ease." It necessitates fresh sheets, a good mattress and a spring that does not groan with every turning of the weary sleeper.

The good old fashioned way of airing the room regularly and putting on well aired fresh linen the day the guest arrives is the only rule for comfort and health. Sheets get damp and chilled by lying in folds for weeks before using, and they must be aired to rid them of that musty odor. Even in summer an extra pair of blankets should lie across the foot of the bed. A couple of extra pillows, with at least one hard stuffed and one quite soft, among them. Everybody has little notions about the size and thickness of pillows, and yet an unselfish guest might hesitate to ask for just what she wants.

Air the room with the same regularity that you do your own, and if possible allow the windows to remain open all day long through the whole season. Let the sun enter freely. Nothing is more sure to cause a restless night than the depressing atmosphere due to closed blinds and drawn shades.

Do not fill the water pitchers and jugs until an hour before the guest is expected. How often has the weary traveler been shut into that cage and been confronted by stale water that smells as though it had stood two weeks, with an attractive scum a half inch thick floating on the top, damp towels that are simply musty, perhaps no soap and where it is utterly impossible to ring for a drop of hot water.

Have you never been the timid individual shown into such a room, and have you never been driven to desperate means just because such necessities were improperly prepared or even lacking?

Unless your guest chamber communicates with the bathroom see to it that there are plenty of fresh towels, a fresh cake of soap and a jug of hot water. A bell that connects with the servants' quarters is indispensable. Strain a point if you must, but get one by hook or crook and explain to your visitor its working. Do not fail to provide plenty of rack space for towels, sponges and brushes.

Do not load the dressing table with toilet articles. If they are silver trifles, they are usually the cast offs from your own table and can be of no service to your friend's toilet. Every woman carries her own precious toilet articles. The women who don't usually require very few.

If you can, place a good sized mirror, a clean comb and brush, a tray of mixed pins and some new hairpins upon a separate shelf next to the dresser, but leave its own top clear for the guest's own pins, brushes, combs, etc.

Have a waste basket handy where a woman can throw her odds and ends and a man his shaving papers. A simple, small table beside the bed is an untold convenience for holding a pitcher of drinking water, a candle and the various things nervous people like to have within reach during the night.

Have a care in arranging the furniture. Place the dresser where a good light will fall day and night upon the individual before it and not upon the mirror itself. Have at least one easy chair and two others of the bedroom type.

Place the little desk near the window and have a low chair before it. The fittings of the desk should be provided by the hostess, but plenty of room should be allowed for a guest's own materials should she desire to use them.

This room should have a lounge at the foot of the bed and a light coverlet for the same. A shoe box or bag in the closet and a half dozen wire coat racks are necessary.

If the blinds on the window are green, see that they are in working order; if not, then inform your guest that the green shades are perfectly opaque. Do not imagine that because you can sleep with the bright sunlight pouring in your face everybody else can do so too.

As you are a merciful woman please do not fill your guest chamber with flowers. They not only keep some people awake, but they often give sensitive people severe colds more trying than those taken from changes in the weather.

A well fitted spare room always contains two single beds in place of the double couch. No hostess should expect two women who are not related to sleep together, or two men, even if they are brothers, to sleep together. Health and comfort demand separate beds, and no person should invite two people to remain overnight if they must share the same mattress.

If there are any special noises occasioned by the settling of your new house or the creaking of trees in the breezes without, inform your guest of them. Strange sounds frequently keep nervous people awake all night when a word from the hostess would have dispelled all fear.

It is such a small courtesy to offer to leave your own chamber door open, and yet it would mean a restful night to some people and would bring you many grateful thoughts from appreciative friends.

"HAVE TWO SINGLE BEDS."

Do not permit your vigorous children to romp under the windows of your bachelor friend early in the morning. He loves the little ones just as much as you do, but he is also very fond of those last few minutes' sleep. He will proclaim your perfections as hostess and mistress to all your mutual friends if you will only see to it that he is not rudely awakened from his peaceful slumbers.

CHARLES M. SCHWAB.

Romantic Career of the Present President of the Great Carnegie Steel Company.

Twenty years ago Charles M. Schwab went to work in the Carnegie iron works at Pittsburgh as a stake driver at a salary of one dollar a day. Now he is president of the Carnegie Steel company (limited) and draws a salary larger than that of the president of the United States. And he is only 37 years old. As the executive head of the great Carnegie interests Mr. Schwab is just now prominent in the public eye. He was born in Pennsylvania, and had only a common school education. At 15 years of age he went to work, and he does not believe in a college education for a businessman. For a year or two he drove a mail wagon and clerked in a grocery store. In his seventeenth year he got a job with the Carnegie company. His first work was to drive stakes for the foundation of a new building. His rise was so rapid as to be phenomenal. He became chief engineer in 1887, general manager a little later, and in 1896 a partner in the company.

Years ago he was offered a salary of more than $50,000 a year to go to England and take change of some English iron and steel works. This offer he declined at once.

Mr. Schwab's objection to college men in business is based on his opinion that they are not practical; that they are too fond of society; that they try to combine work and pleasure, being unable to give themselves up to that complete absorption in business which is necessary to the greatest success. As proof that Mr. Schwab carries his belief into practice, it is stated that among the 40 or more heads of departments under his control only three have received a technical or liberal education.

NEW WAR INVENTION.

Movable Breastworks for South Africa Invented by a Patriotic English Artist.

The great loss of life suffered in attacking Boer intrenchments in South Africa has inspired Walter Severn, an English artist, to invent and patent a form of movable breastworks, by the use of which he thinks fortified kopjes might be captured without much danger to the attacking party. The breastworks consist of steel plates, mounted on bicycles at such an angle that bullets striking them will be deflected upward. The inventor has the word of Maxim, the great gunmaker, that the steel plates need not weigh more than five or six pounds to the square foot so that the weight on each bicycle will not be more than that of an ordinary man. It is intended that the movable shields shall be pushed ahead of the attacking column by a number of strong men, detailed for the purpose. They may also be used to protect the wounded, to form squares, and to protect men who are cutting wires. They can be removed from the wheels and transported by wagon, and, when properly arranged about the sides, they would transform a transport wagon into an armored car.

Long and the Short of It.

It may be said truly of the new commander in chief in South Africa that if he enjoys the distinction of being the shortest general in the British army, he can also lay claim (outside royalty) to possessing the longest list of degrees. Officially "Bobs" is Baron Roberts of Kandahar and Waterford, P. C., K. P., G. C. B., G. C. S. I., G. C. I. E., V. C., D. C. L., LL.D. He became "Dr. Roberts of Dublin" nearly 20 years before Mr. Chamberlain, who was "doctored" the other day.

Whist a Royal Recreation.

The duchess of Albany is said to be the best whist player among the members of the royal family. It is not generally known, but, so far as cards are concerned, whist is the favorite royal recreation.

A FAVORITE BIRTH YEAR

More Famous Names Date from 1809 Than from Any Other Year of the Century.

It has been remarked that Mr. Hobart is the fourth vice president of the United States who has died in the month of November. His death occurred on the 21st (1899); Henry Wilson died on the 22d (1875); Elbridge T. Gerry—who gave his name to the still popular trick of gerrymandering—on the 23d (1814); and Thomas A. Hendricks on the 25th (1885). The fact is of no significance whatever; yet, now that attention has been called to it, future vice presidents will perhaps eat their Thanksgiving dinners with a peculiar satisfaction when the holiday falls, as in 1899, on the last day of the month.

A still more striking coincidence has been familiar for the past three-quarters of a century to readers of American history. This was the death on the same day—and that day the fiftieth anniversary of the Declaration of Independence—of the second and third presidents of the American republic, both of them signers of the declaration, and one of them its author. The passing away of John Adams and Thomas Jefferson (the former at 91 and the latter at 83) at an interval of a few hours, on July 4, 1826, was sufficiently remarkable to suggest purpose at least, if not agreement, on the part of these old friends. It is a coincidence perhaps unmatched in history.

Against November, as, so to speak, a favorite death-month of American vice presidents, February may be set off as a favorite birth month of American and other men of genius—most notably George Washington and Abraham Lincoln, whose birthdays bring two national holidays almost as close together as Christmas and New Year's day. On February 3, 1900, Felix Mendelssohn would be 91 years of age; on the 8th John Ruskin would have celebrated the eighty-first anniversary of his birth, and Jules Verne will have passed the seventy-second. Lincoln, Charles Darwin and James Russell Lowell were, all three, born on the 12th (Lowell would be 81 had he lived). On the next day Lord Salisbury will enter upon his seventy-first year; on the 15th Ernest Legouve rounds out his ninety-third, and Dr. Weir Mitchell completes his seventy-first, with mental force still unabated. Had February the same allowance of days as even the shorter of the other months, Frederic Chopin could be added to our list; as it is, he misses it by the narrowest possible margin, his natal day being March 1 (1809.)

It was the same year, as well as in the same month that three of the names here mentioned were bestowed upon those who made them famous—Lincoln, Darwin, Mendelssohn. In this and the other months of 1809 occurred perhaps the greatest number of illustrious births that can be credited to any single year of the century now hastening to its close. In America we have Lincoln, Edgar Allan Poe and Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes; in England, Lord Tennyson, Dr. Gladstone, Prof. Darwin, Lord Houghton, Prof. John Stuart Blackie, Edwin Fitzgerald and Mrs. Mary Cowden Clarke; in Germany, Mendelssohn; and in Poland, Chopin.

A further coincidence is to be noted in the life-term of two of the most brilliant lights in this meteoric shower. The American poet of nightfancies and day-dreams, and the Polish tone-poet of nocturnes and etudes were born within ten days of each other, and died but ten days apart, Poe's birth having occurred on January 19, 1809, and Chopin's death on October 17, 1849, just nine days after the author of "The Raven" was laid at rest in the Baltimore churchyard, where, for half a century, his grave has been cared for by the man that dug it. A suggestive comparison might be made between the lives and the genius of these two unhappy spirits of the early half of the nineteenth century.—Joseph B. Gilder, in St. Nicholas.

The days of the winter season are nearly over. Soon the spring sunshine will drive the snows and frosts of Old Boreas from the land. The winter in Chicago has not been a hard one as winters go, but yet there has been more suffering and want than humanity cares to contemplate.

The Wanderers of the Streets.

As I write these lines the north wind is piling the snow into every nook and corner of the great city, and driving the wanderers of the streets, the outcasts and homeless, into the police stations, the saloons, the mission houses, in fact into any place that offers shelter for the moment from the raging blizzard.

It is remarkable the way in which this class of humanity manage to exist through the winter season; the methods they employ for holding body and soul together while they wait and watch for the first signs of the coming spring.

For the class who will work, when work may be had, the winter just closing has not been a bad one. They have been able to find odd jobs that brought them each day the few cents needed for the necessities of life as they understand life. As a result the cheap lodging houses have done a better business than for several years past, for it is seldom that a man will ask shelter at the police station if he has the price to buy a bed at a lodging house, no matter how poor the house may be.

But there is a large class who never work, habitual bums and beggars, who remain in Chicago during the winter simply because the city offers them a large field in which to beg for an existence, and many of that class sleep and breakfast at the police stations every day. To these the saloons and the mission houses are an undisguised blessing in that they offer a stopping place during the day, and until the police stations open for them at midnight.

The Mission Houses.

But while the saloons must be classed among the places of refuge for outcasts in every large city what a difference in the hospitality they offer to that of the mission houses.

A Welcome Extended to All.

In the mission houses every one is welcome, and the hand of fellowship extended to all be he the bleareyed drunkard or the friendless laborer out of employment. Both the Salvation Army and the American Volunteers maintain many of these mission houses scattered over all of the poorer portions of the city, and officers of the organizations stand on the street corners to invite and direct the outcasts to their places of warmth and good cheer, an invitation that is eagerly accepted.

Inside these sheltering doors there is light and heat and cheer for all with no questions asked. There is not one in a dozen among these audiences who come for other than the refuge the place offers from the biting storm, and yet many are caught in the meshes of the hopes held out of a better life by the mission workers. Men enter from out of whose lives "faith, honor and self-respect" have all gone; with nothing but the morbid passions of the animal left, and before they leave the spirit of hope has entered their souls. It is a hope that is within their understanding, the hope of a better manhood of which even the worst may deem themselves capable. The step may be but a small one, but it is in the right direction, and while the second may never be taken the first has done some small amount of good.

Such is the refuge which the mission houses offer.

The Saloons.

And now what of the refuge offered by the saloons? There is the same light and heat, the same shelter from the driving storm, but to whom is it offered?

"Put Up the Price or Get Out."

That portion of the business section of Chicago south from Harrison street to Twelfth is given over to all manner of dens of iniquity in which the cheap saloon predominates, and in these the homeless by thousands may find a momentary refuge, but it is only momentary, for the sharp-eyed attendants easily pick out the moneyless loafer seeking only for shelter, and out he must go again.

Cheap orchestras offer questionable music as an attraction for the street wanderer, and the majority enter more readily than they would the mission houses. But once inside it does not take long to discover the difference in the two places. The half-frozen, half-starved man, without money secures a position as near the red-hot stove as is possible; he draws in every degree of heat that his few moments' stay will enable him to get, but from the time he sets foot within the door an attendant has an eye on him. It takes but a few moments to determine whether he is going to "buy" or not, and if not his room is prefarable to his company, and he is told so in rough words.

Perchance he has the price of one glass, but even that will buy him but a few moments of rest and warmth. It must be spent and spent quickly, and once it is gone the result is the same as though he had entered penniless, out he must go again.

"Stay with us for awhile and rest," says the mission worker; "put up the price or out you go," says the bartender, and this illustrates the difference between two classes of refuge offered the street wanderers and outcasts in a great city.

The Police Stations.

Who can justly picture the horrors of a night in a Chicago police station when the wintry winds drive hundreds of outcasts there for protection. Not in the police station as a criminal, not as a man who has sinned against society, but as a charity guest of a great city. Such a guest is to be pitied rather than condemned for any shortcomings.

The Charity of the Municipality.

The quarters of the criminals, the thieves, the highwaymen, the murderers, are as palaces compared to the ones assigned to the homeless outcasts who must ask charity of the municipality. There may be good reasons for the lack of comforts for these unfortunates; it might be that to provide such comforts would but encourage vagrancy, but when one looks at the hard stone floor, reeking with filth, covered by the hundreds of homeless men, many as filthy as the floors on which they lie; when one notes the thin garments that are all that stand between a man and the cold winter; when one listens to the cursings and blasphemy that continues throughout the night, and when one compares all this with the more comfortable quarters of the criminals one sees a new reason for the reign of outlawry.

The sleeping accommodations for the homeless furnished by Chicago in her police stations may be no worse, but is certainly no better, than that furnished by any other large city. Few men will willingly sleep on the hard stone floor, in the accumulated filth, on the cold nights of winter if they can get better accommodations, and what easier method is there of getting better than by committing some crime for which they will be sent to prison for a few days or a few months until the winds of winter have ceased to blow, until nature offers greater inducements for a life out of doors.

The Bridewell.

It is conditions such as these that fill the city prison every winter. The "Black Maria" must needs make frequent trips to and from the police courts to accommodate the ever growing population of the Bridewell during the winter months. For the past four months new arrivals at the prison have numbered from 50 to 100, or even more a day. Familiar faces come and go throughout all the winter season; the man who in the early fall is sentenced for a few weeks finds it convenient to seek another sentence as soon as possible that will carry him through the winter. Any number of prisoners when their day of discharge arrives, and they see the snows of winter covering the outside world, beg to be allowed to remain yet a little longer. The prison is their only home, and prison though it is it is preferable to the days in the streets, and the nights in the police station.

The "Black Maria" Makes Frequent Trips.

This is true not of all, but of the many. The man who follows the life of the criminal much as the tradesman follows his trade, who steals as a chosen means of livelihood, waits anxiously for his day of release, but the man who steals as the means of securing a needed winter home does not.

There is in the Bridewell at the present time a man who was given a four months' sentence for burglary. He stole nothing, but he did break into a house, and once inside he awakened the inmates and begged of them that they call a police officer to arrest him, and explained his reasons for his actions. The officer came, the charge of house-breaking was preferred and the prisoner sentenced to four months in the Bridewell. To-day the story of his imprisonment is known to the authorities, but the prisoner would not accept his freedom when it was offered. His sentence will expire in April, and by that time the world will again be a pleasant place for the outcasts and the homeless.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

Charles Hoyt's comedy, entitled "A Day and a Night," will be presented at Music Hall Monday night. Especial care has been exercised in staging and costuming the new farce. The company is one of unusual excellence while the musical portion of the programme is more ambitious than in any preceding Hoyt comedy. The principal roles are all in the hands of people who have long been Hoyt favorites or are reasonably sure to establish themselves as such. The plot tells of an old naval officer, who, returning from a long cruise on the Asiatic coast, finds his baby boy whom he had left, grown to be a man. He is not apparently of the sort the old sailor fancies, being given to sewing circles, church fairs and similar amusements, without much knowledge of the world. The young man goes to New York to select members for a church choir and the father goes with him secretly intending to show the son a little of the world. The father falls in with a theatrical manager and lets him into the plot. The manager says he will introduce the son at a private dinner party to a number of chorus girls telling him that they are concert singers. To this the father agrees and promises to remain concealed to witness the fun.

The Exact Vote.

An error was made in giving the figures of the vote cast at the Republican primary of Fanwood in the Freeholder contest. The total vote was 173, of which John Robison received 111 and Mayor Kyte 62, giving Robison 49 majority.

CADI NOT NOTIFIED.

As a Result Winslow Carson was Obliged to Stay in a Cell All the Morning.

Another prisoner occupied a cell in the wrecked city jail this morning. Owing to a little friction between City Judge Runyon and Chief Grant, the trial was delayed until noon and Winslow Carson, the prisoner, enjoyed all the delights the damp, musty cell offered. He was arrested at 4 o'clock this morning at his home on a warrant issued by Judge Runyon. The charge was for non-support of his wife and four little children. Mrs. Carson made the complaint.

The Judge had to go to Elizabeth this morning and did not attend to the case before his departure, as he claims the Chief did not notify him in time that there was any court.

Patrolman McCue finally sent Mrs. Carson home, and the trial was laid over until noon when the Judge returned.

The trial was then held in the Gazelle engine house on West Second street. The Judge held Carson under $200 bail for his appearance Tuesday morning, when another bond will be fixed for the payment of an income to the wife for the support of her and the children.

Presbyterian Sociable.

The monthly church sociable at the First Presbyterian church was held last evening in the chapel. There was a large turnout. An instrumental duet by Mrs. Gates and Miss Remson and a vocal solo by Miss Charlotte Messersmith preceded the principal part of the entertainment, which consisted of a series of stereopticon views of Florence, Italy. Rev. C. E. Herring spoke interestingly on the pictures. The stereopticon was in charge of Augustus J. Searing.

ALMOST A CENTENARIAN.

ALFRED BONNELL DIED AT THE AGE OF NINETY-FIVE.

Was Remarkably Active in Physique and Mind Up to a Few Weeks Ago.

Alfred Bonnell, who was one of the oldest residents in this vicinity, died about 2 o'clock this morning at his home, 23 Manning avenue, after an illness lasting about five week, which was due to apoplexy. He had three strokes, the third occurring last Saturday. From that time up to the hour of his death he was unconscious. While his daughter, Mrs. Spencer, was visiting at his home a few weeks ago he was then very ill, and when her death occurred suddenly early in the morning of Washington's Birthday, he scarcely recognized the fact when informed of it.

There was probably no more familiar figure in the borough than Alfred Bonnell. For more than a half century he continued to go about and notwithstanding that he was, at the time of death, nearly 95 years of age, he was always perfectly able to help himself. In more ways than one he was remarkable. He seemed to have a constitution of iron. Up to five weeks ago he always enjoyed the best of health. Just previous to his last illness he went to Newark alone and looked after some business. He was accustomed to taking long walks and this never seemed to fatigue him the least. He had an admirable disposition, always kind, gentle and loving. Especially in the home were these qualities the strongest. His memory was strong and clear as a crystal. He had a faculty of telling a story in a very interesting manner. In appearance Mr. Bonnell did not show his age. His walk was elastic and firm and he was very proud of his health and ability to do for himself.

Mr. Bonnell was born at Chatham, this State, April 30th, 1805, and his business was that of a lumber dealer. At one time he had a mill at Cranford. During the early part of his life he resided in New Brunswick. Nine children were born to him and his wife. Of that number four are now living, Miss Henrietta Bonnell and George Bonnell, who resided with their father; Mrs. Augustus Driggs, of Asbury Park, and John C. Bonnell, who lives in the west. Mr. Bonnell was a very devout Christian and he lived his profession. He was a member of Holy Cross church, having been confirmed by Rev. T. Logan Murphy when 75 years of age.

The funeral services will be held from the house, 23 Manning avenue, Tuesday next at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

OLD JUSTICE FAILS OF RENOMINATION.

A. P. Sutphen, of Somerville, Turned Down By Republicans and Democrats.

BEEN IN OFFICE 25 YEARS.

IT IS NOW SAID HE WILL BE AN INDEPENDENT CANDIDATE.

Somerville Politicians Excited Over the Matter—Nominations Made in Warren Township and in Fanwood Borough.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, March 12—The Republican primary of Bridgewater township was held at the Court House Saturday afternoon. There was considerable feeling shown when the name of Arthur P. Sutphen was mentioned for Justice of the Peace. Theo. J. Hoffman, a leading Republican, sprang to his feet and denounced the attempt to nominate a Democrat on the Republican ticket. He was replied to by Joseph Fitzga, who advocated Sutphen's nomination. A wordy tilt was indulged in and finally a motion was carried to take a vote on whether or not A. P. Sutphen's name should be dropped. Sutphen was dropped.

No nominations were made for Assessor or Collector, owing to the popularity of the Democratic nominees—Charles Voorhees and Ferd Vanderveer. The balance of the ticket nominated was as follows:

Justice of the Peace—H. A. Green; Constables—J. V. D. Hoffman, Dennis Wyckoff; Town Committee—John D. Hornby, 3 years; John Henry, 2 years; John S. Long, 1 year.

The Democrats met in the Sheriff's office at 3 o'clock and nominated the following ticket unanimously: Assessor—C. L. Voorhees; Collector—Ferd Vanderveer; Town Committee—John Bartles, 3 years; Oscar Dow, 2 years; James Q TenEyck, 1 year; Justice of the Peace—Edward Farlee; Constables—Peter Conboy, Dennis Wyckoff.

A. P. Sutphen failed of a nomination for Justice of the Peace on the Democratic ticket also. He will run on an independent ticket. He has been Justice of the Peace for 25 consecutive years.

Mt. Bethel, March 12.—The Republican and Democratic primaries in Warren township were both held in the Jr. O. U. A. M. hall here Saturday afternoon and candidates were nominated to be voted on at the election tomorrow. Nearly every Democrat in the township turned out while the Republicans had a big attendance at their gathering.

The Democratic primary was held first. George Terrill was chairman and H. F. Way secretary. The expected opposition did not materialize and the regular ticket went through unanimously.

The nominations were: Freeholder, Joel Coddington; collector, George Terrill; assessor, Peter Neumiller; poormaster, George Bowers; township committee, for three years, W. H. Rogers, for two years, Thomas C. Bird, for one year, Henry P. Williams.

The only contest was for justice of the peace. Detrich Ehlan and John P. Wolff were both named but the former was chosen.

At the Republican caucus there was lots of harmony. The strongest candidates possible were secured in an effort to win in a township that is strongly Democratic. The nominees were: Freeholder, Augustus Schumacher; collector, John Flemmer; assessor, Howard Toms; township committee, for three years, Chas. Coddington, for two years, Henry Kline, for one year, Peter Voorhees. John C. Cooper was chairman of the meeting and John Mundy secretary.

Scotch Plains, March 12.—The residents of the borough of Fanwood held a large and spirited primary in the clubhouse Saturday evening for the purpose of nominating candidates for Councilmanic honors an Assessor and a Collector. Only one ticket seems to be in the field this election. The fight over the offices between the factions seemed to be for places on the ticket. A. D. Beeken acted as chairman and W. R Maxim secretary. L. J. Ellis and H. L Hall were the successful candidates for the two places for Councilmen; William R Stanbery for Assessor; Charles Scheelan for Collector; Commissioner of Appeal, three years, Hugh R. Healey; Commissioner of Appeal, two years, F. D. Warren. Unless something unex-

AGED WOMAN'S BIRTHDAY

MRS. PHOEBE ROSS NINETY YEARS OLD YESTERDAY.

The Event Made an Occasion for a Pleasant Gathering of Friends.

There was a quiet birthday party at the home of J. D. Spicer, on West Fifth street, last evening. His mother-in-law, Mrs. Phoebe Ross, was ninety years old yesterday. Besides her own children, Richard Ross of Bound Brook, Mrs. J. D. Spicer and Mrs. W. L. Titsworth, and their children, Mrs. Ross invited two of her former pastors and Dr. Main, her present pastor, together with their wives, to attend the party. Dr. Main was prevented from attending because of an engagement to preach in Elizabeth. Rev. H. H. Baker, of East Sixth street, and Rev. Dr. Lewis with their wives, were present. Mr. Baker was Mrs. Ross' pastor at New Market, many years ago, and officiated at the marriage of her daughter, Mrs. Spicer in 1857.

The birthday cake, which formed the centerpiece at the supper table, was appropriately ornamented and bore the dates 1810 1900. Mrs. Ross was able to take part in the social enjoyment both before and after the supper, and at her request, simple and pleasant religious services occupied a portion of the evening.

Music of the olden time, appropriate remarks concerning the earlier history of the century and of Mrs. Ross' family, especially by Mr. Baker, the presence of the children and grandchildren, brought the beginning and the end of the century together as one. The enjoyment of the occasion was greatly heightened by the fact that Mrs. Ross was able to enter into every phase of the occasion with a strength and interest which seemed more like one of few years than one who had lived so nearly through the century. The distribution of the presents had been timed by the grandchildren so that one appeared each hour during the day and evening. This added zest to the occasion, and gave something new constantly.

Such scenes give double interest to that higher type of Christian life which preserves both body and spirit through so many decades and brings at the close a ripeness of soul which rejoices at the doorway we call death, through which God welcomes those with whom He has dealt kindly. Ninety beautiful years on earth are the promise of endless years of greater beauty in the land upon the border of which those whom we call aged stand waiting to pass through into the better land.

SEASIDE HOMES IN DEMAND.

Coming Season Will be a Lively One Down Along the New Jersey Coast.

Reports from New Jersey coast resorts indicate that there will be a scarcity of cottages for rent at the seaside during the summer. Applications have been made earlier than usual this year, and the demand has been so great that good prices have been obtained, and many of the most desirable houses have been disposed of.

Real estate agents at the different resorts say that the early demand for cottages indicates a lively season, and that if the present demand continues all vacant cottages will be taken before the season opens. Proprietors of summer hotels report that many rooms are already booked, and that there is every prospect for a profitable season.

To Fortify or Not to Fortify.

The Hay-Pauncefort treaty has excited no little discussion as to weather or not we should fortify the mouth of the Nicarauga Canal. While there may seem to be some excuse for a difference of opinion on this question, all people should agree on the propriety of fortifying their future against optical defects that may ruin health and destroy the victim's usefulness. This wise move is inexpensive if taken in time, and a free examination at Collier's, 103 Park avenue, will advise you as to the measures necessary to perfect it.

Taken to Insane Asylum.

Mrs. August Wolf, of the borough, who was recently examined for insanity by Drs. Fritts and Carman and found to be of unsound mind, was taken to Trenton this afternoon by Constable George Steward, where she will be placed in the State Insane Asylum. Mrs. Wolfe has been troubled with her mind for some time past and her condition became such that this action was necessary.

His Acting Pleased.

William J. Romain, of Manning avenue, has returned from Boston where he appeared in "The Storm" at the Tremont Theatre with the Independent Theatre Company. The Boston newspapers spoke very highly of his acting.

REV. DR. RICHARDS MAY LEAVE PLAINFIELD

Received an Urgent Call From Central Congregational Church in Hartford.

PROBABLY WILL ACCEPT IT.

CHURCH IS A LARGE AND INFLUENTIAL ONE.

Though He Has Declined Many Similar Offers Dr. Richards is Said to Regard This With Considerable Favor

Rev. Dr. Richards, who has been the pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church in this city for many years, has received an offer to accept the pastorate of the Central Congregational church in Hartford, Conn., and though he has declined many offers to leave Plainfield since he has been engaged here, it is understood that there is a strong probability of his accepting this latest one.

The Hartford church that desires his service is one of the largest and most influential in Connecticut and the officials of it are very anxious to secure Dr. Richards as their pastor. Dr. Richards is giving the proposition serious consideration, and though he will be strongly urged to remain in Plainfield he may not do so.

Several weeks ago Dr. Richards received a call to the pastorate of the church in Baltimore which Rev. William Maltbie Babcock resigned from to go to the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church in New York. He was made a very liberal offer, but declined it.

Dr. Richards is regarded as one of the most able ministers in the Presbyterian church in this country. He receives a salary of $5,000 per year from the Crescent Avenue church. His retirement from work in this city would be distinct loss to religious circles, and would be regretted not only by his parishoners but by the members of all other denominations.

ROBBED A SMOKE HOUSE.

Farmer Lane a Victim of a Gang of Thieves—Three of the Alleged Looters Under Arrest.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, March 12.—Chief of Police Koch and Constable Totten landed three men in jail Saturday, charged with robbing Abram Lane's smoke house, near North Branch Station. Lane smokes meats for his neighbors, and about a week ago his smoke house was cleaned out by unknown parties. Several days later some well known young men in Raritan aroused suspicion by offering smoked meats at low prices. Warrants for their arrest were obtained and the above named officers succeeded in landing three of them. One of the quartette, Jim Sisser, suddenly disappeared before the officers could lay hands on him. Gat. Wyman, John Fury and Fib. Mulliner were arrested. The latter was released on his own recognizance and Wyman and Fury were lodged in jail.

About thirty hams, shoulders and pieces of smoked beef were found hidden under the hay in Sisser's haymow at Raritan.

Death of John Shepard.

John Shepard, after an illness of several months with consumption, died yesterday at his home on New street. He is survived by a wife and three children. The deceased was a well known painter and was at one time employed by the firm of Woolston & Buckle. He came to Plainfield some years ago from Hunterdon county. He was a brother-in-law of Peter V. Weaver, the latter marrying Mr. Shepard's eldest sister, who died about eight years ago. The deceased was a member of the Exempt Firemen's Association. Mr. Shepherd was 46 years of age. The funeral will be held from his late residence, 214 New street, Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock.

To Fix Up New City Jail.

Bateman Thatcher, the contractor, has secured the contract to make the necessary repairs to the Olympia building on Sycamore street that is to be used temporarily for a city jail. The work was started this morning and will be completed within a few days. He will take the iron doors from the cells in the old jail and use them for the new cages

Former Local Pastor Heard

Rev. E. K Cressy, D. D., of Brooklyn, occupied the pulpit at the First Baptist church last evening and delivered a very strong evangelistic sermon. This divine formerly lived in Plainfield several years ago and the many present at the service thoroughly enjoyed hearing him.

OBJECTED TO REMOVAL.

TROUBLE OVER SEATS IN BOX AT MUSIC HALL.

Suits to be Brought Against Manager Edwards and Frank Hand in Behalf of Roy Phillips.

Roy Phillips was removed rather forcibly from one of the seats in a box at Music Hall a week ago Saturday night. A pecuniary value of $10,000 has been placed on the alleged damages to his person and feelings received at that time. Clarence L. Murphy, of the firm of Murphy & Blatz, has notified Manager Maze Edwards, of Music Hall, and Frank Hand, who removed Phillips, that he is about to start action in the Circuit Court against each of them for $5,000. The suit will be brought in the name of Percy Phillips, father of Roy Phillips, who is a minor.

The trouble arose over the tickets. The regular six tickets for box A had been purchased by another party several days before. It was the last evening performance of the Macauley Patton Company. A few extra tickets were issued for the box that night on account of the crowd. The purchaser of the regular tickets had been given to understand that those tickets were for the front seats and that extra seats would be provided in the rear for the holder of the extra tickets.

Phillips and a number of young men arrived first and occupied the box. When the holders of the other tickets arrived Phillips and the rest were requested to move. They claimed to hold checks for the seats. Several other requests to move were ignored and Frank Hand removed them. Phillips claims that he was handled roughly. The management of the hall claims that he was not in the proper seat. W. S. Angleman will represent Manager Edwards, and City Judge W N. Runyon Frank Hand.

DENOUNCED DANCING.

Rev. E. E. Jackson Preached a Vigorous Sermon in Mt. Olive Church Last Night.

There was a large attendance at the Mt. Olive Baptist church last evening when Pastor E. E. Jackson delivered a strong sermon denouncing dancing. Among the audience was a large number of white people. As a result of the discourse fourteen non-professing Christians came out and signified their desire to live Christian lives. Pastor Jackson has been invited by Dr E. W. Roberts, of the Ebenezer Baptist church, New Brunswick, to repeat the sermon tomorrow evening at the latter place. After the sermon last evening the sum of $33 41 was raised toward paying off the indebtedness which now amounts to $45. This sum will be cleared Tuesday evening, March 27th.

He has managed hotels in Saratoga and the Catskill mountains. Mr Knapp intends to make the City one of the best hotels in the State.

1,600 Feet of Trolley Track to be Laid.

William Hand & Son have begun the work of carting the materials for the tracks of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company between Elizabeth and Lorraine. There is still 1,600 feet of track to be laid to complete the line. As soon as the materials are on the ground the work of laying the tracks will be started.

Unable to Occupy His Pulpit.

Rev. G. W. Gardner, pastor of Grace M E church, was unable to occupy his pulpit yesterday, as he has not yet recovered from an attack of the grip. In the morning Dr. H K Carroll preached and in the evening Rev. Dr Rapalje, a missionary, delivered a discourse on missions.

The following persons were recently received into the membership of the Crescent Avenue church; Irving H. Brown, Mrs. Mary L Brown, Miss Helen Louise Brown, Harold Seymour Brown and John Calvin Sutphen.

FATHER SMYTH WILL STAY IN PLAINFILD.

Decides Not to Leave St. Mary's Parish to Go to Jersey City.

LIKES HIS WORK HERE.

ANNOUNCEMENT MADE AT 7.30 MASS YESTERDAY.

Causes Much Satisfaction Among His Parishoners as Well as His Many Friends of the Protestant Faith.

It will be gratifying and pleasant news for the parishoners of St. Mary's Roman Catholic church, as well as his many friends in this city, to learn that Rev. Patrick Smyth has decided not to leave Plainfield to accept the pastorate of St. Mary's church in Jersey City. This decision of Father Smyth was made last week. It was announced to the congregation of St. Mary's church at the 7:30 o'clock mass yesterday morning. The announcement was received with much satisfaction by all.

For seventeen years Father Smyth has been at the head of St. Mary's parish. His indefatigable efforts to build up the parish have borne abundant fruit of his success. He has seen his church grow from a mere handful of people to an important parish. By his proverbial kindness, Christian spirit and devotion to the spiritual as well as temporal affairs of his people, Father Smyth has endeared himself to all and is beloved by old and young.

Outside of his own denomination Father Smyth is highly respected as a citizen. The fact that he has decided to remain in the city, where for so many years he has made his home, is indeed gratifying to many people who have learned to look with favor upon the kindly face of the good priest whose faithful ministrations have been fraught with much good to the community.

To a Daily Press reporter Father Smyth said this morning: "Yes, I am happy to say that I am going to remain in Plainfield. This is my home. I love my people and my work here at St. Mary's parish. I don't think I have an enemy in the place, but I believe I have hundreds of friends. Many of my warmest friends are to be found among the Protestants whom I meet from day to day and whose lives have been in touch with mine these many years. Plainfield is good enough for me. The offer of another change, as flattering as it may appear, had no particular attraction for me. I am satisfied to remain here at home."

While the Forty Hours' devotion, which began yesterday morning, is being observed, Father Smyth will have to assist him Rev. Father Hedges, of Seton Hall, Rev. Father Wilson, of Cranford and Rev. Father Ellerd, of Newark.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY CONTESTS.

Republicans Hope to Capture the Board of Freeholders.

The township elections in Middlesex tomorrow are exciting an unusual degree of interest this year. In addition to the local rivalries over Township Committeemen and Assessors and Collectors, this is the "on" year for Freeholders, and both parties will make strenuous efforts, the Democrats to retain control of the Board of Freeholders, the Republicans to wrest it from the Democrats. In spite of the fact that the Board at present stands sixteen Democrats to five Republicans, the Republicans are hopeful of reversing the majority, if not the figures. Of the present twenty-one members only nine hold over. The terms of twelve expire this year. Of these twelve, nine are Democrats. This leaves only seven Democrats holding over. The Republicans have two hold-overs, and must elect nine Freeholders this spring to secure control of the Board.

With but few exceptions the township organizations are harmonious. Two years ago this was not the case, and some of the strongest Republican townships elected Democratic Freeholders. The Republicans expect to win these back this spring, and that is the secret of their confidence.

Rahway Men Victimized

It is reported that some of Rahway's business men have been victimized by a check-kiting adventurer, who gave them checks on a bank at Elizabeth and obtained the money. When the checks were presented at the bank they were declared worthless and that no such party ever had an account there. The check swindler has not been seen in Rahway since.

MUSCLED MEN COMPETED

FIRST SECTION OF CONTEST IN Y. M. C. A GYMNASIUM.

Hegeman Made the Best Showing But the Events Were Evenly Contested.

Six of the young men of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. turned out Saturday evening for the first section of the novice indoor athletic contest held in the association gymnasium that evening. There was no overwhelming victory for anybody, but Hegeman, a new-comer in Y. M. C. A. athletic circles, made the first showing, winning one event, tieing for first place in a second and finishing third in the other. Those who took part were Hegeman, Bentliff, Thompson, Cahoone and Hobbie.

The three events selected for the first section of the contest were the standing broad jump, the fence vault and the running high jump. It was a novice contest, no winners of medals in the association being eligible. The best athletes of the association were consequently barred out, and those who competed were practically new men.

The standing broad jump brought out some fairly good material. Hegeman won with 8 feet, 3¼ inches, while Taggart was second with 8 feet. In his three turns Thompson fouled twice by stepping backward, but even then he cleared 7 feet, 9½ inches. With a little more care, he would have given the leaders trouble. The others finished in the following order: Cahoone, Bentliff, Hobbie.

Thompson and Cahoone tied for first place in the fence vault with 5 feet, 10 inches, which was good. Both were rather new at the event, and lost their chances of going higher by fouling. Cahoone seemed to show the better form. Hegeman was next. The others followed: Bentliff and Hobbie, a tie, Taggart.

Several of the competitors were new at the running high jump and none of the marks were high. Hegeman and Hobbie tied at 4 feet, 5 inches. Both were capable of clearing the bar several inches higher. Taggart was third, and with practice would show much improvement. The order of the others: Thompson, Cahoone, Bentliff.

The second and last section of the competition will take place next Saturday evening. There was a number of visitors present Saturday evening including a delegation of young women.

ENDEAVOR OFFICERS.

Those Selected by the First Baptist Society.

At the annual meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church held Friday the following officers were chosen for the coming year: President, George F. Brown; vice-president, J. Herbert Case; treasurer, Miss Jessie Saxton; recording secretary, Miss Velma Oakley; corresponding secretary, Miss Alice Woodland; superintendent of Junior Endeavor, Miss Grace Yerkes; chairman lookout committee, Mrs. Pierce; prayer meeting, Miss Mattison; missionary, Mrs. Flanders; social, Dr. W. K. Browning; welcome, Douglas Drake; flower, Miss Sue Woodland; music, Clifford Braider.

The various reports showed a steady progress in every department. After paying all bills there is a balance in the treasury of $5. A hearty vote of thanks was extended to the retiring officers by the society. The members of the various committees will be announced in a few days by the chairman of each.

ROSELLE CAPTURED DAILY PRESS TROPHY.

D. W. Mulford, of Roselle, Won Prize for High Average Score.

STANDING OF THE OTHERS.

C. D. SMITH, OF WESTFIELD, FIRST IN AVERAGE SPARE CONTEST.

Roselle Carried Off Two of the Honors—Standing of Bowlers in Two Individual Competitions—Dr. Thiers Best Local Bowler.

The first season of The Daily Press Bowling League is over. The last of the series of games were rolled last week The Roselle Casino was easily victorious and now holds The Daily Press trophy until next winter's tournament shall be decided. By steady accurate bowling the Roselle team took the lead from almost the first and has held it since. The Westfield Club ended the season in second place. The Park Club, of this city, after an auspicious beginning, finished in third place, while the Cranford Casino by consistently poor rolling brought up the tail of the column.

Besides winning the chief honor of the league, the Roselle Casino also carried off one of the individual prizes. In the competition for the highest individual average score D. W. Mulford, of that club, won easily by a remarkable average. Chauncey D. Smith, captain of the Westfield team, captured the other prize for the highest average number of spares per game. The Park Club contingent failed to distinguish itself in either contest.

Dr. Thiers, who was high man on the Park team, improved his average slightly and advanced from eighth place to tie with Fred Condit, of Westfield, for seventh place. F. O. Ball, captain of the Park Club five, stepped ahead of Hibbard, of the same club. Shangle, of Roselle, showed an improvement and got further away from the unpopular end of the list.

The standing of those who qualified for the individual competition by rolling fourteen games or more is as follows:

	Games Rolled.	Average.
Mulford, Roselle	18	186.7
Sharp, Cranford	15	171.7
C. A. Smith, Roselle	18	169.1

The others who took part in league games were as follows:

	Games Rolled.	Average.
B. C. Ball, Park Club	6	177.6
Warner, Roselle	12	171.9
Massick, Cranford	6	164.3
F. H. Ball, Park Club	9	154.1
Wilbur, Cranford	6	149.0
McIntyre, Cranford	3	150 0
Hammann, Roselle	3	147.0
VanBuren, Park Club	8	144.2
Hillier, Cranford	9	140.5
Dean, Roselle	3	136.6

In the spare average competition, Chauncey D. Smith, of Westfield, was high man Roselle's captain Smith tried in his last series to catch up but failed although he advanced his average eight points. The other Smith won with an average of 5 11, while the Roselle Smith was second with 4 88.

Patterson, of Roselle, went after spares in his last series and advanced from fourth to third where he is now tied with Forster, of Westfield, with 4 61. Dr. Thiers, high man for the Parks in that contest, showed improvement and rose from sixth to fifth place. Johnson, also of the Parks, stepped up from thirteenth to ninth while Hibbard, of the same club, advanced one place.

The standing of those who qualified for this contest by rolling fourteen games or more is as follows:

	Games Rolled.	Average Spares.
C. D. Smith, Westfield	18	5 11
C. A. Smith, Roselle	18	4 88
Forster, Westfield	18	4 61
Patterson, Roselle	18	4 61

SHARP ALL DAY FIGHT

Boers Put Up a Stubborn Resistance at Driefontein.

THE WHITE FLAG AGAIN MISUSED.

Rumors of Mafeking's Relief Not Confirmed—British Casualties to Date Number 15,677—Saturday's Battle Described.

LONDON, March 12.—The war office maps show a group of kopjes and a large water pan at Driefontein, a position which has apparently considerable defensive advantages. The Boers who retreated to Abraham's kraal from Poplar Grove must have moved southward or else a fresh force must have come from Bloemfontein or the Orange river.

The opposition met at Driefontein was somewhat unexpected, the idea being that if there were any resistance it would be at Petrusberg. Profiting by their experience, the Boers were prepared for a British flanking movement, but in extending their position in order to avoid being outflanked they probably weakened their center, thus making it possible for the British infantry to carry this with a bayonet charge.

Lord Roberts' dignified protest against the abuse of the white flag is regarded as the most important fact of the situation. According to the accounts supplied by the correspondents, the instance appears to have been most flagrant, and there is no doubt that Lord Roberts will carry his threat into execution.

The dispatch from Durban as to the engagement near Pomeroy seems to explain the Boer accounts of skirmishing in the Helpmakaar district, and, although Colonel Bethune's force numbered only a few hundreds, the news shows that the Boers are in considerable numbers on the Biggarsberg.

There is no confirmation of the rumors of the raising of the siege of Mafeking, concerning which the gravest anxiety continues to be felt.

The British reported casualties up to this date are as follows: Killed, 2,418; wounded, 8,747; died of disease, 1,029; missing, 3,483; total, 15,677.

A dispatch to the war office from Lord Roberts, dated Driefontein, March 11, says:

"The enemy opposed us throughout yesterday's march and from their intimate knowledge of the country gave us considerable trouble. Owing, however, to the admirable conduct of the troops the enemy were unable to prevent us reaching our destination. The brunt of the fighting fell on General Kelly-Kenny's division, two battalions of which, the Welsh and Essex, turned the Boers out of two strong positions at the point of the bayonet.

"I cannot get the precise number of casualties before I march, but will communicate it as soon as possible. The Boers suffered heavily, 102 of their dead being left on the ground. We captured about 20 prisoners.

"Among the killed are Captain Eustace of the Buffs, Captain Lomax of the Welsh regiment and Mr. McKartie, a retired Indian civilian attached to Kitchener's horse.

"Among the wounded are Colonel Hickson, leg, severe, and Lieutenant Ronald of the Buffs, Lieutenants Torkington, Pope and Wimberley of the Welsh regiment, Captain Broadwood of the Essex regiment, Lieutenant Devenish of the field artillery, Major Waite and Lieutenant Berne of the medical corps and Colonel Umphely, abdomen, dangerous, of the Australian artillery.

"The following telegram has been addressed by me to their honors the state presidents of the Orange Free State and the South African Republic:

"'Another instance having occurred of gross abuse of the white flag and of the signal of holding up hands in token of surrender, it is my duty to inform you that if such abuse occurs again I shall most reluctantly be compelled to order my troops to disregard the white flag entirely.

"'The instance occurred on a kopje east of Driefontein farm yesterday and was witnessed by several of my own staff officers as well as by myself and resulted in the wounding of several of my officers and men.

"'A large quantity of explosive bullets of three different kinds was found in Commandant Cronje's laager, and this has been the case after every engagement with your honors' troops. Such breaches of the recognized usages of war and of the Geneva convention are a disgrace to any civilized power. A copy of this telegram has been sent to my government with the request that it may be communicated to all neutral powers.'"

A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Asvogel Kop, dated March 11, says:

"The white flag treachery was personally witnessed at Driefontein by Lord Roberts, who was looking through a telescope when the Welsh were charging and saw the Boers hold up their hands, show the flag and drop their guns. He saw an English officer advance to receive their surrender, whereupon a Boer volley was fired, and the officer fell.

"According to Boer reports, the fall of Mafeking is certain. There has been heavy fighting this week, and the Boers have been shelling the town from all the outlying forts which they have captured. Colonel Baden-Powell cleared all the natives out of the town, but the Boers drove them back. The Boers are preparing for a final assault, with the idea that the capture of Mafeking will raise the drooping spirits of the burghers."

The Daily News has the following from Asvogel Kop, dated March 11:

"The march was continued today to this point. No Boers were seen on the way. The British are now only 25 miles from Bloemfontein. One of the Boer prisoners says the siege of Mafeking has been raised."

A dispatch to The Times from Driefontein, dated Sunday, says:

"The storming of Alexander kopje by the Welsh was a particularly fine piece of work. The mobility of the Boers in moving their guns was very remarkable. The New South Wales mounted infantry made a gallant but unsuccessful attempt to capture a gun.

"According to the latest reports, another engagement today is not improbable."

The Daily Mail has received the following dispatch from Pretoria, dated Saturday, March 10, and censored by the Boer government:

"President Kruger and President Steyn have wired to Lord Salisbury peace proposals on condition that the independence of the two republics be respected and the rebel colonials amnestied.

"Yesterday the foreign consuls were called into conference and were requested to invite the intervention of the powers they represented in order to prevent further bloodshed."

BOERS RESIST STUBBORNLY.

The Advance on Bloemfontein Meets With Hard Fighting.

DRIEFONTEIN, Orange Free State, March 12.—Broadwood's cavalry brigade, advancing on Bloemfontein, unexpectedly found the Boers in a strong position in the Driefontein kopjes Saturday. General Kelly-Kenny's division arriving, severe fighting ensued. The Boers resisted stubbornly, but were driven from their center position, leaving a number of dead and 40 prisoners. The British force moved forward yesterday.

During the fighting, in which five regiments took part, with artillery, the Boers, though forced from their center position, clung tenaciously to the other kopjes, shelling the British freely with three guns and two Vickers-Maxims.

The British cavalry began to turn the Boer position, but night fell before the movement was completed. The Boers retired during the night.

A large number of Australians were engaged Saturday. The First Australian horse brigade, with the Scots Grays, advanced within 800 yards of the Boers under heavy fire.

The New South Wales mounted infantry joined in the pursuit of the Boers northward.

All of Saturday was occupied in fighting. The Boers maintained a stubborn rear guard action along a running front of 12 miles on a very difficult ground. The British were advancing in three columns. General Tucker, to the southward, occupied Petrusberg unopposed. General Kelly-Kenny, after following the river bank, moved in the direction of Abraham's kraal.

At Driefontein, about eight miles south of Abraham's kraal, the Boers were found posted in considerable strength on the ridges connecting several kopjes, where they had mounted guns. The action began at 8 o'clock in the morning with an artillery duel. General French's cavalry and General Porter's brigade supported our guns. The Boer artillery was accurately handled, and the British cavalry found a task harder than they had expected.

General Broadwood, with dogged perseverance, moved altogether six miles southward, trying to find a means to get round, but the Boers followed behind rising ground and even attempted to outflank him.

Meanwhile the Sixth division of infantry, advancing on the Boer left, slowly forced the enemy to retire. Had the infantry been able to move faster the Boers would have been enveloped.

The last shot was fired at 7:30 p. m. Sunday morning not a Boer was to be seen. The prisoners belonged to President Kruger's own commando.

British Attack Repulsed.

DURBAN, March 12.—The Natal Mercury has the following dispatch from Greytown:

"A force composed of Bethune's mounted infantry, the Umvoti mounted rifles and the Natal police, with three Maxims, under Colonel Bethune, reached Pomeroy Thursday, March 8. The following morning the Boer pickets opened fire.

"A general engagement soon ensued, the Boers using pompoms and two big guns. There was heavy firing on both sides. Colonel Bethune, seeing the impossibility of dislodging the Boers without artillery, retired south of the Tugela, with one man wounded. The Boer loss is said to be considerable."

Rebels Giving Out.

CAPE TOWN, March 12.—News from Ladygrey, Herschel and Aliwal North show that the rebels are laying down their arms in large numbers and that the Boers all along the border are in serious straits. The rebels assert that the Boers are subsisting on bread and water and so called coffee made from rye. Other rebels are leaving to fight in the Free State. British rule has been restored at Ladygrey, where a big fight is reported to have occurred, many rebels being killed. It is reported that thousands of rebels contemplate surrendering to General Brabant.

New Motive Power For Holland Boat.

BALTIMORE, March 12.—Frederic A. Verdu, engineering expert for the Holland Torpedo Boat company, will tow the submarine boat Plunger, which for five years has been under construction at the Columbian Iron works in this city, to Richmond. At the yards of the William R. Trigg company in that city the three triple expansion engines which were to have been used for surface motive power will be removed and gas engines substituted. When under water electricity will be used to propel the vessel. The cost of the alterations, it is expected, will be $40,000.

Cut Her Husband's Throat.

JOLIET, Ills., March 12.—Mrs. John Gallagher, 50 years old, during a fit of temporary insanity arose from bed, procured a razor and returned to the bedroom, where she cut her husband's throat from ear to ear. He died before the police arrived on the scene. The demented woman is now confined in jail. Two small children were sleeping in the adjoining room, but were not molested.

A Strike Declared Off.

ST. LOUIS, March 12.—The threatened strike of the employees of the St. Louis Transit company is off. An agreement perfectly satisfactory to both sides has been reached between the officials of the Transit company and the executive committee of the employees. Later the agreement was ratified by a mass meeting of employees, and thus the contest of the last few days ended.

Steamship Magnate Was Rich.

LONDON, March 12.—The will of the late Mr. Thomas Henry Ismay, founder of the White Star Line Steamship company, who died in Liverpool last November, has been proved, showing a personal estate of £1,297,881. Numerous legacies, in all about £25,000, are left to charities and the remainder of the estate to members of the family.

Fireman Killed In Boston Fire.

BOSTON, March 12.—An early Sunday morning fire in the building owned by the Massachusetts Macaroni company on North street caused the death of one fireman, the probable fatal injury of another and the serious injury of three others, besides entailing a financial loss variously estimated at from $75,000 to $150,000.

BRIDGE WORK

In Dentistry is the best substitute for nature's work that can be done, sound roots may be built up and crowned and thus fill up an unsightly space. It has to be made of a material that has strength and durability and one that will not discolor. Gold is the one that stands the test. That is the secret of the expense. But the advantages of a bridge over a plate are many times more than the cost of one compared to that of the other.

GAMES OF WAR.

Report That British Soldiers Play Cricket Under Heavy Fire in South Africa.

Americans who are prone to regard the British national game, cricket, as a sort of monstrously lazy libel on baseball have never given followers of that alleged inane and sissyish game credit for being of warlike natures. Indeed, cricket has been placed upon the same ladylike basis as tennis in America and its few followers here, mostly British born, have always been regarded as "softies," too feminine in their nature to enjoy the rougher and faster sport of baseball. Yet the following excerpts taken from Cricket, the brilliant and entertaining English paper devoted to the game, go to prove that the English cricketer is a bold soldier. In sooth it is essential that he should be for Englishmen, whatever their faults, are brave men and fair fighters, and, of course, there never was a true Briton, or untrue one, for that matter, that did not play cricket. So it is only natural, that cricketers should be found in the army of South Africa. Though cricket is a strange game to most Americans the appended accounts of games played under fire in South Africa and of stunning exhibitions of coolness cannot fail to prove interesting.

"So many of our most famous cricketers are in South Africa and so much time has been at their disposal while the armies have been waiting for transport, etc., that it was inevitable that games of cricket should be played. It was also inevitable that there should be points about some of the matches which were quite different from anything hitherto seen on the cricket field. Early in the history of the war, when Ladysmith was first besieged, we heard that a match was brought to a premature conclusion because the players attracted the shells of the Boers, who do not seem to be of a sporting turn of mind. From time to time reports have come through the Boer lines from Ladysmith of incidents of as startling nature in connection with cricket matches. A correspondent of the Daily Mail states that during one of them a shell from the Boer positions fell among the players, one of whom was instantly killed. When his friends came to pick him up they found the ball tightly clasped in his hand. The correspondent adds that the player was 22 years old, but does not say whether this had anything to do with the accident. Again, in a private letter it is stated that a bowler was about to deliver the ball when a shell from the enemy blew him to pieces—this may possibly be the incident referred to by the newspaper correspondent. Another writer says: 'The light-heartedness of the troops is wonderful. At Ladysmith they had a cricket match during the bombardment, and a man who was bowled declared that 'the bowling of the antagonist was a good deal worse than the Boer shells.' But by far the most startling story of the war which has yet appeared is to be found in a letter by Mr. Bennet Burleigh, the famous war correspondent of the Daily Telegraph: 'The Boer guns,' he says, (at Colenso) also began a little later throwing shrapnel, and the machine gun firing solid shot at them. But the gunners never flinched nor winced, buckling to their work like men who grip a heavy load. Nay, more, some of them in derision began to "field," as at cricket, with the badly-aimed spent shot of the machine cannon. Running aside they would make a catch, and call: 'How's that, umpire?' Astounding, and yet more astounding, for this story is absolutely true!" —St. Louis Republic.

BOTH SIDES ARMING.

The Kentucky Trouble Grows Decidedly Serious.

BECKHAM ORGANIZES A GUARD.

Troops Once More Protect Taylor and the Statehouse—The Arrest of Republican Officials Causes Great Excitement.

FRANKFORT, Ky., March 12.—The first move on the part of Governor Beckham's followers toward the formation of a state guard under his administration was taken here yesterday. City Clerk Ben Marshall circulated a paper and enlisted the requisite number of men who are to compose a new company. The guns for this company have been provided by citizens here, most of them being either needle guns or Winchesters.

In the afternoon a report gained currency that Governor Taylor had given his soldiers orders to arrest Governor Beckham and other officers of the Democratic state government. On account of this report the men enlisted by Captain Marshall were assembled at the city hall, armed and sworn in as special police for the purpose of protecting the Democratic officers who are still quartered at the Capitol hotel. A large number of citizens also volunteered and were assigned to various posts in the vicinity of the hotel to offer resistance in case the talked of arrests were attempted. Governor Taylor's soldiers who are on guard at the statehouse were re-enforced by the arrival of the Barboursville company of 71 men, all of whom are fully armed and equipped. More troops are looked for. The Pineville and London companies are expected some time during the day. Governor Beckham has appointed Colonel David R. Murray of Clover Point assistant adjutant general with the rank of colonel, and he has been sworn in.

Harlan Whittaker and W. H. Culton, who were confined in jail here charged with complicity in the assassination of Goebel, were removed from the jail at an early hour Sunday morning and taken in a hack to Shelbyville, where they were placed on a train and sent to Louisville under a heavy guard. It is understood they will be kept in the Louisville jail till the April term of the circuit court, when they will be returned here for trial.

The reward of $1,500 for the arrest of Powers and Davis was offered by Justus Goebel and Arthur Goebel, brothers of the late William Goebel. Justus Goebel is here and had the offer of the reward telephoned to Lexington officers as soon as it was learned that the state officers had escaped in soldier's uniform on the train. It is claimed by some that the Goebel brothers will be reimbursed by the state commission having charge of the $100,000 fund, but they acted on their own account. Arthur Goebel is in Cincinnati. The brothers were in communication during the night by wire and telephone, and both kept the wires hot to Lexington.

TAYLOR MEN ARRESTED.

Captured In Lexington While Trying to Escape.

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 12.—Almost without warning the storm center of excitement in the present gubernatorial struggle shifted to Lexington, and Saturday night the town was in an uproar. The 8:40 Chesapeake and Ohio train from Frankfort brought with it in one car to themselves Secretary of State Caleb B. Powers, Captain John Davis, Capitol square policeman, and Lieutenant R. Peake of Covington. Intelligence had preceded them that they were on their way to Lexington and were trying to make their escape.

When the train pulled into the depot, the entire police force of this city under Chief John McD. Ross and Sheriff Henry Bosworth, with a large force of deputies, boarded the train. On entering the coach the officers found it contained about 25 soldiers with Powers and Davis, the soldiers being under command apparently of Lieutenant Peake. Lieutenant Peake sprang to his feet at once and commanded the soldiers to clear the car. In an instant 20 revolvers were drawn by the officers, and they were all leveled at Peake, who gamely tried to pull his own revolver, but as he drew it from the scabbard a policeman smashed him across the hand with his club and then prevented what would have undoubtedly resulted in a tragedy. The sheriff commanded the conductor to cut off the car. The conductor remonstrated, stating that the train carried United States mail, and the demand was then not pressed.

Davis and Powers were both disguised. Both wore the regular soldier uniforms complete, even as to the leggings. Davis had shaved off his mustache and goatee. He had $125 in money on his person and a revolver. There was found on Powers $1,300. In the inside pocket of each man was found a pardon from Governor W. S. Taylor, duly signed and sealed.

Swallowed His Teeth.

WINSTED, Conn., March 12.—Joseph White, aged 70, is dying at his home here as the result of accidentally swallowing two false teeth while in bed Thursday night. They had a whalebone attachment and lodged so far down his throat that all efforts to extricate them or force them into the man's stomach have been fruitless. Since the accident White has been unable to eat anything and is constantly suffering intense pain.

Improvements For Alaska.

SEATTLE, March 12.—Captain Abercrombe and 43 government engineers will sail for the Copper river, Alaska, on the steamer St. Paul tomorrow. They will at once prepare to lay bridges over the Copper, Klutena and other rivers for the trail to the Yukon and then will begin setting poles for the telegraph line. It is the intention to string most of the wire from Valdez to St. Michael's.

Fire Sweeps an Iowa Town.

REDFIELD, Ia., March 12.—Fire early Sunday morning in the business portion of this town completely wiped out all the business houses on the south side of Main street. The loss is estimated at about $20,000, only partially covered by insurance. Thirteen families were burned out. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Chautauqua Hotel Burned.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., March 12.—The Saratoga, one of the largest hotels at Lakewood, on Chautauqua lake, was burned to the ground yesterday. The loss will be $15,000. The Rice cottage, adjoining the hotel, was also burned. The loss on the cottage is $4,000.

A JUNIOR REPUBLIC.

Prominent Men Interested In Homeless Boys.

DEPEW DISCUSSES PHILANTHROPY.

One-half of All Charitable Efforts Produce More Harm Than Good. This Institution Promotes Self Help.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—President McKinley, Secretary Long, Senator Chauncey Depew and a number of members of congress attended last night a public meeting at the Columbia theater held in the interest of the National Junior Republic, which has its headquarters at Annapolis Junction, Md. The object of the republic is to provide for the boys of Washington and Baltimore, especially those without homes, a place where they can be taught to care for and govern themselves.

Senator Depew made an interesting talk, in the course of which he said: "I am always suspicious of philanthroy. It comes to me in so many forms and so many guises seeking help. In many cases either the individual is a fraud or the cause he represents is a fraudulent one. I am convinced that fully one-half of all charitable efforts are productive of more harm than good. They increase pauperism and encourage paupers to remain as such. Especially is it true in England that most of the money contributed for charitable work is absorbed in the salaries and office rent of those directing its expenditure. The worst form that charity can take is when it pauperizes the recipient. I have observed that a scolarship in one of our colleges that provides for all the wants of the students holding it usually turns out an indifferent or worthless man, while a scholarship that only supplements the efforts of the student produces a respectable and useful citizen and often a man of brilliant parts. The men who have become great are the men who have had to work their way through college.

"It is because it teaches self help and self reliance that I like the work of the Junior Republic. The problem that confronts us in America is the concentration of population in great cities. There the boy lacks the beneficial environment of good home and good neighbors and is surrounded by vice and temptation. The mere education of a boy who grows up with such surroundings may only make him the more dangerous as a citizen.

"And it is this very principle of self government that prevents our opportunity for rescuing these waifs of the street. In every large city there are hundreds and thousands of boys whose surroundings tend to make them villains and rascals, murderers perhaps, or ballot box stuffers and ward heelers. How are we to save them? Various remedies have been proposed. Some say education, but the mere education of such a boy may make him only the more dangerous as a citizen. The reform school has been tried, but this arouses antagonism in the boy's breast and makes him hate the law and the powers that enforce it. As remedial measures I think both of these plans are failures. You have got to appeal to the manhood of the boy. You have got to raise his self respect."

Addresses also were made by Mr. Blair Lee, Mr. Thomas C. Noyes and several officers of the republic, and a letter of regret was read from Hon. John Hay.

The Open Door.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 12.—President Benjamin Ide Wheeler of the University of California in an address to the Monticello club gave the details of the negotiations which Secretary of State Hay has had under way for some time relative to the China "open door." President Wheeler learned the negotiations while in conversation with Secretary Hay during his recent visit to Washington. President Wheeler said: "In the course of a week Secretary of State Hay will announce to the people a victory, not of war—call it of diplomacy if you please—in that the ports of China will be opened to the commerce of the world. He has reached an understanding with Great Britain, France, Russia and Germany which does away with territorial spheres of influence."

Killed by His Own Trap.

DE SOTO, Mo., March 12.—William Pearce, a farmer living three miles west of this place, was accidentally shot and killed. He had been missing large quantities of corn from a crib in the rear of his house and set a trap for the thief. He placed a shotgun loaded with buckshot on the inside of the crib, to the trigger of which was attached a wire. Pearce set the trigger and the following night went to the crib for corn. When he opened the door, the load of buckshot struck him in the breast.

A Tribute to Phelps.

LONDON, March 12.—The Times, referring this morning to the death of Dr. Edward J. Phelps, former minister of the United States at the court of St. James', says: "Among the gifted men who have represented the United States here Mr. Phelps was one of the most successful alike in social and diplomatic duties. He will long be remembered as one of the best and wisest public servants of his country."

Murder and Lynching.

VALDOSTA, Ga., March 12.—Word was received here of a double murder and lynching near Jennings, Fla., near the Georgia line. Two white men by the name of Carver were killed by a negro whose name could not be learned. The negro was captured by the sheriff. A mob quickly gathered, took the murderer away from the officers of the law and swung him up on a neighboring tree.

A Missouri Tragedy.

MALTA BEND, Mo., March 12.—James Bailey, a popular young man, was shot and killed last night by T. I. Purcell, editor of the Malta Bend Democrat. There had been ill feeling between the men for several days, but the cause is not known. Purcell was arrested and taken to Marshall for safe keeping.

Killed by a Train.

TRENTON, March 12.—Three men were struck by a train on the Philadelphia and Reading railway near Hopewell yesterday afternoon. Two of them were killed, and the third had a miraculous escape from death.

A NEGRO REVIVAL.

Many New York Colored Converts Baptized.

NEW YORK, March 12.—Men, women and children, some deaf, some mute and others blind, but most of them whole and sound, to the number of 184 were plunged into a tank of water and brought out of it gasping and breathless in the Mount Olivet Baptist church yesterday.

"This is the largest number of persons ever baptized in one Christian church," exclaimed the pastor, the Rev. C. T. Walker, as he led the last of the dripping procession from the font to a pew, where the women knelt in prayer and then, shivering, went to a room in the rear of the church to join others who were changing their clothing and preparing to go out into the chill March wind.

The church was crowded with colored persons. It was to "please God," the pastor explained, that the ordeal of baptism must be undergone. All who endured the trial would be saved, he said, and their souls would enjoy eternal and celestial happiness.

The extraordinary scene was the culmination of a series of revival services in this church which have caused more than 700 persons to take communion besides the 184 who were immersed yesterday. The preacher has gained the title of the "Colored John the Baptist."

A PRINCE IN DEBT.

Jamaica Merchants Would Like Clarence to Pay Up.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, March 12.—Prince Clarence, chief of the Mosquito Territory and protege of the British government, who resides in Jamaica, has been sued by local merchants. His solicitor sets up in defense the allegation that Prince Clarence was the sovereign chief of the Mosquito Territory prior to and at the time of the accruing of the cause of action and therefore is entitled to all the rights appertaining to him as a prince of the Mosquito Territory.

The solicitor contends that Clarence ought not to be compelled against his will to answer in a legal action before any of the judges or before a minister of the queen in Jamaica, and on behalf of his client he denies the jurisdiction of the Jamaican courts.

This raises an interesting question, as Prince Clarence is considerably in debt, and the settlement of the issue is important to him.

A general and 15 men have landed here on the way to Colon. They say they are Argentinians and are going to join the Colombian revolutionists.

Mail advices from Panama report that the Colombian revolutionary movement continues.

ROOT RECEIVES CALLERS.

Department Heads See Secretary—A Weak Protest Against Sbarretti.

HAVANA, March 12.—Mr. Elihu Root, United States secretary of war, was busy Sunday morning receiving the heads of the various departments of government and conferring with them. Collector Bliss, Major Ladd, Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. Chaffee and some members of Secretary Root's party visited Morro Castle and Cabanas fortress.

General Chaffee returned Admiral Farquhar's call on behalf of Mr. Root.

Comparatively few people attended the meeting to protest against the appointment of Mgr. Sbarretti to the bishopric of Havana. A committee of four, including General Maximo Gomez, was appointed to visit the bishop and to inform him respectfully of the wishes of the Cuban people. It was argued that it would be better to take this course on the chance that Mgr. Sbarretti would express a willingness to resign and thus save the work of organizing some 40 subcommittees of protest from the various parts of the diocese, as was originally proposed.

Negroes Attempt to Emigrate.

ATHENS, Ga., March 12.—A crowd of about 500 negroes assembled about the Seaboard Air Line depot here yesterday for the purpose of emigrating to the Mississippi valley. It had been reported that they were to be given free transportation, but the orders of the railroad officials were to allow none on the trains who had not paid the regular fare to Atlanta. When the 3:40 train came along there was a scene of wild confusion. The negroes made a rush for the coaches, and the police had a hard time getting and keeping them off. In the melee Policeman Alexander Sage was badly bruised. The same scene was repeated on the arrival and departure of other trains.

ADJOURNMENT IN SIGHT.

New York Legislature Will Name April 30 as the Date.

ALBANY, March 12.—The approaching close of the session is clearly indicated by the rush of individual members to secure action upon their personal measures. This crowds the work of each day's session, and it is probable that the sessions during this week will be the longest of the winter. It is expected that the resolution for final adjournment will be presented in the assembly before the close of the week and that March 30 will be named as the date. It is quite probable, however, that this resolution will be amended in the senate, as it now seems impossible that that body can clear up the work before it by that time.

Meanwhile new propositions for legislation are daily pouring in, and the flood of bills introduced has but little subsided. There is little prospect, however, of bills now making their appearance reaching final action.

The mortgage tax measure is now the most interesting measure before the legislature and will likely occupy considerable of the time of the senate this week. Although many of the objectionable features of the bill as originally proposed have been eliminated in the measure reported to the senate on Friday, the principle of mortgage tax will be as determinedly opposed as before, and it is probable that demands will be made upon the senate committee for further hearings upon the bill. It is believed, however, that in its present form the bill can acquire sufficient support for its passage. One point in its favor which particularly appeals to Republican members is the revenue which it will yield. It has been estimated that the bill as now framed will yield at least $6,000,000 a year.

FROM DAWSON TO NOME.

Thousands Leave For the New Goldfields.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Under date of Dawson City, Jan. 14, Vice Consul Morrison reports that 19 expeditions have left Dawson for Cape Nome since Dec. 4 last, and as soon as the weather moderates many more will start. The population of Dawson is 6,000 less than last year. Late news from Nome confirms the reports of the richness of the district and announces new finds in the interior, but lack of fuel prohibits these being worked in winter. Typhoid has appeared with increased mortality.

In Dawson the revenue from liquor for the year is placed at $100,000. Saloon licenses are worth $2,500 per annum. Prices are still up. The profits on drugs are placed at 300 per cent, groceries 200 per cent, hardware 400 per cent. Beer is worth $100 a barrel and whisky from $40 to $60 per gallon. Owing to flooding of the mines the gold output may be kept down. It is estimated that between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000 will comprise the output for the Dawson district.

FIGHTING IN PANAY.

Filipinos In Large Numbers Resist Colonel Houston's Force.

MANILA, March 12.—Thousands of organized insurgents are resisting Colonel Houston's battalion of the Nineteenth regiment at Antique, province of Panay, which is the only province which Americans do not occupy. The Americans lost seven killed. A battalion of the Forty-fourth from Iloilo re-enforced Houston's command.

One hundred and fifty Tagalogs armed with rifles have surrendered at Capiz and have been transferred to Luzon.

Six Americans were killed in an ambush recently laid by the Filipinos at Aparri.

To Klondike by Automobile.

NEW YORK, March 12.—The French liner L'Aquitaine, which came into port from Havre, brought three Frenchmen who say they intend to make the attempt to go to the Klondike by automobile. They are E. Janne de Lamare, who has been to the Klondike and was for a time editor of The Klondike Review; Raphael Merville, who is a brother-in-law of M. de Lamare and who holds a fast automobile record, and E. Crom, private secretary to M. de Lamare. The three travelers sent ahead of them to this country an automobile of five horsepower and a motor cycle of three horsepower. The vehicles have been forwarded to Vancouver, whence they will be sent to Skaguay and on to Lake Bennett by way of the Yukon and the White Pass railroad. M. de Lamare said that he intended to start on Wednesday for Montreal and on April 19 to start by automobile from Lake Bennett for At-

If we are to believe the Bound Brook Chronicle, and its reputation for veracity is gilt-edged, our little neighbor up the road must be in a bad way, as witness the following item published in its columns in the last issue: "This little borough is gaining (or already possesses it) the reputation of being the garden spot for those who get thirsty on the Sabbath day. Here it is that the side-door racket is worked with impunity, without a blush of shame upon the part of either the dispenser or drinker. As usual, the drinker is the one who has to pay the penalty, but possibly some day the law which prohibits Sunday liquor selling will be enforced."

The determination of Rev. Dr. Sheldon to manage and edit the Topeka State Capital for one week as he thinks Jesus would if He was in charge of a newspaper, is one of the most unusual, unique and bold enterprises ever undertaken by mortal man. The State Capital will be the most closely read paper of the world for this week.

It will be interesting to the women of Plainfield who are to conduct a "rummage sale" for the benefit of the Muhlenberg hospital in the near future, to know that the charitable women of Newark have just finished conducting three such affairs with very gratifying profits. They netted $1,000, $700 and $500, respectively.

In the decision to abandon the "rookery" as a police station and city court room and provide temporary quarters elsewhere until the much-desired city hall is a reality, the police board has done something to rid the city of a feature that has long been a disgrace to it.

The Armor Plate Trust has declined to reduce one penny the charge of $545 for a ton of steel plates which Uncle Sam must have to build the war ships needed by the country. The sort of protection which this Trust gets not only makes objection, but dejection.

There are few cities or towns in the State that are getting a fair tax out of trolley companies for the use of the public streets. The quicker, therefore that a law imposing a general franchise tax on these concerns, is passed, the better it will be for the people.

If, as it now seems probable, the Democratic National convention is to be turned into a Bryan ratification meeting, what better place could be found for such an event than Kansas City?

What has become of that crusade against the alleged vice and iniquity of Plainfield which Editor Runyon started with such a display of egotistical lightning and thunder a short time ago?

New York may as well do away with its costly Legislature and leave it all to the breakfasts of Platt, Roosevelt and Odell.

One of the easiest things in the world is to eat a square meal at a round table.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Aleck Bailey, a Point Pleasant fisherman, five miles off Mantoloking last Wednesday caught a six pound codfish which had a copper tag fastened to its tail with a copper wire the tag bearing the number 036. It is supposed that the tag was fastened to the fish's tail in its early stage of existence when it was released by some fish commission. The tag will be forwarded to the New Jersey Commission in the hope that more of its history may become known

Tomorrow the annual spring election will take place in the borough and despite the fact that there is little to excite interest, the fight promises to be a lively one. One of the most unimportant offices, Justice of the Peace, is being contested for vigorously, and the Democrats are trying to secure enough votes to elect their entire ticket. The Republicans are awake, however, and a close contest is looked for. There is very little talk heard about election and one would scarcely believe that one is soon to be held. However, plenty of quiet work is being done and some surprises may be expected.

The fine macadam streets of Plainfield have to suffer severely every winter from the sharp shod horses. Whenever there comes a period of ice and snow, all the horses throughout the city are shod with the shoes having the sharp spikes in the bottom to prevent them from slipping. They are handy things as long as the streets are icy, but when that period is over these sharp shoes play havoc with the surfaces of the roads. At every step, the horse digs into the macadam surface of the road and the consequence is that there are countless little holes in the macadam and a multitude of small stones over the road.

Captain A. H. Harvey, of Manasquan, has learned by sad experience that it does not pay to kick. Captain Harvey was feeding his chickens one day last week when a dog ran among them and scared the fowls away from the feed trough. Captain Harvey aimed a vicious kick at the cur, but the dog deftly dodged the blow, and the Captain's foot, meeting no resistance, threw its owner off his equilibrium. He fell over a chopping block, which of course, had to be just where it would do the most harm, and after the doctor had finished taking soundings, he told the Captain that he had one rib broken and another cracked. The dog is all right.

The bird cotes near the wholesale liquor store of Frank Linke, on West Front street, are being painted and put in condition for the receptions of the large number of English martins that annually occupy these cosy little houses. In the winter the sparrows occupy the cotes. Along about the Middle of April the martins make their annual pilgrimage to the north and take up their summer residence in Plainfield. When the martin family arrives there's sure to be a fight between the belligerent sparrows and the new comers for possession of their summer home. For several hours the battle is fiercely fought. The plucky little sparrows put up a game fight for what they consider their rights, but they are out numbered and out classed. The martins are too strong in numbers and finally succeed in disposing their enemies.

John J. K. Coard, of East Ninth street, has left Rogers, Peet & Co., of New York, after an association and successful management of their great business for a period of twenty-one years. The firm in severing their connection with Mr. Coard wrote many commendatory words of which the following is a sample: "Of all the men who have helped us to build up this great business, none have had a more conspicuous part; none have labored with more fidelity, industry and intelligence, and none have possessed our confidence and esteem more fully." Mr. Coard has entered the business of Smith Gray & Co., Broadway, corner of Thirty-first street, New York. He fills the place made vacant by Wilson G. Hunt Randolph, whose death occurred recently. His position is that of general manager and a director of the entire business, being vice-president, and with Millard F. Smith, the president and treasurer, composing the executive committee of the company.

Christopher Sorensen, Jr., the popular trombone player in the orchestra at Music Hall, will go to New York today to enter upon an engagement of twenty-five weeks in the orchestra at Miner's Eighth Avenue Theatre.

GRAIN-O! GRAIN-O!

Remember that name when you want a delicious, appetizing, nourishing food drink to take the place of coffee. Sold by all grocers and liked by all who have used it. Grain-O is made of pure grain, it aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. It is not a stimulant but a health builder and the children as well as the adults can drink it with great benefit. Costs about ¼ as much as coffee. 15c. and 25c. per package. Ask your grocer for Grain-O.

WESTFIELD

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Westfield, March 12th—The election tomorrow is the chief subject of conversation in Westfield. The Republican leaders concede the election of J. Alston Dennis and Wm. E. Tuttle, Jr., the Democratic nominees for Township Committeemen, over W. W. Connolly and Frank S. Smith, but they are now doing all they can to elect Martin Welles, the Rppublican candidate, over Henry C. Sergeant For the Freeholdership there is but little chance that Mulford M. Scudder, the present holder of the office, will be defeated, although the Republicans have placed a strong man against him in Former Committeeman George H. Embree. The Assessor's office will, without a doubt, go to John M. C. Marsh, who has been the Assessor of the township for the past thirty years.

Dr. J. Ackerman Coles, of Scotch Plains, who has always taken a great interest in the Children's Country Home, of this town, has sent to the treasurer, Mrs. R. R. Sinclair, a check for $50 which will be used toward the extinction of the mortgage, which with the $500 recently given by Charles G. Endicott, will pay off the whole amount.

A progressive euchre party will take place at the Westfield Club Hall on Monday night, March 19th. The card playing will be followed by a subscription dance with music by Prof. Westervelt, of Newark.

"Arnold and Andre, the Story of the Treason."

ADMISSION, FIFTY CENTS.

Miss Gertrude Tier, of Bank place, has recovered from a recent illness.

The young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Garretson, of Vine street, has about recovered from an attack of whooping cough of several weeks duration.

We try to get as near as possible to the man who drinks the Coffee.

To find the best coffee in this country a woman needs only two qualties. She can use a dozen, but she can do it on only two. They are Intelligence and Courage.

Ten women have intelligence and no courage where one has courage and no intelligence. Courage is really what the average woman needs if she wants coffee way up in G.

Now it doesn't require much courage to buy a pound of Chase & Sanborn's High Grade Coffee if you set about it right. The grocer will give it to you in a parchment-lined bag with our seal and signature attesting its high quality. You have really only to drink it.

Even here you run no risk. The man who ate the first oyster took terrible chances. But the only chance you will take is the probability that never again will you be willing to drink any other kind of coffee.

Even then, you will thank us. Ask your grocer for a pound of this coffee to-day.

Schweiz.

Bern. Die „Hotel-Revue," das Organ des Schweizer Hoteliervereins, meint in ihrem Ueberblick über das Jahr 1899, die Schweizer Hotel-Industrie könne im Allgemeinen auf ein gutes Jahr zurückblicken. Für das laufende Jahr werden aber allerlei Befürchtungen geäußert. Der Krieg werde seine Folgen haben. Unzählige Familien der besitzenden Klasse in England, durch die Verluste ihrer Angehörigen in Trauer versetzt, werden ihre diesjährigen Vergnügungen und Erholungen einschränken. Der Mißmuth der Uebrigen sei ferner dadurch geweckt worden, daß die schweizerische Presse sich allzusehr gegen die Engländer ereifert habe.

Zürich. In Zürich ist die ehemalige Beaute Gräfin Murat (Madame Blanchard), welche den Beinamen „die schöne Olga" führt, wegen verschiedener größerer Schwindeleien verhaftet worden. —Die bekannte Maschinenfabrik Oerlikon hat von englischen Großindustriellen einen Auftrag zur schleunigen Anfertigung von 2,000,000 Schrapnells erhalten.

Luzern. In Großwangen wohnt eine 99 Jahre alte Jungfrau Elisabetha Imgrüth. Sie ist noch rüstig und geht alle Tage zur Kirche. Während 75 Jahren war sie nur ein einziges Mal krank. Ihr Bruder, der vor einigen Jahren starb, war 98 Jahre alt.

Basel. Im Antipyrinprozeß beantragte der Staatsanwalt in Basel gegen Dr. Robert Bindschedler wegen Betrugs und Betrugsversuches zwei Jahre Zuchthaus, gegen Peter Leuthardt und Franz Meier wegen Beihilfe je sechs Monate Gefängniß.

Wallis. Lezithin ist eine von Dr. Noro in Turin geleitete wissenschaftliche Expedition nach der Königin Margherita-Hütte auf dem Monte Rosa aufgebrochen. Dr. Noro hat Brieftauben mitgenommen, um den Versuch zu machen, ob sie der dortigen niederen Temperatur widerstehen, und ob sie auch in solcher Höhe die Orientirungsgabe beibehalten. Die Karawane ist wahrscheinlich die letzte Gesellschaft, welche die Königin Margherita-Hütte beherbergt, denn im nächsten Frühjahr tritt ein schönes Observatorium, für das die Arbeiten schon begonnen haben, an die Stelle dieser Hütte.

Insterburg. Nicht weniger als drei Selbstmorde sind hier an einem Tage vorgekommen. Am Morgen erschoß sich aus bisher nicht bekannten Ursachen der 21 Jahre alte Unteroffizier Proßies vom 147. Infanterie-Regiment in der Kaserne mit seinem Dienstgewehr, das er mit Munition geladen hatte. Mittags fand man den Kaufmann Eckert und seine Ehefrau nach dem gewaltsamen Aufbrechen der Wohnung durch Kohlendunst vergiftet vor. Der sogleich herbeigerufene Arzt konnte nur den Tod feststellen. Gänzlicher Vermögensverfall ist der Grund des Doppelselbstmordes.

Provinz Westpreußen.

Garnsee. In der Nacht hat der Maurer Hinz seine Ehefrau in seiner Wohnung erschlagen. Beide waren dem Trunke ergeben und führten schon seit Jahren ein unglückliches Familienleben. Hinz war der That geständig und bereute diese nicht; er wurde nach Graudenz abgeführt.

Rheinprovinz.

Köln. Die Stadtverordnetenversammlung genehmigte die Vorlage über die zukünftige Gestaltung der Köln-Bonner Kreisbahn und erklärte sich bereit, an der Aufbringung der Mittel für Ausdehnung der Vorgebirgsbahn, Ausbau einer Verbindungslinie Brühl-Wesseling u. s. w. sich zu betheiligen. Die erforderliche Bausumme beläuft sich auf 7,500,000 Mark.

Düsseldorf. Der Schirmhändler Kersten aus Holland kampirte mit seinem Hausirwagen Abends an der Eckratherstraße, wo er mit zwei verwandten Schirmhändlern bis gegen 11 Uhr zechte. Letztere entfernten sich um diese Zeit, und nachdem Kersten und seine Mutter bereits eingeschlafen waren, zogen die beiden Verwandten die Stützen unter dem zweirädrigen Wagen fort. Hierbei fiel der im Wagen brennende Ofen um, der die Betten in Brand steckte. Kersten verbrannte und wurde als verkohlte Leiche im Wagen aufgefunden, seine Mutter wurde schwer verletzt in's Krankenhaus geschafft.

Neuwied. Im Saynbach wurde eine männliche Leiche gefunden, die als die des Geistesgestörten Christian Puderbach aus Niederraden erkannt wurde. Der Mann ist ermordet und die Leiche dann in den Bach geschleift worden. Man hatte den Ermordeten seit dem 21. Januar vermißt; die Mutter des Mannes ist aus Gram über den vermißten Sohn gestorben. Von dem Mörder hat man keine Spur.

Provinz Sachsen.

Heiligenstadt. Auf dem Untereichsfelde hat neulich die steueramtliche Verwiegung des Tabaks der Ernte 1899 begonnen. Der Centner Tabak wird je nach Waare mit 18 bis 20.50 Mark bezahlt. In früheren Jahren wurde die gleiche Waare mit nur 10 bis 15 Mark bezahlt. Die Preissteigerung dürfte wieder eine Vermehrung des Tabakbaues nach sich ziehen.

NOTES OF THE FASHIONS.

New House Gowns with Pretty Collars—Jacket Model That Is Popular.

Applique effects and cut work are always in vogue when braiding is fashionable. Laid over rich satin, velvet or ladies' cloth, the elegant pieces of lace or silk passementerie en applique show to distinct advantage, but it seems a pity to see these handsome patterns laid over gowns or jackets of inferior fabric without any apparent reason. Lace is always so beautiful that it seems a waste to utilize it for many of the everyday uses, for which any amount of it is ruthlessly applied this winter.

Nearly all the new house gowns have soft, pretty colors covered with silk muslin ruches, the bands cut much higher on the sides or at the back than in front. In the holiday exhibit of fancy neckwear, net, in various dainty weaves and meshes, is quite as fashionable as chiffon or mousseline de soie, and while there are many very elaborate and expensive styles shown, there are likewise some fascinating little creations which do much in transforming a plain waist into a smart and more becoming one. Rows of very narrow white or tinted satin or velvet ribbon (in black particularly), bordering frills, ruches and scalloped edges, are very easily applied. They are extremely effective, and, moreover, they are quite as fashionable as ever.

Caroline Reboux, one of the noted milliners of Paris, uses on green, gray, brown and black velvet round hats, rosettes of satin ribbon in several colors on one hat—and set into larger choux of the velvet. These rosettes are especially liked in rose pink, ivy green, russet brown and cherry red, the rosettes looking like gay flowers in their setting of dark velvet.

A little jacket model used with many of the plain tailor costumes has rather wide revers scalloped at the edge and strapped and stitched, turning back from the line of the bust to the shoulders and tapering to a point at the waist. The fronts fit snugly, but are not fastened together. Fancy waistcoats of various kinds are worn with these jackets. The regular French vesting is much used, but there are pretty gilets in soft yellow silk, trimmed with yellow ruching and fine tucks; those of red taffeta silk with rather wide stripes of black velvet ribbon; and white silk models, covered with satin straps edged with narrow gold braid and trimmed with rows of tiny gold buttons. The straps lie flat, and curve from the shoulders to the braid-edged belt.—N. Y. Post.

HE WOULD OBEY ORDERS.

An Applicant for Railroad Work Who Thoroughly Understood His Business.

A young man with a decidedly seedy appearance entered the superintendent's office and, placing his hand familiarly upon the superintendent's shoulder, accosted him thus:

"Boss, can you gimme a job?"

"What department?"

"Either brakin' or firin'."

"Do you know the book of rules?"

"Some."

"Well, let me see how well you are posted. We will suppose you were firing a train that was running from Jersey City to Philadelphia; the engineer would get killed and you would take his place. You would find on his clip that the train had orders to take the sidetrack for another train somewhere in the woods where there was no telegraph office. Now, suppose that train did not arrive there for, say, 12 hours, what would you do?"

"That would be the affair of the conductor, not mine."

"I will take your name and if we have need of services we will send for you. Good day."

The next applicant to enter seated himself back of the superintendent and waited for him to break the silence, which he did, shortly.

"Well, sir, what can I do for you?"

"I would like to have a job, boss."

"In what department?"

"Train service."

"Are you familiar with the book of rules?"

"A little."

The superintendent then asked him the same question as the first.

The fellow scratched his head, then looking the superintendent square in the eye he replied: "Boss, if the orders looked good and were positive I would stay on that sidetrack until hades froze over."

"Go down and report to Mr. ——, the trainmaster, for duty."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Apple a la Niege.

Pare and cut in quarters four large apples, place them in a saucepan with half cupful of water, cover and cook till tender, rub them through a colander, sweeten with three tablespoonfuls sugar. When the apples are cold beat the whites of three eggs to a stiff froth, slowly add the apple sauce while beating constantly. Continue to beat for half hour; heap it on a glass dish, set lady fingers divided in two all around the dish, with bits of currant jelly between, and serve with vanilla sauce, made as follows: Put the yolks of three eggs in a double boiler, add one pint milk, one-half teaspoonful cornstarch, two tablespoonfuls sugar, stir till just about to boil, remove; add one teaspoonful vanilla and serve when cold.—Brooklyn Eagle.

A Poor Lesson.

There can be no poorer soil for a child-plant to grow in, or to attempt to grow in, than the soil of pretense. To learn to conceal is a sorrowful lesson indeed for a child. To learn to conceal honest poverty, as though ashamed of it, is the most sorrowful of the sorrowful lessons in this line, for it is to no little purpose and is unnecessary afterward.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Tailor-Made Gowns of the Spring Season

A Variety of Materials and Colors Are Offered from Which to Select—Two New Colors

THE days of March, with their sunshine, their rain, their snow and then bright and warm again, bring to us a reminder of the close approaching spring when new gowns, and above all new tailor-mades, will be a necessary feature of every wardrobe.

I know of nothing so eminently calculated to make a woman feel blissfully at peace with all the world in general, and with her feminine friends in particular, as the knowledge that, secure in the safe shelter of her wardrobe there is a new gown whose immaculate freshness will come scathless out of the ordeal of the searching brightness of an early spring day, which we all know, to our cost, discovers and magnifies every sign of wear and tear in our winter gowns, and makes us feel woefully out of keeping with the exquisite freshness of nature.

So the wise woman, knowing of old the freaks of the clerk of the weather, and his trick of suddenly pouring sunshine's search-light upon our unprepared head—and clothes—arranges to take time by the forelock, and to discuss with her tailor, in the leisure which the importance of the subject deserves, the material and the style of the new tailor-made which is to be ready to make its successful debut on the very first of the said bright days.

In the spring tailor-mades there is a tendency to greater elaboration in the way of trimming, and with this addition to the usual plain costume there will be no lack of popularity for these most sensible gowns for street wear.

In colors the peculiar new shades for tailor-mades are terra cotta and pink. These are rather dark in the terra cotta, while the pink is of the faintest of that shade. These colors are considered very odd and are far from becoming to all, but there are many shades being used that are suitable for everybody, or at least from among them every woman can find something that will suit. These shades are gray, biscuit, tan, royal blue, drab, light brown and seal brown.

The materials are cheviots, serges, broadcloths, tweeds, venetian cloth and homespuns, with the venetian cloths, cheviots and tweeds in the lead for popularity among the larger classes, but the broadcloths will find many friends among the wealthier classes who have always looked upon this material as their own.

In cut they are mostly made with the tunic effects, and strappings of the self-material. Some are trimmed with pipings of velvet, handsome braids, and lovely guipure lace on collars and revers.

A smart costume that I saw in one of the shops a few days ago was of pale gray venetian cloth. It was made with a graceful hanging skirt made with a tunic, a box plait at the back. It had a little short basque coat so arranged that it can be worn either opened or closed. It had a deep turn-over collar of white satin finely braided in gray and silver.

Another in the same shop was of a pale green, and was made with a double-breasted coat cut in the French style, which is very becoming to the figure. It had a turn back, scalloped collar of pale green satin covered with guipure lace. A long clinging skirt with graduated plaits stitched down at each side giving fullness and freedom about ten inches from the bottom of the skirt.

A third was of parma violet cashmere. The bodice of this is quite charming with its fine diagonal tucks, with a box plait down the center fastened with fancy pearl buttons. A square collar, bordered with ivory satin, with a tucked vest of the same. The skirt is plain, being relieved at the hips by groups of small tucks.

One of a gray and blue mixed goods was quite charming. The skirt was made with a box plait at the back with five rows of stitching around the bottom, and five rows down the front and around the skirt in a shallow scallop about ten inches from the bottom in a tunic effect. The jacket has a tight fitting back and sack front, with rows of stitching around. A deep collar of blue velvet, and three large fancy buttons to fasten the front.

Velvet bodice and cloth skirt are to be a favorite fancy of fashion in the immediate future. The combination is a good one for spring wear. An excellent model just over from Vienna is in deep purple cloth as regards the skirt, which is cut in scallops round the plain edge of the long tunic and stitched in several close-set rows of silk stitchings, over a six-inch hem of velvet of exactly the same shade of violet. The velvet also makes a bolero jacket, cut off short at the waist behind, and open in front over a vest of bloused form, which is covered with trimmings in alternate lines of purple satin ribbon gathered into ruches and black lace insertion. A deep collar of white satin, falling low over the shoulders behind and passing into revers at the front of the bolero, all covered with guipure lace, finishes the design. In that bodice the sleeves are also of the velvet; but in another case the velvet is used as a tight-fitting sleeveless coat, fastened down the front with cut silver buttons, and having spade-ends to some distance below the waist; both this bodice and the skirt are russet brown, but the skirt is of cloth, and trimmed with many rows of small tucks. Then the whole effect is heightened by a three-cornered vest at the throat and the entire sleeves being of a golden-brown satin, covered flatly with white guipure. Such costumes as these are to be recommended for present construction, for there will soon be days on which they may be worn uncovered, assisted by a feather boa.

Community System of Irrigation In the West

How the Mutual Companies Are Organized and Operated by the Farmers

"WATER RIGHT," to the farmer of the eastern, central or southern states a mysterious phrase, is as essential to the prosperity of the western farmer in the states where agriculture is possible only because of proper irrigation.

Little by little the desert lands of the west are being reclaimed by systematic irrigation, but this same irrigation has led to so many suits in the courts, and so many seemingly conflicting decisions have been rendered, that it is sometimes hard to discriminate between valuable water concessions and those that are worthless when presented on paper. To the home-seeker this matter is a critical one. All of his old experience in selecting land is valueless to him when searching for a home among the arid lands of the west. He must forget soil and climatic conditions upon which he has judged land in the humid states from which he came, and look carefully into that mysterious phrase "water right," for without this his ground will be worse than worthless.

HEAD GATE OF RIDENBAUGH CANAL, BOISE RIVER, IDAHO.

Irrigation for these western lands has been accomplished in many ways. Corporations have built canals from which they have supplied water at a set price for a given amount, and the amount is easily regulated by the weirs, or measuring machines, in use on the lateral ditches from which consumers are supplied. The district system of irrigation has been tried in several states, notably California, Idaho and Nebraska, but in the first-named state only has the system been used to any great extent. This system places the cost of irrigation in the form of a special tax upon the people of the district in which irrigation is desired, and such irrigation districts are usually organized upon a two-thirds vote of the residents of the districts. In this system the operating expenses are usually paid by either assessments in the form of taxes, by acreage valuation, or by tolls for the use of water.

The pioneer in western irrigation was the individual, and from his efforts has come the community system of irrigation which has worked satisfactorily in many communities where the original cost of construction was not too great to be undertaken by the farmers themselves.

Mr. J. C. Ulrich, in a recent communication to the agricultural department, describes the methods adopted by the western farmers in organizing for the construction of a community irrigation canal.

For the purpose of specifically illustrating the method of organizing and conducting the affairs of such a community irrigation enterprise, it will be assumed that a number of individuals have made filings upon different tracts of government land, comprising in the aggregate an area of 8,000 acres, or that they have acquired the same area through purchase from the state or from a railroad company. This land is, of course, arid and unproductive without water, and before its irrigation can be effected a canal or other conduit must be constructed for conveying thereto the waters of some adjacent stream. A meeting of the owners or claimants is therefore held, and the necessary plant is agreed upon; the amount of water required, the size of canal needed, and the approximate cost of the undertaking are determined; and a board of directors is elected, who appoint the executive officers for conducting the affairs of the company. It will be assumed that the probable cost of the works has been determined to be $50,000. The capital stock is then fixed at this amount, and is divided into 500 shares at a par value of $100 each. It will be assumed that the canal is to carry 100 cubic feet of water per second of time. Under this assumption each cubic foot of proposed capacity is represented by a capitalization of $500, and, as there are 500 shares, each of the latter would represent one-fifth of a cubic foot of water. If one cubic foot be considered as the amount required for 80 acres of land, each of those who desires to irrigate this area should subscribe for five shares of stock, and for larger areas in the same proportion. There would, however, be no condition specifying the number of shares which any purchaser must acquire, though it would be advisable that each landholder purchase the number necessary to accomplish the satisfactory irrigation of the area proposed to be cultivated, since the number of shares held will determine the amount of water which he will receive. Each landowner or other person desiring water shares now enters his name upon the subscription or stock book of the association, and the secretary enters opposite thereto the number of shares for which he has subscribed, opening at the same time an account with the subscriber, upon which he is charged with the value of the stock contracted for, and given credit, under the proper dates, for any payments made thereon.

Each subscriber now becomes nominally a stockholder, though certificates of stock may never be issued, and he may proceed to work in the construction of the plant at a price for labor which has been fixed and scheduled by the board of directors, which, through the president of the association, has appointed a foreman and timekeeper to supervise the details of the work and keep the time of the operators engaged thereon. At the end of each month the foreman or timekeeper turns into the secretary a statement setting forth the amount and value of the work contributed by each subscriber, and these amounts are by the secretary credited upon the accounts of the several stockholders in partial liquidation of their indebtedness to the association, incurred through the purchase of stock.

When the construction of the plant has been completed, the various accounts are made out and certificates of paid-up stock are issued to those who are found to have worked out the full amount due therefor. Those who are found not to have contributed the amount of work necessary to liquidate their indebtedness are given credits representing the amounts paid, and their accounts remain charged with the balance yet due, the adjustment of which may be required in the form of a cash payment, or may be permitted to stand on the books until an opportunity arises for working it out at a future date. Where stockholders at the completion of the construction have contributed work in excess of their stock subscriptions, the amount thus overpaid may be refunded in cash or allowed to stand as a credit upon the books of the association, and subsequently applied in liquidation of assessment liabilities arising through expenditures incident to operation and maintenance of the plant.

A MEASURING WEIR WITH RECORDING INSTRUMENT.

If it should be found, upon the completion of the works, that the expense of construction was less than the amount realized through the sale of stock, the difference may be distributed to the stockholders in the form of a dividend to each in proportion to the amount of his stock, or it may be permitted to remain in the treasury and applied to the liquidation of subsequent indebtedness incurred in operation and maintenance. It more frequently occurs, however, that the actual cost of the works exceeds the estimate upon which the capitalization was based, and that additional funds are required to complete the enterprise. These may be realized by the levy of a pro rata assessment upon the outstanding stock, or through the issue and sale of additional stock to the amount required. The general method of organization and procedure is similar in the case of unincorporated community associations.

FUNNY YOUNG BULLDOG.

He Wears Spectacles, Smokes a Pipe and Is Very Properly Named "Artful Stockbroker."

A writer in London Sketch says: I was looking round the charming grounds of the Dayton Court hotel a little time ago, when a strange object appeared before my astonished vision—a handsome young bulldog wearing a most unmistakable pair of spectacles and holding a short pipe between his teeth. I had heard of such aids to the sight of aged dogs, and at different shows had seen one with a set of false teeth and another with an artificial knee joint and lower portion of left foreleg. I soon discovered that this was no aged dog, and inquired of his mistress, Mrs. J. Leggatt, of Church house, Southall, the reason of these unusual decorations for a show dog and not a performing one. She told me that "Artful Stockbroker"—for that is this most excitable young bulldog's name—is one who is always spoiling for a fight whenever he sees another canine, no matter of what breed or size, but that when he has his spectacles on his nose and his pipe in his mouth he is too much interested in them to risk an encounter which might cause the loss of his cherished possessions. Certainly, when bereft of them in the show ring, he was breathing out slaughterings on all sides, and Mrs. Leggattt had no easy task to prevent a deadly battle with some brother bulldog.

"Artful Stockbroker" is a brindle, who was two years old on November 27. He is by Stockton ex Merit Only, and was bred by Mrs. Benham. He fully lives up to his name, and his mistress says of him: "He is so artful that he knows everything we are talking about."

THE MEADOW MOUSE.

By Using Its Dainty Little Forepaws in a Skillful Way It Secured a Meal.

One day a naturalist lay motionless on a fallen log in the forest, and silently watched an animal at play on the grass near by. This was a large, brown-backed mouse, a meadow mouse, that had come out from his home under the log and when tired of play had sat up to make his toilet. Using his forepaws as hands, the mouse combed the white fur on his breast and licked himself smooth and sleek. Satisfied at length with his appearance, he began to search for food.

He did not have far to go, for a few stalks of wheat grew among the thick weeds near at hand. The mouse was so large that he could probably have bent the stalk down and brought the grains within reach. If not, he could certainly have climbed the stalk. He did not try either of these plans, however, for these were not his ways. Sitting up very straight, he bit through the stalk as high as he could reach.

The weeds were so thick that the straw could not fall its full length, and the freshly cut end settled down upon the ground with the straw still erect and the grain out of reach. The mouse again bit the straw in two, and again the upper portion settled down. In this way he bit off five lengths of straw before he could bring the grain within reach of his paws. These forepaws were very skillful little hands, and he deftly husked a grain and ate it, sitting erect and holding it to his mouth as naturally as a boy would hold an apple.—Our Animal Friends.

Where the Swallows Go.

The swallows all spend the winter in Central America and the south part of Mexico. They appear in the southern states as early as the middle of February, but seldom get as far north as New England until the month of May. The robins winter in the southern states and in northern Mexico. They are to be seen in flocks the winter through in the gulf states, and are often killed in great numbers there, as they are in very good condition in the winter season. The migratory instinct is not so strong in this bird as in some others, and as far north as Ohio it often remains in sheltered places all winter. Its attachment to familiar spots is very strong.

This Boy Was Impartial.

A Baptist and a Methodist minister were by accident dining at the same house. The hostess was embarrassed, not knowing how to ask one minister to say grace without offending the other. The small son quickly grasped the situation, and, half rising in his chair, moved his finger rapidly around the table, reciting:

"Eny mene miny mo,
Catch a nigger by the toe."

He ended by pointing his finger at the Baptist minister and shouting: "You're it!" The reverend gentleman accepted the decision.

RUDE TELEGRAPHY.

The Odd But Effective Means South Africans Have of Sending News and Messages.

Much surprise has been expressed at the quickness with which the natives of South Africa have learned the results of the recent battles between the Boers and British. These natives know nothing of our method of telegraphing, and yet, when victory has been declared for either of the contending parties, the news has been flashed with amazing celerity to remote parts of the country. The manner in which the news is carried is novel and most interesting. Throughout Africa the natives are expert in the use of what is known as the drum language, and they use it as we use the telegraph and the telephone, namely, for the purpose of sending a message from one place to another.

The most important events, as well as the daily occurrences in every village, are transmitted in this way. In the Congo region, near Stanley Falls, some of the natives are so skilled in the use of the drums that they can carry on a conversation with one another at a great distance, just as easily as though they were standing side by side. The chiefs or head men of the various tribes converse daily in this fashion, and thus each quickly learns what has occurred in the surrounding districts during the past 24 hours. The drum used for this purpose is fashioned, as a rule, out of a hollow tree trunk, which is covered with the skin of an antelope.

In regard to the quickness with which news is transmitted in Africa, Peter de Deken, the famous traveler, tells two good stories. While Inspector Five was in control of the station at Basoko, he visited one day a distant outpost and found that it would be impossible for him to reach home until late at night. As he looked forward to a hearty dinner, he requested a head man, who was with him and who was an expert drummer, to send word to the station, several miles away, that dinner was not to be served until he returned. The head man drummed; straightway another drummer repeated his message, and so the news was flashed from point to point until it reached the distant station. When Five reached home at night he found the table laid and the dinner ready to be served. This was the message his servants had received: "The Bula matori (governor or inspector) will be home late in the evening. Don't eat everything up."

Mistakes are sometimes made in telegraphing and telephoning, and Peter de Deken's second story shows that one may blunder also in using the drum language. Inspector Five took several photographs during his stay in Basoko, and on the day of his departure the thought struck him that it would be well to take a photograph of all those natives who, from time to time, had acted as his domestic servants. Accordingly, he ordered a drummer to notify them that they were to appear before him at a certain hour, in their holiday clothes. The drummer at once sent a message, but what was Five's surprise to find at the appointed hour, not his servants, but all the police of the station, drawn up in front of his residence. The drummer, it seems, had either misunderstood Five or had blundered in sending the message. Instead of summoning domestic servants, he had summoned state servants.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Obscured by an Ostrich.

Senator Allen, of Nebraska, is a famous stump speaker, but he tells of one occasion when his eloquence was utterly wasted. He was campaigning in Nebraska and was to speak at the fair grounds. "The grandstand," he says, "was full to overflowing, and the opportunity seemed to be ripe for a great speech. But just as I began a man brought out an ostrich hitched to a sulky. I don't know whether you ever saw a trotting ostrich in the east, but out west he was a great attraction. Well, as soon as that bird began to run around the track I wasn't in it. The ostrich monopolized the attention of every man, woman and child. When the bird stopped the people listened to me, but when he threw out his long legs again there was a roar of laughter and applause that drowned every word I uttered. Finally I gave it up and retired in favor of the ostrich."

WANT TO BE STATES.

New Mexico and Arizona Are as Ambitious as Ever.

Public Opinion in the Territories Is Divided, However—Some Want Statehood, Others Do Not Hanker for It.

[Special New Mexico Letter.]

THOSE who look upon the admission of Porto Rico and the Philippines as states, should consider the condition of Arizona and New Mexico. Population and territory do not constitute a state, and because Arizona and New Mexico have extensive areas, and the usual population for a basis of representation in congress, that does not entitle them to admission as states. The constitution is silent upon that point, and congress is left to judge whether such territory is worthy of admission. The alien population of our newly-acquired possessions unfits them for statehood, and the Mexican and Indian population of Arizona and New Mexico has kept these territories out of the union, more so, perhaps, than the vast area of arid lands in each, and their general poverty.

Arizona and New Mexico have been the most backward of our territorial acquisitions; in fact, the most backward of all territories, and are almost as sterile as Nevada. New Mexico was erected into a territory in 1850, with a population of 66,000. The last census gave it 153,000. Of this population 20,000 are Indians and about 50,000 are Mexicans.

Arizona was erected into a territory in 1863. In 1870 it had a population of 9,000, and 60,000 in 1890. They now claim 100,000. The correct figures are about 75,000. There are about 10,000 Indians in the territory, and about 20,000 Mexicans and half-breeds. The assessed property valuation of Arizona is only $31,000,000, and of its vast area only about one-third is available for irrigating and farming. Not one-half of that is now utilized. The chief products of the territory are gold, silver and copper, but owing to the great scarcity of water it produces yearly only about $5,000,000 gold, $1,000,000 silver, and the same value in copper. Of the 78,000,00 acres two-thirds are desert and mountainous, and must ever remain irreclaimable. The parched and arid lands of the desert renders the land unfit for grazing. Nature is against this sandy waste. Population invariably seeks better lands and climatic conditions.

Congress is asked at almost every session to make appropriations for the reclamation of these worthless lands by sinking wells. The scheme is impracticable, for the wells are filled by the drifting sands and the sand storms are of such magnitude that in some instances railroad tracks are imbedded and the trains stopped for hours. The chimerical scheme to make Arizona habitable by flogging the desert from the ocean, or the gulf of California, is as impracticable as the well theory. The rainfall is about ten inches a year, and in some portions not half that quantity. This is not enough to produce needed vegetation, and the cattle and sheep men frequently poach on their neighbors. It requires about 20 inches of rain to produce a crop, hence there is no agriculture in Arizona without extreme irrigation, and this greatly retards the settlement of that country. Though sheep live upon little vegetation, and get fat where cattle would starve.

Arizona is the land of the cactus. It grows bountifully on the desert, and its fibre makes an excellent quality of printing paper. This could be made one of the few leading industries of the territory, if factories were established, but the plant blooms and wastes its utility on the desert. The yucca plant furnishes the Mexicans and Indians with mescal—a more effective drink than whisky. Owing to the limited supply of water, or rather few natural streams that course through the territiry, agriculture is slow, and perhaps has reached its limit. The same may be said of mining and the live stock industry. What other industries can be inaugurated to make Arizona a desirable section and worthy of statehood, is difficult to imagine. Water, climate and soil are necessary to make a country populous, and Arizona is deficient in these. The people are not homogenous—Mexicans, Indians, cattle men and miners. Most of the latter classes are transient. These are not the people who make a state. They have no interest in the progress of a country, and care little for its destiny. The cry is mainly that of the politicians. It is doubtful if the people can support a state government, or would want it, if they understood its necessities and responsibilities. A mere ppopulation of 100,000 (as claimed), does not entitle a territory to statehood. Deduct the Indians, and the vote will appear small in comparison to the larger states which have only two United States senators, which this fledgling state would also have. Within twenty years California has added 500,000 to its population—five times as many as the entire population of Arizona, including the miscellaneous and unassimilated Mexicans and Indians, not taxed.

While the disadvantageous land and climatic conditions do not exist in Porto Rico and in our other possessions the alien population is perhaps equally objectionable. It required a quarter of a century to dominate the alien population in these territories. It may be estimated that it would require at least a century, under the most favorable immigration conditions, to assimilate our recently acquired neighbors—if, indeed, it can ever be accomplished.

The conditions in New Mexico are not quite so unfavorable as regard to the rainfall, soil and climatic conditions. The territory has an estimated population of 200,000, about one-third of whom are Mexicans and Indians. Mexicans cannot be assimilated to our form of government, and neither can the Indians. They have governments of their own. Each pueblo has its local government, and they still kill witches, as well as "medicine men" when they fail to effect a cure. Of course they are subject to our laws, but this illustrates the difficult task of assimilating alien races. Of its 78,000,000 acres, about 5,000,000 acres are mountainous and 10,000,000 desert and irreclaimable. In addition, 3,000,000 acres are reserved to the Indians, who originally owned all of it, and 150,000 acres are reserved to the government, upon which are imprisoned the savage Indians. About two-thirds of the remaining available land cannot be cultivated or irrigated owing to the lack of water. There are few small streams in this territory, and the conditions of sinking wells for irrigating purposes are about as unfavorable as those in Arizona. The rainfall is about ten inches a year.

The production of the precious metals is about equal in value to that of Arizona, retarded also by the lack of water. The assessed valuation of property in the territory last year was $39,000,000. Whether the people can sustain the expense of a state government is doubtful, for the leading industries are not permanent, depending mainly upon the scant rainfall. The sheep and cattle industries vary according to the rainfall, and the progress in agriculture has been remarkably backward, compared to all of the other territories which have been admitted to statehood. None of them have waited near so long as these arid territories, which, after four decades of territorial probation, are still unfit for statehood. To admit them, with their undesirable alien population and transient industries would be an injustice to the larger states, whose power would be proportionately neutralized. It may also be an injustice to the taxpayers. The clamor comes from the office seekers.

The problem may be better solved by giving a portion of Arizona to California. That state will ultimately be divided, and this would hasten the scheme. The northeastern portion of Arizona could be given to Utah, which would partly neutralize the Mormon vote. Then that fraction of Arizona could be added to New Mexico, and the territory admitted as a state, with some reason. By the time the transfer could be legally made, the country and the people might have sufficiently progressed to justify statehood.

The conditions now are against both of the territories, and unprejudiced observers who have resided in these arid regions unite in stating that they are not entitled to statehood.

ROSELLE CAPTURED DAILY PRESS TROPHY

The scores of the concluding series between Roselle and the Parks last week were watched with interest as there was a fair possibility that there might be a change in the first three. Mulford, the crack young bowler of Roselle, was not up to his usual form or else the new alleys bothered him for, in the first game, he rolled his lowest in any game in the league. He braced up but not sufficiently to hold his average which dropped from 189.4 to 186.7. He was still far above any of the rest and won the prize, $10 in gold, easily. Sharp, of Cranford, was second by only a small marjority with Charles A. Smith, captain of the Roselle contingent, a close third. Smith had his troubles as well as Mulford and dropped back two points.

A Hard Luck Story.

To the Editor of the Daily Press:—There has been very much said about the wave of prosperity said to have followed in the wake of the late war with Spain. One cannot look over a daily paper without reading something concerning this great boom in business. This may all be true, but there are thousands of men who have failed to get in the path of the wave; men who are willing and anxious to work and cannot find any. I have canvassed this town thoroughly for five weeks and more in search of employment that will pay a paltry nine or ten dollars per week. It seems strange that a man who is honest, sober, industrious and fairly intelligent cannot find work, while others who drink and are slaves to vicious habits, hold positions of trust and have no difficulty in obtaining them. Can any reader of The Press tell me why this is? Seeker.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World

The performance of the comedy "Our Regiment," at Music Hall Saturday night under the auspices of the A. O. H., of this city, will be given by practically the same cast as produced that play through the New England states last season. William J. Romain, who plays the leading role, has made a few changes in the company which will strengthen the production. Of the play and the Romain Stock Company the Providence (R. I.) Journal said: "Our Regiment" is as funny a bit of comedy as one cares to see. The large audience that assembled at Talina Theatre last evening, entered well into the spirit of the play and applauded and laughed heartily. Mr. Romain was delightful in his clever rendition of Lieutenant Guy Warrener, 8th Lancers."

Hoyt's latest musical comedy, "A Day and a Night," will be presented at Music Hall tonight. It is brilliant in humor, bright in dialogue and merry in situations. It is replete with up to date topical songs, catchy "coon" melodies, novel specialties, dainty dances, a bevy of pretty girls, stunning costumes, and a cast having twenty five speaking parts. The story very briefly tells of a good young man, Marble Hart, who has been brought up among a strictly pious set in New Jersey. He comes to New York to engage choir singers for his country church, but finds himself among a number of stage agents in the house of a theatrical manager. The good young man unbends himself and takes a wife from among the stage beauties. He has come to New York with a satchel full of morals, but he does not have to spend many hours with the gay spirits with whom he is associated before he becomes a real sport.

FIFTEEN BURNED.

Fatal Incendiary Tenement-House Fire in Newark This Morning.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Fifteen persons, a majority of whom were children, were burned to death in a tenement house fire at Morris and Fourteenth avenues, Newark, at 5 o'clock this morning. Thirteen bodies were recovered from the ruins within three hours after the flames had been extinguished.

The building was a three-story frame structure, formerly used as a church, but transformed into a tenement house with small rooms, scarcely 8x10 feet, opening into a narrow hallway on both the second and third floors.

The structure formed what proved to be a fire-trap. The burned building stood in the heart of the Italian district, and great excitement prevailed during the blaze, and it increased greatly when it became known that the fire was believed to be of incendiary origin.

Men and women, nearly crazed by grief, ran about the neighborhood looking for the man who was responsible for the tragedy and threatening all sorts of vengeance.

Vito Credavo is locked up in the Fourth Precinct police station on a suspicion of having set fire to the building. Credavo, with his wife and two children, occupied the rear portion of one of the upper floors.

pected happens there will be no opposition to this ticket at the borough election tomorrow.

Not satisfied with the present tickets in the field for tomorrow's election an independent ticket for the township has been made. It bears the names of W R Stanberry for freeholder; Charles D Stout, Wm. Noble and George Scudder for town committeemen; Charles Frentz for assessor and E. L. Miller for collector.

At the Bernardsville Democratic primary the following nominations were made: Justice of the Peace, I B. Bowers; Town Committee, Frank A. Ballantine, three years; John A. Layton, two years, and Henry Schureman, one year.

FUNERAL OF H. V. RYDER.

Services in Grace P. E. Church Yesterday Afternoon Were Largely Attended.

The obsequies of the late Henry V. Ryder held at the Grace P. E church yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock were very impressive and were largely attended Mr. Ryder was so well-known and liked throughout the city that there was a large number of friends who were anxious to show their respect to his memory.

Rev. E. M. Rodman, the rector, with Rev. Floyd Appleton, the curate, conducted the regular Episcopal funeral service in which the full-vested choir took part. Mr. Ryder was at one time a member of the choir of that church, and was the first of any of the old members of the choir to die.

Extensive floral offerings were displayed. They were very beautiful.

Following the service in the church, the remains were taken to Hillside cemetery where the interment took place. Rev E. M. Rodman conducted the services at the grave.

Trotter Ran Away.

Horace J. Martin's spirited trotter ran away Saturday afternoon and if it had not been for the quick presence of mind of Elwood Staats, the expressman, much damage would have resulted. The animal, attached to a light road wagon, was standing in front of F. L. C. Martin's cycle store on Fourth street, and became frightened in some way. He started off at a lively gait, running through Park avenue to North avenue, where he was stopped. Fred Moore returned the rig to the owner, who was thankful that no damage resulted.

THE BOROUGH ELECTION

A SPECIAL EFFORT MADE TO RE-ELECT JUSTICE MATTISON.

Seven Hundred Republican Tickets With His Name Pasted on Have Been Sent Out.

The annual spring election will take place tomorrow in the borough, when two Councilmen, two Justices of the Peace and a Commissioner of Appeal will be elected. The Republicans have placed in nomination for Councilmen, Harrison Coddington and Charles A. Lee; for Justices of the Peace, James S. Lunger and Charles W. Taynor, and Lewis E. Barkalew for Commissioner of Appeal.

The Democrats have nominated Frank Krewson and Dennis Gavin for councilman; Justice J. E. Mattison to succeed himself and John H. Higgins for Commissioner of Appeal. This party does not believe that Justice Crossley's time has expired and they have not nominated anyone for his place. There is very little work being being done by either party. A strong effort is being made to defeat Justice Mattison, it is said, on account of an old score. However, he has many friends who claim that he will be elected. His friends are doing all they can for him and seven hundred Republican tickets have been mailed to the voters of the borough with his name pasted thereon. Owing to a mistake in one of the names on this Republican ticket, they will have to be called in and others will be substituted. The mistake is in the name of Mr. Lee who is running for the Council. His name is Charles A. Lee, while the name of "Charles S. Lee" appears on the ticket. There is some dispute as to whether these tickets are invalid, but Mayor Smalley says that they cannot be legally counted if voted and that the corrected ticket will have to be voted. Just what effect this will have on Justice Mattison's success cannot be told.

There seems to be a feeling that the two Republican candidates for Council will not be elected. Notwithstanding that everything appears to be very quiet on the surface, there is a great deal of quiet work being done in a personal way. It is this that gives rise to the rumor that there may be some surprises. It is true that the Republicans have a majority of nearly 300 in the borough which the Democrats will have to overcome, unless a large number comprising this majority should stay home.

If the two Democrats should be elected to the Council, it will place the Council three to three with Mayor Smalley, Republican, to decide all questions in favor of his party.

FINAL DEMAND TO THE PEOPLE'S GAS COMPANY

Common Council Cites the Terms Under Which Franchise Will be Granted.

DOLLAR GAS FOR TEN YEARS

NEW COMPANY MUST AGREE TO STRINGENT STIPULATIONS.

Council Will Do Nothing Further Until the Company Agrees to Accept the Terms—Firemen's Bill Opposed.

The regular March meeting of the Common Council held last evening was void of any exciting features. There was not even any large expenditures of money, although a number of important matters were introduced to engage the attention of the members, all of whom were present except Mr. Clifton.

The report of last year's Council regarding the petition of the People's Gas Company for a franchise to furnish one dollar gas to the city was introduced by Mr. Mellick with a little addition. This addition provides that the term of years the company is to sell dollar gas shall be ten instead of five, and that the company shall furnish security in the sum of $10,000 for the faithful performance of the work, that the tearing up of streets, laying of mains, etc., shall be done under the direction of the street committee who shall see that the streets are put back in their proper condition. It also provides that no other pipes shall be interfered with and that the work shall be completed within one year from the time the franchise is granted. A resolution followed the reading of the above. This provides that until the People's Gas Company accept the terms offered by the Council no further steps shall be taken in the matter.

Another matter of importance was the action taken in direct opposition to the passage of Senate Bill 76 and Assembly Bill 230, which provide for the increase in pay of the members of the fire department and also for a pension for the firemen. A resolution was offered to the effect that it is the sense of the Council that Assemblyman Foote and Senator Cross use their efforts to prevent the adoption of the bills.

It was ascertained that Bill 76 was drafted under the influence and at the suggestion of some of the members of the local department, members of the State Mutual Firemen's Benefit Association, and while the members of the Council showed themselves heartily in favor of doing anything for the firemen within reason, it was the unanimous opinion of the Council that these bills would work injury if adopted. Mr. Coriell was outspoken against it. He thought Plainfield was paying all that it could well afford to for the department, about $20,000 a year. Mr. Buckle felt the same way. He said that with a workman if he loses time he loses his pay. Not so with a fireman. He receives his pay just the same, and he thought that the local firemen ought to be satisfied for the present. Other members felt the same way.

Residents of Netherwood avenue asked the Council to appoint commissioners to establish the grade on that avenue, and take such action as is proper for the macadamizing, grading and curbing of the street.

The Board of Assessors petitioned the Council to have the city maps correct and the property tranfers made before next May. Assessor H. C. VanEmburgh was given the contracts to do the work at a cost not to exceed $100. F. W. Runyon and others complained about the great amount of dust that is blowing about the streets in the business part of the city and petitioned to have the streets sprinkled. The petition was referred with power.

Dr. VanHorn, who at the last meeting was appointed City Physician, learned in the meantime that Dr. Carman's time has not expired, and that he has another year to serve. Rather than complicate matters he resigned, and Mayor Rockfellow withdrew the nomination. Dr. VanHorn's letter explaining the case was read and filed.

Mayor Rockfellow appointed S. Stranahan as Poundkeeper, and the following as special policemen: David Bush, Jeremiah Cash, Dennis Kane, Thomas O'Gorman and James Carty.

Collector Martin reported through the city clerk that the number of unpaid poll tax remaining on the books for the past ten years amount to $9,941.70. This report was made at the suggestion of Mr. Dumont, and the latter had the statement referred

TROLLEY CAR RAN WILD.

THRILLING MISHAP CAUSED MOTORMAN TO QUIT HIS JOB.

Jumped the Track at Cranford and Came Near Plunging Into the Creek.

One of the Plainfield street cars is out of commission at present and a motorman is out of a job. It all came about through an accident at a deadly curve at Cranford Saturday night. The car was making the curve near the bridge at that point. Without warning it jumped the track. Before Motorman Hoy could control it the car had glided across the tracks which converge at that point and crashed into the bridge with sufficient momentum to force it to literally climb the south side of the abutment for a distance of three or four feet. Fortunately there were no passengers in the car. Both the conductor and Motorman Hoy were badly frightened. The end of the car was stove in and damaged considerably. Motorman Hoy was so badly frightend that he at once threw up his job. He said he had had enough of railroading. The disabled car was pulled back to the car house late Saturday night.

Superintendent Adlemann does not censure the motorman. He believes that the car was thrown from the track by coming in contact with a stone that had lodged between the rails.

The point where the accident occurred is a particularly dangerous place, owing to the peculiar way in which the trolley company was compelled by the Township Committee to lay the rails.

The car had a narrow escape from running into the creek. Had it done so it would have plunged down an embankment about ten feet and the possibility of loss of life or serious injury would have been apparent. Hereafter extra precaution will be exercised by motormen in rounding this curve. All motormen have been cautioned to run exceedingly slow hereafter at this point.

A LENTEN LECTURE.

First of a Series Given by Miss Wilberforce Lyon in All Souls' Church Yesterday.

The first of a series of six Lenten lectures on "Europe in Africa in the Nineteenth Century," by Miss Dorothy Wilberforce Lyon, Ph. D., of Elizabeth, was given yesterday morning at 11 o'clock in All Souls' Unitarian church. The lecture was a general discussion of the entire course of events in South Africa from the time of the first Dutch settlements there until the present. Miss Lyon had of course much to say about President Kruger and the Boer war. She gave full credit to the views of both sides, but appeared to be more in sympathy with the English. Her lecture showed careful study, and was given in a bright and interesting manner.

The remaining five lectures of the course will not be given in All Souls' church, as advertised, but at the home of Mrs. Hariot Burton Ford, 726 Watchung avenue. The subject for the one to be given next Monday is "England's Native Wars and the Establishment of her power in South Africa."

EXAMPLE FOR PLAINFIELD.

Atlantic Highlands Proud of Its Electric Light Plant.

(Special to The Daily Press).

Atlantic Highlands, March 13—The annual report of the Commissioners show that the streets here are lighted much cheaper than those of any other town in the county and probably in the State. Including the interest on the town's light plant bonds the total amount paid by the town for its street lighting was $1,808 27—about $26.50 a lamp, or less than one-third the price offered by the lowest private company.

The total amount spent in maintaining and operating expenses, including interest, was $4 550.75. With the $900 spent in extending its lines, the outlay was $5,650.75. The income from lights in houses and stores was $2 941 73. It is thought the rates of lighting can be reduced in a few years. The water works are also reported as approaching self-support.

A Still Alarm.

A still-alarm was sent to fire department headquarters yesterday from 416 East Second street. Chief Doane and No. 2 hose wagon went to the place. Burning soot in the chimney was discovered and speedily extinguished. The house is the property of the Anderson estate.

Work on Westfield-Rahway Trolley.

The date set for commencing the work on the trolley road between Westfield and Rahway has been set for March 20th, if the weather permits. A gang of 200 men will be put on the work.

ABANDONED NEW ROUTE.

Jersey Central Road No Longer Running Newark Trains Over the Broadway Tracks.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, March 13.—For some unknown reason the Central Railroad Company have discontinued running its Newark trains over the Broadway track in this city. Only a few months ago these tracks were put into use for the Newark trains.

The idea of using the Broadway route was to shorten the traveling time between Elizabeth and Newark, but it seems the scheme failed, as there was no perceptible difference in the schedule time. Another object was to get rid of the trouble of backing in from the meadows to the Elizabethport station.

The opening of the Broadway route was signalized by the killing of an Elizabeth baker and his horse at one of the unprotected crossings, and then the City Council got after the railroad company and forced it to employ flagmen at the crossings of all streets that intersect Broadway.

It was the railroad company's intention to erect a station for Newark passengers at Fourth street and Broadway in Elizabethport in addition to stopping at the Elizabethport main line station, but for some reason no steps have been taken to build this station.

UNCONSTITUTIONAL LAW

NOTHING PREVENTS JUSTICES FROM ACTING AS COLLECTORS.

Supreme Court Upholds the Argument Made by W. S. Angleman for Justice Storms.

A decision of special interest to all justices of the peace has just been rendered by the Supreme Court in the case recently taken up by Justice Storms, of New Market, to test the constitutionality of the act which made it a penal offense for any justice of the peace to issue a summons on behalf of any person for whom he was agent.

It will be remembered that Justice Storms, who had acted as agent for R. G. Chase & Co. in the collection of a bill against William B. Hayes, afterwards issued a summons against Hayes in a suit brought to enforce the collection of the claim.

On the hearing of the case Justice Storms rendered judgment against Hayes. The latter thereupon sued Storms before Justice Sedam at New Brunswick for the penalty of $25, prescribed by the act mentioned. On hearing the case Justice Sedam gave judgment against Justice Storms. The latter retained W. S. Angleman to carry the case to Supreme Court in order to test the constitutionality of the act. Mr. Angleman argued the case at the November term of the Supreme Court. He contended that the section of the act imposing the penalty was not constitutional because its object was not expressed in the title.

The opinion of the court just rendered sustains the position taken by Mr. Angleman and decides that that section of the act is not constitutional and reverses the judgment obtained against Justice Storms with costs.

Old Farmer Drops Dead.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, March 13—Benjamin Pierson, an old and respected citizen of this town, dropped dead at his home on Chestnut street Sunday morning about 10 o'clock. Mr. Pierson was sitting in the dining room conversing with a member of his family when he got up to cross the room and fell to the floor. His wife, upon going to his assistance found that he was dead. Mr. Pierson was 81 years of age and had lived all his life in this vicinity. He was a farmer. For several years he filled the office of Overseer of the Poor.

To Keep Up Interest.

To follow up the interest awakened in Plainfield by the addresses of the Archbishop of Canada and Mrs. Lewis, a meeting is called for Friday afternoon, March 16th, at 3:30 p. m., in the guild rooms of Grace Episcopal church. Mrs. Lewis will preside. An association will be formed and a large attendance is desired as many can assist in spreading information about these homes for English and American girls in Paris, who can help in no other way.

To Commence Operations at Once.

Next Thursday Herzwig, Kipp & Co., manufacturers of silk underskirts, will take possession of the Crescent Rink building. They will begin to manufacture within a short time.

—When the fresh vegetables are not obtainable, the canned asparagus tips and peas to be found at Neuman Brothers' grocery, are very popular.

A VERY QUIET ELECTION

NO ACTIVITY AROUND THE POLLS IN THE BOROUGH.

Light Vote is Being Cast—Democrats Hope to Re-elect Justice Mattison.

The most quiet election in the history of the borough is being held today. There is absolutely no exciting feature about the contest. At 10:30 o'clock this morning eighty votes had been cast in each district and the election officers looked as though they were tired doing nothing. If the voting continues at this rate throughout the day the total vote can be counted tonight in less than an hour.

The Republicans are feeling a little shaky owing to the light vote. There is very little work being done by either party. Only one carriage is being used to bring out the voters who will not come out otherwise, and there are very few workers about the polls. The members of the Boards of Registry have been promised a feast for this evening, and as they will probably get through their work early they will have plenty of time to enjoy it.

A determined effort is being made by the Democrats to elect Justice Mattison, while the Republicans are doing their best to defeat him. The result will be watched with considerable interest. Very few of the candidates are out working and this looks as though they have little interest one way or the other as to who wins.

It was reported this forenoon that all the votes in the township had been voted and the election officers were just waiting for the time to close the polls so they can count them. The contest there is said to be very exciting.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, March 13.—The election here today has been rather quiet but both sides are working hard to elect their candidates, the Republicans making a big effort to place George H. Embree in the Board of Freeholders and Martin Welles, on the Township Committee. It is hardly likely that they will succeed in either case, as Mulford M. Scudder, the Democratic candidate for the former office, is very strong and Henry C. Sergeant, the man running against Mr. Welles, is one of the most popular men in the township. He is the owner of the Westfield Club property and holds $30 000 worth of the township sewer bonds.

MR. LONG DECIDED AGAINST.

Borough Recorder Didn't Want to Pay for Stove Parts That He Didn't Like.

An interesting contract case was tried yesterday afternoon before Justice Mattison and a jury composed of Duer W. Budd, Jacob Voehl, A. J. Winckler, Theodore Stites, Andrew Love, Sr., and Wm. Debele. The case was that of A. M. Griffen against Borough Recorder Eli Long for an account of $27 in connection with the purchase of a range some time ago.

The defendant was represented by S. S. Swackhamer, who contended that the range was satisfactory, but the things that go with it were not. It was for the dissatisfied parts that the defendant refused to pay. Frank Blatz, of the firm of Murphy & Blatz, represented the plaintiff, and after the case was opened by Wm. Nash, Mr. Blatz assumed charge. He claimed for his client that everything about the range and the parts were satisfactory and no dissatisfaction was expressed until a year after the range was installed and the grate was burned out. A number of witnesses from A. M. Griffen's place testified as to the range being satisfactory, while the plaintiff and his servant girl testified that it was not.

After both sides had had their say the case was given to the jury and in a few minutes they brought in a verdict for the plaintiff for $15 41.

OVER $50,000 RAISED.

FOR NEW BUILDINGS FOR CENTENARY COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

A Meeting of the Trustees Held in Newark Yesterday—Enough Money to Start With.

At a meeting of the trustees of the Centenary Collegiate Institute, held in Newark yesterday, convened to consider plans for the rebuilding of the institute, the sum of $51 850 was pledged towards the rebuilding fund. Of this amount $38,350 was subscribed by members of the board who were present, and $13,500 pledged in the name of friends of the institute.

This splendid offering, together with the $116,500 in hand received from insurance, makes the speedy rebuilding a certainty. A large sum in addition will be required to carry out the plans projected by the trustees. The purpose is to make the institute the first of its class in every respect.

The trustees elected Rev. Dr. George H. Whitney, of this city, a member of the board and assigned him to the committee on plans, to fill the vacancy made by the death of Rev. Dr. J. M. Freeman.

The present school year will close June 1st, and it was decided to continue the sessions of the institute next fall.

Debt Wiped Out.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, March 13—For some time past the officers of the Second Reformed church, of this place, have been struggling to wipe out the debt of $5,000 on the church. All but $1,700 had been secured up to Sunday, when a plea for the remainder was made to the congregation after the sermon Sunday morning. The necessary amount was soon pledged, thus wiping out the entire debt of $5 000. This makes the fourth church in Somerville that has wiped out its indebtedness during the past eighteen months.

"STORY OF THE TREASON"

TOLD BY W. W. ELLSWORTH LAST NIGHT AT THE CASINO.

Illustrated with Views of Rare Old Prints and Highly Treasured Manuscripts—Career of Benedict Arnold.

The large audience that comfortably filled the Casino last evening was made up of a number of the teachers and many of the pupils of the public schools of this city and the borough. The entertainment afforded was a lecture entitled "Arnold and Andre, the Story of the Treason." It was given by William W. Ellsworth, of New York, a direct descendant of the brave Col. Ellsworth, who fell at Alexandria, Va., during the War of the Rebellion, and was for the benefit of the Washington Rock Memorial Fund under the auspices of the Continental Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mr. Ellsworth was introduced to the audience by C. W. McCutchen, of this city, who briefly told of the efforts of the ladies on behalf of the historical work they have on hand. Mr. Ellsworth's lecture was illustrated with many handsome views of old prints and manuscripts—copies of ancient and carefully treasured documents—that were projected from a stereopticon upon canvass. For an hour-and-a-half Mr. Ellsworth read in a clear voice the "Story of Treason," taking his story from the early days of the Revolution when Benedict Arnold, the dashing but impetuous youth, was first given a commission in the Continental Army up to the time of his conspiracy with Major John Andre, his escape to England and the final execution of Andrew who had been captured by the Americans as a spy. The story was well read and it proved both interesting and instructive to the older as well as the younger portion of the audience. The views of the old prints and manuscrips were particularly interesting and many of them had never previously been seen in this city.

ONE CELL READY.

New Police Station is Being Put Into Condition for Immediate Use.

There will be accommodations for one offender of law and order at the Olympia this evening. Last night the police moved from the old Gazelle engine house on West Second street to the new station house in the Olympia. The policemen met there for roll call and there the blotter was kept.

The carpenters have been busy in the Olympia, the successor of the "rookery," and one cell will be completed this afternoon. The other three will be ready for use before the week is over.

Nobody was arrested last night and consequently there was no call to confine anyone in the cells at the old station house. The doors will now be removed from the latter place for use in the Olympia. Hereafter City Judge Runyon will use the Olympia as a court room until the City Hall is built.

KEAN'S TROLLEY WILL GO ON TO CRANFORD.

Senator Gives Orders to Push the Work Without Further Delay.

OTHER TROLLEY RUMORS.

RIKERS GETTING READY TO CONNECT WITH ELIZABETH.

Company is Distributing Rails Along Jersey Avenue, and the Work Will be Started When Weather is Settled.

Senator John Kean arrived in Elizabeth from Washington Saturday, and had a conference with the officers of the Elizabeth Street Railway Company, and gave orders to have the work of construction proceeded with. The tracks will be immediately laid on Westfield avenue as far as the Cranford line. The rails have been ordered, and the work will be begun at once on their arrival.

Secretary Whelan said yesterday it was the intention to build the road as far as Cranford this spring, and that the arrangements for widening the avenue would be made.

The Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company seems to be making a move to have the road completed, and the connection from Elizabeth to Plainfield finished early this spring.

The company has distributed its rails along Jersey avenue, and evidently the work of construction of the connection with the tracks of the Consolidated Traction Company on West Jersey street in Elizabeth is to be begun as quickly as the weather will permit.

No communication has been received from the company by the Elizabeth city officials, but it is expected that at an early meeting of the City Council an application will be made for right of way for an extension of the line to the water front.

There was a report current that the North Jersey company will discontinue running its cars on West Jersey street, and will give up the tracks on that street to the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway.

It was also said that the company has in contemplation a change in the system of running cars on the various routes in Elizabeth. It is said that the Newark cars will have their terminus at the arches, and that one run of cars will be from North to South Elizabeth, or from North avenue to South Broad street terminus. The First street cars would run to Lyons Farms and Evergreen cemetery.

A meeting will be held in the Y. M. C. A. building in Clinton street, Newark, tomorrow afternoon, to perfect some of the details, Rev. T. E. Davis, of Bound Brook, chairman of the State transporation committee, and Mrs. S. E. DeCoster, the member of the committee for Essex county, will be present to give any necessary information to those who wish to accompany either of the excursions.

'UNCLE DAN" BUYS OUT CORLE.

The Veteran Livery Stable Man Could Not Remain Inactive.

C. V. D. Corle has sold out his interest in the City Hotel stables to D. S. Roberts, familiarly known as "Uncle Dan," who is one of the oldest liverymen of the city. Mr. Corle sold the stables, horses and carriages. Mr. Roberts took possession today. For many years "Uncle Dan" Roberts had a livery stable on North avenue which he sold out to Mr. Horne last fall. A retired life did not suit the veteran liveryman and so he has returned to the business again. Mr. Corle has not yet decided what he will do.

Somerset Will Be Asked to Help.

PORTO RICO OBJECTS

Citizens Send a Plain Statement to Congress.

FREE TRADE URGENTLY DEMANDED

The Island People Now In Sore Distress—Commerce Is Hindered and Capital Withheld—Earnest Plea For Justice.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, March 13.—The planters, merchants and manufacturers of Porto Rico have mailed to congress by the steamer Philadelphia the following statement:

"We, the undersigned, beg to submit to your earnest consideration the following views as to the financial policy of Porto Rico. We note with regret the principle enunciated by certain speakers in the lower house of congress that a tariff between Porto Rico and the United States is the proper method of raising revenue for this island. To this we are unchangeably opposed for the following reasons:

"First.—Because taxation on our exports means an embargo on our foreign commerce.

"Second.—Because curtailment of our commerce with the United States would lock up our products here and prevent us from gaining our legitimate proportion of profit on our productions.

"We can never become independent financially if forced to trade solely among ourselves. We must have a market other than Porto Rico or else we cannot gain wealth. Do not mistake the proposed 15 per cent of the Dingley rates for a reasonable rate. It is a fact that no class of goods produced here from leaf tobacco will be taxed less than 25 per cent ad valorem, while one of the most important of this class will be taxed 160 per cent ad valorem under the bill adopted by the house of representatives. If this is not an embargo on our trade, what can it be called?

"We earnestly ask for free trade, believing that with a mutual interchange of products between the two countries the United States will be more than gainer. The United States will for many years supply our 1,000,000 people with their manufactured products. In general we recognize the fact that a revenue to support the insular government would be necessary, but we are decidedly of opinion that the better method for raising that revenue will be by internal taxation, and for the following reasons:

"First.—Because by that system no restriction will be placed on our commerce with the United States.

"Second.—Because the adoption of that system will be as simple in operation here as it is in the United States.

"In considering the amount of revenue needed for this island we beg to submit the following calculations, which after due consideration we believe can be realized: Rum, 1,300,000 gallons, which at $1.10 per gallon works out at $1,430,000; cigarettes, 250,000,000, which at $1.50 per 1,000 works out at $375,000; cigars, 120,000,000, which at $3.60 per 1,000 works out at $432,000; total, $2,237,000.

"We estimate the entire special license tax as nominally $15,000. This will give us a total revenue of $2,252,000. One-third of that equals about $750,666. A fair estimate of the annual cost of administration is $600,000. Add for interest and sinking fund on bonds to be issued $150,000. Total required, $750,000.

"Even with free trade with the United States there would be an additional revenue of at least $200,000 annually from customs duties on goods coming here from foreign countries. If congress will authorize Porto Rico to issue $2,000,000 of 40 year 5 per cent bonds, the above will provide for them—viz, for interest, $100,000, and for sinking fund, $50,000.

"Therefore we infer that it will be unnecessary to adopt for this island the full revenue rates of the United States. One-third of those rates will give ample receipts to cover all the above. Porto Rico has no bonded or other debts. Therefore $2,000,000 of bonds to be issued for internal improvements would be conservative.

"We call your attention to the fact that it has been the custom for all countries to make internal improvements by the system of bonded indebtedness which divides the expenses among succeeding generations. We do not desire to have the burden of internal improvements placed on us solely. If it must be so, then we ask that it be done by a system of internal taxation that will not prevent the increase of our commerce with the states of the American Union and that will not starve us.

"The fact cannot be disputed that our people are in sore distress. All commerce is now hampered. The investment of capital is stopped. Our farmers have not the means to plant or to gather their crops. Building and improving are impeded. Capital refuses to come here for investment in either manufacturing or agricultural pursuits for the reason that the sovereignty of the United States over this island has deprived us of free trade with Spain and Cuba, which formerly took our exports at fair prices and enabled us to live.

"We now ask as a right in equity that free trade with the United States be given us. We ask bread as a right from our mother. Do not, we pray, give us a stone. We ask for an immediate decision."

Cold Weather In Western New York.

GENEVA, March 13.—Sunday night here was one of the coldest of the year. At the state experimental station the mercury registered 10 degrees below zero. The night was an unusually quiet one, and as a result Seneca lake is covered with a thin layer of ice. It is frozen nearly from shore to shore, and it extends southward several miles. This is the first time in five years that the lake has frozen to such an extent.

Call For State Convention.

NEW YORK, March 13.—Chairman Franklin Murphy of the New Jersey Republican state committee has issued at Newark the formal call for the meeting of the state convention at Trenton on April 19. The call is not only addressed to the Republican voters of New Jersey, but to others who have not hitherto affiliated with the party. This is taken to mean gold standard Democrats.
